Physician arrested on burglary charges

by David Moore

A Monday night fire of suspicious origins caused extensive damage to the North Shelby County home of Dr. Lawrence A. Farris, Jr.

Later the same night, Farris was arrested after a high speed chase which led a sheriff's deputy and Alabaster and Pelham police from the Jessup Building in Alabaster to the entrance of Shadowbrook subdivision, off Valledale Road. According to police reports, Farris was driving a late model, yellow Cadillac at

Bolton outlines goals as harmony-progress

Running for his fourth term as mayor of Columbiana, Robert Bolton says that his goals are for the continued steady progress of the city and for harmony and teamwork on the council.

The Columbiana native was elected to his first term as mayor in 1968. His last two years in office have been to fill the unexpired term of Richard Ozley.

Listing some of the strides that have been made during the years he has held the city's top post, Bolton mentioned the construction of a modern, efficient city hall, the development of recreational facilities for youth, and establishing a workable and reasonable household garbage service.

"We've held down any excess taxation on our citizens," the mayor noted and he related that federal funding has been applied for to revamp the city's sewerage system.

Streets and drainage have been developed with the available funding, Bolton said. But he reported that Tucker Engineering firm had been retained to apply for the grant which would provide 75% federal funding for upgrading and expanding the sewerage system.

"We've supported many other programs to aid our city," the mayor said.

He listed cooperation with civic clubs in making the city more attractive, assisting with the Scouting program and supporting the library.

"The county RSVP program for the elderly has also received every consideration," Bolton remarked, "and I will continue to support it."

Bolton and his wife Doris have one son, Rob, who works with his father at Bolton-Brown Funeral Home.

Wayne Lowe seeks Vincent's top job

"I'm running on the basis of structured progress for Vincent," says mayoral candidate Wayne Lowe.

He notes that he wants to provide recreational facilities for the youth of the town and more free services for the elderly. These things will be funded through federal money, he says, not additional taxes.

Lowe, who was raised in Childersburg, has lived in Vincent for the past 25 years. He teaches senior English at the high school there, and is pastor of the Beulah Baptist Church in Sterrett.

He serves on the advisory committee of the Chilton-Shelby Mental Health Association, is president of the East Shelby Recreational Association, and assistant chairman of the Vincent Beautification Committee.

A 1967 graduate of VHS, Lowe earned his A.B. degree from Samford in 1970, his M.Div. from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1974, and his M.Ed. degree in 1977 from the University of Montevallo.

Lowe lives in the Pine Hill subdivision with his wife Brenda. They have two children, Jennifer, 9, and Tim, 4.

Murder suspect jailed; bond set at $100,000

by David Moore

A 27-year old man charged with murder in the Friday slaying of a Pelham woman, remains in Shelby County jail pending a $100,000 bond.

Corbit Glen Stallings, Jr., who listed his address as 3rd Street, Helena, was formally charged by Pelham police about 5:00 p.m. Saturday.

The arrest came approximately 24 hours after the partially nude body of Mrs. Gale Heatherly, 32, was found by neighbors slumped against the side of her house in Pelham Heights, off Hwy. 52 (Helena Road).

The suspect was transported from the Pelham jail to Columbiana Monday morning for a bond hearing before District Judge Patti Smith. Afterwards, he was locked in isolation at the county jail.

According to PPD Capt. Allen Wade, a preliminary hearing on the case has been set for August 14 in District Court.

Stallings' arrest came in the wake of intensive investigation by Pelham evidence technicians, with assistance from Sheriff's investigator Sgt. John Pratt and Helena Sergeants Alvin Coggins and Billy Hinds.

Wade, who led the investigation, recreated what happened the evening of Mrs. Heatherly's death:

The victim had apparently just returned from work at the Shelby County YMCA when she talked with a friend by telephone about 4:30.

Neighbors later reported hearing screams from the house and what they thought to be a muffled gun shot.

Shortly, neighbors became concerned, walked to Mrs. Heatherly's partially secluded house, and found her sitting in a slumped position under a rear bedroom window.

Pelham police were notified at 5:43 and Cpl. Tim Whitaker arrived on the scene at 5:44.

While Sgt. Tommy Thomas led a team of evidence technicians in the search for physical evidence at the scene, Wade and Pratt followed leads which began to come to light as local citizens became aware of what had happened.

The first break in the case, Wade told the Reporter, came Friday night when a citizen reported to Helena police that he had seen Stallings without a shirt, acting "unusual," and covered with what looked to be blood stains.

Another citizen told police he saw a man running from the woods near Heatherly's house that fit Stallings' description.

Hinds picked up Stallings at home around 11:30 Friday night and took him to Wade and Pratt

Accused pair arrested in Alabaster rape case

Two Alabaster men were arrested early Saturday morning and charged with raping a 28 year old Jemison woman.

According to Alabaster investigator Sgt. Larry Rollan, 29 year old Ronnie Lee Hale and Ronnie Lavel Shields were picked up after the victim escaped and called police.

The woman was reportedly spending the night at the residence of Dee Taylor when the two men came in and allegedly raped her around 4 a.m.

One of the two then took her to a nearby abandoned house from which she escaped, Rollan said.

Hale is charged with first degree rape and Shields is charged with first degree rape, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Hill runs for full DA term

Every district attorney in the state must run for office this year, even those who have not served a full term.

And last week, William R. Hill Jr., DA in the 18th Judicial Circuit, announced that he has qualified to run for the office to which he was appointed last year.

Hill has occupied the office since February, 1979 when Gov. Fob James appointed him to fill the vacancy created when Harold Walden was named circuit judge.

Before taking over the DA's office, Hill served as district judge.

Pointing to a successful prosecution record during his year as DA, Hill noted that his office has won all the cases that have been

Roy seeks 4th term

George Roy served four years as a Calera councilman before being elected mayor 12 years ago.

He is now seeking his fourth term in office.

"I've got an interest in this town, he said. "Working with the Chamber and citizens, we've tried to grow in all areas. Most certainly we're encouraging business and new residents to move to Calera."

As for current growth indicators, Roy points out that the city is negotiating to add 14-20 acres to Oliver Park, has recently secured land for another fire station, the plans for which are on the drawing board, and has entered into a contract with Alabama Power for new street lights.

During this term, the city has purchased a $75,000 fire truck, upgraded its water system, upgraded the maintenance department with a $60,000 building, moved the library to a larger building and upgraded facilities for senior citizens, he said.

The city's sewer system is awaiting EPA approval and a drop in fire insurance ratings are expected in the near future, Roy added.

"I couldn't have accomplished anything without a good, working, council," he said.

Henson points to Wilton's progress

In the six years that he's been mayor, the town of Wilton has come a long way, says James M. "Mickey" Henson, who is seeking reelection.

But the 36 year old mayor doesn't take all the credit. He noted that cooperation from the council and "good personnel" have contributed to the town's progress.

Youth, experience and his dedication to improving the community is what he has to offer, Henson says. He pointed out that he knows how to get things done and the contacts in state government who can help.

A major milestone for the community, a 250,000 gallon water tank, was purchased and put up since he's been in office Henson notes. And he added that the project didn't cost the town a cent.

Greene promises more public participation

After serving two years in place number five on the Vincent city council, Don Greene is now running for mayor of that town.

Noting that he wants to open up the city government, he says, "I feel that citizens should be allowed to vote on controversial issues such as the costly improvements to services for the city. The citizens are the ones who must pay for the services."

His top priority, says Greene, will be to secure government grants for public recreational facilities, and his single campaign promise is "to treat each citizen equally and fairly."

Beating the odds, the mayor reported that the town secured a $55,000 grant even though fifth on a list of five applicants.

And $22,000 in revenue sharing money was given to the town after the mayor called Governor George Wallace.

Mentioning the town's residential growth, Henson reported that more building permits were issued last year than at any time since incorporation in 1918.

In order for growth to continue, Henson said that efforts are being made to annex more land. And businesses are being encouraged to locate in Wilton too, Henson noted.

If he's reelected, the mayor said that he will continue to see that the streets are kept in good repair and those in the "quarter" widened.

Greene is a native of the Vincent area, and a 1956 graduate of Vincent High School.

A sergeant first class, full time administrative technician at the Vincent National Guard Armory, Greene has been in the Guard for the last 25 years.

He has been affiliated with the East Shelby little league since 1964, and besides serving a two year appointed term on the city council, is also a member of the Vincent Gas Board.

He lives in Pinehill subdivision with his wife, Judy, and sons Todd, 15, and Toby, 12.

Having lived in Wilton for 26 years, Henson related that he had set his sights on becoming mayor when he was only 12.

Married to the former Jerrie Crawford, the couple have an 8 year old son, Joey and a 3 month old daughter, Becky.

He is a sales representative for Commercial Printing Company in Birmingham.

Prichard wants job of Calera mayor

Mayoral candidate Carl Prichard says the people of Calera want to see their town cleaned up and its drug problem alleviated.

"I have had a lot of citizens in town ask me to run. I think the motive behind this is they want a better, more open government. I have been actively involved in bettering this community and I feel that's why they want me to run," he says.

Prichard states that a vote for him will be a vote for progress, growth and improvement. He adds that he would accept no salary as mayor, but instead feed it back into city projects or the general fund.

A Calera resident for 10 years, he has served as past presidents of the Calera Chamber of Commerce, the Calera Civitans and the Calera School PTA. Currently, he serves on the school's board of trustees, is secretary of the Calera Boy Scouts Troop Committee, chairman of the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon, and an officer of the Shelby County Unit of the Alabama Utility Consumer Association.

He earned a B.S. degree with a major in business from the University of Tennessee and served from 1950-52 in the army.

He and his wife, the former Erma Ruth Walton of Columbiana, live in Brentwood Hills with their son, Carl, and daughter, Nancy. Their oldest son, Matthew, is a journalist in Argentina.

Pelham murder

for questioning.

Lacking any evidence to counter Stallings' story of being involved in a motorcycle accident, the suspect was released.

Evidence which came to light the next morning, however, allegedly discredited Stallings' alibi. PPD evidence technician Glen Welch and HPD Sgt. Coggin brought the suspect back to Pelham for further questioning.

An autopsy was performed Saturday morning which placed the time of death between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. The autopsy also revealed that Mrs. Heatherly "died of multiple blows to the head with some blunt object."

The autopsy ruled out the use of a gun.

Evidence from the autopsy also linked the victim's death to Stallings, Wade said.

Meanwhile police at the scene had collected an abundance of physical evidence, including a softball-sized, bloodstained rock thought to be the murder weapon, some 150 fingerprints, hair samplings and blood samplings.

"Pratt, Thomas and myself, with his attorneys present, charged Stallings with murder and placed him in Pelham jail," Wade said.

PPD Chief D.O. Watson called the citizen involvement in the case "excellent."

"This is essential to good law enforcement," Watson said.

Officer Jack McKerley, one of the police who spent better than 16 hours helping collect evidence at the scene, said, "One of the things that's going to help the case is that we were able to get here so quickly and were able to preserve a relatively intact scene."

"I've never seen so much physical evidence that fell into place like a Chinese puzzle. This is what we call a who-did-it homicide," said Pratt. "As far as we know, there was no link between the suspect and victim."

Mrs. Heatherly, who was recently divorced, was due to move from the house in which she was killed the next morning. She had lived there with her two children who were in Florida at the time of her death with their father, Jerry Heatherly, an Alabaster minister.

Stallings lived at home with his parents, within two miles of the victim's house. He was reportedly separated from his wife.

Police said that Stallings had been previously arrested for buying, receiving and concealing stolen property and for a violation of the Alabama Uniform Controlled Substance Act.

Gathering evidence

PPD Sgt. Tommy Thomas (l), and officer Jack McKerley take bloodstained carpet samples from one of the empty bedrooms in the house from which Gale Heatherly was moving. Evidence at the scene indicated that the victim and her assailant struggled in several rooms of the house.

Smith pleads guilty, draws 28 years

Steve Smith, the man charged with the November slaying of Mountain Brook grocer Larry Osborne, changed his plea Monday from not guilty to guilty of second degree murder.

Circuit Court Judge Harold Walden sentenced Smith to 28 years in the state penitentiary.

The news that Smith would be eligible for parole in less than ten years seemed to be a bitter pill for Osborne's family to swallow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Osborne and their son Ken were present in the courtroom when the sentence was pronounced. Mountain Brook Police Chief John Haley and Lt. Earl Littlefield were also present.

Smith was to have gone on trial in August on a charge of first degree murder in the beating death of Larry Osborne.

The disappearance of the $8,000 that was taken from the safe of the Western Supermarket the night Osborne was murdered is still unaccounted for.

Investigation has turned up no new evidence of there being another suspect although Smith earlier claimed that someone else had actually struck the blows that killed Osborne.

The body of the 20 year old assistant manager was found tied to a tree on a dirt road between Calera and Columbiana Nov. 19.

Defense attorneys Fred Pickard and Cecil Matthews, who had been appointed to represent Smith, were with him during the proceedings.

The plea of guilty makes an appeal in the case highly unlikely, Deputy District Attorney Bob Williams pointed out.

He noted that the change in plea relieved the Osborne family of going through a trial and the emotional burden of a possible appeal.

If Smith had been convicted of first degree murder, he would have been eligible for parole in 30 years.

In a prepared statement, the Osbornes expressed the deep hurt and suffering they had experienced following the brutal murder.

"Our sympathy goes out," they wrote, "to other families who have been, and are being victimized in this day of high crime."

tried with the exception of only one.

He reported the handling of more than 9,000 cases circuit wide with the most recent victory coming last week when a Coosa County jury handed down the first death penalty sentence in the Eighteenth Judicial Circuit in over 15 years.

Trial victories in Shelby County include the convictions of Bobby Joe and Phillip Hope for the murder of Louie Earl Jones.

His office, Hill said, has accented a team approach to fighting crime. "Without the contribution of the local policemen on the street, our conviction record would not be possible," he declared.

Monetary efficiency has also been one of his goals for the office, the DA remarked. And he noted that even though there had been a 173% increase in case load circuit wide, he said that there had been no increase in prosecution staff or state funding.

He also called attention to the fact that over $40,000 was returned to state and county welfare funds due to the prosecution of parents who had abandoned their children to state support.

The district attorney, who serves Shelby, Coosa and Clay Counties, is a Shelby County native and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hill, Sr. of Helena.

A graduate of Thompson High School, he attended Auburn University and received his undergraduate degree from Birmingham Southern College. His law degree is from the University of Alabama.

In 1979, Hill was named as an Outstanding Young Man of America by the Jaycees. Some of the organizations in which he holds membership include Helena Masonic Lodge 410, Fraternal Order of Police, Board of Directors for the King's Ranch and the Shelby County Youth Attention Lodge.

Married to the former Cynthia Ann Watson of Pelham, he and his wife live in the Cahaba Valley area. They are members of the University Baptist Church in Montevallo where they formerly lived.

A member of the U. S. Army Reserve, Hill is now doing his two week stint at summer camp.

Alabaster hopefuls crowd political forum at Thompson

What kind of key would it take to unlock the door and let new life and growth come into Alabaster?

That was one of the questions receiving the most attention when candidates seeking election to the council and mayor's post, spoke at a political forum Monday night.

Over 100 people turned out for the Chamber of Commerce event which was held in the Thompson High School cafeteria.

All of the candidates were present to express their views with the exception of Bill Evans who is running for mayor.

Several questions on the list prepared by Chamber of Commerce members prior to the event focused on the city's development.

There was general agreement among the candidates that the answer was in finding suitable industries and businesses to locate in Alabaster. And annexing more land was also mentioned.

All of the political hopefuls gave industry as the prime means of increasing revenue and were adamant in saying they did not favor any additional business tax.

Councilman Wayne Lucas also pointed out that the proposed fire protection contract would bring in additional revenue.

When asked their ideas on getting industry, the consensus of opinion was to work with the Chamber of Commerce and people with expertise to "sell" the city.

A subject over which there has been dissension came up for discussion. That was the sewerage system.

Incumbents pointed out that because of the city's growth, it had been necessary to install the lines and treatment plant to keep water from being contaminated.

It was brought out that federal regulations prevent the system from becoming overloaded or discharging waste into Buck Creek.

Giving their views on incorporating with Pelham and Helena, most of the candidates firmly opposed the idea. However three said it might be conceivable in the future.

One question on the list which wasn't asked during the meeting concerned a city school system.

During the brief talks each candidate made prior to the questions, Mayor Charlotte Burke touched on the issue, saying she would appoint a committee to study the feasibility of such a move.

She noted that it would be given serious consideration if there was enough favorable opinion from citizens.

Jack Reagin, a relative newcomer to the community who is running for place 5, suggested that citizens might want such a system.

Politicians ponder

Candidates running for office in Alabaster lined up against the wall in the Thompson High School cafeteria Monday to answer a list of questions prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. The questions were asked by Judge Robert Armstrong. Here Mayor Charlotte Burke speaks to the crowd as the other office seekers ponder their answers while awaiting their turn at the podium.

First of three candidates' meetings held in Pelham

With the fuse spewing closer to election day, more than a passing spark of interest appears to have been ignited in Pelham.

Monday night the council chamber was filled as residents turned out to hear 16 of the 17 candidates for city council and the mayor's office speak in a public forum. Tuesday, after press time, the chamber of commerce held a similar meeting, which several people said would draw an even bigger crowd.

And for concerned citizens who want to make sure they make the best choice for who will be sitting in the city's driver seats for the next four years, a third forum will be held Monday, July 7, at 7 p.m. in the Shelby Mart parking lot.

At least one candidate said that the five minutes allowed each speaker at the meeting last Monday night was not enough. At the upcoming meeting each candidate will be given a 15 minute limit.

At the first forum, sponsored by the Pelham Homemakers, a question and answer session was not originally slated, but was none the less worked in during the last 15 minutes of the program.

All the questions asked were directed towards the two mayoral candidates, incumbent Burk Dunaway and challenger Allen Wilson.

Most of the questions asked of Wilson concerned "some changes" he had said were needed in the police department.

"When you get 50-51 percent of the people complaining about it, you know something's wrong," Wilson added.

Pressed for what changes he had in mind, Wilson commented, "I can't tell you all my secrets, now can I?"

One woman incorrectly quoted statistics to the effect that Wilson attended only one fourth of the council meetings during his terms as councilman. Actually, the records show that he missed one fourth of the meetings.

Questions fired at Dunaway centered around education, with one person asking what effects city growth would have on the overpopulated Valley School. Another person asked why Pelham didn't give financial support to the school.

Dunaway noted that the board of education sets the school zones, and that the city began giving financial aid to Pelham High, Valley and Riverchase four years ago.

He said he hoped the support would both continue and increase, and added that one day he would like to see a city school system for Pelham.

Other points made during the talks included council communications, cable TV, the acquiring of federal monies and expansion of city limits.

Christian Women met in Riverchase

A special feature entitled "The Eyes Have It," will be presented at the monthly luncheon sponsored by the Shelby Christian Women's Club. The meeting will be held July 8, from 12-2 p.m. at Riverchase Country Club.

Music for the occasion will be provided by Sandy McMillian and the guest speaker will be educator Lynn Green.

For nursery and luncheon reservations, call 663-6431 or 663-6698 by Monday, July 7.

B-25 flight raises questions

by David Moore

Time: June 20, 1980.
Place: Shelby County Airport.
A page of history flew out of the southern skies and landed. It was a vintage B-25 Mitchell bomber, a 1944 version of the plane made famous by Lt. Col. Jimmy Doolittle in his daring, if not desperate, retaliatory raid against Japan five months after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

The plane is owned and piloted by Bob Dugan of Dunnellan, Florida, a member of the Valiant Air Command, who flew the warbird to Shelby County for the recent air show.

The flight made available to members of the press presented a unique opportunity.

Shortly, Dugan was gunning the twin 1750 horse power Wright engines to the thundering pitch of 2500 RPM's. Ready for takeoff he released the brakes and the plane roared down the runway.

Sitting behind the pilot and copilot, in the cramped engineers compartment, the scream of the engines carried this young reporter back to a different time, back to the early 1940's.

The place could have been the aircraft carrier Hornet, steaming 650 miles off the coast of Japan, or perhaps a sandy airstrip in North Africa. Dugan could have been Doolittle himself, such was the strong, historic aura of the plane.

As we went airborne, a rush of adrenalin hit me and I wondered how it would feel if we were flying an actual mission against an "enemy". How would I react if anti-aircraft flack was exploding under the belly of the bomber and fighters were buzzing the air around us, trying desperately to blast us into oblivion?

I'd be scared.

I crawled through the small, dark companionway that led under the pilot's seat and into the plexiglass nose of the plane.

Here, young Americans like myself had once sighted down on enemy installations and released four tons worth of bombs from altitudes no higher than a tall tree. Nearly surrounded by glass, they were exposed to the world. And exposed to death.

Were they scared? I'm sure they were.

But for the most part these men were doing something in which they staunchly believed. They were defending democracy. They were fighting--and dying--for the concepts our forefathers had in mind on July 4, 1776, when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Those were different times. History has not always presented the American people with clear-cut decisions. Right and wrong has not always been spelled so clearly. Sometimes things get confusing.

But the pendulum of time swings back and forth.

Through the plexiglass nose I watched a brief, though panoramic slice of American life roll beneath my feet.

I-65, Hwy. 31 and the L & N tracks stretched across the countryside. The deep turquoise of a lime plant quarry stood boldly against the grey and white rock of the earth. And smaller turquoise pools, these scattered in the backs of subdivision houses, sparkled in the afternoon sun. People were out and about.

On the 4th of July, families and friends would be sitting around those swimming pools, relaxing with bar-b-que ribs and thinking of skyrockets and firecrackers.

Would they--or I, for that matter--be thinking about those in the past who picked up muskets or flew in the nose of bombers to pay the tab for the freedom and independence of America?

How well do we remember?

The B-25 circled back for the airport. I moved to the tail of the plane to see what it was like.

And the pendulum of time continued above the roar of the bomber's twin engines.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

"Have you had any adventures lately to write about?"

A bank teller asked me that when I went in to make my monthly car loan payment last week.

"Afraid not," I answered. And I was concerned because without some mishap, it's hard to get an idea for this column.

There didn't seem to be much hope of anything happening that day either because I was going to be holding down our branch office.

For some reason, whenever I'm there, exciting things always seem to happen somewhere else.

And as I suspected, the usual pattern of events transpired as I sat behind the desk attending to mundane affairs.

But then, late in the afternoon, a fly landed in the ointment which set off a series of bloopers and an evening to write about.

A phone call alerted me to a meeting that evening, but with an assignment already scheduled, I tried to find someone else to cover it.

Apparently the rest of the staff had taken vanishing pills. So since that left just me, I decided the only thing to do would be to cover half of each meeting.

In a flash of inspiration, I decided to go the friendly neighborhood spa to get revitalized for the evening ahead.

Exercise is supposed to give you energy you know, but alas, you have to be in shape for it!

Since the spa to which I belong isn't in my neighborhood, I don't get there too often. And this particular night, I joined a class already in progress.

Oh my, what a workout! Every muscle was called into play. We jumped, we hopped, we kicked and twisted every way possible and some ways that weren't.

It was invigorating alright. But when it was time to leave, I could barely walk.

Arriving at my first stop, I grabbed my notebook and flipped to a blank page. There was only one left, so I scrounged around in my all purpose bag and came up with a few sheets of paper.

With one foot out of the car, I reached for one of the dozen pens

I usually carry, and there wasn't a one.

Really frustrated by now, I pushed down the lock and slammed the door. Then guess what I realized? You're right, the keys were still inside.

At that moment I saw the man who had bailed me out the last time I'd locked myself out. And too embarrassed to admit I'd done it again, I erased my look of consternation and greeted him as though I had everything under control.

With a borrowed pen, I scratched notes for awhile until I decided it was time to be on my way to the next meeting.

So I hurried to my car, reached for my coat hanger in its accustomed place, and managed to get the door open on the first try.

Parking spaces were limited when I reached the next meeting. Finding a place at last, I made sure I had my keys before slamming the door and prepared to go as fast as my aching legs would take me.

Then I heard a voice from the darkness say, "You can't stay there, my brother's had a bad spell and we might have to get him out just any time."

Spotting the lady who had spoken sitting on a porch, I pointed out that there was more than enough room to get out.

But her sister, and her aunt too, would be arriving shortly, she informed me, and the space had to be saved for them.

Seeing it was useless to argue and being so late already, I drove off and found another place a block away.

No one seemed too surprised at my late arrival when I finally walked into the meeting which was just concluding. They shook their heads knowingly - I think some of them at least, read Scrambled Eggs.

But I did get a picture. And it seemed as though nothing else could go wrong that evening.

I said it seemed that way, but I was wrong. Looking at my camera setting when I got home, I saw that it was not set for flash. That meant no picture.

Wonder if I can convince those folks they only dreamed that I came?

For industrial development

Montevallo given grant

Congressman Richard Shelby announced last week that a $178,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission to the Montevallo Industrial Development Board has been approved.

The purpose of the "Section 214" basic assistance funding is to assist in the acquisition and development of Montevallo's Industrial Park, located on Highway 25 at Holloway Hill.

Twenty acres of land will be purchased, the access road will be extended, water and sewer service will be further developed, and storm drainage fixtures will be put in place.

"This grant opens many doors for Montevallo and Shelby County," 7th district Congressman Shelby stated. "Two industries have already expressed their intent to locate here as soon as the industrial park is habitable. At least one hundred new jobs are expected to be created by these two new employers. This news couldn't have come at a better time!"

Shelby explained that eight more industrial sites will be available for other industries. Meanwhile, the 20 acre tract will be cleared, graded and seeded in preparation for another five industrial locations.

The total project cost is projected at $227,400 with $49,400 coming from local resources.

The Farmers Home Administration will administer the grant at the federal level.

Law of averages justifies need for Shelco

Open letter to Cam Frye:

I am truly sorry you are misinformed about a few things concerning our upcoming Fire and E.M.S. Rescue District election. To begin with, I cannot understand why you wrote the letter you had placed in the newspaper. You do not live within the boundaries of our proposed fire and emergency medical rescue service district. The area you live in, is between our coverage area, and the city limits of Montevallo.

If you were aware of the capabilities of such emergency services and what they can do for you, your family and friends when an emergency arises, you might not be as willing to voice the opinion you have stated. It cost a considerable amount of money to have fire and E.M.S. rescue services available. This money has to come from somewhere.

We have tried for four years now to gain financial support from Shelby County and other agencies. Your feelings are evidently shared by the Shelby County Commission for we have not received even enough money from the Commission to buy gas for one month's operation. This is to say nothing about the balance of daily operational expenses, insurance, supplies, replacement of equipment, training programs for the personnel, and many other expenses, which have been primarily born by the dedicated volunteer members of our organization.

I, for one, am extremely proud of the service this organization has provided for the citizens of our county and those who pass through the area. Furthermore, I am even more proud to have been associated with the fine group of people.

The quality of service and dedication to their duty these people have demonstrated is indicative of their spirit to help their fellowman. This spirit is truly one of Americanism, that which this country was founded upon.

As I have stated, you live between our proposed district boundaries and the city limits of Montevallo. If the city of Montevallo discontinues services, such as fire services, and soon, as has been proposed, effective October 1980, then you will have three choices: (1) To be annexed into the city of Montevallo; (2) to be included in the Shelco Fire and E.M.S. District (if it passes); or (3) be without fire, rescue and other such services.

I hope the need never arises where you, your family or friends need any type emergency service. However, if that time comes, and by the law of averages it is almost guaranteed that it will, I sincerely hope there will be a service for you to call upon.

Sincerely yours,
Doug Ballard, Jr., Chief

Employment system gets study; James says, 'Happy Fourth!'

by Fob James

I would like to report this week on a program that has recently gotten underway in Montgomery, a comprehensive study of pay and classification for state employees.

I have instructed State Personnel Director Stanley Frazer to begin a study of pay and classification of state employees, and the goal of the study is to arrive at recommendations for improvements in a system that has not been streamlined or reevaluated since 1952.

During that time there have been many changes and developments with which our pay and classifications system has not kept pace. A modernization of the system will have great benefit for the taxpayer as well as for state employee.

The objectives of the study, in specifics, are as follows:

1) To reduce the number of classifications and to make the classification structure less complex.

2) To bring the classification system up to date with the type of work and the types of jobs that are demanded in a modern state government.

3) To correct inequities between job classes with respect to pay and other relationships.

4) To establish a realistic pay structure which is competitive with a private sector and with other public employers in the Southeast.

If we can accomplish these four goals, we will have a pay and classification system that will be ready to meet the challenges of the coming decade. Modernization will also mean increased efficiency and along with that goes a savings of tax dollars.

One thing that I would like to stress is that no merit system employee will be penalized should the study recommend a lower classification for the job they presently hold. The job will be downgraded only after the position is vacated. The state experiences about 12 percent attrition each year and at that rate we are hopeful that a new classification system can be implemented fully in a few short years.

speeds up to 110 mph. Farris was booked at the county jail Tuesday at 1:05 a.m. on charges of second degree burglary, first degree criminal mischief, reckless endangerment and driving while intoxicated, Deputy Sgt. Bob Haywood said.

According to sources, Dr. Farris apparently ransacked an office in the Jessup Building where he practiced medicine until he closed his practice there last fall.

North Shelby County Fire District Chief Winston Boutwell termed the fire at Farris' house "suspicious, because the garage doors were bashed in and the owner was not at home."

Boutwell said the fire caused extensive damage to the estimated $125,000 house which is located at 5101 Shady Cove in the Shadowbrook subdivision.

The NSCFD received the call at 9:41 Monday night and was on the scene in three minutes. Flames were showing through the roof and windows. A mutual aid call brought the Pelham FD in to assist.

The fire was brought under control within 30 minutes, Boutwell said.

At press time Tuesday, no charges had been made in connection with the fire, but NSCFD firefighters and the state fire marshal were still sifting through the charred ruins of the house for clues.

To solve 'gas crisis'

Montevallo to service city fleet

Montevallo's city council voted Monday to set up the city's own gas tanks and service area for municipal vehicles.

All councilmen attended the meeting, called specially to react to the news that long-time city gas supplier John Cunningham's Union 76 station will be going out of business in about two weeks. Mayor Sears was out of town.

Cunningham, who reportedly pumps about 40,000 gallons of gasoline a month, allegedly made a decision to retire after discussing the terms of his lease with the heirs of his landlord, the late W. J. Kennerly.

The city decided to go into the vehicle-service business after about 90 minutes of deliberation.

Unleaded gas tanks will be installed at the present city shop, Selma Street at Shoals Creek, and getting an air compressor for inflating tires is also being considered. The city already has diesel pumps at the same location.

Quantity purchases of batteries, oil, and tires will be stockpiled there as well.

Favorable prices and terms are expected from petroleum and tire wholesalers, resulting in some savings. On the other hand, necessary security measures and tank spillage and evaporation may increase costs.

The installation is expected to be complete and operational by mid-July.

The council also voted to appoint Mark Austen as city electrical inspector, replacing Jeff Payne.

Motorcyclist dies after collision on 31

A Montgomery man involved in a motorcycle accident Friday morning in Pelham died later that day at University Hospital.

Robert Miles Radford, 21, was thrown 25 feet across the pavement when his Honda 750 collided with a pickup truck driven by Morgan Brashier of Helena.

The accident happened at 10:20 a.m. when Brashier pulled out of Vance St. on to Hwy. 31.

According to police reports, Radford was driving about 45 mph at the time of the accident.

He died in the emergency room of University Hospital at 2:55 p.m., Friday, June 27.

"BUT ONE LIFE"

ALL OF US KNOW that we have but one life to live on earth, and that we are responsible for this life. Unfortunately, some people try to justify hurtful-self-indulging behavior by saying, "I have but one life, and I want to enjoy it". This, however, leads to disappointment and great loss.

THE ONE LIFE HERE is for the purpose of "glorifying" God. (Isa. 43:7; I Cor. 6:19,20; Mt. 5:14-16). This grand purpose is served in the church, as a baptized believer. (Eph. 3:21; Acts 2:47; I Cor. 12:13; Rom. 6:3,4).

IN THE CHURCH, we are instructed how to love life and see good days. "He who would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips from speaking guile: Let him turn away from evil, and do good; let him seek peace and pursue it." (I Peter 3:10,11). Living in obedience to God's word we can have the best of two worlds, the here and the hereafter.

DID YOU KNOW?

Duplication among electric utilities would drive your rates higher.

Competition doesn't always lead to lower prices. Competition between two suppliers of electricity in one area means unnecessary and costly duplication of poles, transmission lines, and separate maintenance crews. What you don't need in today's inflationary economy is unnecessary duplication. It simply adds up to higher costs and higher electric bills.

Making a point

Lloyd Busby (l), tells Sonny Davis, one of the candidates running for a seat on the Calera Council, how he thinks matters should be handled on a subject about which he seems to have strong feelings. The conversation took place at a recent political rally.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

If I were a youth
The author of this column has not only preached the gospel for over twenty years, but he has also had the privilege of reaching elementary and high school students for several years. He has for the past ten years taught college students. He serves as Vice-President of Academic Affairs for the Alabama Christian School of Religion, and he and his wife have two boys, age 15 and 10. Thus, this background possibly provides qualification for writing on this topic, "If I were a youth."

If I were a youth, I would develop physical habits which are sound and strong. One suffers or is blessed in his old age from the way he has treated his body in his youth. The findings of medical science regarding the detrimental and degenerate effects of tobacco, drugs, and alcoholism are too overwhelming to be ignored.

If I were a youth, I would develop mental habits which are positive. The young man or woman should develop, as did Christ, in wisdom (Luke 2:52). One should study hard subjects and progress as far as possible in high school and in college. He should also remember that without a good knowledge of the Bible, one is not truly educated.

If I were a youth, I would choose a special occupation. I would not be overly influenced by the amount of salary and the prestige offered by a particular job. The overriding factors in selecting an occupation would be honesty, a challenge to creativeness, and a service to God and to man. And, I would especially emphasize having adequate time for attending services of the church and being active in Christian endeavors.

More to continue.

Cahaba VFD benefit raises questions

by David Moore
Hamilton Enterprises, Inc., is producing a country-western show to benefit the Cahaba Valley Volunteer Fire Department.

Based on calls to the fire department, the Reporter and Hamilton's Birmingham office, however, a number of people have had doubts as to whether the fire department would actually benefit from the ticket sales to the show.

But according to Cahaba Valley VFD Chief Grady Gullledge and Wally Langston, one of the volunteer firefighters, the department has been guaranteed a minimum of $3000 from Hamilton, and to date at least half of that guarantee has been realized.

The contact also calls for a 60%-40% split of the profits with the biggest piece of the pie going to the producer. The two fire department volunteers say Hamilton takes care of the telephone solicitors, phone bills, postage and office supplies, before any money is divided.

Earlier this year, the same company produced a benefit concert for the Jefferson County Volunteer Rescue and Recovery Squad. According to its chief, Stanley Horton, that department realized some $16,000 from the show.

Horton pointed out, that he, too, has signed a 60%-40% contract with Hamilton, which he figured to be about a $24,000 profit for the producer.

Horton did say he would recommend Hamilton Enterprises to other groups wanting a fund raiser, but warned that their telephone solicitors strongly exaggerated the scope of his department's operations.

"They made me sound like I was fire chief for the whole Jefferson County," Horton said.

Chief Gullledge noted that when Hamilton's solicitors first started calling potential ticket buyers, whose phone numbers were taken from the phone book, they were saying the Cahaba Valley VFD backed up the North Shelby Fire District, Mountain Brook, Homewood and Cahaba Heights Fire Department.

Gullledge said that this was not, at least yet, true. That problem has now been corrected, he added.

A spokesman for the Better

Business Bureau reported that since they opened a file on Hamilton last October, no complaints have been lodged against the producer.

Dave Williams, speaking from Hamilton's Birmingham ticket office, said he thought it was only natural for people to call and check on whether or not a benefit is legitimate.

When asked how many tickets had been sold for the Cahaba Valley benefit, he said he did not know, but that sales did not approach those for the Jefferson County Volunteer Rescue and Recovery Squad.

The benefit, which will be held September 4, in the Jefferson State Junior College gymnasium, will star Bonnie Nelson. Williams said he thought she had recorded several albums, but the only thing he knew for sure about Nelson was that she had made television commercials for Trans Star Trucking Company.

Family tickets for the show cost $12.

One woman who contacted the Reporter said she might just send $12 straight to the fire department.

A rock concert promoter in Birmingham said Hamilton Enterprises "was making a killing, to put it lightly."

Said Chief Gullledge, "We're just trying to raise enough money to put up a building on our lot which was donated by Braxton Taylor. I hope this works out."

Dancers in the Brighthope cast hold one of their nightly practices the week prior to the opening of the outdoor drama in Brierfield Ironworks Park. The furnace for which the play is named can be seen in the background.

Montevallo firemen go fishing

Montevallo Firemen and several guests returned from their annual fishing trip last week worn out from reeling in about a half ton of fish.

Having spent the two preceding nights at sea aboard the Ocean Queen, out of Panama City, Florida, the fire/fishermen were just about ready to set foot on dry land again.

Bottom fishing from as far out as 80 miles into the Gulf of Mexico, the anglers caught mostly black, white, and red snapper and black grouper.

A few bonita were either cut up for bait, or thrown back. A hundred or more pounds of trigger fish were sold at the dock to help defray the expense of cleaning the

When the stagelights go on tonight in the Brierfield Ironworks Park, the tale of early settlers and the ironworks they founded will unfold for a second season.

The state's only outdoor drama is entitled "Brighthope." It was taken from the name given to the ironmaking furnace which made the northern Bibb County site into a boomtown.

Park Director Marty Everse announced that curtain time will be at 8:15 p.m.

During its run through Aug. 10, the play is expected to draw a wide audience to the park seven miles southwest of Montevallo.

This year's presentation is be-more desirable snappers and groupers.

Fireman Joe Miller spurned the electric reels at night in favor of casting with his own equipment for sharks on the surface. Hours of patient toil produced two sand sharks, and a pair of vicious-looking "jaws" trophies.

Memories of the fun-loving bus trip down to Panama City Friday, coupled with hours of additional revelry by some firemen as they awaited the 2 a.m. Saturday departure of the ship, produced a little queasy seasick feeling in a few sportsmen, but virtually everyone had recovered in time to enjoy a supper of some of their own-caught grouper that evening.

Night chief Joe McGaughy was the undisputed winner of the biggest fish competition, with a grouper minnow weighing in at some 50 pounds plus. Former fireman Sam Klotzman landed the biggest catch for Sunday's jackpot.

Lengthy debate failed to settle the questions of who had caught the most fish or the most pounds of fish.

Cigar minnows and squid were bait for most firemen.

The exact location of the fishing holes that the boat shuttled among is a secret known only to the Captain and his complicated Lowran bottom-graphing and coordinate-locating equipment.

The trip was financed by the City of Montevallo and represented a year's "pay" for the firemen, who are all volunteers.

ing dedicated to Representative Walter Owens who was instrumental in securing appropriations from the legislature for the production.

Both he and W. E. Chichester, who conceived the idea of an outdoor drama for the area, will receive plaques of appreciation opening night.

"Brighthope's" author, the noted playwright Kermit Hunter, has made some revisions in the script for this year's production.

And the drama will also be enhanced by new dance routines.

Scenery, sound effects, costumes and lighting are all the results of the concerted effort of the University of Montevallo drama department.

John Rude is directing the play, Dr. Charles Harbour is the producer and Newton Neeley is technical director.

Among the 75 or more people who who are connected with the production are 20 UM students and a number of local residents.

This includes six high school students who have supporting roles.

Brief glimpses into the lives of the early settlers, woven in with historic events, is what gives the play appeal and makes it come alive for the audience.

And the visual and sound effects, along with dance numbers ranging from a lively buck and wing to ballet, help to liven up the scenes.

The drama begins with the arrival of settlers in the north Bibb County area soon after the war of 1812.

Focusing on the ironworks which grew up there, scenes include the exodus of the Indians from the area, the Civil War and Among other positions held by Edwards, he is a past secretary of Calera Lodge No. 445, a past member and deacon of Enon Baptist Church in Montevallo and Gideon. He is presently a member of First Baptist Church in Clanton.

After serving in the navy, Edwards began work with the highway department as a rodman and worked up to district engineer. He has also served as Randolph County Engineer.

Edwards attended Auburn University and various schools in the state highway department which helped him to obtain his professional engineers and land surveyors license. He is a member of several land surveyors and engineers organizations.

Standards for Residential Facilities:

Includes information on standards for residential facilities in which SSI recipients reside, and addresses for obtaining further information regarding these standards.

Proposed Plan Now Available for Review:

Proposed plan is available for review at each of the 67 County Departments of Pensions and Security. A copy can be secured free by writing to the Bureau of Planning and Research, Department of Pensions and Security, 64 N. Union St., Montgomery, AL 36130, or call collect 205-832-6446. Public comments on the proposed plan will be accepted at above address July 1-August 15, 1980.

Final Amendment to Plan—October 1, 1979-September 30, 1980

Due to lack of federal funds purchase of service contracts for Legal Services will be terminated as follows:

July 1, 1980—Barbour, Blount, Bullock, Butler, Chilton, Clay, Coffee, Coosa, Covington, Crenshaw, Cullman, DeKalb, Fayette, Franklin, Geneva, Lamar, Lawrence, Lee, Limestone, Macon, Marion, Pike, Randolph, Russell, Shelby, Sumter, Walker, Washington, Winston Counties.
July 15, 1980—Choctaw, Clarke, Escambia, Marengo, Perry, and Wilcox Counties.
August 1, 1980—Cherokee, St. Clair, and Talladega Counties.

Public comments included telephone calls requesting explanation. Changes from proposed amendment include change in definition for Legal Services.

Proposed Amendment for July 15, 1980:

Amendment will not take place due to passage of Federal legislation allocating additional funds.

Mayor Dunaway's Accomplishments To Accommodate Pelham's Growth

- Served as Pelham's finance chairman for twelve years. Even with Pelham's large and rapid growth, our City operates with a balanced budget. We are debt-free except bonds issued for our new City Hall building and Water Works.
- During my four years as Mayor we have progressed from a volunteer Fire Department with a No. 8 insurance rating to a full-time department with 18 certified career firemen, of which nine are Paramedics. Our insurance rating is now class 6, and class 5 is indicated by the end of this year.
- Worked to maintain orderly growth within our Police Department. Full time police officers increased from seven in 1976 to seventeen this year. The Pelham Police Department exceeds the national average of comparable size departments by 50% in solving misdemeanors and felonies.
- Built a new fire and police substation; added two Fire Pumps, one Rescue Unit, and related support equipment—all debt free.
- Providing financial contributions to our schools.
- Enhanced the quality of our present recreational facilities, and recently purchased 43 acres for a new park in the heart of Pelham—all debt free. Development is under construction.
- Enlarged Pelham's City Limits north to Riverchase, which added a heavily populated revenue-producing area.
- Established a healthy working relationship and effective communications with many government officials and business leaders. This has assisted greatly in securing over a quarter of a million dollars in grants during the past two years. Three million more is projected for our proposed sewer system.

South Central Bell employee, Joy Conway, sits on a stack of the approximately 29,800 Shelby County telephone directories soon to be delivered. The 1980 cover features a Shelby County sunset.

New phone books should arrive within a week

South Central Bell's Shelby County telephone directory will be delivered beginning July 7.

According to Walter Sechriest, district manager for the company, 29,800 copies will be delivered to local homes and businesses. The new book should not be used until July 20 because some customers will get new numbers on that date.

Sechriest urges customers to use the Call Guide Section in the front of the directory. "This section is invaluable to consumers because it holds a wealth of information which can save them a good bit of time and money," he explained. "Long distance rates as well as buried cable information and emergency numbers are listed there for the consumer's convenience."

"We also ask that consumers remember that there are separate repair service numbers for business and residential telephones. This was created to help each receive faster service," he said.

The repair service number for coin telephones and residence customers is 327-6111. Businessess should dial 327-6123.

South Central Bell will continue its practice of issuing one directory per household. However, consumers who want and can use additional directories can get them through their local telephone company business office by calling 327 and the first four digits of their phone number.

Flowers on flowers

After building up soil on a mobile home lot which previously would barely grow grass, Doris Henley of Alabaster grows flowers of many shapes and hues. Petunias fill boxes and Wandering Jew grows in hanging baskets on the porch.

Trailer garden grows almost without ground

by Shelba Nivens

With the rapid influx of new residents to Shelby County, a hillside is sometimes quickly cut away or a low place filled to make a place for a house or house trailer. And oftentimes, this creates a soil problem for the homeowners.

Commonly heard is the complaint, "We would like to have a garden, but we have such a small lot it will barely grow grass."

Well, Doris Henley of Plaza Pines Trailer Park in Alabaster has found a way around the problem.

"Why, she grows 30 or more varieties of flowers on ground you can hardly grow grass on," laughed her husband.

And among the flowers of every description and hue, she grows onions, tomatoes and a gourd vine.

When asked how she is able to do this, Mrs. Henley explained that her son hauled in a lot of top soil and rotted sawdust for her. The slight hillside on which the Henley Mobile home is located would not hold the topsoil through heavy rains. So, instead of trying to build up the soil on the whole lot, she built beds for plants. She also uses flower pots and boxes and hanging baskets.

A wide variety of flowering plants, from the sturdy zinnias to the delicate violets, grows in the Henley yard. Some of them even appear to be growing on top of each other. Remains of plants, which have had their season and died out until fall or another spring, are barely visible clipped off close to the ground underneath blossoms of other plants.

Mrs. Henley says that any time she gets a new plant or cutting, she makes a hole for it anywhere she can find room; puts it in the ground and keeps it watered until it takes root.

Many gardeners advise that flower bulbs be dug and separated in the fall. The Pelham gardener says she digs them anytime after they have finished blooming, whatever the season. After taking bulbs from the ground, she separates them, puts them in the sun to dry for 3 or 4 days then plants them again.

Petunias adorning the front porch in boxes and baskets, were planted inside during March and brought outside during April. Sometimes, says Mrs. Henley, she plants petunias early in the year in a large tub in the yard. Polyethylene is used to cover the top of the tub to help germinate the seeds while protecting from the cold. Then about April the plants are transplanted to smaller containers.

Doctor of Divinity is county first

A Pelham man who is employed at Southern Cement, Martin Marietta Division, and who has also served as pastor to several black congregations in the county, recently received his Doctor of Divinity degree.

James Adams, Sr., is the first member of his race in the county to receive the degree which he earned at Easonian Baptist Seminary.

He was awarded a BTH degree from Birmingham Baptist Bible College in 1973.

Churches he has served include Pine Grove Baptist, Pelham; Carlton Hill Baptist, Brierfield; Mountain Baptist, West Calera; First Baptist Church, Wilsonville.

At the present time, he is pastor of the Rocky Zion Baptist Church in Pell City.

Adams' church work also includes having served as vice moderator of the Shelby Springs District Association and as assistant dean.

In the Bibb County Association, he filled the office of Vice President of Sunday School BTU Congress and corresponding secretary.

Horton-Jones say vows in June 21 ceremony

Miss Pamela Dean Horton and Lamar Alan Jones were married June 21 at Mt. Brook Presbyterian Church. A reception followed in the fellowship hall.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Horton of Columbiana. Her grandparents are Carrie Horton and the late Lewis M. Horton of Columbiana and the late Mr. and Mrs. Clinton T. Cottrell of Goodsprings.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Jones of Huntsville. His grandparents are Mrs. Leo R. Jones and the late Mr. Jones of Heflin and Eld. S.W. Etheredge and the late Lena H. Etheredge of Ozark.

The Rev. Howard Brasher and the Rev. August J. Kling officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown and veil which she designed and made. Nancy Porter of Thorsby served as maid of honor. Melanie Harris of Montgomery and Connie Walton of Columbiana were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Donna Beasley, cousin of the bride.

The groom's father served him as best man. Groomsmen were Donald J. Jones and Lee R. Jones, brothers of the groom and Jeff Beasley, cousin of the bride. Ushers were Bob Shumaker, Norman Magnuson, Crandall Kennedy and Bill Wall.

The new Mrs. Jones attended the University of Montevallo. She is presently a student at UAB School of Nursing and an employee of University Hospital.

Mr. Jones attended the University of Alabama, and is now attending UAB School of Dentistry. He is employed as youth director at Mt. Brook Presbyterian Church.

After a wedding trip to Cheaha State Park and Atlanta, the couple will live in Birmingham.

Reunion held at Spring Creek

by Shelba Nivens
Around 100 people met last weekend in Valley Grove near Spring Creek for an Alexander family reunion.

The area along Spring Creek between Calera and the Spring Creek community was settled by members of the Alexander family almost a century and a half ago. John Alexander first came into Shelby County as a government surveyor. He was granted some land along Spring Creek and purchased adjoining lands. Family records show that he also held an interest in old Tannehill. John and his mother, Mary, are buried at Moore's Cemetery and Moore's Crossroads, along with other early family members.

John Alexander sold portions of his land to some of his brothers who migrated to Alabama from the Carolinas. Census records indicate that one of these brothers, James D. Alexander, was living in Shelby County by 1850.

Mae Hitt, a great granddaughter of James D., has done considerable research on the family. According to her records, James Oliver Alexander, a son of James D., served in the Civil War and was wounded in one of the northern states.

Family legend has it that the soldier came back to Shelby County through the Carolinas where he met and married his wife, Kate. He brought her back to Spring Creek, where she became a mid-wife known affectionately as "Aunt Katie."

"They said that he got her a real gentle horse, and she rode side-saddle all over the area as a mid-wife," remarked Mrs. Hitt.

Descendants of James Oliver Alexander are now scattered throughout the county.

A daughter, Elizabeth Carolyn, married Stonewell Jackson Ingram. The couple had seven children. Two of them, Mrs. Hitt and H.J. Ingram, live at Spring Creek and attended the recent reunion. A daughter, Mrs. Ferman Albright, lives at Ebenezer, but was unable to be there. Daughter-in-law Mrs. R.D. Ingram also lives at Spring Creek, and daughter-in-law Mrs. James Clark lives in Calera.

William Rush Alexander, son of James Oliver Alexander, had eight children. One child is deceased. The other seven, and members of their families, live in the portion of the county where Spring Creek is located. All seven were at the reunion.

They are Johnnie Killingsworth, Lois Adams and Howard Alexander all of Calera, Nell Ashmore and Kathleen Bridges both of Spring Creek, Bertie Knowles of Alabaster and Leonard Alexander of Montevallo.

Family and friends from as far away as Decatur, Huntsville, Mobile, Tennessee and California attended the reunion held at the site of old Valley Grove Church.

Many early Alexanders attended services in the old building which is now gone. Several present-day family members now attend the Spring Creek Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Welcome to Shelby County! Visitors from Spain are a rare but special treat for Mrs. Charlotte Simpson of Montevallo. Mrs. Simpson's daughter and son-in-law Sergio and Peggy Uriarte flew in from Madrid, Spain to spend the month of July enjoying the Alabama sunshine and visiting relatives in the Shelby County area.

The couple also have plans to visit Peggy's grandparents, Commander and Mrs. W.J. Gregg of Brierfield and while there, Mrs. Simpson says they hope to see the production of Bright Hope at the Brierfield Ironworks Park.

Katie Robertson and her two children Jack and Alice, of Columbiana, spent several days in Pensacola with what Katie calls my kind of people.

Along with 18 members of her family ranging age 2 months to 70, Katie lounged on the beach and enjoyed the sun.

Katie's daughter was astounded when she had her first glimpse of beach and told her mother she really liked the hard white snow.

With no television or watches allowed, the group flew kites, broiled crabs, played bridge and in general had a great time!

Family gatherings seem to be in abundance in Shelby County. Recently, Mr. R.E. Elliot, the patriarch of his close knit family, presided at the home of his daughter and her husband, Hazel and Dick Dennis and enjoyed an ice cream party.

Along to join in the family fun were his granddaughter and her husband Midge and Sam Russel and Mr. Elliot's great granddaughter and her husband Tracey and Richard Payne.

In an age when most people don't know their next door neighbor, the ladies of Woodland Hills in Maylene decided to do something about it.

Last spring they organized the Woodland Hills Garden and Craft Club for the expressed purpose of getting to know one another.

Their most recent meeting was at the home of Sue Murphy. Their subject was dish gardens and Dean Edmonson of Alabaster was their guest speaker.

Karen Reaves told me that they plan to have Rose Ellen Harkins, an expert on Microwave cooking speak to them at their next meeting.

Anyone in the Woodland Hills area interested in the club should call Pam Bagley at 663-4386.

Along with 16 other ladies, Mrs. Rodney Davis, Mrs. Jerry Shirley and Mrs. William Weldon hosted a house warming for Mr. and Mrs. Bo Weldon of Chelsea last Sunday.

Pleasant conversation filled the air as numerous gifts and well wishes were bestowed on Mr. and Mrs. Weldon.

The ladies provided delicious refreshments and the friends had an enjoyable afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bo Weldon and their children, Tracy and Jason, have been in their new home since April of this year.

With so many classmates back in the area Janice Falkner, member of the 1963 graduating class from SCHS said they just didn't want to wait to get together.

A 17 year class reunion will be held July 19 at the Community Service Building.

Already 50% of the classmates have made favorable replies and several of their teachers are also looking forward to the evening.

Janice says the class of '63 can well be remembered for their winning football season. That year the team was undefeated!

Mickey Hardin McFadden has headed the committee for the reunion and the graduates and teachers should send $10 per person to Kay Ray, Box 124, Wilsonville, AL 35186.

While gathering information for my column I've come to realize that Shelby County is not only the fastest growing county in the country but also the friendliest.

The courtesy and kindness I've found in the citizens of this county has made my job an extremely pleasant one. Until next week I'll be seeing you 'Around the County'.

Should you have any items of social interest, please call Becky

McDonald at 669-9535 or send them to the Shelby County Reporter. Please be sure to include your phone number.

The United Presbyterian Church started holding services at Riverchase Middle School in June.

Forty two people turned out for the first service June 15, reports pastor Don Robb.

Five acres of land at the Riverchase entrance were purchased by the church in 1976, the minister related. But building won't get underway for a few years yet, he added.

Robb said that he has visited 600 homes in the area since moving here last year.

There are plans to begin Sun-

TO THOSE WHO ARE CONCERNED:

WHEN ALABASTER WAS FIRST INCORPORATED, CITY BUSINESS WAS CARRIED ON IN A BUSINESS LIKE MANNER.

AT THE TIME THE SEWER SYSTEM WAS BEING DISCUSSED, ONE COULD BEGIN SEEKING CHANGES IN ALABASTER CITY GOVERNMENT. AT TIMES, CITY BUSINESS SEEMED MORE PRIVATE THAN A PUBLIC MATTER. WHEN A QUESTION WAS ASKED, YOU GOT A DEVIOUS ANSWER. NO ONE COULD DISCUSS CITY BUSINESS WITH THE ELECTED OFFICIALS.

THERE STILL APPEARS TO BE MANY SECRETS IN OUR CITY GOVERNMENT. FOR EXAMPLE: WHEN ELECTED OFFICIALS ARE ASKED AS TO WHO OWNS ALABASTER WATER & GAS BOARD, THE ANSWER ACQUIRED IS, WE DON'T KNOW, BUT THE CITY DOESN'T. IF ELECTED OFFICIALS DON'T KNOW, WHO DOES?

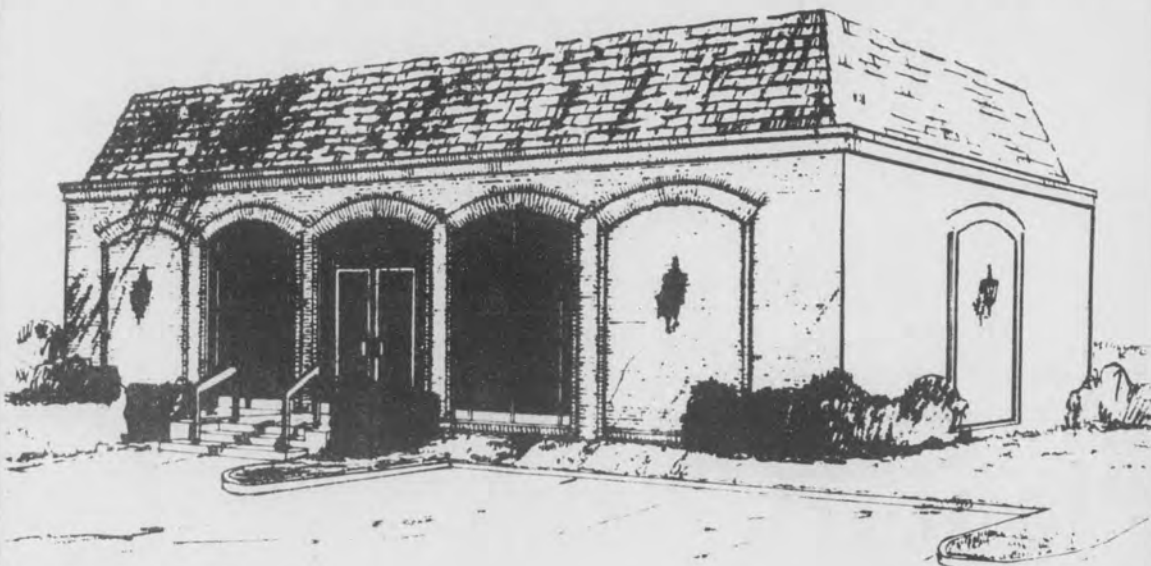

THE ELECTED OFFICIALS HAVE BUILT POLITICAL STRENGTHS BY APPOINTING SMALL COMMITTEES TO CITY GOVERNMENT, AND HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL IN BUILDING A WELL KNOWN CLICK. WHEN A HIGHER PAYING JOB BECOMES AVAILABLE, WHO GETS THE APPOINTMENT? ONE OF THE CLICKS, OF COURSE. ALABASTER OFFICIALS HAVE BUILT A MERRY-GO ROUND WITH THEIR GROUP.

AS THE OLD CLICHE GOES: "ITS TIME FOR A CHANGE". WHY NOT GIVE THE CITY GOVERNMENT BACK TO THE PEOPLE AND GIVE SOMEONE NEW THE OPPORTUNITY TO STOP THE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

GOING TO COLLEGE

That's a big decision, especially in times like these.

PICKING A COLLEGE UNIVERSITY

That's probably an even bigger decision, so, if you're still not sure about college this fall, or if you find yourself with additional time to go to college, call the admissions counselors at the

UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO

They'll help you get personal financial aid counseling (yes, there's still some money available) special tutoring if you need it, career counseling -- and even job placement services. All with that personal touch synonymous with college life in Montevallo.

Going to college
NOW, can be like money in the bank for the future.

Undergraduate tuition at Montevallo, an 83-year-old state institution, is still affordable too: only $322 a semester
full-time ($23 per hour). So is graduate tuition:
$348 a semester
full-time ($29 per hour).

REGISTRATION: July 7, second semester summer school
August 25-26, fall semester

GOING TO COLLEGE CAN BE ESPECIALLY TOUGH IF YOU'VE BEEN OUT OF SCHOOL FOR A WHILE

But there is a special summer program you can try. The second five-weeks of Montevallo's summer school will conditionally admit students with a high school diploma or equivalent. If you make a "C" average with two regular courses during the special summer school session, you may be admitted as a regularly enrolled student this fall.

Tuition for two three-hour regular courses in the summer program is $148, including an activity fee (plus a one-time $10 application fee).

Remember, though, registration for the second semester of summer school is Monday, July 7.

THINK ABOUT IT
YOU MAY QUALIFY

Montevallo, with its dedicated faculty and staff, enriching student activities and affordable tuition, all together on one of the South's most beautiful campuses, can provide you the QUALITY EDUCATION YOU NEED.

Call Montevallo's professional admissions counselors at 665-2521, ext. 515, for your personal appointment. Regularly scheduled campus tours each Saturday, 10 a.m. or at your convenience.

'Pros' at Lay Lake report on hooking bass and other secrets

You know it's summer when you can toss a slab of bass in the bottom of your boat and fry it. And that's just about how hot the end of June has been.

The best way to beat the heat is to fish at night or in the early morning. Not only is it cooler then, but reports have it that the fishing's better, too.

"Mornings seem to be the best for weed beds," claims Billy Bean at Bozo's fish camp. Nancy Culpepper, up the lake at Beeswax camp says that's what everybody who comes in there claims, too.

Even though no one's catching any real hogs these days, a lot of folks are bringing in some nice stringers of 2-3 pound bass.

Jerry Wooten at Okomo notes that if you're going to attack the weed beds, your best bet is to use some kind of yellow or white surface lure, like a lunger or buzz bait.

If you plan on fishing for bass later in the day, you need to cast into the deeper water off points and ledges, and try using a medium sized blue or motor oil colored glitter worm.

If you fish at night, use a large, black jitter bug or a black worm, and go for tree stumps in 2-3 feet of water.

Speaking of night fishing, John L. "Pop" Moore, who has been around Bozo's for longer than most folks remember, gave the Reporter a really interesting tip the other day. It's his sure-fire guaranteed way of keeping the swarms of mosquitoes, willow flies and other aggravating pests away while you fish: simply throw a handful of mothballs in the bottom of the boat.

Wooten has an interesting tip, too. If the fish just aren't hitting on a given day, it might be because they stayed up all night feeding under a full moon.

By the same token, if that big full moon makes day fishing bad, then it makes night fishing all the better. Just watch out for werewolves.

The stripes are schooling and somebody said they saw some surface action out around the mouth of Peckerwood Creek. If you're out at night, the stripes are hitting willow flies (if you can get a couple on your hook) in deeper waters.

Some good sized catfish have been caught on the lake in the last couple of weeks, like the 60 pounder snagged by Frank Summers of Leeds.

Summers sold the big yellow cat to Pop Moore, who got 32.5 pounds of filets off it. Pop says Summers caught it on a snag line.

J.B. Wooten and Fred Mills have been catching blue cats off the bottom around Okomo. Using cut up shad, they have been reeling in catfish from 19-26 pounds.

Nancy Culpepper says Neil Lopez of Alabaster brought in a 28 pound catfish he caught on his trotline in Beeswax Creek. Lopez had his line baited with catwaba worms.

The bream continue to hit pretty good on worms and crickets. Fly rods around sunken tree tops have been producing some nice stringers, too.

Most crappie are still deep, but some people are having luck with them at night on minnows. And it may be worth your while to check out the stikups.

What with the willow flies hatching and all the fish people will be catching on Lay Lake in the next few weeks, Billy Bean has a good tip for freezing slabs. Separate them with those styrofoam "plates" you get when you buy hamburger or chicken from the store. When you go to thaw your filets for supper, the plates make it easy to separate the layers. And they thaw quicker that way.

Bullets win third title

For the third year in a row, the Calera Bullets have proven themselves a power team in the Central Shelby Farm League.

This year the Bullets claimed the championship with an 11-1 record.

The one loss, their second in three years, came at the hands of the Calera Bears in a 6-5 decision. But the Bullets avenged that loss later in the season by shutting out the Bears 10-0.

Tommy Gay, who has coached the team for the last three years, attributes this season's success to the strong pitching of Jermain Herndon, Reginald Powell and Keith Gay.

But the Bullets were strong in the batter's box too, a point they made apparent by banging nine homers in one game against the Chelsea Tigers.

This year's Bullets also included Wayne Watley, Jason Bramlett, Chuck Boles, Mark Boles, Keith Phillips, Steve Thomaston, Shawn Benton, Bret Benton and Kevin Vines.

Charles Boles was assistant coach.

Almost a triple

Ray Smith of the American Mets almost had himself a triple last Saturday, but Eddie Saunders of the National Brewers showed up with the baseball in the right place at the right time. The Mets won it 11-7, however, and next Saturday will play the winner of the three-way tie between the National Padres, Rangers and Brewers to see who's No. 1 in the Cahaba Minors.

Mets grab championship

The Mets won their last seven straight games to capture the minor league championship in the American Conference (Pelham) of the Cahaba Valley Dixie Youth baseball program. The strong ending gave them a season record of 13-7.

"They wanted to play ball," commented coach Bill Montgomery of his champs. "And I had a lot of help from Katie (Jones) and Bob (Rye). Also, all the parents were behind us."

A large contributing factor to their successful season was the fact that the Mets had eight batters with averages of .350, or better. Those big bats led to a couple of strong wins with scores like 16-4 and 14-3.

The leading batter proved to be Ray Smith who scored 29 runs and accounted for 21 RBI's on his way to building a .596 batting average. Monty Hinds swung the second biggest stick for the Mets, hitting .529, scoring 23 runs and 24 RBI's.

First baseman Bobby Montgomery proved to have the stickiest glove on defense, accounting for nine unassisted outs.

The other team members are David Rye, Scott Jones, Zach VanDyke, Pat Wright, Don Cook, Blake Thomas, Chris Underwood and Eric Jantz.

Giants climb to top

Five years ago when Billy Bullard started coaching the Central Shelby DY minor league Giants, they posted a 1-15 season and finished in fifth place. But every year afterwards, the Calera team moved up one notch in the standings.

This year, Bullard's team finally won the championship with an enviable 14-0 record.

"Good playing by the boys did it," said Coach Bullard. "All 15 of them put out 100% effort every ball game. But we were lucky in two games when we squeaked by Wilsonville. They're good."

But the giants didn't have to "squeak" past all their opponents, as evidenced by winning scores such as 18-1, 15-0 and 22-11.

James Faulkner and Keith Carden proved to be two of the best all-around players on the field. Leading batters for the Giants were Stevie Glass (batting .625) and Heath Avery (.500).

The other members of the 1980 Giants were Jason Ledbetter, Ricky Camp, Tripp Staggs, Timothy Brittain, Kevin LeSueur, Randy Harris, Craig McClendon, Brian Murphey, Charles Faulkner, Kevin McDonald and Keith McDonald.

Assisting Bullard with the coaching chores this year were Buddy Camp and Dr. James Brittain.

Major All-Stars

The 1980 East Shelby Major League All-Stars are Reginal Riggins, Glen Morris, Demetrius Melton, Jamie Wood, Wayne Lackey, George McConico, Corey Wood, Bruce Hamilton, Randal Kelly, Robbie Green, David Brisky, Jimmy Howard,

For better hunting and fishing

by Earl F. Kennamer

Recently I commented on the new status of the wild turkey in Alabama. It is now the state game bird.

A few days ago a couple of my column readers asked me if any other state had a game bird as its state bird. "Certainly," I replied. "The state bird of Alaska is the willow ptarmigan, a species of grouse." Then I went on to explain the valley quail -- a game species -- is the state bird of California. The Hawaiian goose is now on the protected list. Pennsylvania has the ruffed grouse as its state bird.

Most fitting is the state bird of South Dakota because it has boasted of having the greatest number of this species. Thousands of out-of-state hunters pour money annually into the state when they hunt this bird -- the ring-necked pheasant. And this bird is not even a native of North America!

I believe any acclaimed state bird (or tree or flower) should be one that is predominant, or that has some economic importance, or that is significant in numbers or origin, like the Hawaiian goose.

The state bird of any of the Gulf coast states and even along the eastern seaboard could easily be the clapper or the Virginia rail -- both game birds. Truthfully, any of these states could adopt the wood duck as the state bird and it is an excellent game and table bird. In fact, the wood duck nests in every county in Ala. I'm surprised Arkansas hasn't adopted the mallard duck.

I have no qualms in associating birds with appropriate states. The Maryland state bird is the Baltimore oriole. In Minnesota the state feathered symbol is the common loon, a native of the wilderness waters there. This bird has a most haunting, eerie, quavering call. New Mexico has the roadrunner, which could also be the state bird of Texas because I saw many roadrunners while I was stationed at Camp Bowie.

In studying the state birds of our 50 states I found that seven states claimed the cardinal or redbird as their state bird. Six listed the mockingbird, five the meadowlark, three the robin, three the bluebird and two the chickadee.

Two birds would be good candidates for state emblems. One is the cattle egret, which apparently came from Africa and landed in Florida. The bird has increased in numbers and has moved into Alabama and other states wherever cattle are abundant. These apparently are economic boons because the birds feed on insects.

The other bird, however, might encourage more opposition than acceptance. It raids newly planted cornfields, watermelon patches, eats pecans and dove eggs. This is the crow. But you must give the devil its due, as my grandmother Browning often said. The crow is most cunning and intelligent.

All in all, however, I'll stick to my proverbial guns. Make the eastern wild turkey the Alabama state bird, not just the game bird, because this is the accolade this magnificent bird deserves.

VFW and auxiliary win top state awards

Members of Alabaster's VFW post and the ladies auxiliary were greeted by Governor Fob James and heard Congressman Tom Bevill speak when they attended the state convention last month.

But the most excitement for the group came Saturday evening when awards were handed out.

"The Most Outstanding President of the Year," award went to the leader of Alabaster's auxiliary, Betty Carter.

Trophies were also awarded to Auxiliary 5963 for having the highest membership in the state and for making the largest donation to the VA Hospital Fund.

Other presentations made during the evening to Alabaster's VFW and auxiliary were for: Outstanding Buddy Poppy program, Outstanding Community Service, 4th place for Community Service Recordbook, and Rehabilitation Youth Activities.

Certificates of merit were also given for Cancer Aid and Research, National Safety, Serve America Membership, Outstanding Loyalty Day and Hire the Handicapped poster contest.

Included among the award recipients was District III Political Action Committee Chairman, Susan A. Carter.

And it was Carter and Robert Howard who won the certificate of merit for the Community Service recordbook.

Another certificate the Alabaster group brought home was for the Shelby County Reporter. It was in recognition of the newspaper's coverage of the VFW Auxiliary's events.

The 46th annual convention was held in Montgomery June 19-22. Department Commander Charles Stephens and Department President Alta Bradberry presided.

They've done it again

Local winners in the 4-H district judging contest are: Pam Allen, Valerie and Rene McCarthey, Betty Whitburn, Obie Folmar, Neils Pearson, Damon Folmar, Donna Dorough, Jan Gibson.

4-H judging teams win again

Shelby County's 4-H Judging Teams have done it again. That is - all six teams placed 1st in their district events - for the second year in a row. Junior and Senior Teams competed in Meats Judging, Dairy Judging and Livestock Judging.

The Meats Judging Team members were Senior Team - Jan Gibson, Betty Whitburn and Pam Allen; Junior Team - Michelle Ray, Pam Warren and Dee Dee Reed. Jan was Senior high individual judge while Michelle was Junior high individual with Pam Warren placing 2nd high individual in the Junior division.

honors with Kenneth placing 1st, Melinda 2nd, and Terry 3rd.

and Jessica Ann Eisenburg. David was 2nd high senior individual judge with Neils in 3rd place and Kevin was high junior individual judge.

All of the Senior Teams will participate in State Competition at Auburn July 15-16-17.

oters turn out to elect municipal mayors, councils

Voters in the ten cities of Shelby County cast their ballots Tuesday for the mayor and council members they wanted to serve them for the coming four years. Campaigning was strenuous in some of the contests and there was a fair to good-sized turnout in all cities.

Only one mayor, Ralph Sears of Montevallo, was unopposed in this election, and very few council members were unopposed.

Runoff elections, where necessary, will be held July 29.

The unofficial returns, compiled by the staff of the Reporter, are as follows:

Free enterprise lives

"Red wigglers for a dollar!" barks Mark Luketz (right) while his partner Brian Willey waves their wares at a passing motorist on Valleydale Road. The two eleven year old lads have been growing their own worms now for three years, and they're

County races are warming up

Contests are assured for the two places on the Shelby County Commission which are open for election this fall.

As the deadline for filing candidacy papers passed on July 3, both major political parties had signed up candidates for the offices.

In district one, which includes the Columbiana, Shelby, Wilsonville and most of the Chelsea area, J.V. Jones of Shelby and Edgar L. Vick of Chelsea signed up to challenge the incumbent, James "Jake" Morris, in the Democratic primary. The winner will then face Republican A.E. "Codger" Etress of Shelby in the November general election.

The race in district three drew two Democrats and two Republicans. District three is the Cahaba Valley, Pelham, Helena, north Alabaster area of the county. In the Democratic primary, J.E. "Ned" Bearden, the incumber, who is seeking his third term, will face James L. King of Helena.

The two Republicans who are seeking the post are James Busbin of Alabaster and Donald R. Murphy of Pelham.

The other two places on the commission are held by Harold Davenport of Alabaster and J. Alpha Lowe of Vincent. These positions will not be open for election until 1982.

Proration claims toll of $420,000 cut school funds are already spent

The recent 16% proration of state education funds will cost the county $420,000 reports Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles.

And the most disturbing part about the cut, Knowles said, is that a large part of that money has already been spent.

Understandably hot under the collar about the latest cut in funds, the superintendent put the blame on state government, saying "More money is being taken away each year."

Knowles pointed out that last year, during relative "good times," there had been a 3% cut. "And now for the second year in a row," he declared, "the money that the board budgeted isn't there."

Although borrowing isn't in the picture yet, Knowles said that short term loans might have to be taken out.

He noted that in July, only 48.5% of the monthly allocation had been received from the state.

What this means to the county school system, Knowles explained, is the severe curtailment of expansion and improvement programs.

It could also jeopardize the construction of the Inverness School, he said. Although the county will get 1.2 million from the sale of state school construction bonds which the governor plans to sell in August, Knowles said "We couldn't afford to pay our part."

Added to the board's woes, he said, is the ad valorem tax situation. Although revenue is continuing to come in, Knowles reported that the school system is still $250,000 short of the projected figure.

And the forecast for next year appears to be gloomy, too. According to Knowles, the situation is "very bleak" for the '80-'81 state education budget.

He stressed that state government needed to be sure there is an adequate tax base to fund the educational budget.

Shelco Fire District goes down to defeat

The Shelco Fire and Rescue Unit has gone out of business.

Efforts to establish a fire district in the unit's area were unsuccessful Tuesday when voters turned down the proposal 214 to 205.

The board of directors of the volunteer organization voted on June 23 to discontinue services if the vote Tuesday failed to approve a fire district.

Doug Ballard, Jr. chief of the unit, told the Reporter late Tuesday that services would stop at midnight.

Alleged irregularities during Tuesday's voting were reported to the Reporter by one of the election officials, Mary T. Thompson. She stated that other poll watchers were observed standing in line talking to voters before they actually voted. She said the apparent irregularities will be reported to Probate Judge Tommy Snowden.

Pelham's first mayor dies

Pelham's first mayor, Paul Lloyd Yeager, died July 3 at the age of 66.

Taking office when the city was incorporated in 1964, Yeager served three terms.

He was one of the founders and on the board of directors of Shelby Bank, a member of the Pelham United Methodist Church where he served on the board of trustees and the building committee, and was past president of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission.

Funeral services were held July 5 at Pelham United Methodist Church with Rev. David Wallace officiating. Burial was in Pelham Cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Willie Lavera Brasher Yeager; three sons, James Austin, Washington D. C., David Winston, Virginia Beach, Va., William Paul, Pelham; one daughter, Patricia Anne Yeager, Pelham.

Other survivors are a brother, Henry Yeager, Meridian, Miss. and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Easterling, Clanton and six grandchildren.

Talking politics

Several hundred Shelby Countians turned out Saturday at a political rally for Armistead Selden, a candidate for the U.S. Senate. The event also included a barbecue supper. Here Selden visits with (l-r) Gene Dill, Jimmy King, Annette Skinner and Codger Etrass.

C.F. Koger assumed new duties July 1 as executive vice president for Martin Marietta Cement's Southern Division.

His appointment was announced by D.H. Shearer, president of the division.

He moves to the number two position in the southern division from his former position as vice president of operations. He had previously served in several levels of management.

Koger joined the firm in 1951 as a chemist and lived in Montevallo for many years. At that time he was associated directly with the company's Roberta plant, located between Montevallo and Calera. He served as chairman of the technical committee of the National Lime Association and has been Southeast chairman of the American Society for Testing and Materials.

Martin Marietta's Southern Division is the southeast's major producer of cement and lime with plants located in Alabama and Georgia and with six distribution terminals located in five states.

Brighthope offers five plays

Five plays will be presented this summer by the actors here for "Brighthope," the outdoor pageant at Brierfield Ironworks Park.

The young actors, all of whom live at the University of Montevallo during the pageant's run through mid-August, will present the plays in UM's Reynolds Studio Theatre, all beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Here is the schedule of plays: July 23-24, both W.B. Yeats' "Purgatory," directed by Charles Derbyshire, and Montevallo native Will Collin's "Spartacus Collier," directed by Marty Hendrickson; July 28 and 29, William Saroyan's "the Beautiful People," directed by Thomas Pope.

July 30-31, William Inge's "Bus Stop," directed by Regina Harbourn; and Aug. 4-5, "Moon Children," a play about 1960s flower children, directed by Rich Reese.

Call 665-2521, ext. 413, for ticket reservations. A donation of $1 is expected from each person.

Selden given Maylene barbeque

"He's no novice at getting things done," declared Montevallo realtor Victor Scott as he introduced Armistead Selden, candidate for the U. S. Senate on the Republican ticket.

Scott had worked with the former Congressman in previous campaigns when he ran as a Democrat.

Even though Selden has switched parties, Scott told the crowd who attended the July 5 rally at Dr. Frank Abernathys, "I feel honored to vote for him."

And Selden reported that many of his Democratic friends had promised support. "The response from one end of the state to the other has been enthusiastic!" he declared.

An estimated crowd of 375 turned out for the brief speech, handshaking and barbecue at the Maylene residence Saturday afternoon.

His reason for running under the Republican banner Selden explained, was dissatisfaction with the Democratic party's policies.

"This county supported me 16 years in Congress," Selden remarked, "and I hope to be able to again give you the service you warrant."

He reminded the crowd that he would be running in the primary election Sept. 2.

Noting that if he wins in November, he'll be the first U. S. Republican Senator in 100 years, Selden said, "This will establish a real two party system in the state."

Numbered among the crowd at the rally, were candidates running for local and county offices.

A string band provided entertainment even though it wasn't the group that had been scheduled to play.

When they cancelled out just hours before the event, Alabaster investigator Sgt. Larry Rollan and his wife rounded up some musicians. Rollan pitched in on guitar.

The Columbiana Leader

Established in 1896,

669-6251

Columbiana Alabama

Under The Courthouse Dome

Douglas Kent of Alabaster will have a Republican challenger for the office of place one on the Shelby County Board of Education in the general election this fall. Kent has served two terms on the school board and is seeking re-election.

Claude E. Lee, whose Shelby County address is Surrey Lane, Birmingham, filed qualifying papers to run as a Republican for the post before the deadline last week.

However, place two on the education board will present no contest. Dr. Bill Fancher of Montevallo signed up as a Democrat for the position and drew no opposition from either party.

He will take the place now held by Dr. Elaine Hughes of Montevallo, who was ineligible for re-election when she moved out of the county.

The office of constable drew six contestants for this year's elections.

Even though the constables have little power under the laws of the state and lost a court battle two years ago to serve papers in Shelby County, three Democrats and three Republicans signed up to run for the positions.

Douglas Bunn, who is now a constable in Beat 17, is seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket.

He is being challenged by Democrat James E. Wood. The winner of the Democratic primary will then face Republican candidate Larry Martin in the general election. The Beat 17 race is the only constable post where there will be a contest.

In Beat one, C.R. Brasher filed to run as a Democrat.

In Beat six, Phillip Martin will run as a Republican and Jim Branch is seeking the post in Beat 12, also as a Republican.

Each of the county's 22 beats could have a constable, but no one qualified in the other beats.

William Hill, of Helena, district attorney for the 18th Judicial Circuit, will have Republican opposition this fall as he seeks re-election to the position.

Ray Ledbetter of Vandiver filed with the Republican party to run against Hill. Ledbetter has been active in Republican party activities for many years.

The 18th Judicial Circuit is composed of Shelby, Coosa and Clay counties.

Congressman Richard Shelby, who represents Shelby County in the U.S. House of Representatives, has filed for reelection.

He has no opponents in the Democratic primary.

But he will not know who his Republican opponent will be until after the primary September 2.

Both James E. Bacon and Fulton Gray have filed to run for the seat as Republicans.

The contest for district judge of Shelby County has settled down to a two-person race.

The incumbent, Patricia Smith, who was appointed to the office in January, will face Harry Lyon in the Democratic primary on September 2.

For several weeks the question was up in the air as to whether or not an election needed to be held for the office. But legal opinions finally ruled that an election must be held.

Both candidates had declared their intention to seek the post early in the discussions.

No one else in either political party filed papers to run for the judgeship before the qualifying deadline last week.

Applications for the principal's position at Montevallo High School will close at 4 p.m. Friday.

Reportedly, between eight and ten applications were already in the Board of Education office Tuesday.

The vacancy was created when Cratie Corbett submitted his resignation as MHS principal at the last Board of Education meeting.

Corbett cited health reasons for giving up the post.

was still in Shelby County Jail Tuesday afternoon pending a $17,500 bond.

He was charged with second degree arson last week in connection with a June 30 fire which destroyed most of his North Shelby County house, valued at about $125,000.

Farris' original bond was set at $58,500, but Pelham attorney Richard Bell successfully filed a motion Tuesday to have the bond lowered to $17,500, according to a sheriff's spokesman.

Besides arson, Farris was charged with second degree burglary, criminal mischief, driving while intoxicated and reckless endangerment.

According to reports, Farris apparently left his burning house off Valleydale Road sometime around 10 the night of June 30 while North Shelby and Pelham fire fighters fought the blaze. Later, he allegedly broke into the Jessup Building in Alabaster where he practiced medicine.

He was chased by police at speeds up to 110 mph back to his neighborhood where he was apprehended.

Rate relief sought

Although residents in the North Shelby County Fire District were expecting their water rates to go up, they were stunned when they learned the increase was more than 100%.

So two suits against the Birmingham Water Works Board were filed in Shelby County last week; one to seek relief from the unfair fee and the other for a reduction in the fire hydrant rental charge.

But it will probably be six or eight months before the cases are heard, attorney W. W. Conwell told area homeowners at a recent meeting.

The Indian Valley Homeowners Association called area residents together to discuss the increased water charge, and also the proposed removal of fire hydrants used by customers of the Birmingham Water Works System.

Families on that system recently received a letter saying hydrants would be taken out if the rental fee wasn't paid by June 30.

That charge went from $56 to $260 under the board's new rate schedule. And the 46% hike that was expected for water, turned into a deluge amounting to twice that amount.

The suit charging unfair rates points out that the rates are not set in relation to the cost of delivery, but are arbitrarily determined.

And zone 3, which includes the North Shelby customers, are way above the other two zones.

It points out in one suit, that by law, rates are to be uniform and that the board cannot set an unreasonable charge.

Until the three zones were created in April, customers had been classified as central or rural.

In the matter of rental on the hydrants, homeowners feel that they shouldn't have to pay more than the $70 charged to residents in zone one.

And if the court finds that to be the case, an election to be held Sept. 2 will let residents vote an extra $5 to fire district dues to cover the additional cost.

However, if the $260 fee is left in effect, that amount will have to be adjusted.

The Water Board has been asked to leave the hydrants in place until the litigation is concluded.

Not only would residents have no protection 'without the hydrants, but the area would go back to a class ten rating.

Up until this year, the rental was paid by Herschel Trimm who bought out Indian Valley's developer, Ralph Tulley.

In behalf of all the residents seeking relief from the high water rates, the following names appeared on the suit: John C. Pruett, John Zajic, William Velotas.

Names on the suit dealing with the fire hydrants are: Joe A. Scotch Jr., J. T. Norris, Scotch Building and Development Co. Inc., North Shelby Fire and Emergency District.

Klan would cause Columbiana complications

Letter to the Editor:

I was very proud of the decision by the Columbiana city council, to deny a request by the Ku Klux Klan, to have a roadblock in this area.

Anyone who is not a racist, realizes that the K.K.K. is a bigot organization and has no place in peaceful little Columbiana.

I think, anyone, who goes along with the Klan's beliefs is in a sad situation.

People can't progress without cooperation with each other.

I hope that, when the two Klansmen spoke of a Klavern being established here, they were just bluffing.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

You haven't lived if you haven't: Sat in a crowded church, almost out of sight of the windows, with just a small cardboard fan to keep you cool... watched a dove fly away, out of sight behind a tall pine tree, an wished with all your might that he'd come back over one more time... Played baseball on a Saturday afternoon in a dozen different places, with a dozen different crowds hollering their heads off...

Get clapped out in a Clap In-Clap Out Game with the prettiest girl there, on a June night with a June moon high in the sky... Hit the water at Browning Mill with the temperature 120 in Ben King's pasture, and wriggle out after two minutes with enough goose bumps on you to fill a peck basket...

Hit a bluegill bed twenty minutes after sun-up with a buggy-whip pole and a basket full of bloodworms... Lost a quarter when you were ten years old and hunting for it until you were 15 and kept wondering, when you'd got to 40, where in the world it could be...

Worried a whole week, thinking about poor Pauline in the Perils of Pauline, who was hanging off a cliff when the serial ended on a Saturday afternoon at Perry McGhee's picture show... Wondered how you'd look in a Tom Mix white hat, once you got big enough to have one...

Waited until a boy got back with some hickory switches from behind the public school teacher had sent him after... Shared a rumble seat on a dry dusty road with your best girl on a hot summer day... Passed the hat five minutes before midnight so you could dance another hour...

Listened to the band play Goodnight Sweetheart... Stood in front of a log fire and watched the sparks dance in the grate, while your shins baked and your back stayed as cold as an iceman's leg... Eaten at the second table, after the white meat was all gone, with the wings and drumsticks piled high on the plate... Spent the day in a bumblebee cotton patch with the stalks ten inches high and only a dab of cotton on each stalk...

Found out how good sawmill gravy was... Saved back a nickel every week for a sack of Golden Grain... Worked from sun-up till sun-down for a dollar... Sharpened your razor blades on the inside of a soapy glass...

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Four on the floor just isn't what it used to be.

What's changed since I started driving is the addition of a couple more gears.

Not being mechanically inclined, I have no idea what benefit they are. In fact, having to do so much shifting seems like a big nuisance to me.

But I was up against all that rigamarole the other day when my son-in-law traded cars with me.

His little doodlebug has an incredible five forward gears plus reverse. So before even getting in, I was intimidated.

Trying to find reverse usually throws me into a tizzy. On most of the manual shifts I've driven, the mashing down and pushing up in order to back up has always presented a challenge.

In fact, there have been times when I've driven over curbs and other obstacles because I couldn't get into reverse.

So when I slid the shift stick into that troublesome gear with ease, I thought I had it made this time. But I was wrong again.

As I started down the driveway, I noticed that the brake light was glowing a bright red.

Trying to figure out where the emergency brake was, I reached in the place where the release is in my car and pulled that lever. The hood flew up.

After getting it down, I drove back to the house for assistance.

Calling my son outside, I asked how in the world I could get the brake light off. But before I completed the sentence, out it went.

Giving me a look that conveyed the feeling mom shouldn't be allowed out on the road, he walked back into the house.

Driving hurriedly off, I no sooner hit the highway than the light came back on. But I just kept on going, expecting to see smoke start rising eventually.

My worry now, was shifting in the right sequence. On rare occasions I've been forced to use a manual shift. It's been sort of a hit and miss proposition.

If the car stalls, I know I've done the wrong thing. But I'm proud to say, on my round trip to the outskirts of Birmingham, the car only conked out on me twice.

My error was hitting fourth while searching for second.

Fortunately, I didn't give any thought to the possibility of the motor dying on a hill. If I had, I would have been terrified.

That used to be my biggest worry when I was getting ready to take my driver's test. And I'd spend hours practicing stops and starts on a steep hill near our home.

My son-in-law told me when he came to get his car that the emergency brake had burned out in the old buggy and that was why the red light stayed on.

So if I had stalled on a hill, I guess I would either have backed all the way down or run into whatever was behind me.

Well, I hope it will be a while before I have to tackle four, or was it five, on the floor again.

I much prefer driving along with my automatic shift making the decisions as to which gear I should be in.

That way, I can concentrate on more important matters, like what can I write about for Scrambled Eggs next week?

Figuring it out

UM art students are shown working on the mural which is being painted on the wall of Ranelli's Delicatessen in Montevallo. The design, which shows children of all races playing together, was done by Marla Hope (r). Also working Tuesday morning were Connie Walton, Columbiana, and Brian Ward.

Montevallo gets a touch of art

Larger than life size children are beginning to appear on the outside wall of a downtown business in Montevallo.

Taking shape under the skillful hands of UM art students, the figures of children at play are being painted on the side of a building facing Orr Park.

This is the first in what is hoped will be a number of murals on the walls of downtown buildings.

A joint effort of the city, the University of Montevallo and the Alabama Commission on the Arts and Humanities, the project got underway this week.

Designs for the mural were submitted by students in Catherine Dunn's painting class.

Alabaster seat remains vacant

Eleven names have been submitted for the Alabaster Council to consider in selecting someone to fill the vacancy on the Personnel Board.

Even though the place has been open several weeks, the panel put off making a decision Monday night so they could talk with the applicants.

It's expected that someone will be named at the next council meeting.

Another opening that the panel will have to fill at their next session is the council seat which has been occupied by Gene Glasgow.

His resignation, effective June 30, was read by Mayor Charlotte Burke who noted that Glasgow had done a good job during his term on the council.

If there isn't a run-off for his seat, which is place number 4, the mayor said she hopes the council will appoint the winner to take office immediately.

In other business, the council authorized Police Commissioner Wayne Lucas to purchase an automatic overhead door locking system for the Alabaster West Fire Station.

At the last council meeting, it was agreed that the device be purchased because of missing equipment that was apparently taken when firemen were out on call.

Pelham meets briefly

Some 15 residents attended a brief council meeting in Pelham Monday night.

An off-premises beer license was unanimously granted to James M. Tingle and Minnie Power for Pelham Produce.

The council resolved that it would sign an agreement with the state highway department for a traffic study on Hwy. 31.

For the council's consideration on future action, Mayor Burk Dunaway presented sample noise ordinances adopted by other cities.

The mayor read a tribute to the late John C. Hardin, who was city building inspector. The document read in part: "... Mr. Har-

Lucas was asked to get prices from more than one company.

However, he reported that Overhead Door was the only company he could find that was interested.

Their price is $1,145.

din fulfilled his official duties with fidelity, ability and courage and endeared himself to all who knew him by his unchanging spirit of fairness and justice and his gracious and loyal friendship..."

Klan would cause Columbiana complications

Letter to the Editor:

I was very proud of the decision by the Columbiana city council, to deny a request by the Ku Klux Klan, to have a roadblock in this area.

Anyone who is not a racist, realizes that the K.K.K. is a bigot organization and has no place in peaceful little Columbiana.

I think, anyone, who goes along with the Klan's beliefs is in a sad situation.

People can't progress without cooperation with each other.

I hope that, when the two Klansmen spoke of a Klavern being established here, they were just bluffing.

Heat is blamed for man's death

The intense heat that has moved into the state, is reported to have been responsible for the death of a Columbiana man.

Fifty nine year old Frank E. Gibson of Columbiana was found dead in his car Saturday near the Lay Dam exit off I-65.

Chilton County Sheriff's Deputies found Gibson slumped on the seat of the car at 12:30 a.m. All the windows were rolled up.

According to Coroner Jimmy Martin, Gibson had been dead for several hours before he was found. He ruled that death was caused by the heat.

Funeral services for the Columbiana man were held July 7 at Summer Hill Baptist Church. Burial was in the adjoining cemetery.

He is survived by his mother, Mary Gibson, Columbiana; a brother, James W. Gibson, Columbiana; a daughter, Sharon Galdney; three sons, Earl, Donald and Travis Gibson, and eight grandchildren.

Put in time

Valley Mills' plant manager Frank Brasher presents a retirement check to Oscar Sherman who has worked at the plant ten years.

Mill worker retires

Oscar Sherman retired this week after working ten years at Valley Mills in Columbiana.

The 68 year old Birmingham man has operated a bell press and worked in the blending room.

WORDS OF

(Cont'd)

If I were a youth, I would become a Christian, resolving to be true to the Lord for life. I would determine to grow and develop in service to Christ. I would be a self-starter in Christian service, and I would put forth every effort to grow in the Christian graces (2 Peter 1:5-8).

If I were a youth, I would marry a faithful Christian, thereby establishing a Christian home. The Word of God certainly discourages marrying outside of God's family. One need the encouragement of his or her mate in living faithful as a child of God. A divided family can be a great discouragement. I would also bring Christian maturity and purity to the marriage altar. And, when my wife and I would have children, the fact that both of us would be Christians would give them stability, a unified home, and a Christian upbringing.

Youth is a great time of life. Numerous young people are very active as Christians and mean much to the church of the Lord. Young people can accomplish tremendous things for mankind and for God. May the Lord bless our youth!

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Nine county men stand out

Nine Shelby Countians have been selected for inclusion in the 1980 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

These men were selected from nominations received from Senators, Congressmen, Governors, Mayors, State Legislators, University and College Presidents and Deans as well as various civic groups - including the United States Jaycees which also endorses the Outstanding Young Men of America program.

The men, listed along with fellow Outstanding Young Men throughout North America, will be featured in this prestigious annual awards publication.

Outstanding Young Men from Montevallo are Michael Arthur Benson, William Barton Keller, Robert Kirkland Lightfoot, Lyle Davis Mitchell, and Steven Ralph Sears. From Helena are Zack Rogers, III, and Gary Robert Buie; Rayford Lynn Scarbrough of Wilton and John Freeman Tanner of Pelham are also included.

'Block watch' set up in Pelham

Nosy neighbors aren't always a pain in the neck, as the Pelham Police will demonstrate in a program tonight at the city hall.

The program is geared toward preventing burglaries and other crimes through community watch programs such as those which have met with success in other cities. Residents will be instructed on how to establish such watches in their neighborhood.

The Thursday meeting is being put on in conjunction with the PPD's public relations department at the request of concerned residents in Pelham subdivisions. It starts at 7:30.

Montessori method

Michelle Riosa, 5, and brother, Michael, 3, get acquainted with the Montessori method of learning. Michelle and school directress Darlene Belec play a stamp game designed to teach the decimal system. Michael is punching out a shape as a pre-writing exercise which also helps develop coordination and builds attention span. Parents of the two youngsters are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Riosa of Pelham.

New learning system to begin

by Shelba Nivens

"We don't have discipline problems because the children know what they are suppose to do," said Darlene Belec, directress of a new school which is to open in the county this fall. Students are children from age three through six.

Although she still doesn't have a building, Belec hopes to locate in the Riverchase-Chandalar area.

Belec described the Montessori method of education as "Freedom in a structured environment."

Dr. Maria Montessori developed the learning system in Italy in the early 1900's to help slow learners. It was then found to be effective with the average and gifted child and spread into private schools.

"It worked so well that it spread all through Europe, then to the states by the 1920's," said Belec.

According to the school's promoters, Dr. Montessori felt that the goal of early childhood education should be to cultivate the child's own natural desire to learn.

Belec explained that in the Montessori classroom each child is allowed to experience the excitement of learning by his own choice rather than by being forced. She stressed that he is also helped to perfect all his natural tools for learning, so that his ability will be at a maximum in future learning situations.

"Very sophisticated, beautiful equipment is used in the classroom," Belec pointed out, adding that each item of equipment is used for a specific learning "exercise."

The exercises which are kept on shelves within reach of the children, include such things as large puzzles for learning botany and geography, games and cuisenaire rods for learning math, and "sound" boxes for learning phonics. Language, sensorial, art and music are also taught.

According to Montessori teachers, children benefit as much from "teaching" younger children as from being taught themselves.

Belec stressed that her school is Christian oriented. Bible verses and Bible principals are incorporated into many of the exercises.

The Pelham resident received BS degrees in economics and business administration from the University of Tampa. She also received her Montessori degree in Tampa. She taught for five years in private schools and has been a Montessori teacher and directress for seven years.

Mrs. Belec, with husband, Tony, and their two children, recently moved to the county from North Carolina where she was director of a school. She said that superintendents of public and private schools in both North Carolina and Tennessee visited her classroom there because of interest in how a Montessori school is set up.

News notes of county interest

District 3 Commander S.R. Peacock and his wife Doris represented Alabaster VFW Post 5963 at several state functions on the Fourth of July.

Along with the state commander and other officers, the Peacocks attended a barbeque lunch at Fairfield Post 3492 and then went to a memorial service in Adamsville where they placed a wreath in honor of those who died serving the country in foreign wars.

The party then moved to Brookside Post 6173 and later to Kelley Ingram Post 668 in Birmingham. There they were joined by Alabaster post members Ed Hancock, Norman Traylor and their wives.

Mrs. Grace Hayes Davis of Alabaster was notified this week that she has won two art awards.

Her entries in the American Mother's Committee National Art Exhibit were a bronze sculpture and an oil painting. Both were done of young girls.

The show was held in Phoenix, Ariz.

NOT TEMPTED BY GOD

PELHAM CHURCH OF CHRIST
Bob Wear - Associate Minister

WE MUST NEVER make the mistake of assuming that God is arbitrarily causing things to happen in order that we may be tested. Nothing can be explained or justified in this manner, because God is not the cause. "LET NO MAN (PERSON) SAY when he is tempted (tested), I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempts (tests) he any man (anyone)." (James 1:13)

THE TESTINGS which come to us are part of the established order for human life. (James 1:14,15). It is encouraging to know that God does not send things into our lives to test us. It is also encouraging to know that we can be victorious when we are tested. (1 Cor. 10:13). If we learn and apply God's word to our lives, we can have this victory. It is our responsibility. IT IS MOST UNFORTUNATE that people ever blame God for things that God does not do.

Montevallo couple says nuptial vows

Montevallo First United Methodist Church was the setting for a candlelight wedding ceremony uniting Miss Janet Leigh Gauntt and Kenneth Earl Dailey on Friday evening June 20.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Seaman of Montevallo and the Reverend and Mrs. Paul M. Gauntt of Gardendale. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Dailey of Montevallo.

The Rev. Henry Golson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. John Stewart, Jr. at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory dacron polyester organza with empire waist and Queen Anne neckline, trimmed in satin Venice lace. The flounced skirt flowed into a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was trimmed in matching lace and attached to a Juliet cap. The bride wore a single strand of pearls, a gift to her from her godmother, the late Mrs. W.H. Irwin of Leeds.

Miss Debbie Kunkel was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa Edwards and Deandra Cole. They all wore long apricot formal gowns.

Mr. Dailey served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Steve Dailey, brother of the bridegroom, and Ray Argo. Ushers were Freddie Thompson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom and Alan Blackmon.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

Music for the reception was provided by Mrs. Glinda Godwin, piano, and Miss Gay Perkins, flute. Guests were registered by Miss Beth Hughes.

Assisting at the reception were Merrie Rochester, Grechen and Greta Riesener, Monetta Dobson, Susan Sninnick, Tina Sawyer, Luanne Moody, Monique Van Landingham and Anita Thompson.

After a wedding trip to Orlando, Florida the couple will be at home in Montevallo where they both are employed at Seaman Timber Company, Inc.

A number of parties honoring the couple were held before the wedding. On May 24, Mrs. Charlene Scott and Miss Suzie Foster entertained with a kitchen shower honoring the bride at their home.

A surprise party for the groom was given by Debbie Kunkel, Glenn Anthony and Deandra Cole at the home of Glenn Anthony.

Mrs. Philip Lacey entertained with a miscellaneous tea shower on June 8 at her home in Montevallo.

On June 13, Shelia Allen honored the bride with a linen shower.

Members of the wedding party were guests at a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. James D. Seaman at Seabrier Farm.

The groom's parents gave a rehearsal dinner on the evening preceding the wedding.

Riverchase Country Club will be the site of the annual dinner banquet for the Shelby County Auburn Club on July 24. All alumni and friends of Auburn are invited to attend.

The president of Auburn, Dr. James Funderburk, will be the guest speaker.

For tickets and information call Katie Robertson at 669-9253.

After a strenuous but pleasant two day visit to Six Flags, Mary & Jim Blakerby of Columbiana and their daughters Tonya and Caroline traveled to Gautier, Miss., recently to spend a week in the home of Crickett and Bobby Woods and their children Cindy, Bridget and Bobby, Jr. while Jim went deep sea fishing, Mary and the girls relaxed and enjoyed some sightseeing. Mary said the family had a pleasant trip and are planning to go back in July.

Monthly fellowships are a special treat for the Young Life Class of the First Baptist Church of Pelham. Oak Mountain was a perfect spot for the class's June picnic, according to their teacher, Marguerite Watson. Jim and Sue Dennis arrived first and found the group a shady area.

Everyone brought a covered dish but all agreed that Sandra Pickard's fudge pie was a sure blue ribbon winner. Vickie Colum was also there but Butch Colum stayed home to work around the pool so it would be ready for the July swimming party.

Though it was hot the group holds tennis and frisbee tournaments. Competition was tough but Jack Franks and Jim Dennis won the men's tennis doubles and Melissa Lockamy and Shirley Hubbard won the women's doubles. Harold Hubbard and Sam Lockamy won the frisbee contest. Others to attend were Wanda Franks, Fred Pickard, Bobby and Jan Sasser and Wes and Yvon Sesson.

Barney Isbell was given a send-off from his 35 year career at Cardwell's Furniture on June 30. Rhonda Denard, Pat Frost and Bobby Owens arranged for a covered dish dinner to surprise him on his last day at the store. About 20 of his friends, his wife Elizabeth, and daughters, Nancy and Jane, were on hand to see him receive a plaque in appreciation of his service.

From Greensboro, New Orleans, Birmingham and Helena, the England's all came to the home of Lois and Millard McGlaven in Helena for their annual 4th of July family barbecue. Helen and Jack England, Vera and Rudolph England, Ozella and Earl Wilson, Clytie and Patton Rutherford, Robin and Ivan Brasher and numerous children and grandchildren all joined the crowd. Lois said the family had a good time and enjoyed a lot of old fashioned barbecue and watermelon.

Madge and J.C. Rhoden of Alabaster traveled to Waycross, Ga., to join 48 members of the George Rhoden family the past weekend.

Though it was hot, the group ranging from age 77 to 15 months sat around a long patio picnic table and, according to Madge Rhoden, really enjoyed "Mamma's chicken and dressing."

This past Independence Day weekend, my husband, David and I spent several days in Mobile. As we drove through the famous Garden District I noticed faded yellow ribbons tied around the large oak trees that line the streets. It didn't take me long to realize that the ribbons were Mobile's way of remembering the American citizen's held hostage in Iran. So along with thousands of American's we've decided to join in their symbolism. A yellow ribbon may not be much but it's our way of saying to our fellow Americans in Iran, "We haven't forgotten you." Until next week, I'll be seeing you "Around the County".

Should you have any items of social interest, please call Becky McDonald at 669-9535 or send them to the Shelby County Reporter.

VBS scheduled

at Aldrich church

for tots, teens

The Aldrich First Baptist Church Pastor, the Rev. Robert L. Pickett and this year's VBS Director, Mrs. Rose Emfinger, invites all youth to the annual Vacation Bible School, designed for ages three through the eighth grade. The school will begin at 6 p.m. on July 14 and continue through July 18.

Children may be registered by calling the VBS Secretary, Mrs. Hattie Mae Crenshaw at 665-7696 or the VBS Director at 665-4415.

A nursery will be provided for all VBS workers and teachers.

Couple honored

at anniversary tea

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dillard will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary Sunday, July 13.

They will be honored with a celebration tea, hosted by their children Pam and Charlene Dillard of Wilsonville and Tina Bassett of Childersburg.

Friends and relatives are invited to share in the occasion from two until four in the afternoon at the home of Charles and Jane Dillard in Wilsonville.

Strips improve safety

To make bicycle riding safer, Montevallo Post 10439 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will give away fluorescent strips this Saturday.

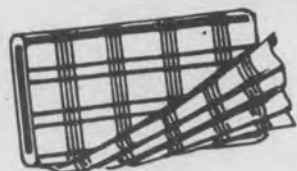

In the VFW's "Light-a-Bike" program, strips will be given to anyone who brings a bike to Orr Park between the hours of 11 and 2.

Walt Blankenship, who is helping organize the project, said free soft drinks will also be given.

He encourages everyone who rides a bike, regardless of age, to put strips on their bicycles so they can be easily seen by automobile drivers at night.

FSNB undergoing changes

The First Shelby National Bank of Pelham is undergoing a complete reorganization.

The sale of 51% of the stock of the bank is in the final stages of approval by the Comptroller of the Currency.

Reorganization of the bank was approved during a special stockholders meeting held in March.

The sale of controlling interest in the bank has been approved. Charles E. Martin and Ronald W. Currin and their investment group purchased 51% of the bank's stock.

Martin told the Reporter that he and his associates are injecting more than a million dollars in new capital stock which will make First Shelby National one of the strongest capitalized banks in Shelby County.

Martin brings with him a new management team to operate the bank. Martin is president and chief executive officer. Currin is executive vice president and William E. Bush is vice president and cashier.

A total reorganization of the bank's board of directors will take place in the near future.

The new management team and the infusion of new capital makes possible an expansion program that will include a new bank building, branches in other communities and the installation of a mechanical, around the clock banking facility.

Martin assured the Reporter that First Shelby National will remain an independent bank, locally owned and locally controlled.

The 39 year old Martin is a native of Walker County and a graduate of Cordova High School and Walker Junior College. He has participated in numerous banking seminars and institutes throughout the Southeast.

He is a member of the board of directors of the Jefferson/Shelby Luncheon Association, Operation New Birmingham, City of Hope Foundation, Hall of Fame Bowl, Jefferson County Distributive Education. He also holds membership in the Pelham Chamber of Commerce, numerous financial and banking associations and the Downtown Action Committee.

Currin, 35, is a native of Pulaski, Tennessee and is a graduate of the Installment Credit School of Banking of the University of Oklahoma and the Louisiana State University of Banking of the South.

He began his banking career in 1963 with the First National Bank of Huntsville. He later served as executive vice president and member of the board of directors of the National Bank of Commerce in Birmingham. He holds identical positions with the First Shelby National Bank.

He is a past president and present member of the board of Directors of the City Salesmen's Club of Birmingham; a past president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association; a current member of the Pelham Chamber of Commerce.

The bank's vice president and cashier, William E. Bush is a graduate of Bessemer High School and the U.S. Army School of Finance. He served with the army for three years including a tour of duty in Vietnam.

The 31 year old Bush began his banking career in 1966 with the First National Bank of Birmingham. He later served as assistant vice president and auditor and secretary to the board of directors of the National Bank of Commerce in Birmingham. He joined First Shelby National last December.

Wild flowers move to Columbiana yard

Many of the flowers in June Lovett's yard at Columbiana come from the woods or old family homes.

She has some iris, she said, that came from the yard where her husband played as a child. "There is nothing left there but an old chimney and flowers," she said, adding, "My husband said he remembers when they were planted."

The Lovett yard also has a lot of day lilies from old homes. Among her favorite wildflowers are black-eyed Susans, Sweet Williams, honeysuckle and Grancey greybeard.

Plants need to be located during their blooming season, she advised, then dug up and transplanted after the blossoms are gone. She likes to transplant spring-flowering plants in the fall and fall-flowering plants in the spring.

The middle of this month will be about the latest that iris can be transplanted to bloom next spring, she said. Sweet Williams can also be transplanted now to bloom next spring. "If they are planted now they will have all winter for the roots to catch hold," she added.

Most gardening experts advise that wild plants be transplanted to sites as close as possible to the sites from which they were taken. Shade, sun, soil condition and terrain should all be considered. When transplanting from the woods to the garden, they say, be sure to cut around the soil with a shovel a good distance from the roots. Then, take up a large ball of soil and let it sit this way for awhile before putting it back into the ground.

Mrs. Lovett said she has found that day lilies and iris are tough and will grow in almost any soil. When digging them up, she usually shakes the dirt off bulbs for easier handling.

She keeps plants in a cool place and keeps them watered until she has time to get them into the ground in her own yard. Plenty of water should be used after planting to help them take root, she cautioned.

Transplanting

After digging up wildflowers or plants from old homes, June Lovett puts them in buckets and keeps them cool and damp until she has time to plant them in her own yard at Columbiana.

Member pens history

Anyone looking for the Wilson's Hill Society today would have a hard time finding it by that name.

The oldest Methodist church in Alabama south of the Tennessee River now goes by the name, First United Methodist Church of Montevallo.

In a recently published book, the beginnings and development of the church have been recorded by a longtime member, Mrs. J. P. Kelly.

After she was appointed church historian in 1979, Kelly started gathering information about the church which was organized in 1816.

Thinking that she might publish the history in pamphlet form, Kelly was amazed to find that after a year of research, she had collected enough material for a book.

Spending between ten and twelve hours on the project many days, the church historian visited archives and libraries and interviewed longtime residents of the community for their recollections.

One of the things she turned up that was a "first" in the Methodist church, was started in Montevallo. It was a home for "worn out preachers."

That was the descriptive language used by the layman who approached the North Alabama Conference with the idea for a superannuate home for retired ministers.

The book will be available at an autograph party to be held at the Methodist parsonage July 27.

Copies may also be obtained at the church office, Marie's Gift Shop, Merchants and Planters Bank or at Mrs. Kelly's home near city hall.

The price is $5.50 or $6.50 if mailed.

Boy Scout troop 5 from Pelham spent the week of June 29-July 5 at Camp Sequoyah.

The troop is sponsored by Christ Church United Methodist. Byron White is pastor of the church and Doyle Kernea is scoutmaster.

Art absorbs retired teacher

by Shelba Nivens

After teaching for 35 years in the Shelby County school system, Margie Davis of Calera retired to paint.

Actually, it was a chance happening after her retirement that got her into oil painting, she said. She added that she had enjoyed working on art projects with her students, and had always thought she would like to paint. But she "just never had a chance."

Then after retiring, she decided to learn macrame at a local hobby shop. "When I went in I saw some people painting and so I asked, 'Can I do that?' They said, 'Why, sure.' So I started taking lessons in oil painting," she laughed.

That was in August of last year. Since that time, she has painted landscapes, seascapes and florals. She has also done tole painting, she said, explaining, "Tole is where you take a pattern and trace it."

Some of her oils were done from photographs. Such was the picture of Antioch Church #1, located in the Kingdom community. She photographed the building, then used a pencil to sketch the church from the photograph before painting it. "Then I just painted the background free-hand," she said.

On Calera Trade Day this year, she sold some of her oils. More recently, she placed several of them in the Country Inn Restaurant at Calera.

"And I did a large one for my husband's birthday last September," she said.

"I called it 'Autumn Woods.' It's hanging in our living room."

Her husband, W.M. (Sonny) Davis, is a rural mail carrier at Calera. The couple has a foster son, Bruce Humphries, who lives at Alabaster with his wife and three year-old son.

The Davis' only daughter died in 1964 at the age of twelve after a fall from "falling rock" near Montevallo.

The couple is active in community affairs and often helps with projects at Calera school from which Mrs. Davis retired in 1976.

Although certified to teach high school, she taught in the elementary grades. "I enjoyed working with the younger children," she said, adding, "I tell folks that being with young people now is what keeps us young."

Margie Davis took up painting last summer after retiring from a 35-year career as a public school teacher. She paints landscapes, seascapes, florals and tole. (Photo by Seaman)

Drama began over coffee

It all began over a cup of coffee.

Retired UM theatre director W. T. Chichester was reminded of that fact Wednesday as he stood on the stage at Brierfield Ironworks Park.

Calling him the "father" of the outdoor drama, Dr. Mike Mahan told Chichester that the premier season of "Brihthope" was being dedicated to him.

Now in its second season, the state's only outdoor drama evolved from a conversation Chichester had with the Bibb County Heritage Association one June morning in 1977.

Members of the group invited the UM drama instructor to breakfast, and while Chichester sipped his coffee, he was asked to write and direct a skit about the ironworks.

It was to be used when the park opened. But Chichester had a better idea.

For years, he had been trying to get an outdoor drama going at Oak Mountain State Park without any success.

And now he saw the opportunity for his project to finally materialize in Brierfield. So he suggested a full scale drama to be put on every summer.

If his health had permitted, Chichester might have tackled the job of writing the play himself.

In the 1930's he had worked with the country's first outdoor drama, "The Lost Colony," which still plays in North Carolina.

And collaborating with the head of North Dakota State's Drama Department, Fred Walsh, Chichester wrote "Trail West," in 1958.

Based on General George Custer's battle at Little Big Horn, it had a short run because local support was lacking.

But Chichester had a playwright in mind to write "Brihthope," and he agreed. The man was Kermit Hunter, who authored the outdoor drama "Unto These Hills."

Familiar with that play which he critiqued, and others the playwright later wrote, Chichester asked him to come to Brierfield.

He did. And seven days after the idea for the drama was suggested, Hunter signed the contract.

When he came to the University of Montevallo in 1977 to be interviewed for a teaching position, Chichester took Dr. John Rude to the park.

The director looked in disbelief at the overgrown area where Chichester told him the drama would be staged.

But that was where Rude directed the play's first season in 1978 and where Chichester stood to receive his award Wednesday evening.

"Without a question, 'Chi'" has been the driving force behind the beginnings of "Brihthope," declares Dr. Charles Harbour, chairman of the UM Speech and Theatre Department.

His theatre experience goes back to the 1930's when Chichester was a radio actor in New York. Appearing regularly in network shows, one of his best known roles was the voice of the Shadow.

And Chichester's voice can be heard once again in this year's production of "Brihthope." He tape recorded the part which is the voice of the Indian Chief Eufala.

The drama about the historic ironworks and the people who founded it will be performed on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings through July until the closing week Aug. 6-10.

During that week, there will be nightly performances.

Curtain time is at 8:15 p.m.

Dr. Mike Mahan presents a certificate to W.T. Chichester which proclaims that the premier season of Brihthope is dedicated to him.

Chelsea player makes his bid for top tennis ranking in state

Andrew Yon of Chelsea has been swatting tennis balls in junior tournament circuits for three and a half years. And for someone who has only taken the game "seriously" for a little over four years, he's doing quite well, too.

"But if you count the first time I ever played, it'd be about 13 years," Yon laughs. "My dad took me out when I was three and put a racket in my hand. I hated it!"

But that was 13 years ago. If Yon still hated tennis, he wouldn't have spent 22 days of the month of June at four different tournaments, right? Nor would he spend 2-3 hours per "off day" sweating on a hot tennis court.

Probably, he wouldn't have ever made MVP on this year's Chelsea High tennis team if he still hated the game.

And he certainly wouldn't stand a snowball's chance in July of being ranked this year among the state's top 15 or so tennis players in the 16-and-under division.

But Yon does have a chance for a top ranking.

And yes, Virginia, Yon does like tennis.

Last month at Mobile's annual qualifying tourney to determine the dozen players who'll represent Alabama on the Southern Junior Circuit, he placed twelfth out of a show of 53 youths.

"I just barely slipped in," he notes. "But everybody says it's a big thing just to qualify."

A couple weeks ago, however, at the Southern Closed in Marietta, Georgia, Yon didn't fare quite so well. He ran into the number one seed in the first round. It was the toughest opponent he'd ever faced, and he fell with a respectable 6-4, 7-5 loss.

At the other two tournaments played so far this summer, he placed third both times, falling only to the first and second seeds, respectively.

Yon's former coach, Boo Mason (who'll coach Yon again next year at Indian Springs when he transfers there as a junior from Chelsea), predicts, "By the time he's 18, he'll be one of the top players in the state. He'll get a scholarship, somewhere, for sure."

Yon's strongest shots are his serve and backhand, but adds, "Confidence has a lot to do with it."

In the past, his weakest point has been getting mad and slamming his racket down. He's broken five of them that way during tourney play, but points out that his father has a found a cure for these temper flares.

"He said I have to start paying for the rackets."

Yon's biggest attraction to tennis is the fast paced action involved in the game.

"Unlike baseball, where you're standing around 90% of the time, in tennis you're always moving," Yon pointed out.

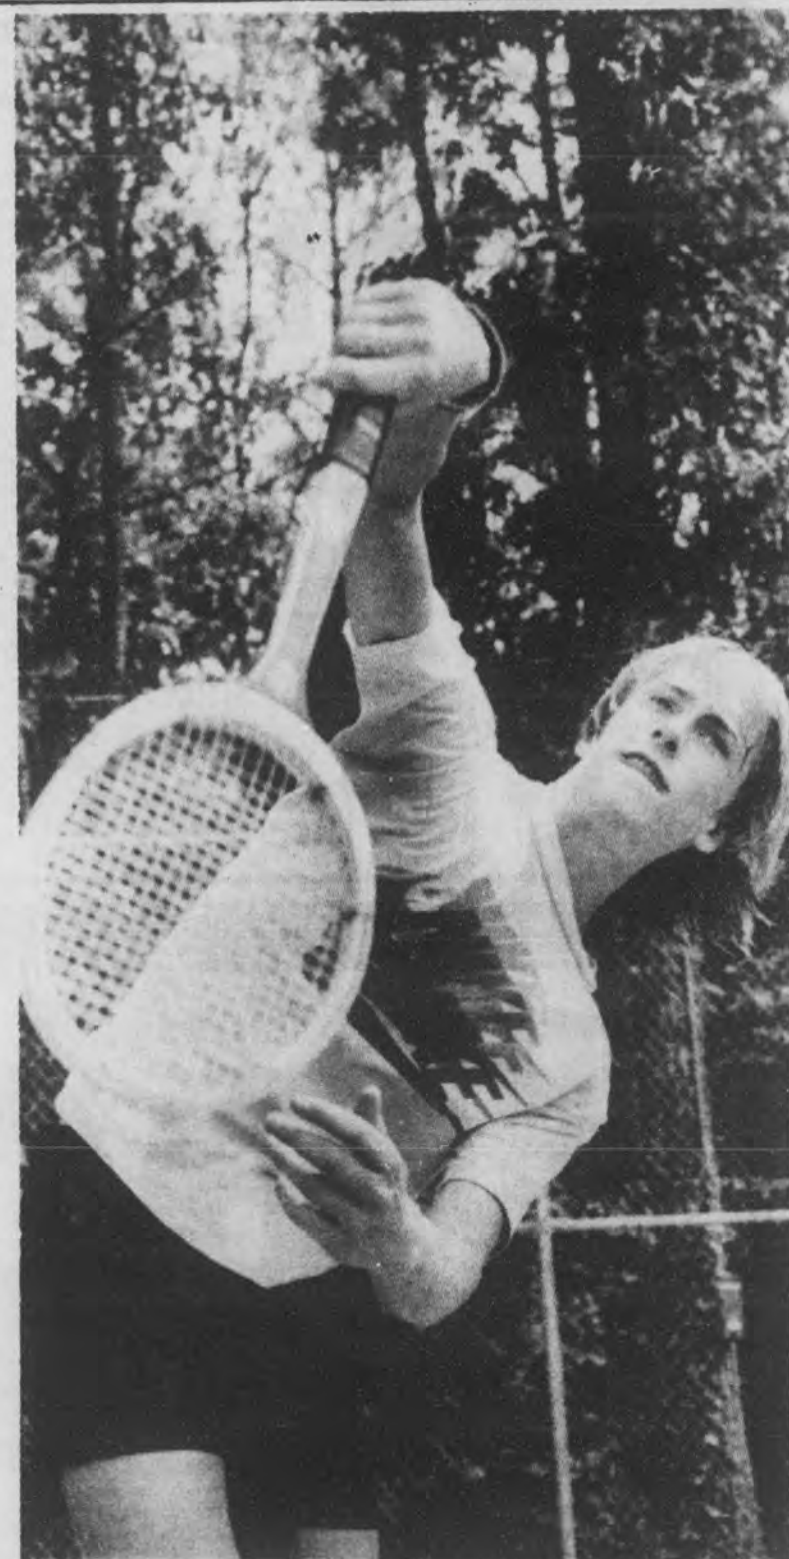

He also noted that, in tennis a player has a lot more say about whether a game is won or lost. "In baseball you can play a real good game, Yon remarked, "but maybe the other eight guys on the team are playing bad and you lose."

"It's not that I don't like team sports, but tennis is more of an individual thing," Yon explains.

If he could land a scholarship somewhere in Florida, that would be great, Yon says. And after college he thinks he would like to get a job teaching tennis and take a shot at some of the pro circuits.

Whatever he does in the future, it's got to have something to do with tennis. "I haven't even thought about doing anything else," he admits.

As Boo Mason puts it, "Andrew's a real hard and determined worker and loves tennis. And he's got his family behing him, too. That's a real good formula. With that, you can do anything."

Wham, bam, slam!

Andrew Yon says his serve and backhand are his strongest shots, but adds that confidence is definitely a key to anybody's tennis game. His worst weakness used to be getting mad and breaking tennis rackets, but he says his father (Bill Yon) found a cure for that.

Purdy crappie hitting like summer storm

Excellent crappie fishing sneaked up on Lake Purdy last weekend like the heavy summer showers that have been rolling in the past few Sundays.

In fact, one small group from Birmingham camped at the lake over the weekend and had so much luck they just couldn't leave.

According to Walter Lowe who runs the boat landing, Doug Sellers and some friends pitched their tent Friday, hit the lake and caught 88 crappie. Saturday they went out and caught 60 more, and before it rained Sunday afternoon, they had a stringer of 50.

Knowing a good thing when they see it, Lowe said they were back on the water Monday morning and pulled in 25 crappie within an hour.

One 83-year old gent launched a boat and never got more than a 100 yards or so from the landing. Why? Seems his jig kept getting snagged on crappie. He caught 50.

The crappie have been responding to yellow and chartreuse jigs, and white and pearl grubs, trolled at a depth of about four or five feet.

Although crappie are currently number one on Purdy, 2-4 pound bass have been hitting in the evening and nights.

If you fish for bass, try bouncing a pig-and-jig (a dark pork rind hooked to the back of a dark jig) on a rocky bottom, slowly and in about 15 feet of water.

Although no one has brought any big 'uns by the store, there are reports on the blue channel catfish running and Lowe said catfish bait sales have soared recently. The lake record on 'cats is 30 pounds, he notes.

From all indications, Lowe said, a good week for both crappie and bass should be in store at Lake Purdy.

"And if you don't fish, you can enjoy the scenery," says Lowe. "I don't know why anybody would want to go anywhere else on their vacation. Shelby County has it right in their back yard."

Fourth comes late for Harpersville, but team proves hot as firecracker

For a lot of people, the fireworks came on the Fourth of July. But for Harpersville, all the fireworks came Saturday, July 5, when the team defeated Sylacauga to take first place in the Independent Men's Softball league.

If working hard for something makes one appreciate it more, then the Harpersville team should truly appreciate their current claim to first place. Saturday's tie-breaker game went 10 innings before Harpersville put away the home team 12-10.

The score was 9-9 in the top of the 10th when Mark Whitfield doubled in a run. A few minutes later, Glenn Jones doubled in two clutch runs to clinch the win. Sylacauga only managed one run in the bottom of the 10th, and that's when the fireworks started.

Harpersville has now won six games straight, including a 3-2 win over Pell City Friday, and wins over Leeds, Avenue I Exxon of Birmingham, Pell City and Chilton County the previous weekend in an invitational tourney played at CVA.

Harpersville has six games remaining in the regular season and a league tournament will be played August 15-17.

Yankees battle their way to top

It was an uphill battle for the Pelham Farm League Yankees this season. But when the going got tough, the Yanks weren't to be denied. And when the dust settled - literally - they were the league champs.

During the first half of the season the Yankees managed only two wins in seven games, which included an embarrassing 14-4 loss to the Pilots, who went on to win the first half championship.

If the Yankees were unlucky because they had 13 players, that bad luck ran out on them in the second half of the season, as they went 5-3.

The Yanks beat the Pilots, coached by John Barnett and Paul Shebs, 3-2 in the last regular game, throwing the two teams into a second half playoff. Again the Yanks won, this time 8-5, throwing them and the Pilots into a championship playoff on June 27.

At the end of five innings, that game was tied 6-6 and went into extra innings. Finally, with two outs and two strikes on a Yankee batter in the bottom of the seventh, Coach Charles Fox sent pitching ace Frank Patrick (who earlier in the season pitched a no-hitter shutout) scurrying for home plate on a passed ball.

Patrick scored to win the game 7-6, giving the Yankees the Farm League Championship.

The other members of the championship team are Bobby Price, Chris Casey, Brandon Puckett, Brent Hollingsworth, Carl Fox, Chris Bond, Brian Taylor, James Dewberry, Joey Towers, Jeff Carlisle, Scott Boyd and Jamie Podsedly.

season is the Shelby County Dixie Youth organization in Alabaster. Round-robin tourney action will begin Monday, July 14 with three games beginning at 5:30 p.m.

The tournament will include the minor league All-stars from Montevallo, Cahaba Valley Nationals and Americans, Central Shelby, East Shelby, and Alabaster.

Two games will be played at 6 and 8 each night from Tuesday, July 15, through Friday, July 18. The championship game(s) will be played Saturday, July 19, at 9 a.m.

A nominal admission fee will be charged at the gate. Further information can be obtained from tournament director Bob Thames at 663-9574.

Shoe tossing set

Horseshoe pitchers will be competing in a World Championship Tournament July 24-August 3 in Huntsville.

This is the first time that the event has been held in the south in more than 50 years.

The competition is expected to draw an estimated 900 pitchers and thousands of spectators to Braham Springs Park Horseshoe Center.

Lady Luck smiles

on FOP winner

When it comes to luck, a Columbiana man seems to have more than his share.

When Shelby County FOP Lodge 41 gave away a Cadillac Friday, Bill Strickland drove off with the car for the second time.

Five years ago, Strickland was the recipient of his first Cadillac, the coveted prize in the FOP's annual fund raising drive.

Now, in addition to having more than his share of luck, the Columbiana man has more than his share of cars. As fate would have it, the winner of the Cadillac is a car dealer.

The keys to the car were presented to Strickland by Reed Smith, the chief investigator for the Sheriff's Department, who was the top salesman for this year's fund raiser.

Deputy J. B. Carter was second in sales. The two men sold a total of 82 tickets.

Alabaster investigator Sgt. Larry Rollan was chairman of this year's project.

After all obligations have been met, the lodge expects to wind up with approximately $5,000. And this will be used to improve their new building in the Camp Branch area.

TIP OF THE WEEK

To take off stubborn stains from the inside of glass vases, dampen the interior and sprinkle with any toilet bowl cleaner. Let stand for 15 or 20 minutes and the stains will disappear.

You may eventually want a big, expensive gas grill, but if you would like to start small, come in and pick up a new, portable Arkla GasGrill for as low as $99.50. Come in today.

Calera races called off; Roy concedes to Prichard

Calera Mayor George Roy announced the day after the primary elections on July 8 that there will be no runoff for any municipal posts in Calera.

Roy said he was withdrawing from the race, which means that the new mayor of Calera will be Carl Prichard. In the election, Prichard won 340 votes, Roy won 185 votes and Larry Farris won 166.

Also withdrawing are A.V. Parmer and Billy Gremlin who were scheduled for runoff elections for council positions.

Parmer was the high man in his race for place 5 on the council with 253 votes. Next highest was Douglas LeSueur with 190 votes. LeSueur will now become councilman without a runoff.

Others in the race were Terry Snow who captured 135 votes and Arthur Burnice, who had 113. Parmer has served one term as a councilman and indicated his doctor had suggested he not serve another term.

In the race for place 1 on the Calera Council, Billy Gremlin had won 228 votes to 310 for Roy Hadaway. Hadaway will now become councilman. Third man in that race was Hilton Shirey with 129 votes.

Mayor Roy said the three men in conceding the election, wished their opponents well. At the same time they offered their assistance in making an orderly transition of Calera's municipal government.

Bill to split office goes on fall ballot

by Reporter Staff

The Shelby County Commission made it official Monday. The election calling for splitting the duties of the probate judge into two offices will be held with the primary elections on September 2.

Provision for the election was made in the bill that passed the legislature, but the commission had to take action to put it on the ballot.

If the public votes 'yes' to split the office, a new position will be created called 'Chairman of the County Commission.' The officer to fill the position would be elected two years from now, at the time the present probate judge's term is open for election.

The new officer would receive a salary 10 percent higher than the salary paid to any other elected official or county employee. This would be an unusual departure in Alabama official circles, since salaries of elected officials are usually spelled out by law and cannot change during the term of an office.

The present probate judge, Tommy Snowden, had promised to seek legislation enabling the people to vote on splitting the office, which some have contended is too much work for one person.

Runoff races loom in five local cities

Runoff elections will be held in five Shelby County cities on Tuesday, July 29.

The only runoff for the office of mayor will be in Wilsonville, where Sherrell McClure and Robert G. Stephenson will meet at the polls.

In Alabaster, two council seats are at stake. The incumbent, Mayo Taylor will face Michael Ashe and L.O. Farris will meet Marvin Hall.

Pelham also has two council runoffs underway. K.O. Maynard and Joe Littlefield, the incumbent, are competing for place 1. Place 3 sees a contest between Willard Payne, the incumbent and Ed Gentry.

In Montevallo, Catherine Smitherman and Joe Miller are competing for place 5 on the council. Vincent also has one council race, between Pat McDaniel Roper and D.L. Spates.

A.E. "CODGER" ETRESS

Etress runs as Republican

A.E. "Codger" Etress faces no Republican opposition in his race for the district one seat on the Shelby County Commission.

He will meet the Democratic candidate in the November general election.

Etress is a lifelong resident of Shelby. He has been with the L & N Railroad for 32 years, and a union member for the same length of time.

He has also owned and operated a small business for the past 17 years. He helped organize the Lay Lake Rescue Squad and has been coordinator of the unit ever since it was started.

He is a member of Bay Springs Baptist Church, is married and has four children.

Population hits nearly 62,000

There are 61,955 people residing in Shelby County, according to 'unofficial working figures' of the U.S. Census Bureau's 1980 count.

The figure was released this week to Probate Judge Tommy Snowden. It indicates a population growth of 62.9 percent from 1970, when the population figure was 38,037.

In the two years since the county hired the Census Bureau to conduct a special 1978 census, the growth has been 5,874 persons, or a 9 percent growth rate. The official 1978 population figure was 56,081.

The report shows that Alabaster is still the biggest city in the county, followed by Pelham, Montevallo, Columbiana and Helena.

In the new 1980 figures, three cities show smaller populations than they did in 1978. For this reason, officials of these towns are expected to ask the Census Bureau to take a new look at the 1980 canvassing techniques to be sure all the residents were counted.

The cities of Montevallo, Calera and Wilsonville show small drops in population over the 1978 census. The drop in Montevallo is 216; in Calera, the drop is 65 and in Wilsonville, the drop is 21.

On the other hand, Pelham added 504 new citizens in the last two years, if the figures are correct. Helena added 463 and Alabaster added 149 since the 1978 census.

Helena shows the fastest growth during the past two years of any town in the county, but overall in the past decade, Pelham's rate of growth outstripped all others at 578.4 percent.

Alabaster's growth rate was 144.8 over the ten year period from 1970, followed by Helena with an 83 percent rate.

Many of the towns of the county have increased their populations by annexing new territory as well as by an influx of new residents.

Even so, the number of people living within the municipalities is only 40.3 percent of the total county population if these figures prove correct.

The census figures have been awaited in Shelby County with anticipation, because many state and federal grants are based on population.

Official returns are expected within a few more weeks.

Pelham water tanks run low

by David Moore

Water reserves in Pelham have evaporated to this point: either drying lawns get water, or drying people. But not both.

In response to the blistering three-week-old heat which has sent the mercury boiling over 100 degrees, Pelham Water Works customers have turned on the sprinklers to save their lawns. In effect, this action on the part of the consumers has pulled the plug on the city's 1.3 million gallon water reserve.

The most seriously affected area is Indian Springs, which stood a good chance of running out of water last Tuesday, according to Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway, who is also the water superintendent.

"They have a lot of money tied up in their lawns, and in part I can understand them turning on the sprinklers. But now it's a question of who wants water, people or grass," the mayor said. Dunaway said the water shortage problem started during the peak usage time last weekend. Saturday night Pelham police cruised the city asking people to refrain from watering their lawns and to take other conservation measures.

He noted that North Shelby County Fire District, which operates about 45 percent of its fire hydrants off the Pelham water system, has been calling customers in the area and asking them to conserve water. Announcements have also been made on television.

Still, as of Tuesday morning, the 500,000 gallon reserve tank which serves customers in Indian Springs was reported to be only one-quarter full when it should have been full, the mayor noted.

If the tank runs dry, some 600-700 of Pelham's 2800 water customers may find themselves thirsty.

"Everything we've got is running wide open," Dunaway said. "We can't pump any more."

Everything is running full blast, 24 hours a day. They (especially customers in Cahaba Valley) are using more than we can pump."

He pointed out that the North Shelby Area served by Pelham draws its water supply from one of the system's five wells plus a booster pump.

Dunaway indicated that the city's other 500,000 gallon tank

Jones runs in primary

J.V. Jones of Rt. 1, Shelby has announced his candidacy for the office of county commissioner from District 1. He will run in the Democratic primary September 2 against the incumbent, Jimmy 'Jake' Morris and Edgar L. Vick.

Born and raised in Shelby, Jones has been in business for himself as a building contractor for the past 10 years.

He says he will conduct a strong campaign, but does not want to make promises he might not be able to keep. He takes a cautionary attitude toward county affairs, saying he would want to study them carefully before making any decisions.

He said he feels he can do a good job representing the people of the county because he works in the county and travels throughout the county in his line of work.

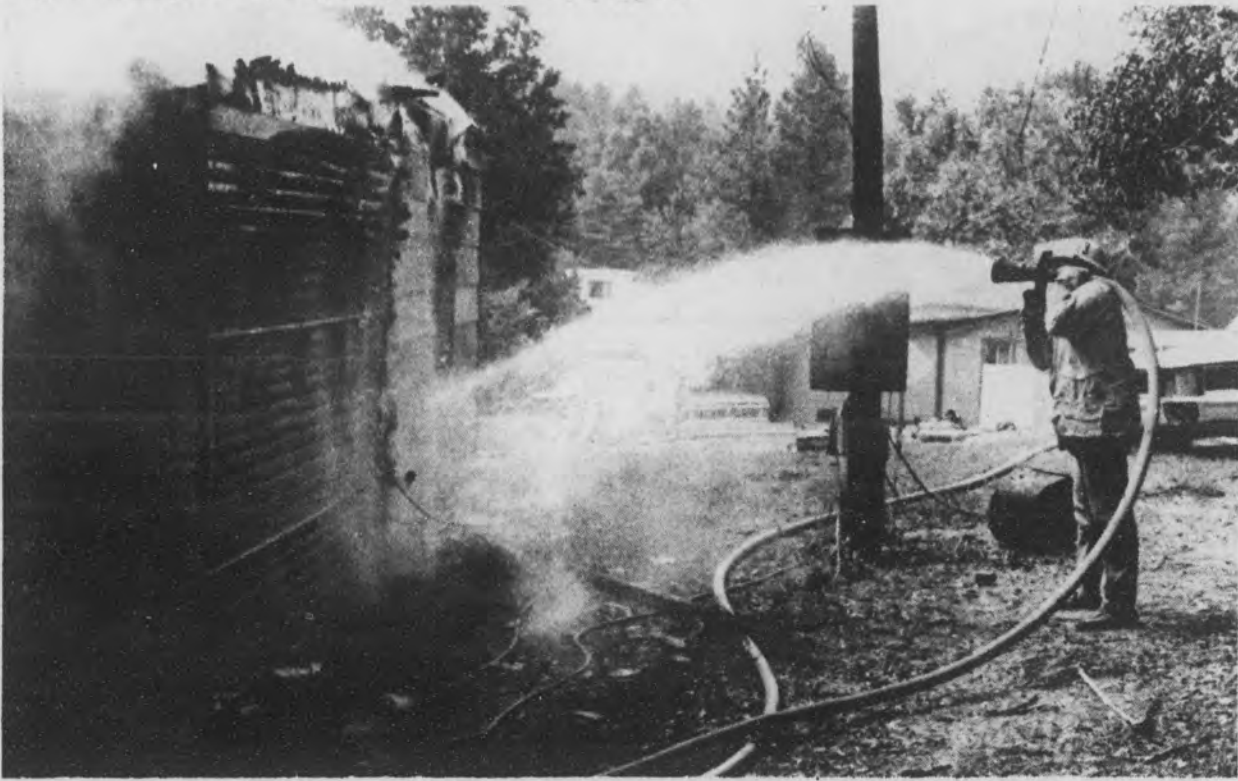

He would like to see the various departments of the county 'brought together' so they would work together more harmoniously.

Jones was active in the drive to start the Spring Creek Water Authority and now serves on its board of directors. He is also a member of the county Democratic committee.

He and his wife have two children.

Helena races to get new well ready to relieve shortage

The Helena Water Works is racing to get its new well and pump operational before the spigots in its customers' homes run dry.

It's going to be a close race. One of the town's 200,000 gallon water tanks had dwindled to an eighth full (25,000 gallons) by Tuesday morning, according to water superintendent Dennis Yawn. And the other 200,000 gallon tank was down to 50,000 gallons, he said.

In an effort to win the race, officials were asking the town's approximate 675 customers to refrain from watering their lawns and to take other conservation measures.

"If we could talk these customers into cutting off sprinklers, we could supply household needs," Yawn said. "You can't tell them they can't have it because they pay their bills. But at the same time, we need a little cooperation."

He said some of the citizens had been very understanding of the problem, but others had refused to stop watering their lawns.

Monday, water service to a large number of the town's customers was temporarily cut off while the final tie-in was made between the present system and the new well. Yawn said he did not know how many customers were without water.

The superintendent pointed out that the hookup was now complete but that several steps have yet to be made before the added water can be made available for consumption.

First, the sediment in the water from the new well has to settle to a point acceptable by the state health department, Yawn explained. He added that he had his fingers crossed that that level would be reached late Tuesday afternoon.

From that point it would take 3-4 days to flush the new lines and have bacteria tests run, he said.

When it goes operational, the new addition to the Helena water system will increase its present, two well output from 220 gallons per minute to 545 gallons per minute.

Yawn said that the old system is currently operating at capacity, but cannot maintain a good reserve level in the storage tanks since the demand is so high.

"When you're doing the best you can with all you've got to do with, that's all you can do," Yawn said, then added he was praying for rain.

"If we had a major fire now, we'd be in trouble," he noted.

Customers on the Helena water system are asked to call the water works at 663-1670 before they water their lawns.

Hard fight

The Alabaster Fire Department, joined by firefighters from Pelham and Montevallo, fought both flames and the heat wave when they answered this call Tuesday afternoon at Sammy McCarver's residence off Sims Road. The fire was finally put out after several hours, but not before AFD Chief John Cochran and five other firefighters went to the hospital for minor treatment for overdoses of heat. (Photo by Moore)

Montevallo studies EMS plans

Two hours of discussion on how best to provide emergency medical services to Montevallo's citizens highlighted this week's meeting of the Montevallo City Council.

The city's council chambers were nearly filled with interested citizens as spirited comments were exchanged.

Two representatives of the Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services organization were on hand to tell council members what services the organization provides.

The entire discussion came about when Shelco Rescue and Fire Unit One announced that it "went out of business" last week after a special election by voters in a proposed fire district failed to approve the establishment of such a district.

A temporary arrangement to provide emergency medical service was established last week by the city's police and fire departments.

Councilman Grady Parker, chairman of the council's police and fire committee, called two meetings last week to take initial steps in establishing a permanent emergency medical services organization.

Mayor Ralph Sears told the group assembled in city hall Monday night that a temporary service is presently available and that the council is interested in exploring all possibilities before setting up a permanent organization. He said the council will move with haste, but will not make hasty decisions.

Representatives of the now defunct Shelco Unit One were on hand Monday night to suggest the possibility of re-establishing the organization to serve Montevallo, Wilton and the University of Montevallo.

In other business coming before council Monday night, Councilman J.D. Holsomback reported that the summer recreation program is progressing smoothly. He noted that attendance at the city sponsored day camp averages 40 to 45 participants; 33 persons are enrolled in the summer swimming program; 18 are participating in gymnastics; 20 in slimnastics and that there are 30 softball teams.

Before Monday night's meeting was over Ott Knight, the city's director of parks and recreation reported that the 'Monday Night Live' program had attracted the largest crowd ever assembled in Orr Park. He described it as a complete success.

Councilman J.A. Brown cautioned council members that the current rate of spending will probably result in the depletion of city funds before the fiscal year is over on September 30. City clerk Don Hughes suggested that the current moratorium on the purchase of capital equipment be extended throughout the remainder of the fiscal year. Council members agreed.

In other action, Barney E. Champion was nominated for a position on the city's board of adjustments.

Black voter groups grill candidates

"I see a lot of injustices that we need to work together to right," Dr. Frank Abernathy told members of Alabaster Suburban League Monday night.

The Alabaster physician, who heads a concerned citizens group from the area, and two candidates in the runoff for council seats, shared their views on a number of issues with the black citizens group.

Marvin Hall, who is in a runoff with L. O. Farris for place 4, and Glen Naish, who is trying to gain the seat held by Mayor Taylor, were the two candidates who attended the meeting.

Dissatisfied with what they termed "lack of progress," league members quizzed the two men running for office on their positions.

Both men said they would work to get new industry, favored expanding the city limits and would push for improvements in the black sector.

A park which black residents had started with their own funds and labor, was brought to the attention of the candidates.

Conceding the need for assistance with the project, Abernathy pointed out that community pride would be needed to keep it up after it was developed.

The poor condition of streets was also mentioned, with one league member pressing for repairs as soon as possible after the new council took office.

Complaints were also registered about areas overgrown with weeds and the pile-up of garbage.

And league members said they had been dismayed by the failure of their effort several years ago to have the city divided into districts.

They blamed a council member for the plan not succeeding.

Under that proposal, a candidate would have run in the district where he or she lived, and in that way, the black group felt they would always be represented on the council.

Only two sticky questions came up during the evening. They were directed at Abernathy and Naish.

Asked if he refused black patients, Abernathy pointed out that it was his prerogative to select the people he would treat. The doctor said he had turned away some blacks as well as some white patients who had come to him.

Stressing that he opposed racism in any form, Abernathy reported that he had some "good black patients."

Naish was asked about rumors that he would give up the seat if elected because the salary would interfere with his disability pay.

And someone else, had already been selected to replace him, according to the report that had circulated.

Denying what had been heard, Naish declared that he would serve and his pay would be given to the fire and police departments.

Two other visitors at the meeting were Pat Sweeney, who was there because of his interest in both the black and white youth of the community, and former Siluria Police Chief Chuck Harris, who promised to support the blacks.

"I hope that whoever is elected will make themselves available to the black community," remarked League Chaplain Rev. Jimmy Underwood.

His wife, who serves as the group's secretary, reminded the visitors the league had been in existence for 12 years.

"We've established good communications with the city," she noted, "and we expect that will continue."

She added that the organization wasn't "reaching out in the dark. We know how to achieve what we expect," she declared.

League President, Robert Tolbert presided at the meeting.

Escape route

A trusty from the Shelby County jail points to the missing section in the second floor window panel which four prisoners squeezed through and made their escape Sunday. The small opening, not detectable in the picture, can hardly be seen even when standing at the fence. The cell has been locked until the panel can be replaced.

Four more break out of jail

Maybe the old ways are best. That seems to be the case anyway, when it comes to keeping prisoners in jail.

Four inmates from the Shelby County jail escaped Sunday night when they cut out a section of the unbreakable plastic glass which replaced bars in the new facility.

However, two of the men have since been recaptured, one of them having broken his leg in the jump from the second floor cell.

The breakout wasn't discovered until Columbiana policeman Rick Gaught came upon Matthew Bullock near Pasquales Restaurant around 11:15 p.m.

Then a check of the jail revealed that three other men were also missing. They were Ricky Hale, Phillip L. Martin and Michael Hogan.

Hale was found the following day in Calera. Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, Chief Investigator Reed Smith and Investigator John Pratt apprehended the prisoner near the Pit Restaurant around noon.

The exact time of the break-out hasn't been determined. But Jail Administrator Wayne Lucas said the men were all there when cells were checked at 10:30 p.m.

Explaining how the narrow section of plastic window was cut, Lucas said that a heated butter knife was used.

The cell from which the men escaped belonged to Hogan and was off the day room. And the window panel was one of those recently replaced because it had been damaged by prisoners.

During that replacement operation, two of the most recent escapees had made another bid for freedom.

On that occasion, Hale and Bullock were captured in Columbiana a short while later.

The Sunday night escape was reported to be the second for Hogan, Martin and Hale and the third for Bullock.

Traffic accident kills Pelham man

A Pelham man was killed early Saturday morning in a two car collision on Hwy. 31 in Pelham.

According to Pelham police reports, Benny J. Rowell, 51, of Dalton Drive was killed when he pulled onto Hwy. 31 from the Cackle Shack restaurant. The 1979 Cadillac he was driving was struck by a 1976 Mercury driven by Elizabeth Perkins, 22, of Scottsboro.

She was southbound on Hwy. 31 when the accident occurred at 12:30 a.m.

Dalton was pronounced dead on the scene and Perkins was taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital and released Monday, police said.

To all my friends in Calera.

ROCHESTER'S
MONTEVALLO

Under The Courthouse Dome

Termites are chewing their way into the county health department building, according to a report Ron Stutts sent the county commission Monday. Commissioners voted to get price quotations from reputable exterminators and hire the one who would handle the work most economically.

Licenses to sell beer were approved by the county commission Monday for the new Big B Discount Drug and the Piggy-Wiggly on Valleydale Road.

School Superintendent Charles Knowles asked the commission to reconsider buying a fireproof file cabinet for the board of education office. They had turned down a similar request earlier. He said the files were necessary for the safety of vital county records. Commissioner Harold Davenport moved to approve purchase of the same type as purchased in the probate office. Judge Tommy Snowden said he found prices range from $575 to $800 and had been told "If those files are UL approved, they're all the same - with regard to fire proofing." He had bought the cheapest one for the probate office.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow sent a letter to the commission with a long list of repairs that 'must be done' at the jail. On the list were the old familiar problems, leaks in the roof, parking gates still not working, ceiling tiles needing replacement, carpet repair. Commissioners expressed exasperation that the architects and building contractor had not taken care of these problems long ago. They advised Snowden to send Glasgow's list to the county attorney and start appropriate legal action.

Road problems piled up on the county commission Monday, brought about by the recent attorney general's ruling that the county cannot provide work on any road that is not clearly a public road.

L.L. Howard of the Camp Branch area complained that the road he lives on is in bad shape. He said he thinks his property taxes should be higher than they are, but he is worried that taxes and road upkeep are discriminatory.

County Engineer James Ray told Howard that his road has been in use for just 7 years, and does not qualify as a public road. The county formerly worked non-public roads where there were more than two or three families, but can no longer do so, because of the attorney general's ruling.

Ray pointed out again, that his office is compiling an official map listing roads that the county commission considers 'public' and said that should solve the problem. However, the work will not be finished until into the next fiscal year.

Willis Oates of the Glasscock area on Lay Lake near Shelby said if the county wouldn't grade and chert two miles of road in his area he would take up the matter with the Civil Liberties Union.

He said that some 20 families have permanent homes on the road, and the conditions are worsening all the time, especially with regard to ditch clearance. Ray mentioned that the road is a public road, but the county has only 30 feet right of way, and the road takes up most of that.

Commissioner Jake Morris, in whose district the Oates road lies, said he had met with some of the people there and was working on the problem. Oates said he had a petition with 54 signatures of people who are complaining about it.

Informal bids were sent to the commission for repainting and maintenance to the outside of the courthouse building. However, one bid was for $3,500 and the other was for $16,830. Specifications were not clear, and there was no attempt to explain the wide difference in bids. They were set aside for further study.

This writer apparently had a memory lapse last week when discussing the constable races in the county. As Constable Hubert Hope pointed out, there was no 'court battle' to establish the right of constables to serve papers in Shelby County and the constables did not lose.

The story should have indicated the constables asked for rulings from the courts. The requests began at the county level and went to the State Supreme Court. The constables finally won their point: that the circuit clerk could not discriminate between the sheriff's office and the constables in distributing legal papers to be served.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

He was in Sears, Roebuck and Co. with his Pop, and he was nine years old, and he wanted an air rifle. And his Pop bought it for him-- a new model King Air Rifle for 75 cents.

And while they were there his Pop bought a Belgian double barrel shot gun for himself-- a 12-gauge beauty direct from Belgium-- for $11.89.

And since the hunting season was only two weeks away, he bought two pair of winter underwear for himself for 85 cents a pair, and a pair for him for 70 cents and a Queen Style suit for Mom, made out of wool, for 89 cents.

A lady came in, with a little girl tagging behind, wearing high-top shoes and cotton stockings. They looked at short cloaks, that reached from the girl's neck to her ankles, but settled for two cloth dresses at 98 cents each. They came back later and bought a short cloak for 79 cents.

On their way out they stopped at the ladies ready-to-wear. She picked out a skirt and cape Mackintosh suit. The cape started at her neck and came down to her hips. The skirt reached to the ground with only the toes of the shoes showing. The price for the outfit was $3.40. And when she took the black velvet hat to go with it that was an extra $1.95.

Across the aisle in the shoe department another lady was shopping for shoes. She tried on a Patent Leather Lace job, priced $1.95, and a Goodyear Welt Lace, priced $2.55, and settled on a Black Vici Kid button shoe that reached halfway between her ankle and her knee for $2.00.

Dragging behind, his eyes glued on the toy department, a red headed boy, about five, caught up with them in the boy's suit department. He wriggled in and out of half a dozen suits, while the clerk pouted, and finally took a liking to a Gray Heavy Weight Cassimere Vestee Suit that cost his Mom $1.75. She bought him a high top Kid Button shoe for 75 cents and a high top lace job for his sister for $1.00.

Another lady came in, dressed fit to kill, and made her way to the ladies ready-to-wear. She bought a four hook short summer corset for 50 cents and an extreme long waisted Kabo High Bust for 98 cents, and prissed her way out, looking a little like a sack o' cotton tied in the middle with a rope.

She stopped in the door and looked back. "Happy New Year tomorrow," she called. She waited a minute and added: "It'll be the first day of a new century. January 1, 1900."

Scrambled Eggs

by Bert Seaman

Movies are a great way to spend two or three hours. Well, they used to be anyway.

But nowadays, there seems to be a scarcity of good movies, especially if you're accompanied by a four year old.

I found that out this past weekend when I was trying to entertain my granddaughter.

Remembering a marquee advertising Mary Poppins in a mall where I sometimes shop, we headed in that direction.

But arriving at the theatre with expectations of seeing the flying nanny spouting her Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious jargon, I was disappointed to find her gone.

And a look through the newspaper for her at another theatre revealed that she must have packed her satchel and flown out of town.

The film that replaced Mary seemed to be our best bet. Its star was a Volkswagen.

Although that didn't really grab me, I thought my granddaughter might be entranced by the adventures of the beetle-like car.

So we marched up to the box office and plunked down our money. But we were stopped by the ticket taker who pointed out our tickets were for the wrong feature.

Going back to rectify our mistake, the man who seemed to be in charge of the ticket booth asked who had sold us the tickets.

The answer seemed fairly obvious since there was only one girl in the booth. But she threw the blame on me, saying I had been standing in the wrong line.

Since only one person had been ahead of us, I somehow missed the fact that there were lines. But just wanting to get into the theatre, I complied with their request to sign my name on a brown envelope.

When we finally reached the darkened theatre, I wanted to wait a few minutes to let my eyes adjust. But my little charge was in a hurry to sit down.

So, groping our way down the aisle, I slowly eased into a seat about half way down, fearful there might be someone sitting there.

Fortunately, it was empty. But a form loomed up in front of us, blocking the little one's view of the screen.

So off we went again, in search of a better seat. My eyes were accustomed to the gloom by now, and I picked out some good seats which I was sure were empty.

State makes gains in 'illiteracy war'

by Fob James

Last Thursday was the best day I have had since taking office 18 months ago. It was on that day that I learned that Alabama students in four elementary grades had scored at or above the national average for the first time in history on the California Achievement Test.

What this means is that the War on Illiteracy is being won and it is being won by the classroom teachers, the principals and administrators and the parents of school children all over Alabama. I thank them, especially the teachers, for their splendid efforts and I do so on behalf of all the people of Alabama.

Last year I ordered the statewide testing of all elementary students in Alabama. This had never been done and there was some resistance to this approach. But that initial testing showed us where our weaknesses were and allowed the teachers and principals to concentrate on these problem areas. The results have been dramatic.

In one year we had three months improvement in fourth grade language and spelling, two months improvement in fifth grade reading and mathematics, four months improvement in fifth grade language, and a dramatic 14 months improvement in sixth grade spelling. All other areas showed two-to-four months improvement except for fourth grade math and eighth grade spelling which remained the same as last year.

I was asked at my press conference last week why I thought there had been such dramatic improvement in one year. I think the answer is simple. Our teachers and principals are seeing that there is a genuine commitment in Montgomery to improving basic education and they are rallying to the cause. They are the key to the success we have seen in one year.

Last year I expressed concern over the number of Alabama elementary school students who scored one year or more below their grade level on the first tests we gave. A comparison with last year of those who scored that low this year is evidence of the progress we are making.

In reading, the most important basic skill, the percentage fell from 27 to 24 percent in the fourth grade, from 35 to 31 percent in the fifth grade and from 39 to 35 percent in the sixth grade.

This comprehensive testing program when coupled with the Basic Skills Teams which are fighting the War on Illiteracy all over Alabama gives us a potent weapon in this battle.

Shelco supporter asks

Since when is 11¢ too high a price for life?

Letter to the Editor

All who read this letter are not affected by the future of Shelco Rescue Service, for you should be very thankful for the presence of an Advanced Life Support (ALS) Unit ("Paramedic" or "Rescue Unit") provided through your local Fire Department. But for residents of a larger sector of our county, qualified emergency care is not so readily available.

I've followed closely the saga of Shelco as this county has seemingly turned its back on them and I'm concerned. Shelby County will always be home, and I have family here.

I understand that today many problems relate to money, or lack of it. In my concern, I have spoken with many of our nationally prominent EMS leaders, hoping to grasp an understanding of why a rapidly growing, active county can't afford to subsidize an ALS Unit that is not affiliated with a municipal fire department.

Mr. James O. Page, J.D., Executive Director of the ACT (Advanced Coronary Treatment) Foundation and renowned EMS leader wrote that:

"Hundreds of communities throughout the U.S. seem to harbor hopes for improvements in emergency care and transportation services. In most of them, the hopes seem to hinge on the ability to obtain some funding. Particularly in the rural areas, it is frequently reported that the population is too poor, or sparse, or beset by unemployment, industrial departure and inflation. On the other hand, we sometimes hear of a report of ingenuity, optimism, and success born of good old fashioned determination."

Shelby County citizens may be suffering under present inflation, but everyone is. We are certainly not a poor, sparse, or unemployed county plagued by industrial departure. We are a progressive county, with new growth and hoards of new people in exodus from Jefferson, and surrounding counties. I also feel that, with the exception of those who too readily criticize a system they have never seen in operation, we have an overabundance of good old fashioned "ingenuity, optimism, and determination." When we talk about a "Rescue Truck" or a "Paramedic Unit", we are referring to either a Basic or Advanced Life Support Unit, depending on the level of expertise obtained by personnel manning the unit and the equipment available for their use.

Perhaps the following data could shed light to county leaders on the worth of just one basic or advanced life support unit. Mr. Page supplied formulas that I have personalized for the membership of Shelco Rescue Unit: 22 volunteer paramedics working 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, serving an immediate population of 9,000 people, a secondary population of 25,000, and mutual aid for te County - approximately 50,000 people.

Based on the formulas provided (national data), the cost of CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) training alone equals $2,872 in time and mileage; with additional costs for Basic level EMT training at $11,980. But the members of Shelco are trained to the paramedic level (2 levels higher). This training has cost about $89,760, not including state tuition. The expense for their training totals approximately $92,600., out of their own pockets!

To a population base of 50,000 the estimated lives saved from the services of a paramedic system is 5 persons per 10,000 - or 25 people, with a long term survival rate of 30%, and 4 years of anticipated working life (average age of cardiac survivor is 61 years). Annual federal income tax based on $20,000 per year taxable income is $3,484. (est.) per person, resulting in a tax revenue benefit of Advanced Life Support in a suburban county to the survivors of $522,600. One rural state averaging 147 "saves" per year due to highway trauma alone, reported a tax revenue benefit of $8,901,620. annually.

So, what would it cost each of us (per capita) to assist in saving a life in Shelby County?

Population base - 50,000
Total saves per year - (5 per 10,000) or 25 lives saved
National average cost of an ALS System operation - $137,500/yr.
Cost per save - $5,500
Per capita cost per save - ($5,500/50,000) or $0.11.

The cost of a Countywide EMS systems operation would likely be much higher. A figure of $65,000 per year per rescue vehicle has been cited as a "reasonable cost." with four (4) total ALS systems in the county, some operating more than one vehicle per system, the per capita cost per save could rise to possibly sixteen or twenty cents!!!

Since when did 11 cents, or 20 cents, become too high an expenditure for a human life? When our country politicians can answer that one, the rest of the United States will be listening.

For those of you living in the Shelco area, let me please encourage you to become knowledgeable about the service, and the special skills of these volunteers. For the rest of our County citizens and politicians, let your EMT's and paramedics know you appreciate them. You may never know when you'll need them.

Respectfully Submitted,
K. Joanne McGlown, R.N., EMT-P

Political losers help make America great

Letter to the Editor:

Once in my presence these words were spoken, "America is the greatest nation in the world." Immediately, my analytical mind sought flaws in this apparently complex statement. After much thought, I discovered that I must concur with this philosophy after one slight modification.

With pen in hand, I wrote, "America is the greatest nation in the world because democracy is the greatest system of government." Democracy allows "the people" to be heard at the polls and to convey a message which can seldom be disregarded.

Furthermore, I discovered that democracy is great because it not only produces winners, but it also produces losers. To those who were not victors at the polls, I convey this message, "Thanks for your attempt, for you have made democracy work."

In addition, I say that it is through the losing experiences in life that we are forced to become strong. Thus, humility is a prerequisite to kingship. Many of the men who the world considered to be failures have become the heroes and saviors of our age.

The most dramatic example of this fact is a man named Jesus Christ. His apparent failure led to his resurrection and messiahship. In the paraphrased words of T.S. Eliot, we learn that the martyr rules from the grave while kings die and are forgotten.

Thirdly, even the candidate who lost at the polls has won a victory within himself for he has discovered his community. The fears, needs, and hopes of "the people" have become painfully clear to him. With this new insight, he can help meet the needs of his community without the red tape that the federal government imposes on the public office holder.

In conclusion, there are few losers in a political race. The only losers in this life are those who relentlessly hold on to the past. To those people, I retort, "You have no future, for your past has destroyed your objectivity." Therefore, I say to all candidates who ran in past elections, "You have played a role in making America the greatest nation in the world."

Sincerely,
Rev. Wayne Lowe

Long years at SMH

Honored for their years of service to Shelby Memorial Hospital were, seated, from left, Nellie Craiger, 20 years and Earnestine Yarbrough, 10 years. Standing, Callie Davis, 10 years, Jay Stuman 10 years and Bama Headley, 20 years.

Local FOP denies drive

Calls have been received by some Shelby County families requesting donations for a Jefferson County Fraternal Order of Police organization.

But Lyle Mitchell, president of local FOP lodge 41, says that the fund raising drive will in no way benefit the county organization.

Only one fund raising drive is held each year by the local group, Mitchell reported.

And he pointed out that the project, which focuses on a Cadillac being given away, was recently completed.

If anyone has doubts about the validity of the calls or has any questions about the local FOP, they may call Mitchell at 665-1241 during the day or 663-4745 evenings or weekends.

Hospital bestows service awards

"The thing that has made America is the men and women who do a good job, day in and day out. If everyone did what they know how to do every day, the big problems would take care of themselves."

Brigadier General Luther Smith of the Salvation Army said these words to the employees of Shelby Memorial Hospital who were earning awards for years of service last Thursday night.

The occasion was the annual awards banquet, attended by members of the hospital board, staff, friends and relatives of the honorees.

The volunteer Candy Strippers had decorated the dining room in a patriotic theme and were on hand throughout the evening serving the meal.

Employees who were awarded pins for 20 years of service to the hospital were Nelma Craiger, Bama Headley and Molly Vinzant.

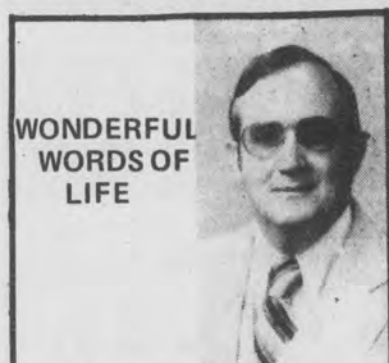

Receiving 10 year pins were Earnestine Yarbrough, Jane Cummings, Callie Davis, Jay Stuman and Johnnie Hayes.

Employees with five years of service each were Peggy Tillery, Mary Mitchell, Flora Ramsey, Gail Null, Frank Johnson, Jr., Tim Linderman, Wanda Cox, Geneva Holcomb, Faye McRae, Leola Reed, Elaine Giroux, Judy Blankenship, Doris Hill, Brenda Lyles, Billie Stewart, Jessina Huff and Diana Coleman.

Ben Grubbs, chairman of the hospital board, presided at the presentation of the awards. Musical entertainment was provided by Sharon Powell, Suzanne Luker and Rebecca Luker.

Administrator Roland Bradford made the welcoming remarks and Berry Gilbert introduced the speaker.

"Help Thou My Unbelief"
Mark Twain wrote in his autobiography, "I shall keep in mind the fact that I am speaking from the grave because I shall be dead when the book issues from the press." This book has been described as unusually and "remarkably humorous, sad, loving, sacrilegious, wrathful, and kind."

Twain had experienced a number of sad occurrences. When thinking of his daughter who suffered an untimely death, he was saddened that the eager hand of his daughter would never touch his hand again.

He suffered another great sadness when he realized the tremendous burden which he placed upon Olivia, his wife. When Olivia, whom he loved so much, was suffering grievously prior to her death, Twain urged her to resort to prayer. She answered, "I cannot pray. Because of what you have taught me I no longer believe in God."

But for months before his own death, another daughter died. He wrote these last words in his autobiography, "Now Jean is in her grave! In the grave-if I can believe it. God rest her sweet spirit!"

How appropriate are the words, "Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief!" (Mark 9:24) Would to God that Mark Twain had turned to the Lord for salvation when he, as many other atheists, come to realize that God must indeed exist.

Auburn president to speak at county alumni meet

Special speaker at the Shelby County Auburn Club will be Auburn President H. Hanley Funderburk, Jr. He will address area AU alumni and friends Thursday, July 24, at Riverchase Country Club.

A social hour begins at 6 p.m. and will be followed by dinner at 7.

Also featured on the program is George L. "Buck" Bradberry, executive director of the Auburn Alumni Association.

The cost for the affair is $12 per person.

Interested persons should contact either Katie Robertson at 669-9253, Mike Hill at 669-6264, or Jackie Cates at 669-2781 by Monday, July 21. All Auburn alumni and friends are welcome to attend.

Naish would upgrade fire, police departments

Glen Naish, who is running against the incumbent, Mayo Taylor, for place 2 on the Alabaster City Council, points out that since he's retired, he will have plenty of time to devote to the job.

If elected, he says that two of his goals will be to upgrade the police and fire departments. "They are our two most important departments," Naish declared.

A lifelong resident of the city, Naish stresses that he will work for "all the citizens."

Continuing on the campaign trail, Naish still has a stack of campaign cards that he's handing out as he solicits support.

His opponent, when contacted by phone about her plans for the runoff, said that she had no statement to make right now.

Century span

Rachael Dorough, who will soon be two, helped her great great grandmother, Isabel Culp, celebrate her 100th birthday. Rachael, who lives in Wilsonville, is the youngest member of Mrs. Culp's family. Approximately 70 friends and relatives helped Mrs. Culp celebrate her June birthday at the Estes Health Care Center in Montgomery. Letters of congratulations on reaching the century mark were received from President Jimmy Carter and Governor Fob James.

Principal files suit

A Nebraska based insurance company, hired by the state last year to provide liability coverage for school employees is being sued for failure to pay off.

The suit asking for more than $500,000 in damages was filed in Birmingham federal court by W. C. Corbett who resigned last month as principal of Montevallo High School.

After a grand jury found there was not enough evidence to indict Corbett on child molestation charges, the MHS principal filed his claim with Imperial Casualty and Indemnity Company of Omaha, Nebraska for reimbursement of legal fees.

His was one of the first claims filed with Imperial which was awarded the state contract last year with their bid of $123,430.

Corbett had dropped his Alabama Education Association membership several months earlier when the state offered the free insurance.

The Nebraska insurance company was said to have been upset that claims against their policy were in excess of the premium which the state was charged.

And the company claimed that the former principal's legal fees, which reportedly totalled nearly $26,000, were excessive and also that his situation was not covered in the policy.

Attorneys Dick Bell and Bob Echols contended that due to the time and expense that went into the case, the fee was reasonable.

Echols also pointed out the clause in the policy which stated that if an insured person won, the company would pay.

"Corbett clearly won," Echols said, "because the charges against him were dismissed. He did not plead guilty to anything, and was fully exonerated by the courts."

In an interview with the Alabama School Journal, Corbett said that he had been trying to collect from the insurance company since December.

Since they refused to pay, he reported that he had been forced to borrow $3,750 from the bank to pay his lawyers' retaining fee.

In addition to the $500,000 in punitive damages Corbett is asking for in the suit, which charges the company with breach of contract and fraud, the ex-principal is also seeking $31,000 in compensatory damages.

Train derails at Helena crossing

A train derailment Sunday afternoon in Helena left Main Street blocked for about 45 minutes while rescue workers removed an injured man from the wreckage.

The derailment occurred at 3:09 on the L&N mainline tracks which pass through the town.

Four L&N engines and several cars were backing down the main line to couple with the rest of the train when the moving cars collided with the stationary cars, said Helena Police Chief Gary Carter. According to Carter, the derailment took place about 120 yards west of the railroad crossing on Main Street.

The chief said the the cause of the wreck appeared to stem from a communication breakdown between the train's engineer and the brakeman.

Three hopper cars were knocked off the tracks and another hopper and a pulpwood carrier were partially derailed, he said.

L&N brakeman Robert E. Chapman, 59, of Birmingham, whom Carter said lost part of his right foot in the accident, was removed from the wreckage and taken to a Birmingham hospital where he was reported to be in satisfactory condition.

The chief said that L&N officials were still investigating the accident.

Election clarification made

In reporting the results of dozens of contests in the municipal elections last week the Reporter inadvertently reversed the figures on a race in Harpersville.

Thomas Green, Jr., won his bid for place one on the city council, defeating his opponent, Harry H. Young, by an official score of 138 to 39 votes. Our report had shown the opposite result. Our apologies to both men.

Mayor J.S. Donahoo said the official returns on the mayor's race gave Donahoo 108 votes to 79 for Robert A. Muller, Sr. In the only other contested race, for place five on the Harpersville council, Floyd Remes won by 108 votes to 69 votes for James Waldrop.

Harpersville chief moves on

It wasn't that Harpersville Police Chief Phillip Walker didn't like the job he'd held for six weeks, it was just that an opportunity came his way that was too good to turn down.

Only a limited number of places are available at the National Fire Academy where Walker had applied some time back. So his acceptance, he said, was unexpected.

During the month he spends in Emmitsburg, Md., where the school is located, Walker will be studying arson investigation.

Before coming to Harpersville, Walker served for a year as Alabaster's Fire Marshal.

TWO OF THE MOST unfortunate errors we can make are: (1) Seeking signs from heaven, and (2) Having unscriptural expectations. AN EVIL AND UNFAITHFUL generation seeks after a sign. "then certain of the scribes and of the Pharisees answered, saying Master, we would see a sign from you. But he (Christ) answered and said unto them, "An evil and unfaithful generation seeks after a sign: and there shall be no sign given, but the sign of the prophet Jonah..." (Mt. 12:38-40). TODAY, THE GOSPEL IS God's power to save. (Rom. 1:16,17). In its fullness, the gospel is God's word and is complete with evidence to believe, commands to obey and promises to enjoy. (I Peter 1:22-25; James 1:25).

Vows renewed

by Becky McDonald
If you pass Elvin Hill Elementary School on Tuesday evening between the hours of seven and eight you may be surprised to see a room full of ladies doing the hoedown kick, hussle walk or maybe even the pony step. No it's not a sock hop, they're doing aerobic dancing. Carolyn Murdy and Carla Gaught are leading the group of exercises for absolutely no cost and everyone is invited.

Judy Kelly, Jan Smith and Carol Hill were just a few of the ladies to host an open house for Rachael and Conrad Fowler of Columbiana. Eager to show their new home little Catherine and Elizabeth Fowler took several of the guests including Mary Nell and Ben Skelton on a tour of the house.

The Shelby Academy cheerleaders and their sponsor, Rhonda Sikes, are eagerly awaiting August fourth when they plan to attend a cheerleading clinic at Huntington University in Montgomery. There Caryn Carden, Terri Winslett, Cindy Bates, Dale Jones, Robin Parrish, Lisa Lucas and Tina Blackerby will compete for the spirit stick and the title of Best All Round Cheerleading squad. Caryn told me the girls are very excited and plan to be ready to cheer their team to victory

September 5, when they play Coosa Valley.

Interested in raising big, beautiful African violets? If so, you are invited to attend the next meeting of the Woodland Hills Garden and Craft Club in Maylene, Marguerite Hall, who is known in that area for her green thumb and expertise with house plants will instruct the group on the art of raising African violets.

Karen Reaves, publicity chairman for the club, also told me that the residents in and around the Woodland Hills area are trying to organize a neighborhood watch. Anyone interested should call her at 663-6533.

Every year Ethel and Arlington Gardner have a beautiful garden behind their Alabaster home. However, this year, Mrs. Gardner says the heat wave has just about done them in. Across the street Lettie and Carl Davenport are fighting the heat by putting saw dust around the plants to hold in the moisture. Though the garden isn't as productive as past years, Mrs. Gardner, says they're mighty grateful for what they do have along with everyone else in the south, the Gardners and Davenports are praying for rain.

Last Wednesday, I made a mental note of all the accomplishments I would have made by the end of the day, while I drove my three children to the new Mother's Day Out program at the Columbiana United Methodist Church. The children quickly jumped out of our car and ran inside to join their friends. As I turned to leave not even my one year old seemed to mind. When I returned to pick them up not an item on my list had been crossed off. Though I may not have a work list, I'm looking forward to next Wednesday as much as the children. After all, like the name says, it is 'Mother's Day Out'! Until next week, I'll be seeing you 'Around the County'!

Should you have any items of social interest, please call Becky McDonald at 669-9535 or send them to the Shelby County Reporter. Please be sure to include your phone number.

New teaching methods shown

Schools in Pelham, Alabaster and Montevallo will be participating in a project for using innovative methods of teaching history. These educational methods are to be studied by history teachers July 25-26 at the annual preservation conference of the Alabama Historical Commission.

Convening in the state capitol, the conference will feature workshops on researching black history, curriculum materials, teaching exercises and teaching aids and setting up walking tours and educational programs for school children.

Teams of teachers from twelve southeastern states are involved in the project. Shelby County schools are among those to be used as demonstration centers.

Governor Fob James will be the keynote speaker at the opening of the 13th annual preservation conference. All Alabama history teachers are encouraged to attend. Registration information can be obtained from the Alabama Historical Commission.

Wagon train camps

by David Moore

One hundred years ago settlers crossed the United States in covered wagons seeking to build new beginnings in their lives.

Last week 63 youths stopped over in Shelby County for two nights. Like the pioneers of yesterday, they too were traveling cross-country in covered wagons. They, too, were searching to build new beginnings.

The wagon train is a part of a program called Vision Quest which is designed to teach the youths responsibility and social skills. The boys and girls, ranging in age from 13-19, average having served six terms in institutions such as foster homes to jails, according to assistant wagon master Butch Porter of Tuscon, Arizona.

"These are the throw-away kids - the kids society doesn't want," explained Porter as he made repairs to a wooden wagon wheel last Friday evening at camp in Oak Mountain State Park.

"We're going cross-country to show people that there's a different way of working with these kids than throwing them behind bars," Porter said.

He explained that Vision Quest is a licensed and accredited private company operating in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Pennsylvania. It takes juvenile referrals from courts, police and other agencies. Some of the juveniles are faced with either making a year long commitment to Vision Quest or going to jail.

This particular wagon train, the seventh since 1976, left Arizona in March on a 3,000 mile trek which will end in Pennsylvania in late September or early October.

Under the supervision of 40 coed staff members, the "questers" learn responsibility through the daily care of the 78 mules and horses which pull and accompany the train of 11 wagons.

Chores such as cooking meals in the motorized "chuck wagon" van, which is one of the modern support vehicles in the train, are handled on rotating shifts. Other chores include setting up the 18 and 21 foot teepees which sleep up to 15 questers.

"They learn to work together and live together and throw away the past," Porter said. "They get away from the streets and into the outdoors."

Attesting to the rehabilitation success of a cross-country wagon train trip is the fact that 70 percent of the juveniles in Vision Quest do not return to retention centers, Porter pointed out.

"They're parented here. Most of them have never had that before," he said.

Evenhus explained that a day on the wagon train doesn't leave a lot of time for a quester to get into trouble. They wake up between 4 and 5 a.m., break camp and travel until around noon. Camp is pitched during the heat of the day, and bedtime comes between 7 and 9 p.m.

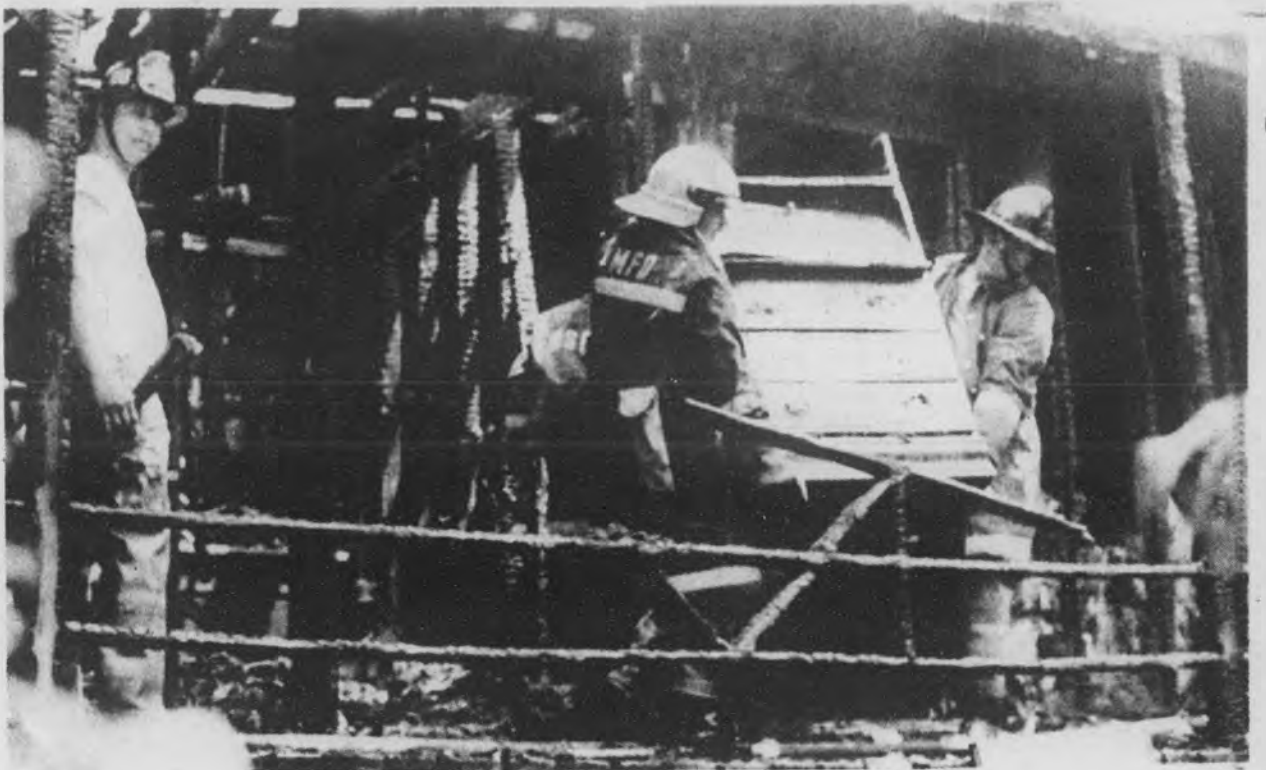

Thus far on the trip, one mule has been killed by lightning and another lost. The wagon master reported, however, that the train had experienced no problems with Indian attacks, nor were any expected.

Park event draws crowd

Shelby County Community Theatre's 'Monday Night Live' was warmly received by as many spectators as had ever been present in Montevallo's Orr Park, according to city recreation director Ott Knight.

An estimated 250 braved the near-record heat to attend the evening of songs and entertainment.

Bennie and Pam Middaugh, Ed Robertson, and Chuck King were among the local musicians

Sifting the rubble

Looking for the last few "hot spots," Montevallo Volunteer firemen remove a chest of drawers from the interior of the fire-gutted Hidden Valley apartments last Friday.

Blaze destroys apartment unit

A late morning fire destroyed one five-unit apartment building in Montevallo and damaged another last Friday.

The alarm was turned in about 10:30 a.m. on July 11, with flames shooting around 20 feet above the roof of the fully-involved Hidden Valley apartment building when the Montevallo Volunteer Fire Department arrived, minutes later.

Firemen extinguished the building, along with a neighboring structure that was just beginning to burn, in about an hour, and took another hour or so to clean up. A third structure was threatened by the flames, but did not ignite.

The extremely hot weather, combined with the flames and noxious smoke, forced the firemen to work in shifts, taking turns cooling off.

Of the six apartments involved in the blaze, three were occupied, including the one in the partially-damaged structure.

According to the state fire marshal, the fire probably started because some household objects were left on top of a stove when the power was turned off in one of the occupied apartments.

Apparently the stove was accidentally turned on, and when the power company hooked the meter back up around ten that morning, the blaze began.

The apartments are owned by Montevallo realtor William Surface.

Youngsters welcome chance to examine zoo creatures

Even though snakes are not able to hear, a docent from the Birmingham Zoological Society automatically apologized to one named Samantha after accidentally hitting the snake's nose.

Joan Miree was the docent, (amateur educator), who visited the Columbiana Library Friday accompanied by three animals from the zoo.

The opportunity to see and touch the animals was part of the library's Story Hour program. And youngsters will have a chance to do the same thing this Friday when some new animals will visit.

In addition to the snake, Miree also showed children a ferret and an armadillo when she visited the library last week.

Talking with the youngsters about the animals, Miree advised them to know what kind of snake they were dealing with before "getting too cordial."

She let them pet the soft fur of the ferret named Slinky and pointed out the musky odor of the animal.

The children, most of whom were eager to touch the animals, were also allowed to feel the hard armored back of the armadillo and the soft underbelly.

Animals that are brought for this week's visit will all be white, Miree said.

Mixed reaction

Two year old Jaclyn Jones looks as though she wouldn't mind having a pet armadillo like the one being shown by docent Joan Miree. But her five year old sister Jennifer doesn't seem too fond of the little critter who came to Story Hour at the Columbiana Library.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

The heat didn't slow down these youngsters who went all out to win their events in the YMCA Olympics. The young athletes above are off and running in the 50 yard dash. Other events in the competition were a softball throw and obstacle course. At the conclusion of these activities, the olympians were treated to a watermelon cutting in a shaded area of Helena's Joe Tucker Park.

Enthusiastic crowd cheers on olympics

Some contestants threw the ball a country mile. Others heaved it only a few feet.

And there were some whose agility and quickness made the obstacle course a snap, while others stumbled through.

But all of the youngsters who took part in the YMCA Olympics on July 3 were cheered on enthusiastically.

Before the games got underway, Y Program Director Mary Bynum encouraged the youngsters to, "Do your best - play hard and play fair."

Earlier in the day camp session, the program's participants observed the nation's Independence Day by making Uncle Sam hats, singing patriotic songs and having a cookout.

Winners of the Olympic events were: Softball throw, 4-6 year olds, Dusty Kirchner, 1; Scott Housey, 2; 7-8 year olds, Lenny Klein 1, Richard Davenport, 2; 9 and over, Sean Roberts, 1, Aaron Joy, 2.

Pelham Baptist

The Stalneck Family will lead revival services July 20-26 at the First Baptist Church of Pelham. Services will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday, at 7:15 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The Stalneckers have been serving Southern Baptist Churches for 28 years and have led revivals in 810 churches.

On Tuesday at 10 a.m., a women's seminar will be held followed by a covered dish luncheon for the participants. A nursery will be provided at each service.

Altadena Valley

Altadena Valley Presbyterian Church on 4660 Caldwell Mill Road, is planning to open a Day Care Center on September 2. The center will operate Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. until 6 p.m. The center will offer a full child care program for children ages 2½ to 6 years old which will include Kindergarten classes from 9 a.m. until 12 noon followed by a hot lunch.

For further information contact Shirley Turpin, director. School, 967-7611 or home, 967-2723.

Mt. Era

The second Sunday singing at Mt. Era United Methodist Church on Hwy 26, will begin at 1:30. The Regals Quartet from Birmingham will sing.

Bryan Memorial

A family vacation Bible School will be conducted at Bryan Memorial Presbyterian Church, 2600 Valledale Road, on July 21-25, Monday through Friday, from 7:30 to 9 each evening.

There will be classes and activities for all ages, kindergarten through adults, and the nursery will be open. Families are encouraged to attend together.

The overall theme of the Bible School is "Jesus Lord and Savior". Adults will be studying "How We Got Our Bible". The public is cordially invited to attend.

Riverchase Lutheran

Christ the King Lutheran Church in Riverchase has started holding early morning worship services at 8:30 a.m. every Sunday.

These services are in addition to the regular worship held at 10:30 a.m. every Sunday. Sunday School will continue to be at 9:15. The church was formed 3½ years ago, and moved into its new home in Riverchase one year ago.

Everyone is invited to attend these early services or other services as well. The church is located on the Southwest corner of Riverchase Parkway and Highway 31 South.

Just around corner?

New Wildcat coach looking for success

Shelby County High School's new head coach Larry Molton has been in Columbiana only a few short weeks. But already he's starting to look around corners.

Corners? "I always believed success is just around the corner. You just have to find which corner it's around," Molton said last week during an interview with the Reporter.

"We want to achieve a successful program here (football and otherwise), and that's what we're striving for."

"Everybody wants to be a winner. The question is, who wants to prepare for it? We will find out who wants to be a winner here."

At 32 years of age, Molton's face reflects a bright optimism. The medium length sideburns which crawl down from his blonde hair seem to want to reach around his face and grab the ends of his quick, catchy smile.

But when he says "prepare," a flash of seriousness glows behind his eyes. It is not the sort of seriousness that is threatening, but the sort of seriousness that is necessary to the accomplishment of anything worthwhile.

Molton's seriousness is a little like the welcomed humming of the air conditioner in his office window which was seriously fighting off the near 100 degree temperature outside.

A movie projector and a scattering of game reels strongly hint at what Molton has been up to, the steps he has taken in the direction of winning.

He explains, however, that he did not step into this position with a fixed, concrete plan of attack with which his Wildcats will charge onto the field come August 29. Instead, the offense and defense will be dictated by the talents of the young men who go out for football. The game plan will be molded to fit the team, not the other way around.

"We'll have to do what our kids will let us," says he. "If we go the other way, we won't win many ball games."

One plan for certain is that when the Wildcats start practice on August 4, they will be working on sound football fundamentals. "You gotta' walk before you can run," attests the Wildcats' coach. "You gotta' know your fundamentals."

"Winning is not an instant thing - it's a preparing thing. Alabama doesn't go out and win just because they're Alabama. They prepare!"

Besides "prepare," Molton's conversation contains the repeated use of words such as "strive," "achieve," "goals," and "work." The words come to him as naturally as football season comes to the fall.

"Football is a game which teaches a person many things," he says slowly, deliberately. "One is to set a goal and strive for it without giving up when you get set back."

"If a team is prepared and believes they can whip the other team, they can walk out on the field and achieve victory."

Molton is well aware of the circumstances involving his predecessor, Mark Bradley. Bradley, whose teams posted a 10-20 record during his three seasons as head coach at SCHS, did not have his contract renewed this year. (Subsequently, Bradley took an assistant coaching position at Vanderbilt.)

Befitting his apparent optimistic approach to matters, Molton doesn't particularly care to dwell on such topics of the past.

"What has happened is in the past and we don't like to hold on to the past. Heck-fire, to me it doesn't do a lot of good to pick at it. We like to look to the future and work hard toward it."

"Every coach is different. We plan on working hard and showing the kids enthusiasm in everything we do."

"Above all, we want the kids to enjoy the game," says he, like he's ready for summer to end and practice to begin.

Some of next year's Wildcats have already shown their new coach a vote of confidence by dropping by the school to lift weights. Molton says he knows of at least 28 players who are ready to work at turning around the Wildcats' record book.

Still, until practice starts and coaches and players get to know each other, no one will have any ideas as to how the Wildcats will fare this year. But you can bet they're at least going to have winning on their minds.

So far, Molton has hired two assistant coaches.

The offensive line coach is Johnny Hammett, an all-conference center from Jax State with a masters in P.E. Molton describes Hammett as a "truly dedicated young man who works tremendously hard."

Coaching the Wildcat secondary will be Rhett Vick, an alumnus of SCHS, who coached last year at Coosa Valley. Molton says, "We're really fortunate to have him with us."

Wildcat baseball coach Bill Reid will be coaching the receivers on the football team. Reid has been at SCHS some nine years.

Molton, a graduate of Andalusia High School, was a running back and a captain of the football team his senior year at the University of Southern Mississippi.

He has been assistant coach at Florida's Fort Walton High School and head coach at Clarke County High. In three seasons at those two schools, Molton posted a 19-10-1 record and tied for the area championship last year at CCHS.

He looks at the calendar on the wall beside his desk and starts counting the days.

"Gosh! Fifty-one days left til we play Pelham. And only 15 working days in pads. That isn't that long, is it?"

Then the new coach smiles and adds, "But that's part of the ballgame."

Making a new start

Larry Molton (front center), new head coach at Shelby County High School, already has a healthy handful of Wildcats who are showing their dedication by lifting weights this summer. Assisting Molton with the new start for SCHS football will be Wildcat alumnus Rhett Vick (left) and Johnny Hammett (right). Molton told the Reporter he's still looking for a new head basketball coach to replace Don Pouncey.

Can't catch fish? We know this place....

First the mercury slips up past 90. Then 95. Then it starts pushing 98 and 100. It's too hot to want to do anything - except maybe go swimming.

And fish are the same way.

The heat of July goes a long way towards killing a fish's appetite for purple worms, jigs, grubs, minnow, bologna or anything else one might use to camouflage a hook.

And when fish go swimming (which they do quite frequently, just ask anybody), they go for the cool, dark green of the deeper waters.

All in all, there are better months for fishing than July. But this is not to say that you can't go down to Lay Lake and catch fish.

"We're not seeing a whole lot of fish, but we're seeing them consistently" said Bill Henke last week.

Henke, who owns Lacoosa Marina, described fishing on Lay as "spotty," but noted that if you're energetic enough to go out at night or early in the morning, you stand a chance, especially if you're fishing for crappie or catfish.

The crappie are hitting white jigs, minnows and crickets when the sun isn't around, and the catfish are responding to cut bait and trotlines.

Try working the shallow early, suggested Henke. If you don't have any luck, move to the pockets and deep points.

Henke said the fishing situation probably won't improve much til the weather cools.

Speaking of the weather cooling, Alan Large of Alabaster noted recently that he has a lot of luck hitting the lake when a cold front is bearing down on Shelby County with rain clouds. Just before it rains, the fish start hitting, he said.

No matter what kind of luck Joe Backlash might have on Lay Lake, there will always be some old pros around who catch fish there no matter what.

One such hard core fisherman, L.Q. Long, who lives at Glascok, said he went out several times last week and brought in respectable stringers of 2-6 pound bass.

Long, who has a passion for catching stripes, said he didn't see one all day Thursday in the Peckerwood area. But he said he knows some other fellows who have been catching small stripes (¾-pound) in the stickups on the river side out from Lacoosa.

If you go out on the lake all day and don't catch anything, but refuse (for one reason or another) to go home with an empty ice chest, there's this little fish market we know about...

Buxahatchee stages golf benefit

An 18 hole benefit golf tournament will be held Saturday, August 23 at the Buxahatchee Country Club in Calera.

Billed as the Shelby Youth Services Benefit Golf Tournament, the event will be limited to 52 players and will begin at 10 a.m. Players will be flighted by handicap.

A variety of prizes will be awarded, including prizes for winners in the first three flights and prizes for golfers getting closest to the pin on par three holes. Each of the 52 players will receive gifts of gold balls, tees, hats, pencils, etc.

Each of the 18 holes will be sponsored by a Shelby County business.

Persons or business firms wishing to sponsor a tee or participate may receive additional information by contacting Robert Turberville at 663-6301.

Participants will pay a $25 contribution to enter. This contribution will include lunch, a motorized golf cart for use during the tournament, refreshments after the tournament and other gifts.

Proceeds from the tournament will be used to match state funds for the Shelby County Youth Services and the Attention Home.

In Alabaster

Indians grab title

Playing with only 10 players didn't hurt the Indians too much, as the boys went on to win the Alabaster Farm League title with a 14-2 record.

At the half point in the season, they were in first place with a 7-1 record. Apparently all they did in the second half was to do again what they did the first half.

A good bunch of boys and a lot of luck will take you a long way, noted Indians' coach Sonny Perkins, who won an award as coach of the year. He was assisted by Jim Nipper.

The Indians' two losses came from the bats and gloves of the Cubs and Mets. But those two losses were both avenged by nine run wins later in the season.

The leading batters for the Indians were Chris Bunn, Jimbo Nipper and Jeremy Perkins, who also pitched a perfect no runs, no hits, no errors and no walks, 20-0 win over the Giants.

The other Indians who helped lead the team down the warpath to victory are Clint Woodruff, Chris Littlefield, Jeffery Sides, Bobby Johnson, Kenneth Poe, and Tyson and Byron Carroll.

Football registration set

Registration for Cahaba Valley Youth Football will be held this Saturday at Pelham City Hall from 9-1.

It will also be held Saturday, July 26, same time and place, and Saturday, August 2, same place, from 9-3.

The program is open to boys ages 9-14 and girls 9-14 interested in cheerleading. A birth certificate is required for registration. For more information, call 663-9015.

Alabaster man promoted

George Dellwyn (Dell) Pickett recently was appointed chief technologist in the Department of Diagnostic Radiology of the University of Alabama Hospitals. He previously was assistant chief technologist in the Department.

Pickett, graduated from Thompson High School, Alabaster, and attended Livingston University. He joined University Hospitals in 1972.

In 1977 Pickett received a B.S. degree in radiology with a minor in chemistry from UAB. He currently is working towards a double master's degree in public health administration and business administration.

He and his wife Rhonda, a pharmacist, reside in Alabaster.

UM College of Business building to be named for Dr. Morgan

Next year, Sara Posey Morgan may be the only professor in the state teaching in a building named in his or her honor.

After Mrs. Morgan retired from full-time teaching at the University of Montevallo in May, UM's Board of Trustees not only awarded her emeritus status, but they also passed a resolution naming the three-year-old College of Business building for her.

Her former students, now active UM alumni, insisted on it, according to UM President James F. Vickrey, Jr.

"Having a building named for you is an honor few ever experience," the Montevallo president said. "But then, Sara Ruth Morgan has been a professor few can forget, and I am delighted by this decision of our Board to make an exception to its general practice of not naming campus facilities for living persons."

When members of the UM College of Business Support group learned Mrs. Morgan was retiring, they sent a resolution to the UM Board through President Vickrey asking the trustees to consider naming the building in honor of their former business teacher.

Montevallo was Alabama College, the state college for women, in 1944, when Mrs. Morgan first began teaching there.

Mrs. Morgan earned her B.S. degree at Asheville College in 1942, M.S. at the University of Tennessee in 1944, and J.D. degree at Cumberland School of Law, Samford University, Birmingham, in 1969.

She is a member of several honorary and professional organizations including the Alabama and American Bar Associations, and is a former president of the Southern Regional Business Law Association.

During her last three years at Montevallo, she was the institution's first equal opportunity officer, and, as such, she became its first special assistant to the president for faculty-staff relations.

"It is fitting that we so honor a beloved and valued member of the University Faculty -- a professor who continues to contribute to this institution through her good counsel, steady support and part-time teaching," the UM President said.

A dedication ceremony will be scheduled later this year.

Coping in the 80's

Insulated log house

The Allen Wilson home, tucked against the side of Double Oak Mountain at Pelham, was built to the family's specifications for convenience and enjoyment as well as economy. A swing on the long side porch helps stir up a cooling breeze on a hot summer afternoon while the porch roof makes a good place for sunbathing.

Salesman starts anew at 71

Barney Isbell celebrated his 71st birthday last week with friends who dropped in at the new Columbiana store where he is again selling furniture.

For many years, he operated the Cardwell Furniture store which was located in the same building where he now works. He also worked as a furniture salesman in Alabaster and Pelham. As someone recently commented, "At one time or another, he has probably sold a piece of furniture to almost everyone in the county."

The building was constructed around 40 years ago. It first housed the Dinner Bell Cafe and was also used as a bus stop for a bus running to Calera, Shelby and Birmingham. It was also later the home of Fulton's Grocery Store, a T.V. shop and the Dollar Store.

On his birthday, Isbell was presented with gifts and a birthday cake which he shared with visitors to the store that day.

Free films being shown

The Shelby County Library has a variety of activities scheduled for vacationing children.

The free movies offered on Fridays in Alabaster and Mondays in Columbiana have been very popular with library patrons.

During July the Alabaster showings will be held in Thompson High School band room at 1 p.m.

In Columbiana, films will be shown at 2 and 6 p.m. in the library meeting room.

Boys and girls who have completed grades 1-7 may still sign up for the summer reading program at any of the eight community libraries or on the Shelby County Bookmobile. This year's theme is "Summer of Champions," and new sports books are available in the libraries.

Preschoolers may hear stories, see puppet shows, movies and play games at story hours now going on in all the libraries.

Interested persons may contact their local libraries or the county headquarters at 669-7851 for more information.

Vicki H. Williams and Janice Fuller are among the 106 undergraduate students at the University of Alabama in Birmingham School of Nursing to be named to the Dean's List.

The names of the two Shelby Countians appeared on the spring quarter list of students making a grade point average of 2.5 or better.

Waterfall supplies household water

by Shelba Nivens

It appears to be a scene from the great Smokey Mountains. A waterfall tumbles down the mountainside. Foaming water gurgles over rocks and around fern-laden bends in the stream. A swing creaks slowly on the long side porch of the rustic two-story log house tucked against the mountainside...

Actually, it's just over a couple of hills from busy U.S. 31, within the city limits of Pelham.

The Allen Wilson family moved here a little more than a year ago, from a brick house tucked in amidst mobile homes in a park along side 31 highway in Pelham.

The house is newly-constructed, built to Wilson's specifications for convenience and economy. This is part of the way they are attempting to cope with rising costs in the 80's.

The waterfall supplies water for the household. About 150 feet up the side of the cliff, Wilson dammed up the stream under a rock. He put in pipes for the water to run through to the water storage tank. From the tank it runs by gravity through pipes into the house. "We have 30 or 35 pound pressure, at least," said Wilson.

"And it doesn't take much soap to take a bath," he laughed, "because the water is so soft."

The tongue and groove method was used to build the log house with strips of insulation between the logs.

The roof is also insulated with foil-backed styrofoam insulation, tar paper and plywood over the decking. Decking and beams are exposed on the inside, adding to the rustic look.

A large stone fireplace in the livingroom and a wood-burning heater in the basement are used to heat the house. Heat is blown in to upper rooms through ducts connected to the heater.

Yards around the house are free of grass and clean-swept.

"Somebody asked me the other day if we're not going to plant grass, and I told them 'no', we don't want to have to cut it," laughed Mrs. Wilson. She explained that they are planning to put bark or chips on the yard.

They figure this will save on lawn mower and gasoline expenses as well as personal energy. The family will be needing the extra personal energy to work in their vegetable garden.

Wilson pointed out that they put the garden near the stream below the waterfall where it will be convenient for watering plants. "Free-stone water is a lot better for plants than city water with chlorine," he added.

DID YOU KNOW?

Alabama Power can cut your power bill into 12 equal monthly payments.

We call it our Levelized Monthly Billing Plan. What it does is equalize your monthly electric bill by evening out the highs and lows. For most people, this means their bill will change no more than a few dollars each month. Summer, fall, winter and spring. Your bill stays constant. And a lot more manageable. And you don't pay extra for this special service. Call Alabama Power for more information.

School board chooses new principal at MHS

Joe Perkins will officially take over the duties of Montevallo High School principal August 3. The 42 year old assistant principal at Berry High School was notified of his appointment Tuesday morning.

Asked by the Reporter for his reaction to getting the position, Perkins replied, "I'm tickled to be a part of the Shelby County School system - I know that it's a real good one."

Noting that he and his family have lived in Shelby County for the past five years, Perkins said that he is familiar with the school system since his daughter Kim attends Thompson Middle School. The Perkinses live in Monte Tierra.

His goal for the school, Perkins said, is for MHS to be one of the leaders in the county so far as the education of the students is concerned.

Pointing out the advantage of being so close to the University of Montevallo, Perkins said he planned for the school to continue taking advantage of that institution's programs.

He was selected from a field of 13 applicants who applied for the position after the resignation of Cratie Crobett last month.

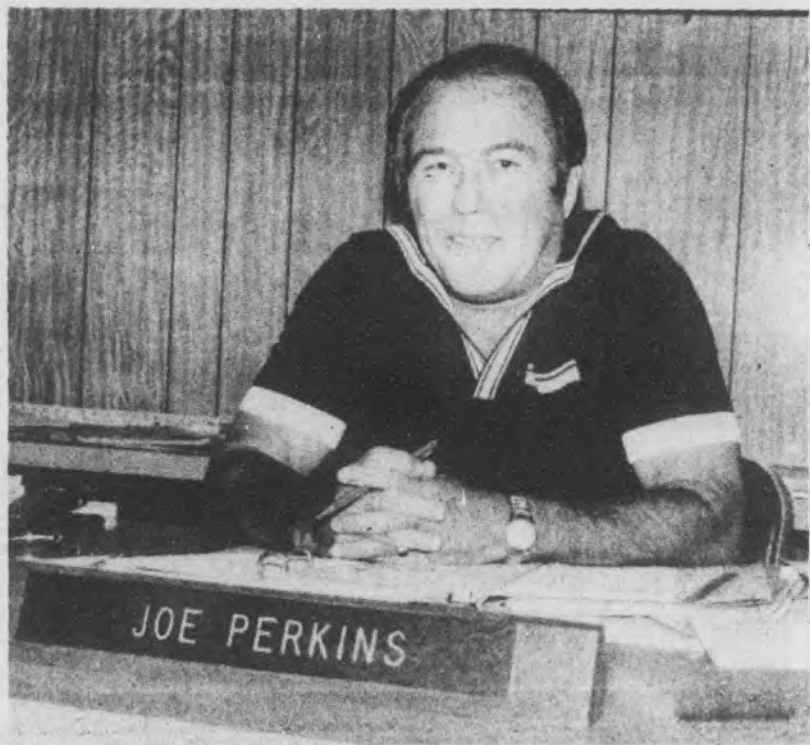

Before being appointed assistant principal at Berry in January 1979, Perkins had previously served three interim terms in that position during his 14 years at the school.

He also coached football and wrestling and taught social studies and physical education.

A native of Fayette, Perkins attended Auburn after graduation from Fayette High School. He earned his BS there and then took his masters at the University of Alabama.

His AA certificate is from UAB where Perkins has also taken other advanced studies.

Before joining the Berry staff, the new MHS principal taught at Baker Junior High School and Hamilton High School.

Principal named

Joe Perkins is winding up his duties as an assistant principal at Berry High School this month. The 42 year old Fayette man was named principal of Montevallo High School Monday.

Deputies harvest illegal 'cash' crop

Some crops have been dying for lack of rain.

But a wooded area in Vandiver proved to be an ideal spot for raising a crop that could have brought in nearly a half million dollars for the growers.

The area where Shelby County Sheriff's Department Investigator Sgt. Tom Barnes found approximately 730 marijuana plants was along the banks of a spring fed stream.

Acting on a tip, Barnes said he first located several plants growing on the banks of a beaver pond.

And then, following his own instincts, the investigator looked further and discovered the bulk of the crop.

Walking down the dirt road he spotted as he made his way out of the woods, Barnes came upon two long rows of plants growing along the edge of the stream.

The investigator also reported finding three beds where the growers were starting the plants.

About 100 of the plants were fairly well along, Barnes said.

If the entire crop had been harvested and sold, it's estimated the growers would have made somewhere between a quarter and a half million dollars.

No arrests have been made yet, Barnes said, but he indicated that some names might be presented to the grand jury.

Expensive "grass"

Reed Smith, Chief Investigator for the Shelby County Sheriff's Department, examines marijuana plants found at two county sites last week. Over 700 of the smaller plants were found in the Vandiver area and would have been worth around a half million dollars after being harvested.

Batters up!

A Pelham All-Star takes a swing at a Helena pitch, while an on-deck batter gets ready for his big chance. Pelham won that game Wednesday evening, but most of the glory went to Alabaster who won the tournament.

Council says no to Rubin

The vacancy on the Alabaster Personnel Board was filled at Monday night's meeting over the objection of incoming mayor H. A. "Doc" Rubin.

The three member board has been hampered in making appointments to city departments since the resignation of Virginia Johnson several weeks ago.

But Rubin asked that the appointment be postponed until the new administration takes office in October.

He pointed out that whoever was named might not be the best choice for the new council.

However, the panel now in office agreed that city business had to be carried out. And it was noted that since the term expires in November, the new administration could make their own choice within a month's time.

When a vote was called for, Freddie Tezak won the appointment over Dorothy Prestridge. Councilwoman Mayo Taylor withdrew the name of Ora Dee Marcus for the position after Rubin's objection.

Before the present administration leaves office, they apparently will also fill four more vacancies.

It was reported that the terms of Gladys Harper and Calvin McCune on the Board of Adjustments expire this month.

And the council was also told that Gene Glasgow's resignation from the Water and Gas Board left a vacancy there along with

Helena committee sifts water problems

by Marcia M. Sears

About 20 people from the Dearing Downs section of Helena crowded into city hall Monday night. They were seeking answers to the water problems they faced last week.

"The city needs a system to warn people that water is running low, before it is completely out," was the theme running through most of the protests at the city council meeting.

The mayor said Dearing Downs was the section affected most when the water shortage hit before the new well was in full service.

A committee of residents and councilmen was named by the mayor to study the overall water problems of the city. On the committee are John Leader, John Connors and Steve Campbell from Dearing Downs and Billy Dean Harris and Herman Jenkins from the council.

Future needs were mentioned, when it was learned that it took a year and a half to get the new well in operation. Five or six dry holes were drilled at an average cost of $8,000 each before water was finally found, according to Councilman Harris.

"How clean is Buck Creek?" one woman wanted to know. Mayor Penhale said it would take a million dollars to put in a filter

Coping in the 80's

by Shelba Nivens

Changes in the American lifestyle are causing a demand in the housing market, according to a real estate expert.

"Households are being formed three times faster than population growth," said Charles E. Binion, Jr., president of the Birmingham Area Board of Realtors. He added that this is partially due to an increasing divorce rate and increasing home ownership by singles.

He also named high interest rates as one cause of the demand.

The baby boom, which will be reaching the family formation age during this decade, an increased life expectancy of Americans due to improved medical care, will also increase the demand, he said.

"In the near future," said Binion, "this demand is expected to cause prices to escalate rapidly and to continue to escalate throughout the decade of the 1980's."

How are prices of homes and high interest rates affecting the way people shop for and buy homes? How are they attempting to cope with escalating costs?

A Chelsea wife of three years said she and her husband both work two jobs each and still cannot afford to buy a house. "We just have too many bills," she said, adding, "and with everything else going up along with houses, we don't want to get stuck with something we can't pay for and can't sell."

Many people, young and old, are buying mobile homes. This way, if they lose the trailer they won't necessarily lose land also.

However, many people are still buying homes.

Binion said that the recent dramatic decrease in interest rates has lowered payments to the point where many more families can afford to buy.

North Shelby realtor Mickey Green said that while mortgage interest rates were in the process of going down, people were not buying much. They seemed to be waiting for them to get lower. Now that rates have stabilized some, more people are buying, he said.

"Interest rates are not expected to continue to decrease, although they may decline slightly more in the coming months," said Binion, adding that they are then expected to rebound and climb steadily to higher levels.

A spokesman for a Columbia based real estate company told the Reporter that housing sales in that area have picked up some since interest rates dropped. However low equity seems to be the number one thing buyers are looking for in a business deal, he said.

When asked what features in the house itself seem to be most popular, he said that people are looking for houses with 3 bedrooms and 2 baths - and not on busy streets.

Teresea Spires of Chelsea said that many of the people she shows houses to seem to be out "Sunday looking."

"If they see something they can get a good deal on, they will sell their house if they can get a good equity out of it, then buy something nicer," she added.

Green said that buyers in north Shelby seem to be going back to more traditional homes. And they still want the necessities, he said, although they are being more cautious and thinking more about what financing is available.

Charlie Nooney said that people he shows homes to in north Shelby are usually looking for a good buy in a good area. They, too, want low equity houses. He added that many are looking for energy-saving features such as insulation. But the solar hot water heat has not gone over too well, he said.

Gas heat and electric cooling seem to be what most people want, except in the country where the heat pump is the thing, said Nooney.

"People seem to be thinking more in terms of V.A. and F.H.A. loans which do not escalate," Nooney told the Reporter, adding "We are getting a lot of FHA 235 loans now."

He explained that this is a government subsidized loan which helps a lot of people on limited incomes or people on the way up with young families. "We are getting real good response with these," he said.

Divorces spur housing demand, future price advances predicted

Registering

Rickey Boyd Vining of Columbiana registers for the draft with Columbiana Postmaster Elbert Gibson. Gibson said 12 men signed up Monday. Men born in 1960 and 1961 can register at any time and at any post office during the two-week period ending August 5.

UM to keep knocking

The University of Montevallo stands to lose more than $1 million over the period 1978-81 if

Western Union service returns

Western Union came back to Shelby County this week, when it opened an office in Pelham.

According to a company spokesman, the office will offer full Western Union services. Persons can send and receive telegrams there and can send and receive money orders.

Located at Myers Antiques and Pottery on Highway 31, the hours will be 8-5 Mondays through Fridays and 8-4 on Saturdays.

Several county cities used to have Western Union offices, but all were closed several years ago.

Alabaster

It was pointed out that it had recently been discovered that the unexpired term Prestige had been appointed to two years ago, had run out in December.

That seat had belonged to Dan Gillis before Gillis resigned to fill a vacancy on the council.

Upset by the unexpected announcement, Prestridge later told the Reporter he thought he should have been informed about the situation by the Chairman of the Water and Gas Board rather than find out about it at a public meeting.

Another matter the council will have to make up their minds about at the next meeting is the budget.

They will have to decide whether to draw one up for their successors or leave it for them to handle.

Mayor Charlotte Burke pointed out that if the new administration takes charge of that chore, they will be operating without a budget for a period of time after taking office.

No new hospital space needed

There won't be any new hospitals built in Shelby County any time soon. According to the findings of the Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency (BRHSA), Shelby Memorial Hospital, with its new expansion, will meet the requirements for the population predicted through 1984.

But to meet the requirements of the national health guidelines, three additional primary health care centers are called for by 1984.

The guidelines call for one such care unit per 15,000 population. Currently Shelby County has two such health centers (the public health clinic in Columbiana and the emergency facilities at SMH) and a population of nearly 62,000.

This means two additional public health care centers are needed even if the county's population remains stable. But forecasts from the University of Alabama for BRHSA predict a population of 78,300 for Shelby County in 1984, thus the need for three additional health care centers.

Thursday night at Pelham City Hall, a 16 member task force met to begin laying groundwork for a five-year plan for primary care in Shelby County. The task force is charged with making recommendations as to exactly what type of health centers are needed and where they will be located.

The task force will then advise the 59-member board of BRHSA of its findings for final action.

Statistics provided at the meeting designated north-western Shelby County, including Helena, Pelham, part of Alabaster and "North Shelby," as the most densely populated and fastest growing area of the county.

Preliminary indications are that at least one of the new centers might be established there.

Task force member Dr. Stacy Childs of Alabaster noted that Brookwood Health Services, Inc., had recently opened offices there that meet most, if not all of BRHSA's admittedly outdated definition of a primary care center.

But executive director Bill King pointed out that that facility was not recognized by BRHSA, which has developmental jurisdiction over all health care that involves federal money in a six county area.

(BRHSA covers Walker, Blount, St. Clair, Jefferson, Chilton and Shelby Counties.)

Other area mentioned at the meeting as possible health center sites were Wilsonville, Westover, Montevallo and Vincent.

Further discussions on the breakdown of the needs of specific area will be carried on at the next meeting on July 31.

Both Childs and SMH administrator Roland Bradford expressed a need for a complete inventory of existing doctors, clinics and facilities. King said the inventory would be available for the next meeting.

Other members of the task force are chairman Mary Alta Kurtts, Helena; Scott Athans, Brookwood Medical Center; Nicholas Cairns, Pelham; Marion Cotney, Columbiana; Paul Dentiste, executive director of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission; Gary Glasscock, Baptist Medical Centers; Thomas Hackney, South Highlands Hospital; Wayne Houston, Alabaster; John Keith, St. Vincent's Hospital; Larry Langford, Birmingham; Alabaster Mayor-elect "Doc" Rubin; Probate Judge

Thomas Snowden; Ron Stutts, Shelby County Health Department; and Ward Tishler, Ed. M., Montevallo.

Candidates square off in Pelham race

Incumbent Joe Littlefield and challenger K.O. "Ken" Maynard are warming up their runoff race for place one on the Pelham city council.

"I've learned how it operates and how you have to operate it," says Littlefield, referring to the experience he has gained since being appointed to the council last October.

"I will continue to represent all the people of Pelham to the best of my ability," the incumbent announces. "I will give the people the right to vote on any major issue that comes before the council. When you let the people have the final sayso, you can't go wrong."

Citing a desire to see the city continue to improve, Littlefield notes that he is especially interested in the development of the library and a park.

"With the proper management we can come out ahead," he says.

Both Littlefield and Maynard point to the city's sorely lacking sewer system as a top priority.

But Maynard says, if elected, he will be "out knocking on doors in Washington and Montgomery" because he "can't believe you can work on it (the sewer system) for 16 years and not get some kind of results."

In an effort to generate more citizen involvement in the government, the challenger proposes to establish advisory committees to the police, fire, garbage and park and recreation boards.

In areas of growth control and money, he says Pelham needs better management.

Says he, "It's like church - too many people play at church instead of worshipping. And too many people play at city hall instead of doing their jobs."

Pelham officials air irritation over slow progress of cable TV

Pelham City Council members are not happy with the progress of cable television installation in the city.

At the council meeting Monday night, John Tanner said he had called the cable office and "got nothing but a busy signal two days in a row. I finally got them on the third day and they said they'd return my call. I haven't heard from them yet."

Police Chief Dave Watson said men are stringing line in Wooddale but the workers told him they do not know when the lines will be connected to homes.

The council decided to ask Terry Johnson, who holds the cable franchise, to attend the next council meeting.

Two places will be filled on the Pelham council next Tuesday during the runoff. The voter turnout in the first city election was very light, and the runoff candidates estimate there may be as few as 500 voters next Tuesday.

Mayor Burk Dunaway noted that the polling hours will be the same as last time: from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The break in the heat helped Pelham's water supply over last weekend. Dunaway said all three water tanks were filled up by Monday morning.

plant before water from the creek could be used.

He also mentioned the water in abandoned coal mines as a potential source, but said it would also require a million dollars to filter that water for use.

The city will tie in with the Pelham water system at Highway 261 soon. Penhale said, for emergency water sharing.

In other business, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler expressed great dissatisfaction at the way the city handled their dog during dog detention week a year ago.

Wheeler showed photos of his dog and said the dog was killed the same night she was picked up by the city. Wheeler maintained the dog should have been held for seven days according to the city ordinance.

Mayor Penhale explained that the city employee who picked up the Wheeler dog between 6 and 8 p.m. had left six dogs in the truck to take to the county pound the next morning. But, he said, somehow the dogs escaped that night, and it was unfortunate that the Wheeler dog was killed. He defended the city employee and denied the city was directly responsible for the dog's death.

* Mayor Penhale appointed two new members to the city's zoning board to take the place of Robert Carroll and Norse Luker whose terms have expired. He named Ed Agostinelli and Johnny Deviner to the positions.

* The council voted to turn the green van, formerly owned by the Youth Aid Bureau, over to the county sheriff's department. The transfer is subject to approval by LEPA (Law Enforcement Planning Agency), which purchased the van for the YAB's use.

In five cities

Voters pull levers

Runoff elections in five cities of Shelby County are scheduled for next Tuesday.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the cities where runoffs are necessary.

The Wilsonville mayor's contest is between Sherrell McClure and R.G. Stephenson.

In Alabaster, Mayo Taylor and Glen Naish are seeking a council seat. Another seat is being contested by L.O. Farris and Marvin Hall.

Montevallo has one race for a council position between Catherine Smitherman and John Miller.

In Pelham, Joe Littlefield will meet K.O. Maynard, and Willard

Payne is in a race with Ed Gentry.

One council seat in Vincent is being contested by Pat McDaniel Roper and D.L. Spates.

Those running for office fear that the turnout will be very light.

"If motivation depended on recognition, we'd all be knee deep in garbage."

Those were the words of a South Carolina woman who commended Columbiana's sanitation workers.

The sentiments were contained in a letter from Evelyn Fordham which was read at Thursday night's council meeting.

Explaining that she was especially appreciative of the helpfulness exhibited by city workers when she was passing through Columbiana this summer, Fordham reported that she was employed by the public works department.

She noted that one of her reasons for writing was because,

"compliments paid sanitation workers by the public are few and far between and I think they should be commended for a dirty, thankless job."

Fordham described Columbiana as a "friendly, clean town."

Robbers flee after stickup

The two men who held up the Vaileysdale Pharmacy Friday are still at large.

An undisclosed amount of cash and drugs were taken in the robbery which took place around 12:30 p.m.

Shelby County Sheriff's Department Investigator Sgt. John Pratt reported that the black pickup truck used in the robbery was found abandoned on Coshatt Rd., approximately three miles from the pharmacy.

The vehicle had been stolen in Hoover earlier in the day, Pratt said.

A pharmacist and cashier were held at gunpoint by the two suspects during the robbery. Both men are thought to be in their 20's.

Governor claims

Guard system pays off in Mobile

by Fob James

A new program begun in the past year by our Alabama National Guard proved to be a great help last week as the Guard reacted to the firemen's strike in Mobile.

After the police and firemen's strike in Birmingham last May, Adjutant General Henry Cobb and I discussed the problems that the Guard has traditionally had getting trained troops in an area that has lost police and fire protection.

Editorial comment

Get out and vote

Every qualified voter in Alabaster, Montevallo, Pelham, Vincent and Wilsonville should make the effort to go to the polls next Tuesday.

Too many people regard a runoff election, where only one or two offices are at stake, as not worth the trouble.

Although most of the contests Tuesday have not drawn excited campaigning or colorful tection.

These are specialized skills that require trained personnel if the Guard is to give a city quality temporary protection while a strike is on. In the past a full unit was usually dispatched to a strike city to take over the fire and police duties but often there were no troops in the unit with the skills required to deal with some complex fire and police problems.

Last year we instituted a system whereby all Alabama National Guard personnel were surveyed as to any specialized skill he or she possessed that could conceivably be valuable in the event of a disaster or other incident in the future.

The skills catalogued were not only the skills they were trained to use in the National Guard but also their skills in civilian life or their hobby skills. The thought behind this effort was to get on record in a computer the entire body of skills—a sort of skills inventory—so that they could be called upon in a moment's notice.

To illustrate how the system works, let's take a hypothetical situation. Say a man is a jeweler in his civilian life, but in the Guard he is a diesel mechanic. But also suppose that he is a volunteer fireman in his hometown with extensive training in fire fighting.

All of these skills would have been put in a computer in the past year and when the word came that firemen were striking in Mobile the man would have been notified immediately and sent to Mobile where his fire fighting background was needed to protect the city.

That is, in fact, precisely what happened last week as the National Guard reacted to the Mobile situation. Whereas in the past Guardsmen with no fire fighting experience would have been sent to the area, the people of Mobile, because of this new system, have qualified firemen manning fire stations in their city.

On file at National Guard Headquarters are Guardsmen with engineering skills, others with skill in handling hazardous wastes such as chemical and nuclear wastes, others with police backgrounds, maintenance skills and still others with skills in countless more specialized areas.

This is the first time the system has been put to the test and I am proud to say that it worked very well. Within a matter of hours we had not only Guardsmen in Mobile but Guardsmen with fire fighting skills. It's just another example of why the Alabama National Guard is Number One in the nation, not only in troop strength but in innovative service to all the people of Alabama.

Senator sees approval of his energy plan

U.S. Senator Donald Stewart this week gained final Senate approval on the first bill he has sponsored as well as a solid endorsement of his alcohol fuels program from the joint House-Senate energy conference.

"Naturally I'm gratified at this success for my first major initiatives," Stewart said. "It used to be seniority was the only rule in town, but now a freshman senator can make progress right away for the people he represents if he puts forth the proper effort."

Stewart's first bill, which now only requires a final vote of approval by the House, gives employee ownership plans the eligibility to apply for the special loan programs offered by the Small Business Administration.

The Alabama freshman senator emphasizes that employee ownership plans have been developed in the marketplace as a unique means for small businesses to raise money to finance new growth, while providing their employees with an ownership incentive to increase productivity.

The $1.2-billion alcohol fuels program that is now incorporated into Congress' synfuels bill, Stewart said, initiated from the Rural Energy Independence Act introduced last July by the Alabama Democrat.

Stewart predicts the agricultural-based energy product will birth a new industry to boost the nation's ailing economy while sending the world a clear message about American resolve.

"America isn't going to meekly buckle under while some power-hungry Arab sheiks try to wield their oil reserves as a weapon to strangle our economy," Stewart said.

"We're going to fight back and win our energy independence, using alcohol fuels as our first major assault in this all-important battle."

Stewart said the synfuels conference report retains the major provisions of his original alcohol fuels measure including its thrust towards farmers and small businessmen as the principal producers.

"Big Oil is not going to control the alcohol fuels industry in America," Stewart vowed. "The farmers and small businessmen are going to launch this industry, creating new jobs and bigger revenues for communities throughout the country."

Stewart, who predicts Alabama will become a major alcohol fuels producer, will have permanent oversight jurisdiction of the new fuel program in his agriculture subcommittee.

Among the provisions of the alcohol fuels measure that Stewart fought for and secured throughout the year-long legislative process are measures that set aside one-third of the funding for small-scale projects and involve the state agricultural extension services in assisting farmers in setting up production facilities.

In addition, the conference report accepted Stewart's recommendation to settle the "turf" battle between the Departments of Agriculture and Energy by giving the agriculture agency funding control over all but the largest projects and those involving urban waste.

In building congressional support for his alcohol fuels program, Stewart conducted the initial hearings on the legislation in his agriculture subcommittee where several Alabamians testified in favor of this alternative energy form.

"What we started out to prove—and did—was that alcohol fuels is not some idea out of science fiction novel," Stewart said. "It's a fuel that works now, and one that can be produced using relatively uncomplicated facilities that don't cost an arm and leg to set up."

"It's clear to me, and to most of the folks I represent, that alcohol fuel is going to be replacing a good share of our oil imports within the next few years."

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbia, member of the FDIC.

For a lot of folks who have passed by her check-out counter at Green's Food Center, this is to tell you Lois Gaydon is in Shelby Memorial Hospital. This nice and friendly lady is coming along fine.

After eight days of readings of over a hundred, and more on the way, I have found out one thing for sho: If I had had just two hairs on the top of my head I believe I would have scorched.

And is there anything in this world as ragged as a corn patch in the middle of a heat wave?

He wasn't a preacher, really, but he came by and offered to say a few words over my garden. And he did all right, too, before we laid the garden away.

Lloyd Niven put up the darnedest martin pole you ever saw. A cedar tree with 30 limbs on it and a gourd on every limb. The martins came in bunches and talked up a storm but left after a few days. The reason? Lloyd and Mrs. Niven and I decided they were making fun of his funny looking pole all the time.

My watermelon patch is eight hills, running over a spot about 20 by 40 feet. And I liked it alright and I thought I had something special. Until I took a look at Erving Stone's patch today. It's not too wide, maybe 40 feet, but it reaches from in front of his house halfway to yellowleaf creek.

Bill Thompson is back at work for a little while every day, after open heart surgery several weeks ago. And in my book the way this fellow handles his job is something special.

Leonard Wyatt from Harpersville and Stinson Hill from Wilsonville were in town waiting to see Butch Ellis. Jack Atchison and Skillet Bird were there, too, for the same reason. We played baseball in a dozen little towns and fished in the Coosa all the way from Logan Martin to Lay Dam and honkey-tonked all the way up 280 while we waited in the air-conditioned waiting room with the temperature 103 outside.

Bub Gordon had the right idea about picking blackberries. He took his bush-hog and cut a trail through his patch wide enough to walk along without dodging snakes. And everything was fine except for one thing. Some folks liked his trails so well they kept his blackberries picked-as clean as a picked rooster.

And Flora Green, who gave us a terrific scare a few weeks ago, is home from the hospital and doing fine.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

After seeing that movie last week about the car doing whatever its driver wanted by using voice commands, I'm beginning to wonder if a little sweet talk wouldn't work with my car.

It sounds far fetched, I know. But aren't flowers supposed to do better when you converse with them and coddle them along? That's what I've heard anyway.

But really, my car tries to foil me at every turn. And there's one place in particular that I take it where it always acts up.

It did it again one night last week.

Leaving the building where this particular meeting is always held, I noticed a dim gleam as I approached my little blue devil.

And fearing the worst, I ran the last few feet to find that what I had feared was true. My parking lights were on.

Since I had dragged these poor men, who are members of a board I regularly cover, out to my car after their last meeting, I breathed a silent prayer I wouldn't have to do it again.

My last fiasco that occurred when my car was parked in this very same spot, was the keys being locked inside.

So with a sinking feeling that the car wasn't going to start, I gingerly stepped on the accelerator - and, you guessed it - nothing happened!

After shrieking in frustration and belting the steering wheel a few times, I forced myself to go back inside and ask for help.

Although there were many willing hands, no one had jumper cables. Can you believe it - all those men and no cables.

The secretary for the group saved the day though. "Oh sure," she said when she heard my plight. "I always carry my cables with me."

So she and I and one of the men went out to "get me going." Fortunately, this well organized gal had a flashlight too, so we were in business.

The only flaw was that the car still wouldn't start when I tried to crank it. I had visions of spending the night there or something.

About that time, the rest of the board came out to see how we were doing. And another car battery was volunteered to hook on to.

"Get in your car and try it again," someone shouted after the hook-up was completed.

But I couldn't do it. My car was locked. The last time I had gotten out after trying to start the engine, I guess, as an automatic reflex, I must have locked the door.

And no, I did not lock the keys inside. I had them tightly clutched in my hand.

But for some reason they wouldn't open the door. I couldn't believe what was happening.

Thinking I might be putting the key in upside down, I turned it around the other way. But it wouldn't go in at all that way.

"It must be the wrong key," I thought. But no, the shape was right.

And then the secretary spoke up. "Bert", she said, "I believe those are my keys you're using."

And do you know, she was right?

I don't remember how I came to be holding her keys, but I was. Finally locating mine in a pocket, I got in and pressed down on the accelerator pedal. And much to my relief, the engine came to life.

"Nice car, nice car," I crooned, patting the steering wheel.

It kept on going and hasn't stopped since. But I'm a little worried about taking it back to that place again.

Maybe if I butter it up before we go, it will behave itself. But after what's happened in the past, I wouldn't bet on it.

Under The Courthouse Dome

The Shelby County Law Enforcement Personnel Board said yes Wednesday night to two requests for continuous service.

But two other employees who began their service with the Sheriff's Department as CETA employees were turned down.

And the decision on a third request from a former CETA employee was withheld until her situation can be straightened out.

The board went along with French Ell Lansford's reason for claiming her year away from the department should be counted as continuous time.

Testifying before the board last week, Lansford said former Sheriff C. P. Walker had granted her a leave of absence to help her husband organize the circuit clerk's office to which he'd been elected.

And the panel agreed that Deputy Wayne Lucas' time be continuous because he had been unfairly dismissed.

It was shown that the determination had been made by the circuit court which had ordered Lucas reinstated.

Both Emory Weather and Helen Baker were refused because of their CETA status. It was noted in the board's ruling that workers paid with federal funds were not treated as full-time permanent employees until they were hired by the county with that understanding.

Weathers had asked that his time of service with the county begin when the first vacancy came open after he finished his CETA training. He contended that others less qualified were hired for jobs he could have filled.

citizens' priorities concerning air, water, solid waste disposal and hazardous waste disposal.

Emphasizing that these are not "question and answer" sessions, Martha McInnis, AEQA executive vice president, said, "We encourage concerned citizens to come prepared to identify and give their views on what they consider to be the priorities concerning air, water, solid waste and hazardous waste disposal."

Meeting gives opportunity to air environment opinions

Area citizens will have the opportunity to present their environmental priorities at a public meeting in Birmingham on Friday, July 25. The meeting will be from 10 a.m. to 12 noon in the auditorium of the electrical engineering building at UAB.

This is one of five regional meetings scheduled across the state by the Alabama Environmental Quality Association (AEQA) in an effort to identify

Pelham hopefuls' campaigns peak

Pelham councilman Willard Payne would like to serve another term on the council.

He is basing his campaign in the runoff election next Tuesday on the good programs Pelham has started in the last four years, the good ones that are 'in the works' and the programs that are already planned for the future.

His opponent, Ed Gentry, says he is basing his campaign on 'principles and issues rather than personalities.'

Gentry stresses his experience working with city governments in four Southeastern states over the past 8 years.

Gentry hits on the lack of a sewerage system in Pelham and points out his background in working with water and sewerage projects.

Payne, on the other hand, mentions he has been part of many good changes in Pelham during the past four years. Serving as police commissioner, he has guided the police force from 6 men to 17 in that time. He says the police force is well organized and highly trained, with patrol, investigative and public relations divisions.

He adds the city government has efficiently met the needs of the growing population and is continuing to meet those needs.

Payne mentions five programs now underway: a new park, phase II of the sewer project, building plans for a library, street lighting and identification, and cable television.

Gentry emphasizes the word 'positive' in his campaign literature and urges a heavy voter

Columbiana plans new dental clinic

Plans for a new dental clinic in Columbiana are one step closer to reality after the council's Thursday night decision to reactivate the city's medical board.

Dr. Robert Thornburg appeared before the panel to make the request so that he can float a $200,000 bond issue.

Alvin Stinson, J. I. Harrison and Richard Ozley were appointed to serve on the board which was first established in 1955 for the purpose of establishing a medical clinic.

Thornburg, who has practiced dentistry in Columbiana for six years, related that the clinic will be located on a four acre tract on the Columbiana By-pass. It will be across the highway from Dr. Charles Thornburg's veterinary clinic.

Caddo Construction was awarded the construction bid in June, Thornburg reported.

After learning that Jim Strickland's term on the water board was expiring, the panel deadlocked when they voted on whether to reappoint him or to name Bob Barrett to his position.

After a secret ballot was taken, Barrett won the post.

Going along with Councilman Paul Smith's suggestion, the panel agreed to advance the city's beautification committee $3,300 against their next year's budget.

Smith reported that the committee, headed by Mrs. Mildred Harrison, had raised $6,000 but were short of their goal.

In other expenditures, the council approved its share of the money needed for a cash register. Each of the city departments had been asked to contribute $200.

With one councilman voting against the proposal to buy a microwave oven for city hall and another abstaining, the motion nevertheless passed.

The $346 piece of equipment will be used by city employees who eat their lunch at city hall.

There was a brief discussion on whether the present administration or the council which takes office in October will draw up the budget.

However, no definite decision was reached.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Will Christians Know Each Other in Heaven?

From time immemorial, the question of whether or not we will recognize other Christians in heaven has been asked. The Bible gives good evidence that we will know each other.

First, we shall be caught up together with the righteous dead. Paul stated, "The dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air" (I Thessalonians 4:13-18). If we did not know each other, there would not be any comfort in these words.

Second, David wished to go to his dead son. When the son died, David said, "He is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me" (II Samuel 12:23). He must expect to recognize his son, else the statement is meaningless.

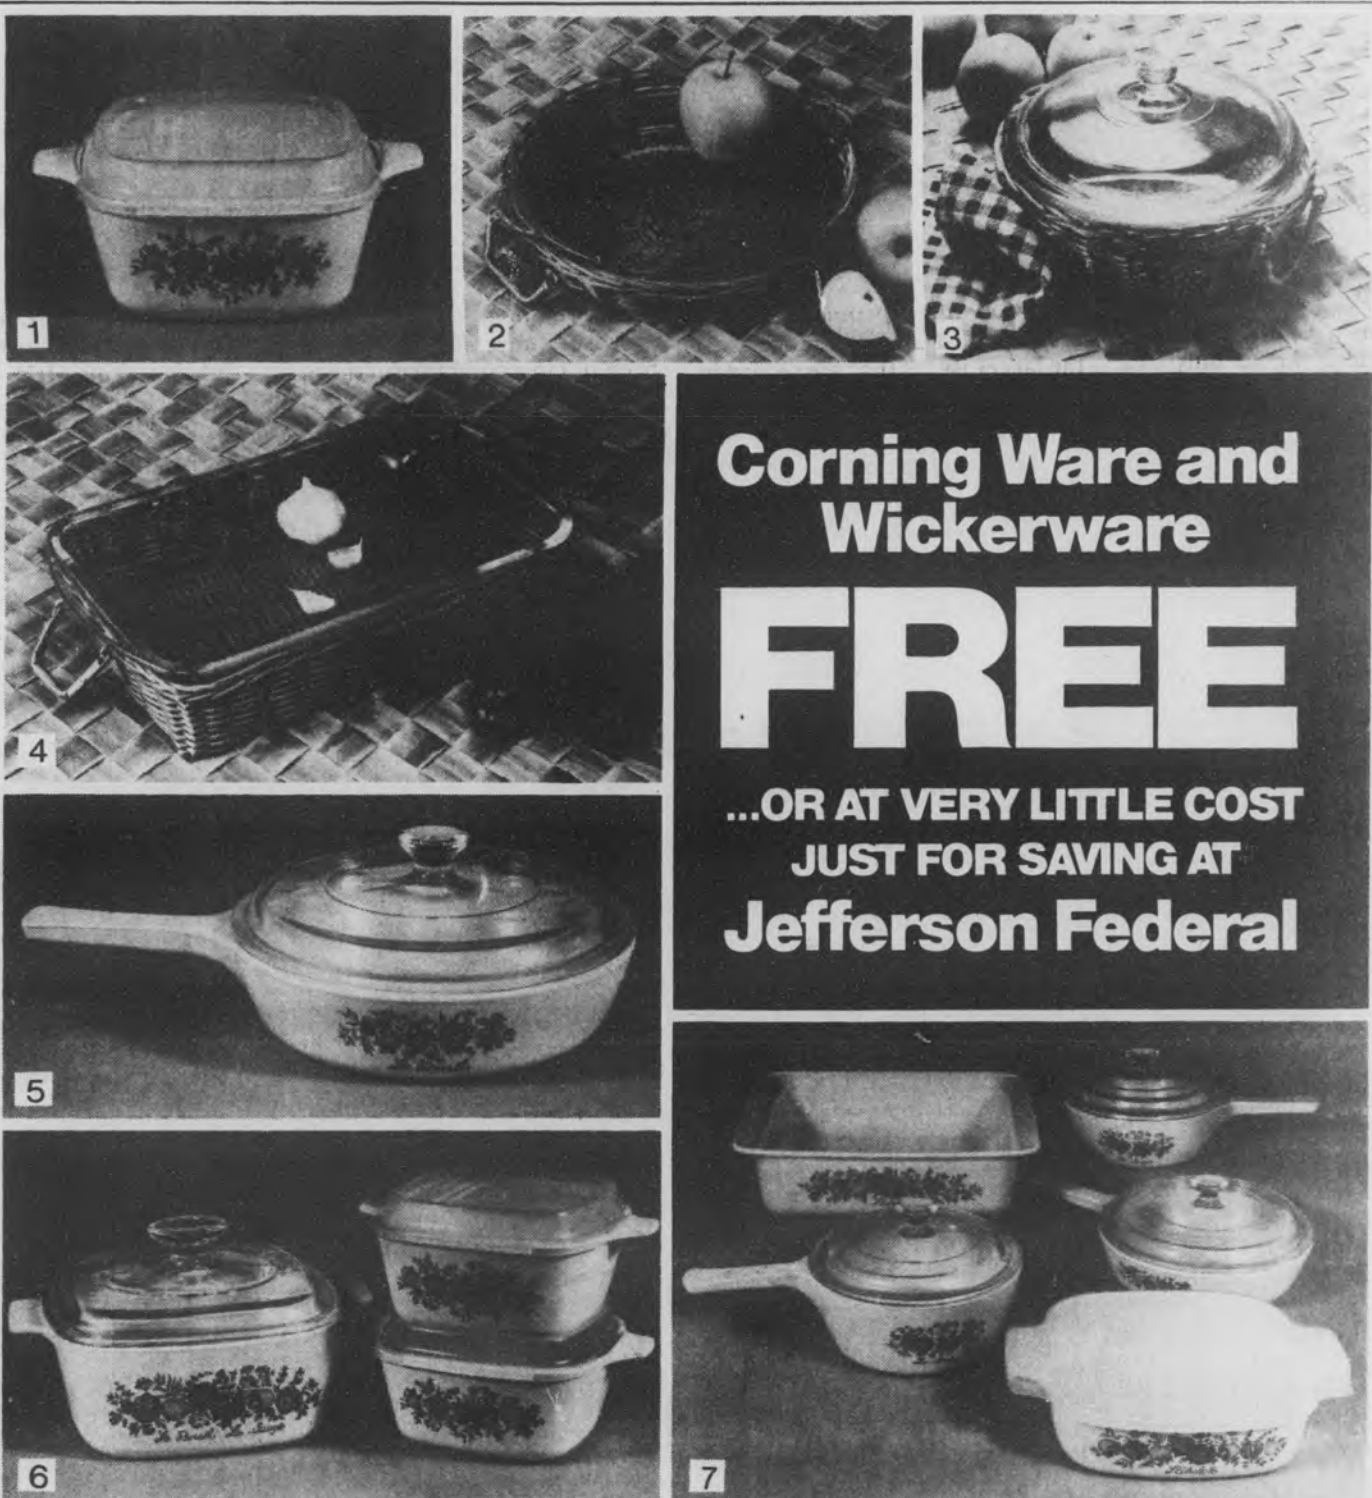

Third, Peter, James, and John recognized Moses and Elijah on the mount of transfiguration. They saw "Moses and Elijah talking with him" (Matthew 17:3).

Fourth, one should not get the idea, however, that the same earthly relationships shall exist in heaven. "In the resurrection they shall neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven" (Matthew 22:30). But, we will recognize each other in heaven. May you, dear reader, so conduct your life that you prepare to go to that wonderful place!

Alabaster robbers still at large

After the cashier handed over all the money in the cash register and safe at Alabaster's Magic Mart, the two men making the demand jumped in a car and headed south.

Police have so far not found the men who pulled off the robbery at 3 a.m. Thursday.

Reporter writer

honored by APA

A feature story on sky diving by David Moore won an honorable mention for the Shelby County Reporter in the annual Alabama Press Association's Better Newspaper contest.

The story was written after Moore himself jumped from an airplane over Vincent with a sky divers' club.

The presentation of awards was made at the APA summer convention in Destin, Florida last weekend.

Presiding at the awards program was Marcia M. Sears, Editor of the Shelby County Reporter and first vice president of APA.

Shady Grove Baptist Church will hold a singing the 4th Sunday at 2 p.m. The Carr family from Birmingham will be guest singers. Everyone is welcome.

The church is located off Highway 280 and County 41.

The U.S. Postal Service has announced an examination for substitute rural carrier of record at the Calera post office.

The examination is to be given at Birmingham. Applications must be submitted before July 28 to the Calera postmaster or place designated by him. Application card, PS Form 2479AB, is available at the Calera post office.

There are no experience or training requirements but applicants must take a written test, be physically qualified, have a valid state driver's license and a safe driving record, and pass the postal road test.

The Calera library has just received 1700 new books. Many of them are from the Birmingham public library sale and include fiction and non-fiction.

Patrons are urged to stop by and see the new selections.

Homecoming will be August 3 at Harpersville First United Methodist Church. Services begin at 10:45.

Guest speaker is the Rev. Bobby Green, associate pastor of Mountain Chapel United Methodist.

After dinner on the ground at noon, a 1:15 program will feature the Continental Quarter from Birmingham and the choir from Beulah Baptist Church in Sterrett with Gary West directing. Other local talent will also sing.

Pastor Johnny L. Banister and the congregation welcomes the public.

Supporters of District Judge Patti Smith gathered for an organizational meeting Tuesday evening at the Community Services Building in Columbiana.

Campaign chairmen for all areas of the county were appointed and they were asked to put together sub-committees to work for the judge's election.

Judge Smith was appointed to her position in January to replace Robert Armstrong when he was made a circuit judge.

Although at one point it was thought there wouldn't be a race for the district judgeship, an attorney general's opinion held that the office was open.

Rallies for Judge Smith are being planned in upcoming weeks.

Heat victims treated at Shelby Memorial

Fourteen persons suffering from heat-related problems were treated at Shelby Memorial Hospital during the current heat wave. All but one was treated in the emergency room and dismissed.

According to assistant administrator Jay Stuman, the first case came in on Sunday, July 13, and was treated in the emergency room.

The next day, there were three cases, and one of them was admitted to the hospital for longer treatment.

On Wednesday, July 16, the emergency room treated seven persons. Five of them were firemen who had been battling a house fire on the Simmsville Road.

Three others who were overcome with heat related problems were treated on July 16, 17 and 19 and released.

THERE IS MORE

MANY PEOPLE are saying, "I think that there is more." They are referring to something outside of God's word, and are rejecting God's word for what it claims to be.

THERE IS MORE, but not in miraculous manifestations; not in additional revelations. According to God's ordained way, by the growth and development of the baptized believer in the Lord's church; there will always be more.

THERE WAS MORE for the Corinthian church members, if they gave up envying, strife, and divisions; and grew according to God's teaching. (1 Cor. 3:1-3).

THERE WAS MORE for the Hebrew Christians, if they grew in their knowledge of God's word. (Heb. 5:12). They were instructed to go on unto completeness. (Heb. 6:1).

THERE IS MORE for all members of God's family (the church). We are told how to grow up to salvation. (1 Peter 2:1,2). IN THE STUDY and application of God's written word, there is more for all of us.

MMI offer eases Y's growing pains

"We couldn't have put another body in here," declared Shelby County YMCA Executive Director Molly McGregor as she announced plans for occupying a new facility.

The management of MMI has offered their recently vacated office building in Pelham to the Y on a temporary lease basis.

And according to McGregor, programs will begin in the new location Aug. 25.

A lease signing agreement will be held at the new facility on Oak Mt. Drive Thursday evening at 7:30 pm.

Pointing out the need for the additional space, the Y director reported that programs have doubled within the past year.

She mentioned a figure of $18,000 that programs had brought in at the end of June last year. Just 12 months later, that figure stood at $36,000, McGregor said.

And to further emphasize the fantastic rate of growth, the Y director reported that program income had only amounted to $10,000 at the end of June 1978.

At their Pelham location, which is completely air conditioned, the Y will have 5,000 square feet of floor space in which to conduct programs.

These include an after school camp, gymnastics, aerobic dancing, slimnastics, a dance and baton class, co-ed fitness and men's fitness classes and the gym-any-cricket program.

McGregor noted that all these programs will be continued at the Siluria facility on alternate days.

KEITH DAVISON

Birthday boy, family feted

Keith Davison of Montevallo will celebrate his second birthday Monday with a party at his home in Dry Valley.

Although she might not get a piece of the Mickey Mouse birthday cake that will be served, Keith's four month old sister Erin will be one of the guests at the party.

Other family members and friends will also be on hand to offer birthday greetings to the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Davison.

Keith's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Canada of Talladega and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davison of Sycamore.

Vincent couple joins 30,000 square dancers

Square dance enthusiasts from all over the United States and from several foreign countries gathered in Memphis recently for a three day convention. Among the 30,000 dancers who thronged Cook's Convention Hall, were Lloyd and Martha Embry of Vincent. The couple are members of the Coontown Reelers group which meets in Columbiana.

According to the Embrys, there were 971 square dance club members from Alabama participating in the national event.

Local newspapers, the Embrys said, reported that the square dance group was the largest ever to descend on the convention center, and was also the most orderly.

In addition to the workshops at various locations in the convention center, there were also continuous performances on the stage throughout the day.

Instruction was given in all levels of dancing and even people confined to wheelchairs were able to participate.

At National camp

Chelsea singer sees Bahamas on weekend mission trip

Linda Brasher of Chelsea recently spent a weekend in the Bahamas, singing with the Sumiton Church of God youth choir. She was invited to participate in the mission when a regular choir member was unable to make the trip.

Her cousin, Billie Ruth Ard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.T. Syphurs of Vincent sang with the group as a regular member of the choir.

The choir sang at the Church of God Bahamian convention, in several churches and in Parliament square in Nassau. Singing for tourists in the square was sponsored by the government.

Mrs. Brasher is a member of the Chelsea Church of God and the Chelsea Trio.

Local resident beats heat on Alaskan vacation trip

Thelma Garrett of Columbiana has returned from a two week vacation in Alaska. It was the first time she had ever flown or sailed on a cruise ship, and she reports she had a wonderful time.

At Vancouver, British Columbia, she boarded a cruise ship that went up the Canadian coast to Juneau, Alaska. Switching to a day boat, she went on to Skagway, and overland through White Horse in the Yukon to Fairbanks, Alaska. After visiting Mt. McKinley National Park, she traveled south to Anchorage and flew home from there.

"It was 40 degrees in Anchorage, but when I got to Birmingham, I like to died from the heat," she laughs.

Grandsons visit

Maylene couple

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Smith of Fox Valley in Maylene have as guests this week grandsons Charlie and Alan Sloan of Santa Ana, California. They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Sloan (nee Peggy Smith).

The boys are also enjoying a visit with Shelby County cousins Jeff and Todd Smith and their new brother, Bradley Edison.

UM features Olympics

Olympics Day at the University of Montevallo Saturday, Aug. 2, will bring back alumni for a day of sports competition, fun and fellowship, says UM Alumni Affairs Director Jeanetta Keller.

Men and women UM graduates can compete in golf, tennis, racquetball, bridge and basketball. A basketball goal shooting tournament and badminton are scheduled for women competitors only.

This year a 5,000 meter run has also been added to the athletic events.

"Olympics Day at Montevallo traditionally attracted quite a number of former athletes here," Mrs. Keller said, "but many other alums enjoy returning to the campus for a chance to see some old friends and make some new friends."

The 5,000 meter run will begin at 8:30 a.m. from the tennis court shed. Registration is 9-10 a.m. at the University lake house. The tournaments begin at 10.

Other activities include a picnic by the lake and an awards-presentation barbecue banquet. The swimming pool and bowling alley will also be open during the day.

Anyone interested in the day's activities can call the UM Alumni Affairs Office, 665-2521, ext. 530.

Camp winners

Rusty Carter, Waymon Moore. Trophies also went to: Keith Carter, Becky Lujua, James Craig, Todd Reagin, Jacqueline Moore and Tim Grayson.

FOP campers douse counselors after Saturday night snipe hunt

Campers turned the tables on their counselors Saturday night when they returned from a snipe hunt.

Loyd Anderson, Tom Barnes and other members of the Fraternal Order of Police were doused with water when participants in the FOP sponsored camp learned they had been trying to catch an animal that doesn't exist.

The 47 campers got wet themselves earlier in the day when they left their camp site at the FOP lodge and went swimming at the Shelby County YMCA.

But most of the activity at the weekend camp took place on the lodge grounds in the Camp Branch area.

Events included volleyball, horseshoes, table tennis, softball and badminton. And trophies were awarded in two age groups for the campers who excelled in the tournaments that were held.

In addition to the barbecue prepared by Glen Naish Saturday night, the campers also gathered around a campfire later in the evening for a marshmallow roast.

Explorers in the Law Enforcement Post #561 helped out at the weekend event which included a church service Sunday morning.

Two of the campers left Sunday to attend the state FOP camp in Montgomery. The boys selected to take part in the week long event were Steve Nix of Alabaster and Joey Smith of Calera.

Most of the sports equipment used by the local campers was donated by the Shelby County YMCA. And various individuals loaned the camp the three tents that were used.

Columbiana staff

Staffing the new Columbiana office of the Shelby State Bank when it opens next month will be (seated l to r) Mary Todhunter, head teller and tellers May Aycock and Kenya Walker. Standing, Geron Daniel, manager and Janice Callahan, assistant manager.

Bank names staff

The staff for the Columbiana office of the Shelby Bank is being announced this week.

The new facility's manager will be Y. Geron Daniel, Jr., a native of Fairfield, Daniel, who now lives in Thorsby, is a graduate of West End High School and attended UAB. He holds four certificates from the American Institute of Banking and has completed numerous banking seminars and programs.

He is an active coach of minor league teams in both football and baseball. He is a member of Thorsby's Park and Recreation Board and the Columbiana Kiwanis Club.

Janice Callahan, a resident of West Blocton, will be the new assistant manager. She is a graduate of West Blocton High School and attended the American Institute of Banking. She is a former vice president and member of the board of directors of the Bank of West Blocton. She joined the staff of Shelby State Bank last year.

Mary Todhunter, a resident of Montevallo, will be the new head teller in the new Columbiana facility. She is a graduate of Phillips High School in Birmingham and has attended the American Institute of Banking.

Tellers will include Kenya S. Walker and Mary Aycock, both residents of Columbiana and both graduates of Shelby County High School.

Mrs. Walker was a majorette and a Junior Civitan while at SCHS. She later attended Auburn University. Prior to joining the staff of Shelby Bank she was employed by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Auburn.

Miss Aycock attended Walker Junior College and Jefferson State. Before joining Shelby State Bank she was a teller for Birmingham Trust National Bank in Birmingham.

"Mr. Bruton Bentley Day" was celebrated at Lester's Chapel United Methodist Church with dozens of tributes to Mr. Bentley.

The day began with the dedication of hand rails in his honor. The rails extend along the front steps and on the stairs from the sanctuary to the lower level of the church.

During church services it was pointed out that Mr. Bentley had been an active member of the church between Chelsea and Columbiana for some 52 years. Mr. Joe Dickert spoke of the love and high esteem held for this man referred to as Bruton, "Uncle Bruton, Mr. Bentley, Granddaddy, Daddy."

The choir sang his favorite hymns and a plaque was presented to him "in appreciation of his dedication and devotion" to the church.

At the front of the sanctuary, an easel held a portrait of the honoree, painted by his granddaughter, Diane B. Ellis.

Another granddaughter, Gail Joseph Owen, gave a presentation calling forth memories from childhood and ending with a poem she had prepared when in high school. There was not a dry eye in the audience when she completed her presentation.

This was followed by a luncheon in the dining room featuring favorite family recipes.

Hospital lays plans to 'refresh' EMT's

Chelsea High School's new football coach pledges to 'sell kids on hard work and winning'

Chelsea Football History.
Chapter II: The New Coach.
Driving from Chelsea School toward Weldon Store offers a formidable view of Signal Mountain, some four and half miles away as the crow would wing it. Trudging across the countryside and climbing those steep slopes would be tough going, at least for this writer. Not impossible, just tough. But once you made up your mind to climb that 1500-foot mountain, it's simply be a matter of putting one foot in front of the other and eventually you'd get so close, you'd be there. And once you got there, you'd be on top of the county. Maybe even the world.

At any rate, I'd been thinking about football when I saw Signal Mountain last Wednesday. I had just come from talking to Chelsea's new head coach, Daryl Burnham.

"The main thing we try and sell our kids on is to work hard and dedicate themselves to winning," Daryl Burnham explained. "You have to teach a kid to pay the price it takes to win."

The coach leaned back in his chair, put his palms flat on the table in the office. "We believe in our program," he said.

Burnham went into his philosophy of winning, explaining it as if he were laying card hand on the table, one suit at a time.

"It takes the proper mental attitude. You've got to be in good physical shape. You've got to have dedication to win.

"Football demands personal sacrifice. The team that's willing to sacrifice and work hard is the team that'll win. It takes a sense of pride, but you get some of that just being on the team. Not everybody can play high school football."

Okay. So suppose the Hornets get fired up this year. And from the pad-popping indications they made last spring in the jamboree, that's what they're itching to do. But the question is, the question everybody's wondering, is will Chelsea turn around the marks they've been recording in the record books of the past?

Burnham is cautious, not fast to answer. For one thing he doesn't know.

The knowing will start coming August 4 when practice formally begins. And the knowing will come even more on August 29 when Chelsea takes on Talladega County at Lincoln. And the knowing will continue to come as the Hornets face off against Briarwood, Montevallo, Shelby County, Vincent and others.

Our goals are to go out and work hard every day and dedicate ourselves to winning," the new coach said.

"There are no short cuts. It'll take time.

"What they've done in the past is no indication of what they can do. We're not really concerned with what's gone on in the past. We're here to try and improve the overall athletic program as much as we can."

Burnham is cautious not to go tooting horns that are still in the store window. But he has viewed the films from last year, and the film of Chelsea's jamboree win over Montevallo.

"My first impression? The kids gave a good effort, that's what I think.

"We've got a tough schedule this year, but it's a fair test.

"There's a lot of question marks, a lot of critical decisions between August 4 and August 29. This year presents a tremendous challenge to us. But we're looking forward to it.

"I feel Chelsea has the facilities and the support of the administration. I understand they've got a good band and cheerleaders. And one of the reasons I came here is because I feel there's some good kids coming up.

"We hope our program will entice the community to give us support."

Burnham has already been shown support from several quarters of the community. With the help of four or five of the football players and six or eight men from Chelsea, the new coach has managed to clear all the underbrush and trees from the south end of the football field where drainage was once a problem.

Others have been helping him put up new cabinets in the field house. Furthermore, some 70-80 people turned out last week for a meet-the-coach pot luck dinner.

Burnham appears to have the ball rolling in Chelsea. Time will tell if the Hornets climb the mountain.

Burnham, who replaces Richard Conkle at the helm of Chelsea's athletic department, is only the second head coach in the school's ten year history.

The new coach, 33, married and the father of two, comes to Chelsea via West Point, Coffee County and Springville High Schools, where teams he coached and assisted racked up a 51-19 record in seven years.

He played defensive end at Troy State University.

Harpersville men's team tops league

The Harpersville men's softball team goes into this week's competition as first place in the league with a 13-3 record, according to Charles Adair.

Two games are scheduled with second place Sylacauga this week.

Third place in the league is Montevallo with a 12-4 record.

Next is Pell City with an 11-2 record, followed by Wilsonville, 10-4. In sixth place is Columbiana, 9-5.

Alabaster church ball teams end season with tournament

The slow-pitch church softball league at Alabaster wound up the season last week with the Indian Springs Gold team declared the season winner in the "A" division.

Ellie Glasscox and Larry Simmons coordinated the league's activities this summer, under the auspices of the Alabaster Park and Recreation Board.

Glasscox told the Reporter the season was very successful with 20 teams participating in the league, which was divided into two divisions.

Taking second place behind Indian Springs Gold was the Alabaster Baptist White team.

Winning the "B" division was Calvary Baptist Temple with Pelham United Methodist as runner-up.

Hickory Hills was awarded the sportsmanship trophy for the season.

The league topped the season with a tournament last weekend. In the tournament Pelham Baptist took top winnings with Siluria Baptist as runnerup in the "A" division.

Among the "B" teams Helena Baptist won the tournament and Bryan Memorial Presbyterian was runnerup.

Glasscox said the Alabaster Park and Recreation Board is now forming an open men's league. Any team can sign up to compete. Play will start about the first of August. Those interested should contact Glasscox at 663-7377 or Simmons at 663-7817.

Alabaster's minor league team blows away all competition

Like the Thompson Warriors' Red Tornado which swept the county high school baseball tournament, the minor league team from Alabaster made a clean sweep of the all-star tournament last week.

Wearing tornado red uniforms and playing on their home field, the Alabaster All-Stars blew away Pelham, Helena, Central Shelby and Montevallo to win the sub-district title among 9 and 10 year olds.

In the final game, the Alabaster team beat Montevallo by a score of 14-0, to go on to further competition this week in Midfield.

Montevallo came in second in the tournament, receiving a second place trophy and also the good sportsmanship trophy.

Babe Ruth team heads out for state playoffs

The Central Shelby All-Stars won the district contest and is going to Pell City this weekend for the state playoffs in the Babe Ruth League.

Last Friday, the team, coached by Charlie and David Shaw and Gary Crumpton of Vincent, beat the Oneonta team in the playoffs held in Tuscaloosa.

The mother of two of the coaches, Louise Shaw, helped with all phases of the team's success. She has handled fund raising activities so the team could be outfitted with proper caps and uniforms, in addition to several other duties.

Helena All-Stars

Stock car racing returns to Birmingham Raceway

Stock car racing returns to Birmingham International Raceway this Friday night for a 10-race program.

Red Farmer will be back from his Washington State racing vacation, along with regulars Henry Brook, Jerry Goodwin, Doug Reid, and others. There will be a 25-lap modified sportsman feature plus two heat races.

The limited sportsman division will compete in two heat races and a 15-lap feature. Two heat races have been added to the bomber division to go along with the 10-lap feature event. The mini-modified division will race in a 10-lap feature.

Gates open at 6, time trials for the modified sportsman at 7, and the races start at 8.

Local vocational center students win big in medical spelling

HOSA students from the Shelby County Area Vocational Center have established a pretty good track record in qualifying for national competition.

And when they've pitted their ability to spell medical terminology against students from across the nation, the local Health Occupation Education students have made a good showing.

In this year's competition, which took place last week, 17 year old Gwen Todd from Calera placed second and Cindi Partridge, also 17, from Alabaster, came in 11th.

Terita Arrington, another SCAVC student, was a national winner in 1978. She brought home a second place trophy from that competition.

This year's event was held in Asheville, N. C. and approximately 50 students from all over the United States took part.

Several county doctors and two from Jefferson County donated money to help defray the cost for the local students.

Relating what was involved in preparing for the national contest, the girls said they had been advised to know the spelling of every word in Taber's Medical Dictionary.

However, it wasn't all work and no play during the four days they spent in Asheville. There were tours, a clogging contest, and a "pig picking," (similar to a Hawaiian luau).

Students from the vocational center have consistently won the right to represent the state in the national contest. And this year, to have two of the state's three winners from SCAVC, was a feather in the school's cap.

Both Gwen and Cindi want to go into nursing. In competitions leading up to the national, Gwen placed third in the local event, was second in the district and first in the state.

Cindi's record was fourth locally, and third in both district and state contests.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Partridge. Gwen's parents are Rev. and Mrs. Kermit Todd.

Ace spellers

Gwen Todd (l) of Calera, came in second in the national medical terminology spelling bee. A fellow student at the SCAVC, Cindi Partridge of Alabaster, was 11th in the competition.

Alabaster wins by one in thriller

The Saturday night game was a thriller as the 12-year-olds played their hearts out.

The Alabaster team was playing the Cahaba Valley Nationals at the park in Montevallo.

The score was 0-4 in favor of Cahaba Valley until the fourth inning. Then, with the bases loaded, Richard Kidd of Alabaster came up to bat. The way Sandra Thames tells it, "With the full count on him, he connected with the ball and put it out of the park."

The score then stayed at 4-4 going into the overtime eighth inning. Finally Pug Gillespie hit a line drive to left field and brought in the winning run for Alabaster.

Public urged to attend

CPR course at NSFD

The public is encouraged to learn how to give cardiopulmonary resuscitation this Friday.

The North Shelby Fire Department will teach the course, free of charge, beginning at 8:30 a.m. The class usually lasts about four hours.

Bart Wilkerson will be the main teacher. The class will be held at the fire department on Valleydale Road. Everyone who has been wanting to learn CPR techniques, but has been putting it off, should make plans to attend.

Columbiana churches join forces in production

Getting ready

Rev. Tom Stoker from Columbiana's First Baptist Church and Kathy Wayman, rehearse area young people for the musical that will be staged at the church in two performances this weekend.

The voices of seventy young people - choreography - and special lighting effects.

These are the ingredients that Tom Stoker, Emily Kitchens and Kathy Wayman have been working with this summer to form a perfect blend for the musical that's being put on this weekend in Columbiana.

Summer Stock, the name adopted by the church members ranging in age from seventh grade through college, will put on the first performance of "Believer," Saturday evening.

Rev. Stoker, associate minister at the First Baptist Church in Columbiana, is directing the musical which he describes as an expression of celebration for those who believe in Christ Jesus as Lord and Savior.

Choreography for Dallas Holm's musical, is being done by Kitchens and Wayman.

And an added effect to enhance the production is being handled by Mrs. Homer Joiner. She is in charge of the slide presentation that will be part of the performance.

The Saturday night performance will be given for the Shelby Baptist Associational Youth Rally being held at First Baptist Church in Columbiana.

And the following evening at 7:30 p.m., the musical will be put on again at the Columbiana Community worship service.

The public is invited both nights.

Members of Summer Stock are from the United Methodist Church, Church of the Nazarene, Bethel Baptist and Columbiana First Baptist.

The group will also be singing throughout the state with concerts in Jasper, Mobile, Sylacauga and Ashland.

GREAT RATES for Sunday callers.

Greater savings before 5 p.m.

Sunday's a great day for reaching out to faraway friends. Because long distance rates are at their lowest on Sundays before 5 p.m. You get a 60% discount off regular weekday rates, when you dial the 1+ way.*

Then from 5 to 11 p.m., the rates change. But you still get the 35% evening discount on 1+ dialed calls.

Check the front pages of your phone book for all the great rates.

And call early on Sunday to save the most. Reach out with long distance. And save when rates are great.

*Low 1+ rates do not apply to person-to-person, coin, hotel guest, credit card or collect calls, calls charged to another number, or calls to Alaska or Hawaii.

ROSEMARY MOORE

Soldier praised

Private First Class Rosemary Moore of Montevallo has been awarded the army certificate of achievement for her outstanding performance of duty as a telecommunication center operator.

The certificate cited her exemplary handling of message traffic, attention to detail and technical expertise. "Her keen sense of responsibility and long hours of hard work have served as an inspiration to all personnel with whom she has associated," it read.

Moore is an operator for Camp Casey Communication Facility, 552nd Signal Company, 41st Signal Battalion. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie J. Moore of Montevallo and a 1978 graduate of Montevallo High School.

Summer services at churches

Revival services at Antioch #1 in the Kingdom community will run July 27 through August 1. Louis Brasher from Jemison will be the guest speaker each evening at 7.

Everyone is invited.

Old Country Church in Harpersville will hold Homecoming July 27.

The Gene Lowery quartet will be guest singers.

Pastor R.L. Morris and the congregation also announce revival services to begin Monday, July 28 at 8 p.m., with James Wesley as the evangelist.

The music will be led by Mark Cottingham.

These two young men are students at Samford University and form a revival team sponsored by the Alabama Baptist Evangelism Department. The pastor, Mahlon R. Thomason, cordially invites the public to attend.

The Mount Signal Baptist Church choir of Chelsea will present "A Night of Music" Sunday evening, July 27, at 7.

The special summer event will be an all music worship service.

Special music by the church choir will highlight the program. Singers will include Niva Dorough, Cathy Sharp, Edwina Chappell, Cathy Burns and Mount Signal Trio.

Minister of Music, Tony Blackerby, cordially invites everyone to attend. The Rev. Jim Jackson is pastor.

Mayberry Baptist Church in Pea Ridge will hold vacation Bible school from July 28-August 2 for ages 3-18 at 6 p.m.

For more information call Linda Boothe 665-1008.

Field day draws group

Among Shelby Countians attending a fruit and vegetable field day in Clanton recently were Clayton O. Nordan, Milton Orr, Herman Vest and J. Claude Smith.

The program held at Chilton area horticulture substation drew producers and agricultural leaders from from nine Alabama counties.

Researchers from Auburn University's agricultural experiment station system presented research findings from approximately 30 fruit and vegetable projects. Program participants also saw fresh fruit and vegetable displays and toured the facilities.

According to substation superintendent C.C. Carlton, research at the substation is concerned with the best way to get quality fruits and vegetables on the consumer's table at the lowest possible price.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

Calvin Walton of Columbiana is trying to keep his garden through the heat wave by irrigating it. He planted in built-up rows and runs water between them. Trenches between the rows have "step-downs" to keep the water flowing slowly. Water builds up behind one step-down, like behind a dam, before flowing over to the next level. Walton's garden is probably one of the few in the county which still boasts "green" green beans.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank all of our friends for the beautiful flowers, food, cards and acts of kindness shown us at the time of our loss in the death of J.D. Anderson.

Mae Anderson
Magdolne & J.W. Howard
Brenda & Johnnie Farmer

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to the nurses and everyone that ministered so kindly to our wife, mother and grandmother, Mary Lois Deamer, while she was a patient in the CC unit and on the second floor of Shelby Memorial Hospital. A very special thanks to Drs. Abernathy and Kumjai. May God richly bless each of you.

John, Johnnie, Sandy, Sam, Wayne and Sandra

We would like to thank everyone for all the many expressions of kindness given to us during my recent sickness, may God bless you.

Flora & George Green

IN MEMORY

In living memory of our husband and father John W. Spain who passed away one year ago, July 19, 1980.

Oh! Call it not death, when loved ones depart and leave us in gloom and sadness of heart. Although we have lost to them it is gain. You've entered your home with Jesus to reign. It would not be right to ask your return and come back to earth. For your race is run. You've left this old world and now are at rest. For you are just gone to be with the best.

Your wife & children

LEGAL NOTICE
Notice of Public Meeting and Public Review of State AML Plan

The State of Alabama, Department of Industrial Relations is developing a program in cooperation with the US Department of Interior, Office of Surface Mining to restore, reclaim, abate, control or prevent the adverse effects of past coal mining practices in a 18 county area of the State of Alabama.

Alabama's abandoned mine land reclamation program will be conducted with US government grants derived from fees collected by the US Government on each ton of coal produced in the State.

A draft of Alabama's Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation plan prepared by the Department of Industrial Relations under advisement of the U.S. Office of Surface Mining will be placed in the public library at each of the following locations: Centerville, Oneonta, Guntersville, Paducah, Fayetteville, Russellville, Scottsboro, Birmingham, Gardendale, Hueytown, Trussville, Hamilton, Decatur, Columbiana, Pell City, Tuscaloosa, Jasper and Haleyville, Alabama from July 10 to August 8, 1980 for interested persons to review and comment.

Public meetings will be held at the following locations: July 29, Guntersville, City Hall at 7:00 p.m.; July 31, Ft. Payne, City Hall at 7:00 p.m.; August 4, Tuscaloosa, Alabama Power Company Auditorium, 915 Queen City Avenue at 7:00 p.m.; August 6, Haleyville, City Hall at 7:00 p.m.; and August 7, Birmingham, Jefferson County Court House at 7:00 p.m. to discuss the plan and how it must serve the people of Alabama. All interested persons are encouraged to attend in order that maximum citizen participation in the development of the State's reclamation program may be obtained.

Persons who cannot attend the public meeting may submit their comments in writing to Robert Weiler, State Programs Administrator, Department of Industrial Relations, Montgomery, Alabama 36130 no later than August 8, 1980 at which time public comment will be analyzed and incorporated where possible into a final plan.

Additional information concerning this program may be obtained by contacting Robert Weiler, State Programs Administrator, Department of Industrial Relations, Montgomery, Alabama 36130, Telephone No. 832-6753.

Upon completion of a final draft of the plan, a public hearing will be held in Birmingham. Any persons who believe they are adversely affected by this plan or program can present their grievances at that time.

Montevallo votes to cut back services

Montevallo's city council voted unanimously Monday night to restrict certain city services to the municipality's corporate limits within six months.

The resolution presented by Mayor Ralph Sears states:

"Whereas, the city council of Montevallo is experiencing an increasing number of requests for services rendered by the municipal government; and

Whereas, the municipal government is experiencing a decrease in revenues with which to provide services; and

Whereas, members of the governing body are striving to provide adequate services to the citizens of Montevallo and at the same time balance expenditures with revenues; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, that police protection, fire protection, garbage pick-up service, trash removal service and other municipal services except water and natural gas, will be limited to the corporate limits of the city of Montevallo."

Council members agreed that persons residing within the police jurisdiction who might be affected by the resolution should be granted a reasonable time to make any adjustments desired. Effective date of the resolution is February 1, 1981.

In other business councilman Grady Parker reported that the police and fire committee has met with representatives of Shiloh Rescue One, discussing a rescue service for the city. He said discussions are continuing and no decision has yet been reached.

Police Chief Troy Kirkland reported that 12 additional stop signs and 14 speed limit signs are needed in Indian Highlands and Hidden Valley.

Councilman David Nichols said that the project of inserting plastic pipe into the city's cast iron gas lines is progressing according to schedule.

City clerk Don Hughes was authorized to obtain bids on a trench digging machine for the water and gas departments.

In other action, W. E. Robinson was reappointed to the housing authority, Barney Champion was elected to membership on the board of adjustments and Herbert Milstead was nominated for a seat on the planning commission.

Jimmy Ray retires

by Marcia M. Sears

James L. "Jimmy" Ray, Jr., is leaving his position as director of the Department of Public Works and county engineer of Shelby County this month.

Ray told the county commission Monday his reasons for retiring are strictly personal.

He has been an employee of Shelby County for 36 years and four months. He said the time has come to "hang 'em up, and pass the torch to younger, healthier and better trained men."

The commission reluctantly accepted his resignation and unanimously voted to hire his son, John Gary Ray, as his replacement.

The retiring engineer outlined highlights of his tenure, during which time the Shelby County highway department became a model for county highway departments throughout the United States.

He noted the county system has 750 miles of paved roads, 250 miles of unpaved roads, 306 bridges and dozens of subdivision streets under its jurisdiction.

The county had the pilot safety project in the state, winning a grant from Washington even before the states were aware the grants were available.

In addition to paving the roads, Ray and his staff designed and built the county airport, constructed recreation and boat launch facilities, three landfills and the Coosa River ferry. The department also built "almost every athletic field for almost every school in the county."

Ray is proud of his record in obtaining several million dollars in grants for the county highway system by carefully watching developments in Washington and Montgomery.

He initiated the special 1978 census, which resulted in the county's collecting thousands of extra dollars in gas tax revenues.

It saddens Ray that the shortage of funds for highway work has shrunk his department from 126 men in the 1950's and 60's to 64 at the present time. But he says he is leaving "many highly motivated and highly trained men" to carry on the county highway work.

He said he must divest himself of daily stress but, "I will do some consulting service, where I am not responsible for anyone but myself."

Ray will leave active service on August 9, and retire effective September 30.

Having a ball

Sticking out her tongue seemed to help this youngster throw the ball at Vacation Bible School in Pelham.

JAMES RAY, JR., AND SON JOHN GARY RAY

Son succeeds father

John Gary Ray will succeed his father as Shelby County Engineer.

He holds a B.S. degree in civil engineering from the University of Alabama and has had extensive experience with the state and county highway departments.

He is both a registered professional civil engineer and a professional land surveyor.

He learned highway engineering at his father's knee, going out on surveying projects with his father from the age of 10. He worked with the Shelby County department for five summers during his high school and college years.

City runoff winners:

McClure-Wilsonville mayor

Naish, Farris, Smitherman, Maynard, Payne, Spates win council posts

Sherrell McClure will be the new mayor of Wilsonville. The decision was made by Wilsonville voters in the runoff election Tuesday. He won the post with 152 votes. His opponent, R.G. Stephenson, had 105 votes.

Wilsonville was the only city among Shelby County's ten municipalities where there was a runoff for the office of mayor. The incumbent, Austin Mitchell, did not seek re-election.

Four cities held runoff elections for places on the city council. In Alabaster, one council seat was won by Glen Naish who had 554 votes to 522 votes cast for his opponent, incumbent Mayo Taylor.

The other council place in Alabaster was won by L.O. Farris who ran against Marvin Hall. Farris won by 574 votes to 457 for Hall.

In Montevallo, Catherine Smitherman won a council seat in a race with John Miller. There were 287 votes cast for Smitherman and 232 for Miller.

The two council places in Pelham which were contested went to Ken Maynard and Willard Payne.

Ken Maynard defeated Joe Littlefield by a vote of 385 to 339. Willard Payne, an incumbent councilman, defeated Ed Gentry by a vote of 373 to 349.

In Vincent, the one contested council seat was won by D.L. "Doc" Spates who drew 188 votes. His opponent, Pat McDaniel Roper, had 146 votes.

There was considerable campaign activity in all five towns for the runoff and the voter turnout was almost as high as it was in the July 8 election.

New tax appraisal to begin

Shelby County Tax Assessor, Bobbie Reynolds, is preparing to conduct a reappraisal of property values in Shelby County.

The new appraisal was ordered by the State Department of Revenue after officials found that the widely publicized statewide reappraisal program of the last six years did not result in equitable taxes. Because of the inequities, state officials fear the federal courts will step in again.

This time, the Department of Revenue says it will conduct its own program, through the county assessors, and will not hire outside appraisal firms.

The county commission Monday approved a budget submitted by Mrs. Reynolds for conducting the program. The budget then must be approved by the State Department of Revenue.

The county will employ three appraisers and one mapper. A state appraiser will be named to work with the assessor. According to state officials, the work must begin by August 1.

When the first reappraisal was started, Shelby County officials thought it would result in considerably higher taxes coming in to county coffers. Those hopes however, were dashed because of limitations put on by the legislature, by delays and other factors. As a result, this year, the county's general fund received only a small increase, while the demand for services has jumped forward.

Men caught in burglary binge of new homes in north Shelby

A weekend burglary binge apparently came to a sudden halt Sunday night when a Helena police officer made a routine traffic stop.

According to Pelham investigator Tommy Thomas, an estimated $10,000 worth of stolen goods were recovered.

Around midnight Sunday,

HPD officer Alvin Coggins stopped a suspicious van as it was leaving the new Eaglewood subdivision within the Helena police jurisdiction off Hwy. 17. It was occupied by two white males and in the back of the van was a new electric range.

Because of a rash of burglaries in unsold houses over the weekend, Thomas and Sheriff's investigator John Pratt were called in. After questioning by the three policemen, the two suspects admitted to the burglary of three Pelham and four county residences that weekend, Thomas said.

The two men led police to a house near Bessemer where custom draperies, numerous light fixtures and carpeting from unsold, burglarized houses had been stashed.

Jailed on charges of third degree burglary were Tom Adams, 21, of Pelham, and Joe Grimes, 19, of Bessemer.

Don Murphy runs for commission seat

Donald R. "Don" Murphy is seeking a seat on the Shelby County Commission from district three.

Qualifying as a Republican, Murphy will run in the primary September 2nd.

Murphy said in announcing his candidacy that he would dedicate himself to provide the people with positive, honest and effective county government.

He says he will work hard to attract new business and industry to the county. He is also interested in more effective law enforcement.

He says, "It's past time for a change, but it's never too late to correct past errors."

Murphy has been a realtor in Shelby County for many years. He has served as president of Cahaba Valley Jaycees, director of the YMCA, county cancer society and United Way, as well as taking an active part in Boy Scouts and other organizations.

He is a Mater Mason and a little league baseball coach.

He and his wife Martha Ann, and two sons reside in Chandalar South in Pelham.

Cable TV franchise signed by Montevallo

Cable television is coming to Montevallo.

Montevallo's city council approved a non-exclusive franchise agreement Monday night permitting TAC-CAN of Alabama to construct, operate and maintain a cable television distribution system throughout the city.

Work will begin immediately on the project, according to Edward F. Sprigg, general manager of the company. The system is expected to be in operation within a year.

When completed subscribers will be able to receive up to 18 channels on their home TV set.

The company will utilize existing utility poles, but will bury the cable underground in subdivisions where utilities are already underground.

Basic costs for the service include an initial connection charge of $25, plus a monthly fee of $7.50. The company will pay the city of Montevallo three percent of its gross basic revenues on a semi-annual basis.

Sprigg told the Reporter that his firm will establish an office in Montevallo with at least seven staff members.

TAC-CAN of Alabama is a division of VOLR-TAC Communications of Marietta, Ga. The firm's Alabama headquarters is in Millbrook.

TV robber hits motel

Seventeen TV sets were removed from rooms at Calera's Clara Neal Motel sometime Sunday night.

The burglar or burglars also made off with two bedsprads, several pillows and a lamp.

Reed Smith, Chief Investigator for the Shelby County Sheriff's Department is investigating the case.

AU's Funderburk speaks at Riverchase

A second generation Auburn graduate spoke at the Shelby County Alumni Association banquet Friday.

He was H. Handley Funderburk Jr., the university's new president.

Mentioning that his wife and children had also attended the school on the plains, Funderburk pointed out that Auburn seemed to be a tradition in an unusual number of families.

The discovery was made by an outside team of analysts, the AU president told the alumni. "It's unlike anything they've found in any other part of the country," he noted.

Funderburk was introduced by a longtime friend, Dr. Phil Beasley, a professor at the University of Montevallo.

Referring to the $2-$3 million problem caused by pro-ration, AU's head man said that "Management is our key to survival in the 80's."

Although the student population is on the increase now, he noted that a downturn in enrollment would probably come. "We're just going to have to do more with less," he stressed.

Conceding that hard times also lie ahead in the area of sports, Funderburk told the Eagle fans that the school was nevertheless committed to a first rate football program.

Enthusiastic applause greeted his remark that a win over the Crimson Tide from Alabama is "long overdue."

Fitting bird

Shelby County Auburn Alumni Association president John Meredith presents a replica of the War Eagle to the university's new president, Handley Funderburk during an alumni banquet at Riverchase Country Club Thursday.

Pelham robbery foiled by unexpected shoppers

Sunday at 10 p.m. is hardly rush hour at the Acton Hill U-Totem on Hwy. 31 in Pelham. So when Sammy Lee Shearear allegedly walked into the store, pulled a .25 Colt automatic pistol on the clerk and demanded money, he probably wasn't expecting any customers to interrupt him.

Before the clerk responded to the demands of the 29 year-old black male from Birmingham, several kids walked into the store followed by their parents.

According to Pelham police reports, the suspect apparently lost his nerve at this point and left the store.

The parents, whose names police did not reveal, phoned in the tag number and description of the getaway car. The Pelham dispatcher then issued a county-wide BOLO (be on lookout) for the car and suspect.

A short time later, Sheriff's deputy Richard Fox spotted a car fitting that description at the intersection of Hwys. 280 and 119, and apprehended Shearear.

Shearear was charged with armed robbery in the first degree and locked in the county jail.

Dogwood seeks fire truck

Bobby Snow, president of the Dogwood Community Center, is leading an effort to establish a volunteer fire department. Mark Hall has been elected fire chief and Billy Brantley was chosen assistant chief. The group started working even before the defeat of the proposed Shelco Fire District bill because residents of Dogwood asked not to be included in the fire district. However, according to some reports, the fire truck that had been kept at the Dogwood Community Center, was the property of Shelco Unit One. The Shelco unit had also installed a door on one end of the building. Shelco leaders said before the election, that if the fire district bill did not pass, services would have to be discontinued. After the election, the truck and door were removed, leaving Dogwood without any fire fighting equipment, and leaving the building open to the elements. Members of the community center have asked the sheriff's office to investigate the matter and to check into vandalism of windows in the building. But in the meantime, the community is asking for information on obtaining used fire fighting equipment, and is asking for donations.

Hunch could have proved fatal

It was Alex Anderson's misfortune that Calera policeman Robert Walker had a hunch about the car in which he was a passenger.

But it was the Calera policeman's good fortune that the burglary suspect had second thoughts about blasting him with a sawed-off shotgun.

Because he had a hunch about the car in which Anderson and two other robbery suspects were riding in the wee hours last Friday morning, the Calera policeman followed it and the car took off.

Catching up with the vehicle near the Pit Restaurant, Walker saw two men crouched behind the front fender as he approached the car.

When he drew his gun and called for them to come out, they ran into nearby woods.

Taking a quick look in the car before giving pursuit, Walker saw a man lying on the seat and ordered him out of the car.

It wasn't until after he had shaken Anderson down and transferred him to the patrol car that the policeman found the lethal weapon, loaded and cocked, lying on the floor.

After calling for help, Walker was joined by personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department, Montevallo, Alabaster and Columbiana.

Along with a canine unit from Jefferson County, they searched the woods for the two who had escaped.

However, it was discovered the men had fled in a truck from the State Highway Department barn located nearby.

Walker found 146 cartons of cigarettes in the car which had been stolen from a Jemison store Thursday evening. They were valued at $730.

It was about two hours after that burglary that Walker first spotted the car in which Anderson and the other two men were riding, traveling through Calera.

"It just stuck in my mind," he said. And when he noticed the car return to town around 2:20 a.m., the Calera policeman gave chase.

Anderson was taken to the Chilton County Jail. Although the Highway Department truck was found in Ensley, the other two suspects are still at large.

Assistance available for homes

A new program is underway which will provide financial assistance to low-income homeowners for improvements to their properties.

The program begun by the state of Alabama, is called the Appalachian Alabama Housing Program. Funding comes from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The program will work in conjunction with the Farmers Home Administration's home repair programs. The Farmers Home Administration county supervisor will qualify the applicant for grant assistance.

Under the new program, the site improvement grants will be made to those low-income families and individuals (1) whose incomes are insufficient to repay Farmers Home Administration's home repair loans or (2) whose needs for repair funds are greater than what the Farmers Home Administration would allow.

Eligible site improvement activities under the new program include septic tank, water well, water tap-on-fees, etc.

For information about this new program contact Eddie Elliott at the County Farmers Home Administration Office.

The county library board wants the county commission to take over the library building.

Mildred Harrison, longtime chairman of the county library board, made the request at the commission meeting Monday, citing high costs of maintenance as the reason.

She said the library has a bill of over $1982 for repairs to the building's air conditioner, and the bookmobile is out of service because of its air conditioning system. She said there is no money to pay for these items.

Mrs. Harrison said that when the library was built, federal and state agencies required that the deed to the building be in the name of the library board. That stipulation has been removed, she said, and the state has approved transfer to the county. However, she cannot locate the deed.

She said the library board would want a contract with the county commission to guarantee the building's continued use as a library and also a guarantee for the Columbiana city library, which contributed to its construction costs.

The commission took the request under advisement.

Mrs. Harrison also introduced Phillip Clark to the commission as the new county librarian, who is replacing Pam Williams. Clark is from Bluefield, W. Va.

The county's mosquito control program is continuing throughout the summer on a "complaint basis", according to Robert Wilson.

The county employee told the Reporter Tuesday that he is able to keep down the worst complaints, but that the Smoky Road south of Alabaster and the Shelby area are still having problems with the insects.

The Town of Wilton has requested spraying this week, Wilson said, and it is next on his list.

The county has asked each city to buy the chemicals necessary for spraying within the city limits, and all have agreed to do so, Wilson said.

He noted that Alabaster, however, went ahead and bought its own spraying equipment.

Alabama Power Company has helped by spraying along the Coosa River, he said.

Connie Morris, insurance clerk for the county commission, is resigning to work for the state department of Pensions and Security. The commission Monday approved the hiring of Gloria Wyatt to replace her. Mrs. Wyatt is the wife of J.D. "Buddy" Wyatt of Columbiana.

Sheriff James "Buddy" Glasgow is attending a meeting of the state sheriffs' association this week.

Steve Hagar and Jim Sumners of the tax assessor's maintenance program attended meetings in Birmingham early this week.

The Board of Registrars will be at the Alabaster City Hall, August 12 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. They will register anyone in Shelby County 18 years or older who has not previously registered to vote.

Judge Tommy Snowden, Pat Sewell and Sue Attaway represented the Judge of Probate Office at a recent meeting of the State Association of Judges of Probate in Guntersville.

During the three-day session the Association was awarded a $2,000 check which it will pass on to college students in the form of scholarships.

The award was made by News Election Service, the national vote gathering organization. Presenting the check for NES, Dr. James Brown cited the Judges of Probate for requesting and urging polling place officials to voluntarily report results of the general election to NES.

"Because of these reports, the television networks and wire services were able to show Alabama properly as one of the early reporting states," he said.

Why do Shelby County's indigent expectant mothers have to go to Birmingham hospitals for pre-natal care and delivery?

Why doesn't Shelby Memorial Hospital have a system to care for them?

County commissioner Harold Davenport of Alabaster raised these questions in the commission meeting Monday, after apparently hearing complaints about it from his constituents.

He said, "If we have one doctor controlling the o.b. room, we need to know about it."

When the Reporter contacted hospital administrator Roland Bradford Tuesday, he said that a system is being started whereby the two OB-GYN doctors on the staff will see the patients at one stage of pregnancy in the emergency room. They will work out a system of payment, and will deliver the baby in the hospital o.b. department.

Payment will be on ability to pay, he said.

Dr. Paul Perry and Dr. James Belyeu are the physicians handling the cases. Just one patient has been seen and no deliveries have yet been made, he said.

County's missing link

Interstate to open this spring

The portion of Interstate 65 from Alabaster to Hoover will be ready for traffic by spring of 1981, Governor Fob James has announced.

He added that by the end of 1982, Interstate 459 around Birmingham will be under construction on its whole length, with many sections opening before that time.

The state's entire interstate system, except for some metropolitan spurs, will be completed or under construction by the end of 1982, he said.

According to James, the segment of I-65 north of Birmingham will be ready for construction contracts by the middle of next year. The unfinished portion of I-65 north of Mobile is now under construction and should be completed by late summer of 1981. Interstate 59 is now open for traffic on its whole length. And I-20 will be under construction on its remaining segment by the end of 1982.

"...The completion of our interstate system from Chattanooga to Meridian, from Nashville to Grand Bay and from Atlanta to Montgomery will be the reality we have wanted for so many years," he said.

James also announced timetables on three important urban spurs. I-359 from I-59 to Tuscaloosa, I-759 from I-59 to Gadsden and I-565 from I-65 at Decatur over to Huntsville are set for completion during 1984-86.

"These direct access routes to these three important cities, plus the completion of I-459 around Birmingham should have a great positive impact on the economies of the areas they will serve," said James.

In all, James announced a commitment to more than $450 million worth of interstate construction.

He pointed out that this work can be done because the Legislature passed his proposal for an increase in the gas tax. "If we had not passed that measure, we would have had an either-or choice. Either we could have finished our interstates and let our secondary roads deteriorate even further, or we could maintain our existing roads and not complete our interstate," he said.

He added that the gas tax revenue will be used to match badly-needed federal funds.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

When I got to Mrs. Dunn's apartment she was fixing pencil cob corn, getting the silks out. And when I got to Mrs. Shaws' she was shucking pencil cob corn. When I got to Mrs. McDaniel's place she had already put her corn in the refrigerator. I don't know how many more folks in the neighborhood had corn, but I'm sure there were some.

They didn't have to tell me what had happened. I knew. Henry and Perine Joiner had been by. They always share.

I don't know if you have ever grown pencil cob corn. If you haven't, you ought to try it one year. Boiled, it's something.

We hadn't planted pencil cob corn at our house. At least, not until this year. We have always liked pioneer corn. But this year we planted one patch of pencil cob.

I don't remember, but I think wed got one shower on it when it was six inches high. When it got three feet high, it tasseled and put on a few shoots. And when it got four feet high, and had turned the color of a fall sunset, I laid it to rest. A neighbor said a few words over it and sang a sad song and the next day I got the spot ready for a fall turnip patch.

But we had pencil cob corn. Henry and Perine gave us a sack full. And Johnson Vanderslice let me graze in his patch several times.

Yep, boiled, pencil cob corn is something!

I had been looking for a cat for months. Just any old cat that had a tail and four paws and meow. I thought I had found one last week when I went up to see Henry and Virginia Nichols.

When I got there Virginia answered the door. "Henry's in the back," she said, "with the cats."

I followed her through the living room and the kitchen and on to the back porch.

And there he was. And the cats. Twelve of 'em, all the way from the size of a bar of soap to a half inflated football.

I didn't say anything about wanting a cat. They only had a dozen, so I didn't feel like asking for one.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Once upon a time, I dreamed of being an actress. But after pursuing that goal in college for a short while, I decided I wasn't cut out for the stage.

What brought me to that conclusion was the grades I made in my dramatic arts classes. They were just downright terrible!

However, now I think I may have missed my calling. From all appearances, I've put on some pretty convincing performances lately.

Just take one of those weeks during our recent heat wave. Our air conditioner at the office conked out on one of the days when the temperature had climbed over 100 degrees.

So trying to illustrate my discomfort to a friend in a judicial office at the courthouse, I went staggering up to her desk, clutching my throat and gasping.

And then I noticed someone sitting next to her staring at me.

"Don't worry about her," my friend laughed nervously, "she's just a reporter."

It wasn't until the next day that I learned this poor soul thought that I had been shot, and with my last breath, was struggling in to report it.

Just because my enactment of heat stroke was mistaken for being fatally wounded, I still don't think my dramatic talent should be taken lightly.

And now that I think about it, it wasn't too many months back that my astute questioning of a witness made someone think that I was a lawyer.

Slipping backstage - I mean, into a chamber behind the courtroom, I was asking a witness just some run of the mill questions.

But when this judicial type individual barged in, he eyed me sharply. "Are you the defendant's lawyer?" he demanded.

I didn't think the State Trooper I was talking to should have doubled up with laughter.

But before I could say anything, he got control of himself and told the legal eagle that, "Naw, she's just a reporter."

Oh well, even if I never make it to the footlights, I feel as though my theatrical ability is coming in handy in my present profession.

Wonder what role I should try out next?

Writer appreciates

Shelco's ten years

Letter to the Editor:

Since Shelco Fire District was voted down, we have wanted to express our sincere appreciation to Doug Ballard, Jr., and all of the Shelco volunteers for their efforts on behalf of the rescue service that our area (Moore's Crossroads), Montevallo, and Wilton have benefitted from for about ten years.

Before the election, I heard a lady (opponent to the fire district) say that our area would continue to have fire protection, even if the fire district was voted down, (we doubt this, because without someone like Doug Ballard, Jr., to keep the service going it will not be done).

We were sorry that the people of the district did not vote to continue this valuable service. We hope that no one will need the rescue service in a life or death situation.

Brighthope praised

Drama called an asset

Letter to the Editor:

Permit me to act the critic! Attended the Saturday night performance of "Brighthope". This drama is a real asset to our state! The actors and acting superb, the sound, staging, music and dancing, all outstanding.

To those who have not seen this play, I highly recommend it.

Let us pass the word so that "Brighthope", will continue with the years.

My thanks are extended to all those people who have made it possible.

Ten states raise gasoline taxes

Alabama is just one of several states where gasoline costs have gone up in an effort to increase highway revenue.

This word comes from the governor's office along with a summary of 1980 action in state legislatures on motor fuels taxes.

Alabama increased cents-per-gallon tax from 7 to 11 cents on gasoline while lowering cents-per-gallon tax on gasohol to 8 cents.

Nine other states and the District of Columbia also raised motor fuels taxes this year. Eight other states either lowered taxes on gasohol or exempted it from taxes to encourage its use.

Several states changed from a cents-per-gallon tax to a percentage tax. Twelve states tried to increase gas taxes in an effort to maintain their roads and highways but their efforts were defeated in their legislatures.

The governor's office pointed out that when computing the cost per gallon of gasoline in Alabama as compared to other states, persons should keep in mind that Alabama exempts gasoline from sales tax while a number of other states do not. It gave as an example, Mississippi, which has a 9 cents-per-gallon tax but levies an additional 5 per cent sales tax on gasoline.

It was also noted that motor fuels taxes are the chief source of highway construction and maintenance funds in most states and that this income source has been reduced considerably by less driving and more fuel efficient automobiles.

New mortgage loans benefit home buyers

Both home buyers and savers in Alabama will benefit from the newly authorized renegotiable rate mortgage instrument, Doug Amos, executive vice president of the Alabama League of Savings Associations, said today.

The new mortgage instruments recently authorized by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board are long-term home loans secured by a series of short-term renewable loans, Amos explained. "Loan rates can change, depending upon the movement of a housing cost index published by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, when the shorter-term loans are renewed."

He pointed out that changes, however, are "strictly limited." He said that regulations allow a maximum increase or decrease limited to five percent over the life of the loan.

"For example, if the loan renewal period is three years, the maximum allowable rate change would be 1.5 percent," Amos said. "A loan with the beginning rate of 11 percent would never have a rate higher than 16 percent or lower than 6 percent."

The trade association executive predicted that the renegotiable rate mortgage will become the primary home loan instrument during the 1980's. "The renegotiable rate mortgage will help assure a steady supply of mortgage funds at all phases of the interest rate cycle, and that should make for a healthier housing industry. Savings and loan associations will be able to pay high enough rates on savings to attract new savings deposits."

He called the new mortgage instrument "perhaps the most important home financing change in 50 years. The renegotiable rate mortgage is a mortgage loan well suited to the economic conditions anticipated in the 1980's."

DID YOU KNOW?

Where your power bill dollar goes.

In 1979, the biggest slice, 39 cents, went for fuel. Next, 17 cents for maintenance and operating expenses. (1/4 of a penny went for executive salaries, advertising and charitable contributions). The rest: 17 cents for interest expenses; 10 cents for depreciation on equipment; 11 cents for taxes; 4 cents for common stock dividends; and 2 cents for preferred stock dividends.

PURPOSE FOR BEING

OUR PURPOSE - "Glorify God." This was the controlling purpose of Christ. (John 17:4). He succeeded by obeying God's word for him.

GOD HAS SAID of humankind, "I have created him for my glory." (Isa. 43:7). This pertains to everybody.

BAPTIZED BELIEVERS are taught, "do all to the glory of God." (1 Cor. 10:31). All persons are to fulfill this purpose. "That you may with one mind and one mouth glorify God." (Rom. 15:5,6).

EACH LIFE GLORIFYING GOD. (1 Cor. 6:20; Rom. 12:1,2). This is the God-given purpose for our being, and every other purpose must be secondary.

GOD IS GLORIFIED by our manner of life. (Mt. 5:16). This is the way Christ presents our privilege and obligation.

THE STATE OF BEING, in which we can fulfill our God-given purpose for living is given by God. "Unto him (God) by glory in 'The Church' by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end." (Eph. 3:21).

ALL EFFORTS TO CHANGE God's ordained way will be a great loss to us.

If you happen to see 'Mary', alias Jean Pryor, from the nursery rhyme, 'Mary had a Little Lamb' or the puppet, 'Fluffy' alias Jeff Todhunter, you've probably stumbled upon the 'Love Wagon.' Several teenagers along with their minister David Wallace join Mary and Fluffy as they entertain children with Bible stories and singing. The 'Love Wagon' is part of the outreach ministry of Pelham United Methodist Church.

B.L. Hinds dairy in Pelham became a picnic ground last Saturday as 200 children from Crosscreek Baptist Church joined Rev. and Mrs. Richard Wash to tour the dairy. Several children were thrilled to see a cow for the first time and all 200 had a chance to sit on a tractor.

Although most Alabama natives will agree we have the best fishing around, not many folks can boast a catch of 39 catfish and bream. But that's what happened when Mr. and Mrs. O.K. Ward of Malino, Fla. recently visited Ken and Martha Ward and their children, Brian and Amy, and fished in the lake behind their Pelham home.

Two on the injured list did not stop the Thompson cheerleaders this past week. With the true Warrior spirit, Lane Gould, Lindy Busby, Salena Nall, Karen Jenkins, Susie Fuque, Beverly Oswald, Kathy Johnson, Babbie Hocutt, Glenda Taylor, Connie Kidd, Jenny Burke and Sonia Hawkins won four superior ribbons and one excellent at the cheerleading clinic on the University of Tenn. campus. The girls have practised hard this summer, says their sponsor, Freda Williams, and are eager to cheer the Warriors all the way to the state championship.

New arrivals

BRANDY CUNNINGHAM

There's a new resident in Green Park South, Pelham and she belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cunningham. Brandy Michelle Cunningham was born July 16 at East End Memorial Hospital and weighed eight pounds, five ounces.

Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W.C. "Bill" Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. T.H. "Pete" McDow of Alabaster. Her great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Lowery of Alabaster, Mr. and Mrs. J.K. Cunningham, Sr., of Montevallo, and Mrs. Julia Lambert of Sumiton.

Dana and Joel Berryhill announce the arrival of a 7 lb., 15 oz. boy, born July 24 at Shaw Air Force Base hospital in Sumter, S.C.

Shelby County grandparents are Sarah Avery and Frank DeFoor.

Indian Springs Civic Club will sponsor a "meet the candidates" forum August 5, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Indian Springs School.

Various candidates of interest to people in Shelby County will be present. Everyone is invited to attend.

Last Monday evening several families met in Alabaster at the home of Jean and Clint Scherf for a surprise going away party. Roger and Lois Offet joined the Scherfs in planning the party for their neighbors, Frank and Elaine French and their children, Michele, Robin and Frankie. The Frenches will be moving to San Antonio.

Glenda Bowan's friends will be glad to know that she is back in her Alabaster home recuperating from surgery. Glenda says her daughter Michele is an excellent nurse and along with husband John and son Michael they are sure to make her recovery a speedy one.

Larry Patterson, Peggy Jones, Lee and Micky McFadden planned a special program for the 17 year reunion of the class of 1963 from Shelby County High School. The group met recently and were lavished with praise from their former principal, Jack Upchurch and coach Don Bulger.

After the awards were distributed everyone was invited to the home of Beverly and Terri Templin.

It seems that everyone's prayers have been answered and although I have to carry an umbrella and have already washed three pairs of tennis shoes twice this week, I'll take gully washers instead of drought any day. Until next week, I'll be seeing you...around the county.

Four Mile family to reunite for the first time since 1943

Members of the Barnett family from the Four Mile community are planning a reunion next Sunday. They will meet all day on August 3 at the home of Alice Barnett Weldon to share a covered dish meal and a lot of reminiscences. Some family members will probably be meeting each other for the first time, for, according to Mrs. Weldon, "We have not had a reunion since Papa died in 1943."

"Papa" was Nap Barnett, who came to the area from Talladega County and married Lola Elizabeth Willis of Shelby County.

Five of their ten children are yet living. In addition to Alice, a son, William Warrior Barnett, lives in the Kingdom community. A daughter, Frances Stricklin, lives just out of Shelby. Another daughter, Nobles Odell Cobbs, lives in Mobile and son Henry Harlin Barnett lives in Chilton County.

The father of Nap was Thomas Barnett. He came to Alabama from Old Hickory, Tennessee in a covered wagon, at about the age of 18, with his wife, Sisly Chastain Barnett. They settled in Talladega County.

"But they came to live at our house in Four Mile when they were old," said Mrs. Weldon, adding, "My grandfather lived to be 93."

Sisly and Thomas Barnett had ten children, but several of them died young. It is the descendants of their children, Napoleon (Nap), Preston (Pud), William (Bill), Pinkney (Pink) and Olie Mae Baker who will get together for the upcoming reunion. Mrs. Weldon said that relatives from as far away as Georgia, Florida and Texas are expected. Her home, where they will meet, is located at Wilsonville route one, on highway 40 west, about 200 yards off the "Y" by Four Mile church.

MRS. RHETT VICK
...the former Debra Vick

Vicks exchange vows at Bethesda Baptist

Miss Debra Vick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vick of Chelsea, became the bride of Rhett Vick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Vick of Columbiana on July 26 at 7 p.m.

Rev. Roland Foster officiated the ceremony which was held at New Bethesda Baptist Church. Wedding music was provided by Wanda Vick, pianist and guitarist and Teresa Vick, vocalist, cousins of the bride, both of Wilton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of ivory satin with a chiffon overlay with lace accents on the sleeves and bodice. She carried a bouquet of multicolored silk spring flowers. Mrs. Don Black, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Jody Brasher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Brasher of Colum-biana served as flower girl and Peter Vick, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. The groom's father served as best man and brothers Lou and Haskell Vick were groomsmen. John D. Williamson and Blaine Carroll were ushers.

A reception followed the service. Hostesses included Mrs. Robert Martin, Mrs. Phillip Hallmark, Mrs. Donald Jones, Miss Charlene Merrell, Miss Ann Ingram, Miss Jody Hallmark and Miss Robin Stevens. The guest register was attended by Miss Denise Cagle.

The bride was honored with a miscellaneous tea on Sunday, July 20 at the home of Mrs. Roland Foster. The couple will be residing in Columbiana where the bride is employed at First National Bank and the groom at Shelby County High School.

MRS. RICKY SMITH
...the former Margaret Bailey

Margaret Bailey weds Mr. Ricky Dean Smith

Margaret Diane Bailey of Pelham became the bride of Ricky Dean Smith of Thomasville in ceremonies in Birmingham on June 30.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dora Bailey and the late Cecil Bailey.

Her grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey of Helena and the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Blackston of Carbon Hill.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Smith and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wilkerson of Thomasville and the late Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith of Mexia.

The bride is a graduate of Pelham High School and a cosmetologist in Riverchase. The groom is employed at Savin Business Copiers. They are making their home in Birmingham.

News of note in Shelby County

Heart of Dixie Rebel Rousers CB Club will hold a jamboree on Saturday, August 2 from noon until midnight at the Shelby County High School auditorium.

A live band, refreshments, three hours of broadcast time, and various entertainments will be offered. Proceeds will go to the Alabama Girls Ranch.

A grand prize of $250 will be awarded.

June and Howard Storey, of Wilsonville have returned home after an extended trip. They joined friends in Norfolk, Va., then motored to Williamsburg and Virginia Beach. They traveled on to Gettysburg, Lancaster and Hershey, Pennsylvania and ended their trip in Gatlinburg before returning home.

The annual Farr family reunion will be held on August 10 at the Farr Cemetery.

Family and friends are invited to attend.

The reunion will last all day and dinner will be on the ground.

Bethlehem Baptist Church at Spring Creek will hold Vacation

Bible School August 4-8. Sessions will run each day from 8 until 11 a.m.

All children in the area, from ages 4 to 15, are invited to attend. Pastor is Donald Vanderslice.

Attorney Mike Atchison of Columbiana, and attorney Ken Wesley, and wife Kathy of Birmingham, are enjoying a cross-country motorcycle tour of the United States, visiting points of interest in Tennessee, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

Church News

First Baptist Church of Aldrich will celebrate its 48th birthday with homecoming services Sunday, August 3.

Services will begin at 10 a.m. with Sunday School, followed by morning worship at 11 a.m. Rev. Dennis E. Draper, a former pastor and Aldrich resident, will bring the message.

Dinner will be shared on the grounds with gospel singing in the afternoon.

Jerry Bice and the Way Lighters are guest singers.

Pastor Robert L. Pickett invites everyone to attend this celebration.

New Bethesda Church on Highway 41 will hold a singing Sunday, August 3.

The Senn Family from Clanton will be guest singers.

Brighthope leads activity list

In its second year, "Brighthope," Alabama's outdoor historical drama is drawing crowds of persons each night. Performances at the Brierfield Ironworks Park are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. each Friday, Saturday and Sunday through August 3, with final performances August 6-10.

"Brighthope," the story of the beginning of Alabama's iron industry, was written by Kermit Hunter and is produced by the University of Montevallo Theater Department.

The Brierfield Ironworks Park is located 35 miles south of Birmingham on Alabama 25 between Montevallo and Centreville.

Raymond Gregory Glover of Montevallo and William Henry Gray of Columbiana were among the recent graduates of The University of Alabama Law Enforcement Academy's 46th session.

Revival services, which began Sunday evening at Old Country Church in Harpersville, start at 7 each evening. The time was previously given as 8 p.m.

Rev. James Wesley is evangelist. R.L. Morris is pastor. Closing date for the series of services is open.

Everyone is invited.

Cedar Grove Freewill Baptist Church between Columbiana and Wilsonville on county road 5, is having homecoming on August 3 starting at 10.

Guest singers are Rabe Perkins and family from Bessemer, and the Gospel Valley Boys, a local group. The pastor is Jesse Womack.

The Vandiver Community Center is sponsoring a gospel concert on Saturday, August 9.

According to Pat Brasher, the proceeds from the concert will be spent on further improvements of the park and community center. The concert will be at the park at 7:30 p.m. and will feature four musical groups: Harmony Masters, Bread of Life, Victory Makers and Joyful Heirs. Mrs. Brasher suggests that patrons bring lawn chairs.

The First Baptist Church of Vincent will hold revival services on August 10 through August 15 at 7 p.m. each evening.

Dr. Henry Hobson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Russellville, Ky., will be preaching.

Neil Nations will be singing and conducting the music.

The First Baptist Church of Vincent will be enrolling kindergarten students during the month of August. Those interested in enrolling 4 or 5 year olds may call 672-2512 or 672-2339. The enrollment is limited.

How much should you save?

At what point can you expect to feel financially secure? With $100 in a cookie jar? With $1,000 under the mattress? Or with $10,000 in a savings account?

The fact is, there is no single answer that applies to everyone.

United Federal suggests you keep a minimum of two months' take-home pay in a regular savings account where the money will be available whenever you need it. Or, you may want to split your savings between a regular account and a Certificate of Deposit (where you earn higher interest in return for investing your savings for a specified period of time).

The "how much" really depends on questions like: What are my immediate and long-term goals (family vacation, new home, college education, etc.)? What are the fixed payments I have (house, groceries, etc.) that will need to be covered if I weren't working? What other financial protection (medical insurance, employee benefits, etc.) is available to me and my family?

Just as important as "how much" is "how often" you save. Make regular deposits a part of your family budget. To get the best savings plan for you, visit with our savings consultants soon.

N-S names new officers

A major corporate reorganization by National-Standard has resulted in changes that will affect the chain of command for the Columbiana plant.

John J. Kacsits was named general manager of the rubber industry division, the division to which the local plant belongs.

Kacsits has been with N-S since 1971 and most recently was division manager of the perforated products division.

In addition, Roy S. Stewart was named group vice president of wire products, which includes the rubber industry division and three other divisions.

Stewart has served the company for 26 years, most recently as western division manager based in Whittier, California.

National-Standard's chief headquarters offices are in Niles, Michigan. Plants are located throughout the United States, India, Europe and South Africa.

Liquor store battle continues in Calera

It might seem cut and dried to some after the last Calera Council meeting, but a group of citizens continue to wage a battle against the establishment of a liquor store in the community.

Members of the Concerned Citizens group say that petitions they have circulated contain the names of 479 registered voters who oppose the store.

They point out this is a majority of the qualified voters in the community. But the council still would not change their minds about the decision, voted on more than a month ago, to allow an ABC store to open.

Citizens expressed disapproval of the store's coming in without their knowledge. Some said their first inkling of the council's plans was when they noticed the old Western Auto Store being reconstructed.

The building owned by the Charles Wade family on Hwy. 25 had been destroyed by fire last year.

However, Mayor George Roy pointed out that an article about the town getting a store had appeared in newspapers. He also said that minutes of the meeting at which the store had been approved had been posted.

No public hearing was held nor was a legal announcement put in a newspaper, because neither was required, the panel said.

Refuting the theory that patrons of the store would increase business at other stores in town, the Concerned Citizens related they had found this wouldn't be the case.

In another community which has a store, members observed that those who stopped in were not accompanied by their families and did not shop at any nearby stores.

The group also point out that statistics show that crime increases in a community where liquor is sold.

Mrs. Becky Hayes reported that figures she compiled show that the revenue from the store would not even pay the salary of an extra policeman, which she said would be needed.

Mayor Roy told the opponents of the store that Calera merchants had approached the council about six months ago, asking them to go to Montgomery and ask for the store.

Even though members of the panel complied, they were turned down by the ABC Board. Then the board called two months ago to say they were considering putting a store in Calera and Montevallo, Roy reported.

The council voted four to one for the store. Councilman Don DeLoach was the only member of the panel opposed.

"We requested a straw vote, which wouldn't have cost the town anything, to show that the majority of residents are opposed," declared J. B. Denham. However, the council took no action on the proposal.

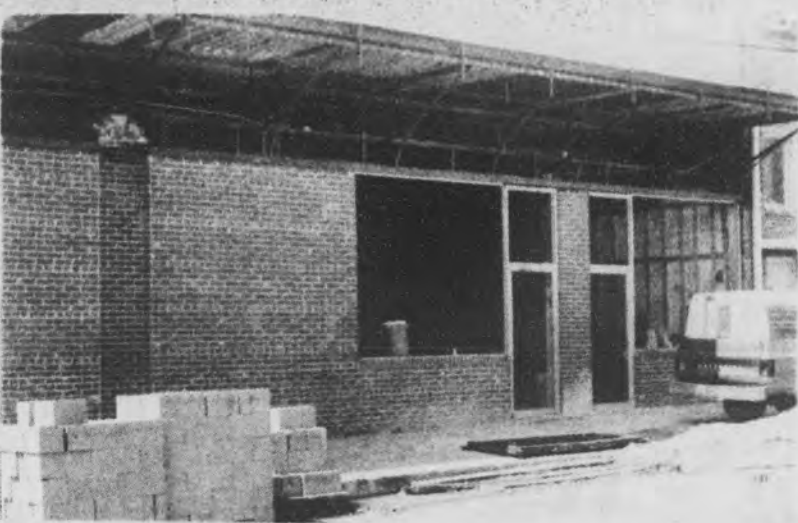

The control, which the council assured the group would be maintained, can't continue after the liquor leaves the store, the group maintain.

They say they have observed teenagers and even children get beer.

Increased revenue seems to be the biggest reason for wanting the store, the group report. But they claim that merchants should have more competitive prices in order to attract more business to the community.

Even though the only thing lacking before the store opens for business is approval of the construction and the signing of the lease, the Concerned Citizens say they intend to continue their opposition.

Rev. Mack McCollum, pastor of the Calera Baptist Church, has spoken with administrators of the ABC Board. He indicated that there is still a ray of hope that the store may be kept from opening.

Future liquor store

Even though a large group of Calera residents oppose the opening of an ABC store in their community, construction continues on the building which will house the business.

Golfers play Inverness course in support of King's Ranch

Over 100 golfers were waiting in the tee boxes on the Inverness course Friday for the sound of a shotgun.

And the blast from Deputy Jim

For second season

Alabaster 'Stars win district

The Alabaster Minor League All-Stars did it again. For the second season in a row the team claimed the District III, Dixie Youth Championship.

Roberts' weapon came promptly at 8:33 a.m. when the tournament to raise money for King's Ranch got underway.

After the shotgun start, golfers played 18 holes, coming into the clubhouse around 1:45 p.m.

The names of two winners in the first annual tournament are well known to hockey fans. Paul Henderson and John Stewart, both former players for the Birmingham Bulls, teamed up with Billy Strickland and Jack Buck for a net score of 55.

The second place team posted a net of 57. Its members were Billy Wood, Richard Simmons, Mark Miller and Henry Mellon.

And third place finishers, with a net score of 58, were Paul Lyons, Ron Threadgill, Will Spencer and Lou Vance.

Both speakers at the buffet luncheon following the tournament, plugged King's Ranch, a Christian home near Westover which offers youngsters a helping hand.

District Attorney Billy Hill told the crowd of the difference he had seen in "three of our worst cases," after they had spent a few weeks in the ranch environment.

And District Court Judge Patti Smith also commended Tom and Linda Owen for the influence they have had on children from disrupted homes.

Joining the golfers for lunch in the Inverness dining room were Roger and Angie Reed and Mrs. Jim Roberts, all houseparents at soon to be opened units at the ranch.

Awards handed out at the luncheon went to golfers for the longest drive and being closest to the pin on several holes.

Time out

Local golfer Jimmy Thrasher welcomes a drink and a good laugh with members of the King's Ranch staff before driving his ball down the fairway. The Montevallo resident is pictured with Linda Owen, Angie Reed and Jefferson County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Roberts, who is also a houseparent at the ranch.

Dove season nears

Dove season will open in Shelby County at noon on September 20.

The bag and possession limit will be 12 per day and 12 in possession.

The first of the split season will end on November 5. The second season will begin in Shelby County and all counties north of here on December 19 and will end on January 10.

Dates of the seasons vary in the southern counties of the state.

The Advisory board to the Department of Conservation established the hours and dates at its July 22 meeting in Montgomery.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service gave each state the opportunity for all-day dove hunting within the federal framework and allowed the individual states to decide whether to continue half-day shooting or allow hunting from early morning until sundown.

Acting to avoid excessive

Central Shelby loses in state

The Central Shelby Babe Ruth All-Stars, after winning their district championship, lost in the state playoffs last weekend in Pell City.

Playing with the top six 14-15 year-old all-stars from Alabama, Central Shelby lost to the Mobile Rangers 13-0 Friday night. Saturday they were eliminated from the playoffs by Huntsville Northwest, 12-9.

At benefit tourney

Falcons draw golfers

The first annual "Fans For Falcons" Invitational Golf Tournament was held at Cahawba Falls Country Club in Centreville last Saturday.

John White of Centreville won medalist honors with an 18-hole score of 79 and a 40 on the final nine to capture the "A" Division with a 119. Runner-up in that division was Fred Winslett of Montevallo with a 122.

UM baseball coach Bob Riesener won the "B" Division with a 126.

Medalist and 1st Flight champion with a 122 was Matt Sproul of Montevallo. Columbiana

The tournament was played last week in Midfield and the Alabaster boys advanced to Saturday night finals with wins Monday through Friday.

In the finals against Sumiton, they found themselves in the hole until Byron Partridge slugged a homer in the third to go ahead 3-2.

But Sumiton fought back and in the bottom of the sixth inning was ahead again, 5-4. With two outs and runners on base, David Walker hit a single that scored Brian Bunn from third. On an error on the same play, Partridge scored the winning run from second for a final score of 6-5.

The winning pitcher for Alabaster was Derek Wood.

The other All-Stars on the team are Jade Acker, Mike Barefoot, Darrell Byars, Barry Duke, Matt Hall, Brian Lee, Chris Matthews, Barry Nabors, Scott Newell, Chris Perkins and David Walker. They are coached by Dewayne Wood, Jerry Newell and Doug Byars.

pressure on the dove population and to afford Game and Fish personnel the opportunity to study the effects of morning shooting of doves, the board chose to continue the half-day, 12 noon until sunset, shooting hours in North Alabama counties, and restricted hunting in the rest of the state to afternoon shooting only during the first several days and then all-day shooting for the remainder of the season.

Teeing off

Former Sterrett resident Bill Smith gives his ball a mighty whack as he tees off during Friday's tournament at Inverness Country Club. The 110 golfers who participated in the event to raise money for King's Ranch started their tour around the course at the same time when a shotgun blast signaled tee-off time at 8:33 a.m.

4-H'ers prove ability in horse show event

Members of the Shelby County 4-H Horse Club proved their ability in District I competition by claiming 20 of the 43 first place ribbons that were handed out.

And Wednesday, 13 district winners loaded up their horses again for a trip to Montgomery where they began vying for prizes in state competition.

In the district show at the Southeastern Horse Center in Decatur, Shelby County 4-H'ers won both the English and Western Junior High Point awards.

Cindy Argo racked up the most points in English classes and Jessica Ann Eisenberg accomplished the same feat in Western competition.

In the senior division, Carolyn Smiley was awarded the western showmanship award and Beth Bowman captured the English showmanship title.

Other first place winners were: Ashley Ford, Melissa Schoel, and Lisa Usher.

Ribbons were also won by: Pam Power, John Smith, Darby Wolf, Kendal Wolf, Reynold Wolf.

Y campers learn ways of Indians

Indian youngsters knew how to make bows and arrows, track animals and build fires.

And last week in Helena's Joe Tucker Park a group of young Shelby Countians tried their hand at imitating Indian ways.

YMCA day campers came dressed for the occasion wearing feathered headbands, moccasins and fringed garments.

During a trek through the woods, the make believe Indians learned how to track and gathered sticks suitable for making bows.

Other activities during the day included learning Indian songs, games and dances. And the day campers were also instructed in Indian crafts.

This is the Y's fourth day camp session this summer with two more yet to go.

According to Program Director Mary Bynum, each session includes a special day and field trips.

Campers in this session recently traveled to Tannehill Park which Bynum said was one of the best trips to date.

Other special days have been Cowboy Day, the 50's and Red, White and Blue Day.

Learning the signs

YMCA day camp participants found out how Indian children lived during this session's special day. Here the youngsters follow Program Director Mary Byrum in learning a prayer in sign language.

The campers also took to the woods for tracking as part of their Indian Day activities in Helena's Joe Tucker Park.

Softball continues in Montevallo

The men's slow-pitch softball tourney held last Saturday in Montevallo was won by Center Point, who defeated Captain D's 18-8.

The two teams both won their five-team divisions to advance to the finals.

The other teams in the round robin tourney were Brasher Roofing, Lloyd's Restaurant, Buddy's Barbeque, Smith Brothers, Teamsters, Papsts, American International and Super Bowl.

A men's "B" division slow pitch tourney will be held this Saturday at Orr Park in Montevallo. Teams interested in playing can contact Ott Knight at 665-7143.

Grow your own snapper

For the first time in the United States, red snapper were successfully collected and spawned using a hormone technique.

Biologists of the Alabama Department of Conservation and natural resources, Marine Resources Division, accomplished this feat on July 19, at the Claude Petet Mariculture Center in Gulf Shores.

The significance of this event is the scientific documentation of a successful hormone spawning procedure for the red snapper and the potential of capturing the life cycle of the red snapper in an artificial environment. This may lead to future commercial mariculture of the snapper and an increase in the supply of this valuable marine fish. Mariculture is the farming of marine fish or shrimp in ponds.

A technique that made this breakthrough possible was the biologists ability to relieve the pressure on the fish's air bladder using a hypodermic syringe. These snapper came from depths of 90 feet and the air bladder (a

Taught by Shelby expert

UM to offer classes for antique fanciers

Collecting antiques may begin by accident.

You may inherit a tarnished silver pitcher or scratched-up chest of drawers from your great aunt, or you may buy an old lamp at an out-of-the-way junk store.

In either case, inheritance or purchase, your antiques may turn out to be priceless, and you probably don't know it. On the other hand, the pieces may be rather commonplace, yet they may be the beginning of a fine home collection, antique fanciers say.

Antique expert George Burton, who lives with his antiques at "The Brick House," a restored home in the old village of Shelby, near Columbiana, will teach "History of Antiques" at the University of Montevallo this fall. The non-credit night class for adults will help provide class members with a beginning knowledge of 18th and 19th century English and American antiques.

The class is designed to help people identify antiques, to help them develop their antique buying skills and to help them learn more about the antiques they might already own, according to Kay Watts, coordinator of continuing education at UM.

Class activities will include discussions, slides, lectures and tours. Subjects will include furniture, china, silver, glass, pewter and other antiques. Classes will meet in UM's new Continuing Education Center Monday nights, 7-9 for nine evenings beginning September 22.

Burton has studied antiques at museums and collections such as the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation; Metropolitan Museum, New York City; Philadelphia Museum; and Winterthur Museum, Wilmington, Del. He is on the Board of Store Managers of Colonial Williamsburg, Advisory Board of the Mayor of Birmingham for Arlington Home and Museum, and has been a regional advisor for the Metropolitan Museum of New York and member of two museums in Kentucky.

The antique expert has also taught college continuing education classes for more than 15 years.

Anyone who wants more information can call Mrs. Watts at UM, 665-2521, ext. 362.

Local plan for educating handicapped now available

The Program for Exceptional Children and Youth of the Shelby County School System announced the availability of the Local Education Agency's Comprehensive Plan for the delivery of special education and related services. The plan is available for review and comment in the superintendent's office from July 22, through August 21, 1980.

The annual Program Plan provides a description of commitments made by the Shelby County School System to ensure that all handicapped children in the County will be provided a free, appropriate public education as prescribed by law. (Public Law 94-142.)

All individuals who have recommendations for changes in the plan should make their comments in writing and send them to Mr. Charles Knowles, Superintendent of Education in Shelby County, 410 East College Street, Columbiana, AL 35051.

tion as prescribed by law. (Public Law 94-142.)

Vandiver revival

A revival will be held at Union Hill Freewill Baptist Church in Vandiver August 3-8.

Rev. Arthur Renfro will conduct the evening services which will begin at 7.

An open invitation to the services, is extended by the church's pastor, Rev. Earnest Walker.

Night out

Looking forward to dinner and a show at the Celebrity Dinner Theatre last Wednesday evening were "Bama" Joe Hill and Hubert Lawley, two disabled veterans from the Alabaster VFW post. Roger Reeser, Sr. Vice Commander of the post accompanied the two theatre goers to the event.

Valley Elementary School schedules fall registration

Registration for Valley Elementary School will be held August 11-13, Monday through Wednesday, from 8-11 in the mornings and 6-8 in the evenings.

First graders who preregistered in May don't have to register again, but all other students who will be in grades 1-5 must register.

Birth and health certificates are required for students new to Valley, and new students above the first grade must bring a report card as proof of grade.

Valley School is offering a day care service again this year, according to principal Dr. Norma Rogers. The day care will be open after school from 3-6. For more day care information, call 663-3682.

Roy elected

Calera mayor George W. Roy was recently elected first vice president of the Alabama Natural Gas Association.

Election was held at the association's 14th annual conference at Biloxi, Mississippi.

Two county students are candidates for undergraduate degrees at Jacksonville State University. They are Kenneth Harvey Martin of Helena and David Michael Allison of Sterrett.

Summer graduation exercises will be Friday, August 8 at 8 p.m. in Pete Mathews Coliseum.

natural buoyancy compensator in fish that helps keep them at a neutral weight at any depth) would have ruptured after the fish were brought to the surface. Relieving this pressure enabled the fish to regain their equilibrium and be transported to the lab in an unstressed condition.

At the lab the fish were acclimated to laboratory conditions and treated with an antibiotic to prevent infection. Immediately upon arrival at the lab a two lb. female and two males were injected with a hormone, chorionic gonadotropin, to induce ovulation. The female required a second injection and 12 hours later eggs were stripped from the female and sperm from the males. These were mixed and the eggs began to hatch at 12:30 p.m., July 20.

Hugh Swingle, Director of Marine Resources Division, commended his entire staff on this major breakthrough and singled out John Hawke and Vernon Minton for their determination in accomplishing this feat.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Pelham church puppet

Angel Brasher and Mike Green are two of the youngsters who met Doozy the puppet at Pelham United Methodist Church's Bible School.

'Doozy' leads Bible School

A puppet named Doozy brings the morning message each day to youngsters attending Vacation Bible School at Pelham United Methodist Church.

And during the three hours the 95 participants spend at the sessions this week, they also have a music hour, arts and crafts, Bible study, recreation and refreshments.

"Jesus I Believe in You," is the theme of this year's school which is under the direction of Mary Martin.

Thirty two church members are helping with the week long school which will conclude with graduation exercises Sunday night at 7 o'clock.

One of the highlights of VBS each year at the Pelham Church, is a picnic at Martin-Fogel Lake. The outing will be held on Friday afternoon.

Surviving the heat

Coleene Moore shows how she used her hands to mound soil around potato plants in her garden at Chelsea. The plants are thriving well after being planted during the recent heat wave. An abundance of water was used at the time of planting, but the plants have not been watered since -- except by very brief, light rain showers.

Gardeners prepare for fall, give plants plenty of water

by Shelba Nivens

It's time to be planting a fall garden, say county gardeners.

According to John Jones, "Peas, pole beans, squash, cucumbers, almost everything but corn, can be planted now and will probably make if conditions are favorable.

Coleene Moore has already put out sweet potatoes in her garden at Chelsea. As a matter of fact, she has had them out about two weeks now.

"Everybody laughed at me for putting them out during all that dry weather," she said, "But they lived."

She explained that when setting out the plants, she gave them plenty of water which she carried to the garden in a large garbage can. She dug very large holes and poured in water before putting in the plants. "I just mixed up a little mud and put the plants in," she laughed.

Then she filled the holes with water and pulled in dry soil to help hold the moisture in. "You have to pull in the dirt real slow. If you are not careful the water runs away. Be sure the water stays around the roots," she cautioned.

She added that as another precaution against the heat, she soaked the plants overnight to give them plenty of moisture.

"I made big mounds of dirt around the plants," she continued, adding that she was told this would kill the plants -- but it didn't.

And visitors to Coleene's garden can see that she is right.

The plants are several inches high, and appear very healthy and sturdy.

"I didn't fertilize them either," she said. She usually fertilizes everything she plants, but feared that fertilizer would help to burn the plants. She put fertilizer around them after they had been out about two weeks and had received a little moisture from a few light rain showers. "I waited until they had made themselves at home in the ground," she laughed.

Oak Mt. plans 'theatre in park'

Oak Mountain Park is one of six state parks to present the Children's Musical Theatre this summer.

The touring summer production of "Is That A Fact?" is based on the Guinness Book of World Records. It is a feature of "Theatre in the Parks."

"Is That A Fact?" was designed to teach boys and girls the importance of setting goals and working to attain these goals.

The troupe of actors/technicians comes from all over the nation and were selected from an audition of 650 people. They were chosen for the blend of talents required for the program being offered this summer.

Immediately following performances the actors will lead an informal, on-the-spot workshop. "Is That A Fact?" will run at Oak Mountain August 6-9. Performances are at 2:30 and 6:30 p.m.

Alabama Youth Symphony will hold auditions for string instruments Saturday, September 6 at Samford University.

Interested persons may call the Alabama Symphony Association Education Division at 326-0100 for further information.

Council takes art to school

"Art in the Shelby County Schools and how to Further its Growth" was the subject of the summer meeting of the board of directors of the Arts and Humanities Council of Shelby County.

During the past year, the council has been involved in promoting the arts in the schools by sponsoring printmaking workshops, touring musical programs from the University of Montevallo and Carl Sandburg readings from the University of Montevallo at most county high schools.

The council has also sponsored a traveling art exhibit to all county middle schools and high schools.

A dramatic workshop was taught by Ms. Suzanne Myers at Columbiana Middle School.

During the year the Arts Council also compiled a Directory containing the names and addresses of many artists in Shelby County and distributed the directories to the county schools for the use of the teachers.

Projects proposed for the coming year include more dramatic workshops for Vincent, Columbiana Middle and Elementary, Montevallo Middle and Elementary, Thompson Middle and Elementary, Valley Elementary and Riverchase Middle Schools.

Also planned are 2 music demonstrations by John Owen from the University of Montevallo on the elementary level.

The Birmingham Symphony will present four ensemble programs. These will be held at Columbiana Elementary, Vincent Elementary, Thompson High and Riverchase Middle schools.

Projects which are planned but not yet scheduled include 2 printmaking workshops, dramatic readings of Robert Frost and a traveling art exhibit.

A membership drive is now underway. All persons interested in promoting the arts in Shelby County schools and communities are urged to join the Arts Council. Memberships are $3.00 student, $10.00 single, $15.00 couple, $25.00 business and club.

The first meeting for the coming school year will be Thursday, September 4 at 7 p.m. at Thompson Elementary School in Alabaster.

Officers for this year are President, Esta Lee; First Vice President, Bob Cowan; 2nd Vice President, Rebecca Draper; Secretary, Charlotte Holder; treasurer, Rachel Fowler.

For further information call 665-4050 or 668-1262.

Author to speak at writers' meet

Alabama author William Bradford Huie will headline the 1980 Alabama Writers' Conclave when it convenes at Samford University August 6, 7, and 8. He will be guest of honor and main speaker at the awards banquet on Friday evening.

Huie has over 28,000,000 books in print and six major motion pictures to his credit.

He has also received attention for his series of "Life" magazine articles about the civil rights struggle and for his contacts with the accused murderer of Martin Luther King, Jr.

Among the noted speakers and workshop leaders will be an assistant editor from "Newsweek" magazine, a "Guideposts" writer, a working agent and publisher and a genealogy expert.

Persons wishing further advance information might contact Dr. George V. Irons, Box 2223, Samford University, Birmingham 35209.

State of Alabama, Shelby County

In Probate Court, Shelby County, Alabama

Call For An Election

North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District

In accordance with the provisions of Act No. 82, H. 213 First Special Session 1977, as amended by Act No. 79-369 First Special Session 1979

An Election is hereby Ordered to be held to permit the qualified voters residing within the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District to vote on the question of whether or not the below listed Schedule of Service Charges be approved as applicable within the district, effective for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980.

The election is called in response to a petition signed by the duly elected Trustees of the District, namely, Martha Geyer, John Pruett, L. Stephen Wright, Jr., Larry Dillard and John V. van Pelt, III, said petition having been filed in the office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, on the 25th day of July, 1980.

Said election shall be held on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, between the hours of 7:00 o'clock a.m. and 7:00 o'clock p.m. at New Hope Presbyterian Church, located at the intersection of Highway 12 and 10 and Bryan Memorial Church in Beat 12 Box 3 and Inverness Apartment Clubhouse in Beat 12 Box 4.

Done this 25th day of July, 1980.

Thomas A. Snowden, Jr., Judge of Probate

We the undersigned, being all of the duly elected Trustees of the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District hereinafter referred to as "the district" hereby petition in accord with the provisions of Act No. 82, H. 213 First Special Session 1977 (Acts 1977, p. 1483) as amended by Act No. 79-369 First Special Session 1979 and do hereby request the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, to call an election in accord with the provisions of Sections 5, 7 and 13 of said Act No. 82, H. 213.

As amended, on the following question:

1. Shall the following Schedule of Service Charges be approved as applicable within the district, effective for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980, and for ensuing fiscal years, and for such fiscal years supersede the Schedule of Service Charges, heretofore approved by the voters of the district in an election held May 1, 1978.

A. Service charges in general.

The charges shall be levied upon and be collectible from persons and properties served by the system established for the district, or the district may at its election, levy the charges in the first instance upon the owners of the land upon which the structures stand. The charges shall be a personal obligation of the occupant and the landowner. The term occupant includes persons who have the right to occupy a structure whether or not such persons physically occupy the structure. In the case of multiple units, the district has the option of billing and initially collecting from the owner of a group of apartments, an office building, a shopping center or the land upon which mobile homes are located.

2. To secure the collection thereof, the charges shall, unless otherwise prohibited by law, be a lien in favor of the District against the structure or structures available for use of such occupant and the land on which such structure or structures are situated.

3. The lien shall be enforceable by sale of the land in the same manner in which municipal assessments for public improvements are enforced.

4. If more than one occupant or owner is liable for the charge during a fiscal year, the District shall have the right to collect any unpaid "annual charges," "prorated charges," and "other charges," including charges from prior fiscal years from the persons who are separately liable therefor; or from the sale of the land as provided in 3 above; provided however that the total "annual charge" or "prorated charge" collected from all occupants or owners who are separately or severally liable, or from the sale of the land shall not exceed the sum of all "annual charges," of all "prorated charges," and of all "other charges" which are unpaid as of the date of such collection.

5. Service charges are collectible whether or not timely billing of such charges is effected. Penalties for late payment are assessable whether or not the original billing of the service charge defined in Paragraph E1 is effected.

6. In the event that there is ambiguity in the classification of a particular property, or in the application of any service charge, the Board of Trustees shall render a decision as to the appropriate classification or to the propriety of such application but only in accordance with appeal procedures hereinafter provided, and such decision shall be final.

7. Service charges are collectible if any portion of a structure is located within the district.

8. In the event partial payment is made in respect of a property the payment shall be applied first to the oldest outstanding charge.

9. The Board of Trustees may, upon appeal, but in their sole discretion, waive "annual charges" if the property owner is indigent, considering his total assets, in the opinion of the Trustees.

B. Definitions

1. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - A single family residence is a structure designed primarily as a dwelling to be occupied by one family (one or more persons all of whom, or all but two of whom, are related to each other by birth, adoption, or marriage) and includes all outbuildings or other structures such as garages, pools, sheds, campers and movable trailers located on a single parcel of land except when the use to which any such outbuilding or other structure is put represents a commercial endeavor, or if any of such outbuildings are used as a dwelling (in which event such building shall be classified as an apartment). If any portion of the principal structure is held open for lease, such portion shall be deemed to be an apartment or more than one apartment, depending upon the circumstances, and as determined by the Board of Trustees. In certain instances, a structure may serve a dual purpose, e.g. serving as a dwelling and concurrently being utilized for commercial purposes. In such situations, the Trustees of the District will determine, based upon a review of the facts, and in a large measure being guided by the square footage devoted to each use, which is the predominant purpose, as a commercial enterprise, school, church or other enterprise provides living accommodations for employees, or others, the structures shall be treated as individual units in the pertinent classification which would apply if the structure was not related to the commercial enterprise, school, church or other endeavor.

2. CLASS - References to various classes are to the various classifications of fire protection as determined by the Insurance Services Office, Inc., Birmingham, Alabama, or other rating service that may be designated by the State to rate fire protection services.

3. MULTIPLE UNITS - Multiple units refer to structures which, singly or together, house more than one occupant (i.e. owner, lessee, second household) and include individual condominiums in which an association acts for the individual owners; individual apartments; portions of residences held for lease, identified as one or more apartments; separate structures, located on parcels of land attached to a residence identified as apartments; office buildings; shopping centers in which the structures are separate and individual units in mobile home parks.

4. MOBILE HOMES - Mobile homes are single wheel trailers, fourteen feet in width or less serving as residences or held for residential occupancy, which are mounted on chassis and/or connected to utilities and to which no remodeling other than the installation of steps to provide access to the structure, has been done which alters the outside dimensions of the structure. Furthermore, such buildings, related to such mobile homes will represent an additional category of structure. Residential mobile home units which do not conform to the foregoing dimensions will be classified in the appropriate residence classification.

5. GROUND AREA COVERED - When the charge for a structure is based upon the ground area covered the measurement shall include all roof overhangs, porches, wells, out buildings, greenhouses, sheds, air conditioning units, and pools (whether or not part of the air conditioning system). In the case of commercial endeavors, churches, schools, or non-profit organizations, separate functions or businesses shall be measured individually. Except that any structure deemed to be a single family residence, apartment or mobile home shall not be included in the aggregate square footage. In any situation, structures on non-contiguous parcels of land (including those separated by public roads, streams, etc.) shall be treated as separate units.

6. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENT - Commercial establishments include office buildings, farms operated for a profit, liveable stables, research centers, manufacturing plants, sales offices, stores and other enterprises. A swimming pool used for commercial purposes would be chargeable as a separate unit in the accompanying residential unit. In the case of farm houses, serving as the abode of a farmer or a farm manager, the structure would be classified in the appropriate category of residence, and would not be included as a commercial structure.

C. ANNUAL CHARGES - The following types of structures shall be subject to the indicated charges, if the structure is closed (covered by a roof, whether or not a finally finished roof), other than a swimming pool used for commercial purposes which shall be chargeable after the pool construction is completed, on or before the fifteenth day of the first month of the fiscal year of the District:

1. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class A - $100.00

2. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class B or C - $50.00

3. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class 10 - $25.00

4. CONDOMINIUMS - Each unit - $100.00

5. TOWN HOMES - Each unit - $100.00

6. APARTMENTS - Each unit $50.00

7. SINGLE FAMILY (Single structure without basement with no more than 900 sq. ft. of ground area covered) - $25.00

8. MOBILE HOMES - Each unit - $25.00

9. OUTBUILDINGS, each such structure, either in mobile home park or owned by owners of individual mobile homes or which represent the only structure on otherwise unoccupied land - $10.00

10. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS, AND NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - Less than 35 feet to the highest extremity above ground level - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .02

11. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS AND NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - From 35 feet to 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level for any structure - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .08

12. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS, SCHOOLS, CHURCHES AND OTHER NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS - More than 60 feet to the highest extremity

above ground level (excluding in this measurement, church steeples) - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100) - .10

13. SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES with no structures above 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level (excluding in this measurement, church steeples) - per square foot of ground area covered for structures steepled, to public use (Minimum charge $100.00) - .01

14. Should the district be related to a lower classification the single family resident, condominiums and town houses charge applicable to such lower classification will be 10% higher than Class 7 for each lower step in the classification scale.

D. PRORATED CHARGES -

1. If any structure (similar to those enumerated in the section dealing with annual charges) is closed in with a roof (or a swimming pool used for commercial purposes) is completed) after the fifteenth day of the first month of the fiscal year of the District, the charge for such structure for the balance of the fiscal year shall be obtained by multiplying the annual charge as shown or computed from Section C, above, and multiplying such charge by a percentage obtained by dividing the number of months (one-half or more of a month) shall be treated as a full month) remaining in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

2. In the event that the class or classification of any structure is changed to a class or classification providing for an increased service charge, the additional billing shall be obtained by dividing the difference between the initial (and lower) service charge and the revised (and higher) service charge and multiplying such difference by a percentage obtained by dividing the number of months (one-half or more of a month) shall be treated as a full month) remaining in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

3. In the event that a residence is subdivided into apartments or additional units are added to a trailer park, in each instance increasing the aggregate number of units involved to a number in excess of those for which charges should have been made at the commencement of the fiscal year, the additional billing shall be determined by computing the difference between the initial service charge and a revised service charge assuming that the total number of units had been present at the commencement of the fiscal year and multiplying such difference by a percentage obtained by dividing the number of months remaining (one-half or more of a month) shall be treated as a full month), as of the effective date of such change in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

E. OTHER CHARGES -

1. Any payment for a charge not received by the District within 90 days of the original date upon which the liability arose, whether or not such charge was billed by the District, shall incur an additional charge of $15.00 for each billable unit (individually to each of several multiple units) upon which the charge is based, except that, in the case of charges based upon square footage or hours, the charge of $15.00 per unit shall apply only to each separately billable structure or function.

2. There shall be a charge of $20.00 per hour, in addition to any equipment leaves the station until return of all equipment to the station, or dispatch of all equipment to another site, for fighting of forest or grass fires on property in the District (as determined by the Board of Trustees) not otherwise covered by service charges, such charges to be paid by the owner of record of the property.

3. All owners and/or occupants of residences, condominiums, townhouses and apartments, exclusive of owners and occupants of apartments served only by private metered fire hydrants with no annual maintenance charge) in all areas of the District designated as Class 7 (or any lower classification) and all commercial, church and school customers served by water lines of Birmingham Water Works shall as of October 15th in each fiscal year be assessed an amount computed as set forth below, in addition to any other charges otherwise due for the purpose of providing money to the District to enable it to pay annual rental fees and maintenance costs on fire hydrants on the lines of such water system, when the annual rental for such fire hydrants in the District is established at no more than $90.00 (exclusive of utility tax) this surcharge shall be $5.00, and there shall be a $1.00 increase in such charge for each $10.00 or any part thereof by which the annual rental (exclusive of utility tax) exceeds $90.00.

4. An application for appeal to the Trustees of the District with respect to any service charge must be filed within 30 days of the date as of which the charge becomes legally assessable, whether or not billed. An appeal may cover more than one service charge assessable against a single appellant. Once an application for appeal has been timely filed, the Trustees shall enter into discussions with the appellant to determine a mutually satisfactory date for the holding of a hearing on the appeal.

5. A property owner shall be liable for all costs incurred by the District in enforcing collection, including an allowance for reasonable attorney's fees, advertising, filing fees, mailing costs, and allowances for collection efforts, whether or not a suit is actually entered, and for interest at maximum legal rates from the date of filing of any formal lien notice, entering of a Court citation or commencement of any service charge proceedings, liens against the property are a subject of the enabling legislation under which the District was established.

F. REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES - The Trustees of the District propose that the foregoing Schedule of Service charges will provide support for the maintenance of a fire station located on Valleydale Road in the north end of Shelby County (County Road No. 17) approximately one-half mile east of Caldwell Mill Road (County Road No. 29), together with a staff of professional firemen providing twenty-four hour staffing of the department. The staff, qualified paramedics on each shift, will provide for support by volunteer firemen, and will additionally provide for the payment by the District of any annual charges for fire hydrants levied by Birmingham Water Works for periods commencing on or after October 1, 1980, but not until after the expiration of the initial three year period levied against developers of subdivisions.

G. CERTIFICATION OF TRUSTEES - The Trustees certify that the service charges proposed in this petition will provide adequate financing for the services enumerated in Section F hereof, and will also provide for the interest and maturities on all outstanding debt of the District.

This petition is submitted by the following named individuals, being all of the elected Trustees of the District: Martha Geyer, John Pruett, L. Stephen Wright, Jr., Larry Dillard and John V. van Pelt, III.

Respectfully submitted,

John van Pelt, John Pruett, Larry Dillard, L. Stephen Wright, Jr.

School lunches go up; hit highs of 80 cents

In order to cope with rising costs and a decrease in funds, the Shelby County Board of Education Wednesday approved an increase in the price of meals served in school lunchrooms.

Charging an extra nickel for breakfast will bring that price to 45 cents at all schools where that meal is served. This is an 11% increase.

And upping the price of lunches in middle and high schools to 80 cents represents a 14% rise with the 75 cent charge in elementary schools reflecting a 15% increase.

Adult lunches will also be more with school personnel paying $1.20 and visitors $1.50.

Pat Bulger, who handles the county's lunchroom program, enumerated the factors leading to the necessity for higher prices.

She mentioned an inflation rate running between 16-18%, and federal regulations increasing the nutritional requirements for children as well as the minimum preparation cost of a meal.

In the area of state funding, Bulger pointed out that there would be a $200 decrease of salary supplements for support personnel while at the same time a 16% raise was being mandated for these workers without any source of funding.

Explaining why adult lunches went up, the director of the lunchroom program noted that USDA regulations say that adults must pay the price of the free lunch reimbursement plus the price of contributed commodities.

She put the free lunch reimbursement figure at $1.02 while commodities were estimated at 17 cents per meal.

Another state mandated raise was approved by the board, but when a member of the panel questioned Deputy Superintendent Vern Davis about where the money would come from, he replied, "The Lord only knows!"

That 16% increase in salary will be for both student and adult bus drivers. A teacher raise was approved at the last board meeting.

And when they voted on pay increases, the panel included vocational teachers in their action. Their salaries will now be on a par with other teachers with the additional months they work added on.

A $17 a day rate was also approved for maintenance technician substitutes.

Approval was also given to increasing fees for vocational students. Adding on $5, the charge will now be $20.

In other business, the board accepted the resignations of eight teachers, a librarian and a speech therapist.

And the panel also approved a change in status for Chelsea's head football coach, Richard Conkle.

Although Conkle has decided to give up his coaching duties, he will remain at the school as a classroom teacher.

The board also gave their official approval to the employment of Joe Perkins as the principal of Montevallo High School.

An assistant principal at Berry High School, Perkins had been notified July 22 that he had been selected from a field of 13 applicants for the position.

1980 voters list

The names of the qualified voters of Shelby County are included in a section of this issue of the Shelby County Reporter.

The number of names has reached an alltime high, standing at 34,282. The list is current through last Thursday (July 31). Names of those who register after that time will appear in a separate supplemental list before the September primary election.

The purpose of the publication is to give all voters an opportunity to see if their name is listed correctly on the official list. It is a requirement of state law that this list be printed every two years before major elections.

Voters should first search for the beat and box in which they are registered, then read down alphabetically to find their name.

Instructions are given at the beginning of the list for those who do not find their names or for those who are registered in the wrong beat or box.

The Board of Registrars is aware that there are many names included of persons who no longer reside in this county, or who may have died. In order to establish a more accurate list in the future, there will be a re-identification program started soon.

Alabaster plays musical chairs

by Bert Seaman

Just when Alabaster Mayor Charlotte Burke thought everything was falling into place at Monday night's council meeting, she was handed another surprise.

The panel approved the mayor's suggestion that L.O. Farris take the vacant seat of resigned Councilman Gene Glasgow which he won in the July 29 runoff with Marvin Hall.

But then a note was passed down the table to the mayor, notifying her that Councilman Dan Gillis was throwing in the towel two months early.

Explaining his action, Gillis said, "I feel that the unexpired term I'm filling no longer has any validity to the citizens of Alabaster."

Gillis took over Jack Zuiderhoek's place on the council when he moved to the head of the table as mayor.

But sensing the dissatisfaction of citizens who attend meetings with the efforts of the council, Gillis decided to let his successor try his hand at the job before October rolls around.

Calvin McCune, who would have taken the seat when the new council was installed, had agreed to assume the duties of street commissioner at the next meeting, Gillis reported.

And the council approved the motion for the second new council member to join the panel August 18.

One of the things that had irked Gillis was the resistance to filling vacancies on city boards.

Over a strong objection from incoming mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin, the panel had made an appointment to the personnel board at the last meeting.

But two other boards are short handed too, and an attempt was made to get the situation remedied for one of those bodies Monday.

However, the motion to reappoint Gladys Harper to the board of adjustments died for lack of a second.

Councilwoman Mayo Taylor voiced the strong conviction that no appointments be made until the new council takes over.

But the mayor had contended the business of the city had to be carried on until then, noting that some boards wouldn't be able to function unless appointments were made right away.

The water and gas board is another group that will be hampered until an appointment is made.

Some think the matter can be handled at the next meeting if L.O. Farris agrees to start his term then.

That would mean that three of the men seated at the table would be members of the incoming council since incumbent Roger Wheeler was unopposed in the election.

JIM KING

King seeks a seat on commission

Jim King has announced his intention to run for the Shelby County Commission representing district three.

King was born in Pelham in 1935. He holds a BS degree in business administration from the University of Montevallo.

A licensed public accountant and tax consultant, King served in the U.S. Navy and worked for the U.S. Treasury for 17 years, retiring two years ago.

He has long taken an active role in school matters. He now served as chairman of the Pelham High School trustees and he co-chairs the county educational committee. He is an officer of the Cahaba Valley Little League, and is a director of the county YM-CA.

He and his wife, the former Rose Marie Stewart, also a Shelby County native, have five children. They are active members of the Helena Baptist Church.

He is campaigning on a promise of open and efficient county government and better financial policies.

A Democrat, he will be on the ballot in the September 2 primary opposing the incumbent commissioner, J.E. "Ned" Bearden.

State conducts study of traffic in Pelham

by David Armstrong

Pelham's traffic flow is coming under close investigation.

Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway announced at Monday night's city council meeting that a study of the traffic operations and safety began recently.

The study will look at all traffic situations in the city limits with special consideration given to congested and hazardous areas, according to Dunaway.

Funding is being provided by the State Highway Department and the office of Highway and Traffic Safety Dunaway said, and will cost the city nothing.

A traffic engineering consulting firm from Memphis, Harland Bartholomew and Associates, is conducting the study, which will take about eight months.

The recommendations of the consulting firm will be reviewed by the State Highway Department and city officials before a final report is compiled.

In other business: A Pelham resident asked the council if there had been any more study for a noise ordinance. He said he was concerned about the amount of noise that the city now had and that if an ordinance were not passed soon the noise could become unbearable.

Mayor Dunaway said he had talked with an expert in noise ordinances and concluded that it would be a difficult ordinance to enforce. He said he was told that unless the ordinance were carefully worded, it could not be enforced except with the use of expensive equipment.

The council approved a request for annexation from Leslie L. Todhunter of Deer Springs Estates.

Residents of Deer Springs Estates and Royal Oaks will have to wait a little longer to decide if they want to be annexed to the city of Pelham.

According to Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway, the city had taken the request from residents to the state legislature but the request could not be considered.

The problem? There were some mistakes in the legal description of the land, Dunaway said.

The legal description is now being rewritten and when completed it will be submitted again to the legislature. If the legislature holds a special session this fall, Dunaway said, the request might be considered then.

If the legislature approves the request, the Shelby County probate judge will be asked to arrange for the residents of the housing developments to vote yes or no for their annexation.

All night chase yields suspect

An all night search through the woods in the area around Boothton finally turned up one of the suspects in a Monday robbery.

Sheriff's deputies picked up Randy Langston on the Boothton-Coalmon road around 8:45 a.m.

Langston and two companions allegedly used force to get an undisclosed amount of money from Robert L. Partridge who operates a tire business in Saginaw.

The car used in the 4:54 p.m. robbery was spotted 20 minutes later on County Rd. 10 and Coalmon Rd.

But the suspects fled into the woods and units from Alabaster, Helena, Montevallo, and sheriff's department personnel from Shelby and Bibb Counties combed the woods throughout the night.

Jefferson County deputies with dogs also assisted in the hunt.

The search is still on for the other two men. Lt. Leroy Davis with the Alabaster Police Department is in charge of the investigation.

MARIAN COTNEY

After 41 years

Extension agent retires

Marian Cotney has retired after 41 years of service with the Shelby County Extension Service.

The announcement took her co-workers as well as the general public by surprise.

Saying she did not like long "good-byes," she made last Thursday her last day on the job.

Through her long career in the county with 4-H boys and girls and with home demonstration clubs, Miss Cotney has wielded a strong influence on improving standards of nutrition and homemaking. She has also been actively involved in promoting health care for Shelby Countians.

A native of Wadley in Randolph County, she attended both the University of Montevallo and Auburn University, where she received a BS degree in vocational home economics.

In 1939 she became home demonstration agent for Shelby County after teaching vocational home economics in Wadley for four years.

She has served as president and treasurer of the Alabama Association of Extension Economists, an organization which recognized her services with a distinguished service award.

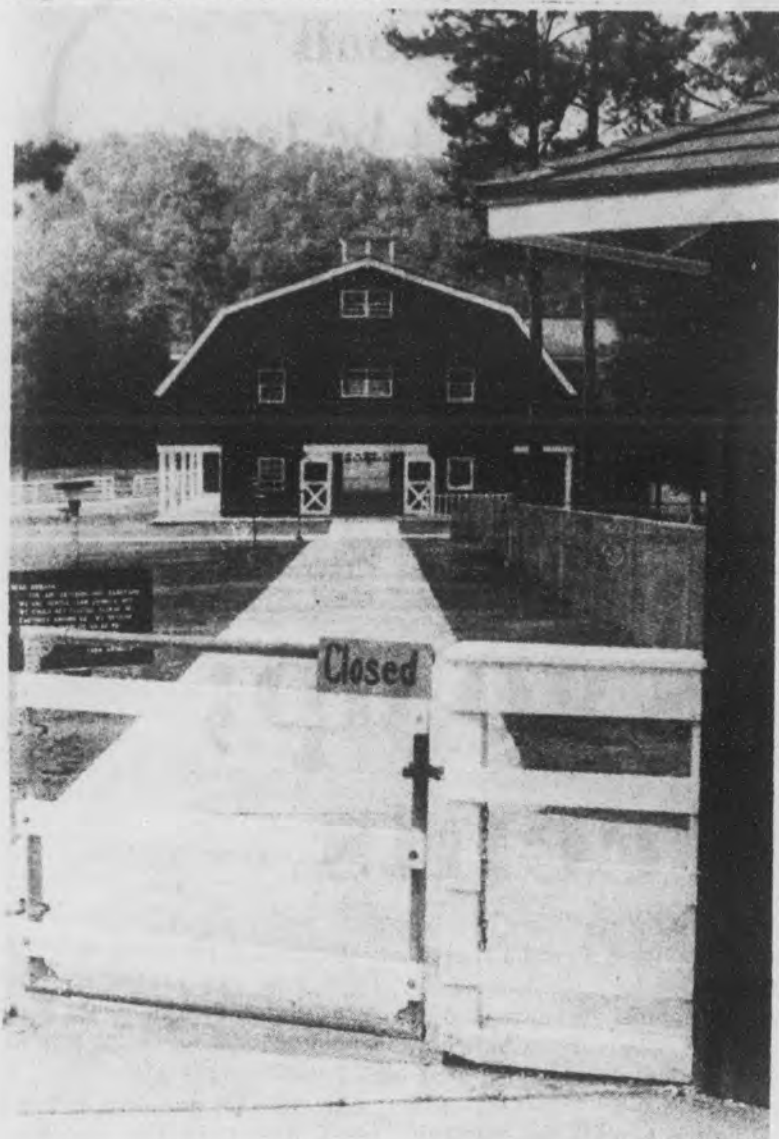

In 1954, Cotney was named Shelby County Citizen of the Year for her services in many areas.

She conducted a regular radio program on WBYE, Calera for many years.

She was instrumental in the organization of the Shelby County Health Council and is active in the cancer drive and in Red Cross work. She is a board director of the Shelby County branch of Red Cross and volunteer chapter chairman of its blood program committee.

The Columbiana resident is a member of the Columbiana Methodist Church and is active in the city's beautification program. She is a long-time member of the Novella Club and is presently president of that organization.

Grant Gober, county Extension Service director, told the Reporter, "Miss Cotney was recognized over the state as one of the best home demonstration agents. We were saddened to see her leave, but we wish her a long and happy retirement."

Future sign?

The after-hours "closed" sign on the gate of the demonstration farm at Oak Mountain will become a permanent fixture on October 1 if the head of Alabama's state parks has his way. But Oak Mountain Park director John Meredith says that if enough people react negatively to the closing, the state may reconsider the move. (Photo by Moore)

On Lay Lake

Boating accident claims one life

by Reporter staff

An accident that happens only "one time in a million" was the cause of a drowning in Lay Lake Saturday.

The steering arm broke on a 15 foot Stryker boat being driven by Todd Parker of Calera, causing the boat to flip over, according to Marine Safety Patrolman Raymond Webster.

The four passengers were thrown into the water. John Henry Robinson, of 329 Republic Ave. in Bessemer failed to come up. His body was recovered at 8:38 that evening by the Lay Lake Rescue Squad.

Passenger Greg Johnson suffered cuts on his mouth and face and was treated at Shelby Memorial Hospital. Another passenger, Curtis Byrd, suffered superficial cuts on his leg.

Patrolman Webster said the four men were co-workers at Pullman Standard in Bessemer. They had camped out at Spring Creek and were driving past Merrell Beach when the accident occurred. Webster said witnesses on the shore heard a definite "pop" when the steering arm snapped.

None of the men were wearing a life jacket, but the boat was equipped with them. After the ac-

Will it stay closed?

State plans to close Oak Mountain farm

As the nursery rhyme goes, "Ol' McDonald has a farm..." Oak Mountain has a farm, too. But the state parks director has ordered it closed by October of this year.

Since its opening in March of 1974, some 126,000 children have watched cows being milked, sheep getting sheared and have seen where bacon comes from at the demonstration farm at Oak Mountain.

Park officials claim that before some of the children visit the farm, they had never before seen a live goat.

But farm director Bill Martin says that because the operation is not making money, State Parks director William H. Ingram has ordered the facility closed by a target date of October 1.

Martin points out that the farm is unique not only in Shelby County and Alabama, but the whole southeast, because it offers many young people, who might not otherwise have the opportunity, the chance to actually see a farm and farm animals.

"Personally, I can't put a price on the educational opportunity we've given the kids," the farm director says. "I think it's a very worthwhile thing and should remain open."

Martin claims the farm "wasn't put here to make money."

But the new administration believes it should.

In the 1977-1978 fiscal year, the farm lost $24,000. In the 1978-79 year it lost $40,000, Martin says, adding that the increase in losses that year was due to improvements made on horse stables at the farm.

Oak Mountain manager John Meredith also feels the farm should remain open. He points out that closing it won't necessarily mean any big saving for the state's coffers. With the insurance and maintenance that will be required even after October, Meredith says the farm will cost the state approximately $15,000.

He says the farm generates

Men arrested

Two men have been arrested for the burglary of an Alabaster service station Friday night.

Walter J. Strickland and Pat Bennett were arrested in Columbiana Saturday afternoon and charged with the break in at Interstate Gulf on Hwy. 31.

All of the stolen items were found in the woods near the residence where Sheriff's Department Investigators Sgt. John Pratt and Sgt. Bill Davenport made the arrests.

The initial investigation was made by Alabaster policeman Richard Harmon.

In addition to almost $1,000 in change, the items taken in the burglary included jewelry, cigarettes, sun glasses and car radios.

some $15,000 per year in revenue and costs about $50,000 to run.

The farm consists of two main buildings. The demonstration area, which seats 360 people, is used for exhibitions, such as horseshoeing.

The classically designed red and white barn currently houses 19 baby pigs, 20 goats, and a representative assortment of other farm animals from ducks and turkeys to horses and mules.

The stables at the farm are rents for horse boarding to the general public and will not be closed in October, Martin said.

Along with his wife, Alice and their two daughters, Martin lives in a house on the farm.

The recent letter from Ingram notifying the park of the farm's target closing date, notes that the state will make an effort to relocate Martin and his family.

But Martin says his job is not the point that should be considered in the closing of the farm. Rather it is that this unique facility will no longer be available for the pleasures and education of children.

The farm director admits, however, that he entertains the hope that if enough people might get concerned about the closing of the farm, governmental ears in Montgomery might take heed and reconsider.

Meredith says, "There's a lot of people unhappy about (the closing of the farm). I hope there's enough sentiment so that people will move towards keeping it open."

In the meantime, Martin notes, "If anyone wants a tour, they'd better get a move on."

CONTENTMENT

THE CONTENTED MAN is never poor. The discontented man is always poor. "He who loves money will never be satisfied with money; nor he who loves wealth, with gain." (Eccl. 5:10).

"GODLINESS WITH CONTENTMENT is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can take nothing out; but having food and covering we shall be therewith content." (1 Tim. 6:6).

WE LEARN TO BE CONTENT. "...I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. I know how to be abased, and I know also how to abound; in everything and in all things I have learned the secret both to be filled and to be hungry, both to abound and to be in want. I can do all things in him (Christ) who strengthens me." (Phil. 4:11-13). Strength comes from "faith" made strong by knowing and obeying God's word. (Rom. 10:17; Jas. 2:20-24).

A LIFE OF OBEYING God's word is a life of contentment.

Problems explained

Pelham cable owner clears air

by David Armstrong
Two weeks ago Pelham city council members were upset about the slow progress of cable television in their community. But after a representative of Cablevision Company, Inc., explained the situation to the council at Monday night's meeting, they seemed satisfied. Terry Johnson told the council that there have been some problems in getting the cable completed in certain areas of the city. He said the men installing the underground line have run into water pipes and other objects that have slowed them. Eighty-five percent of the city is now able to have hookups to the cable system, according to Johnson, and approximately 65 percent of those are buying the service. Johnson said the cable that is now being installed would make the Chandalar, Indian Hills, Wooddale and Brookfield housing developments accessible to the system. The new cable should be completed in two months, Johnson estimated. The company is also ready to begin installation of another cable that will offer services to Hunter's Glen, Deer Springs and Fungo Hollow. He said this system should be completed in six months.

Westover burglary booty found

Clothing, lamps and shoes were the main items taken in a burglary near Westover Wednesday afternoon. But the two people charged with the crime even made off with all the food in the refrigerator including a quantity of frozen meat. Jerry Cook and a woman companion were found walking along County Road 51 nearly five hours after the burglary was discovered.

Deputy Bobby Boyd, who was on the scene, called for reinforcements, and the woods were combed for the suspects.

The Registers have been slowly taking out Mrs. Ray's furnishings and bringing in their own since they purchased the house.

All of the missing items were recovered in a residence near Chelsea by Chief Investigator Reed Smith and Sgt. Bill Davenport.

During the afternoon, personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department had searched through the woods near the home owned by Mountain Brook realtor Ira Register.

Arriving with his family around noon at the home formerly owned by the Ray family, Register found that clothing and other items belonging to Mrs. Ray as well as some of his own possessions had been taken.

And a short while later, Register's son Tom discovered a car loaded with some of the items hidden behind a barn on the property.

Full kindergarten sought

by Bert Seaman

"They gave us half a watermelon and asked us to run with it."

That was the way Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles described the situation with the kindergarten program.

He made the remark at Wednesday's Board of Education meeting after board member Barbara Whitman pointed out that children entering first grade without the program were at a disadvantage.

Even though the present lottery system deprives a number of children from getting kindergarten instruction, the superintendent still recommended the full day, full year procedure for those whose names are drawn.

Whitman had asked if two sessions each day or two terms of the program wouldn't be feasible so that more children could be served.

But she was told that in order for the program to be educationally sound, it has to follow the present system.

If the board had approved one of the other options, which it had right to do, Knowles stressed they would be helping legislators "back away from their commitment to the plan the state adopted."

Comparing the program in its present form to half a watermelon, Knowles stressed that the board do everything possible to get full service for all five year olds.

And it was agreed that a letter expressing these sentiments be sent to the State Board of Education, the governor and legislators.

Although Whitman noted she would vote against the way kindergarten is handled now as an individual, she agreed that as a board member she would have to go along with the superintendent's recommendation.

Asking for her supervisors' contracts to run an extra month,

Special Education Coordinator Dr. Linda Nolen pointed out that this would allow for completion of tasks and give more time for planning.

She mentioned that the cost of the additional month would be $9,301. But she said this would be approximately the same figure as the day rate basis, which has been the method of payment used when they worked more than nine months.

The money, Nolen reported, would come from the special education allocation and the board approved the contract extension.

It was reported that a number of parents had written and asked for school attendance zone line exceptions for their children.

But only one parent appeared at the meeting to ask the board to reconsider his case. And after listening to the reasons for Ken Wilder's request, the panel still stood firm on denying it.

Because Wilder's mother, who keeps his child after school, is a bus driver, the Columbiana man wondered if the youngster couldn't continue school in Columbiana.

Since the family has moved to Four Mile, the youngster is now zoned for another school.

However, the board agreed that granting the exception on the basis of a babysitting problem, would open the door for others to make the same request.

They told Wilder that they were reluctant to make that decision and he accepted it with good grace saying, "I appreciate the job you all do."

Other action the board took with reluctance was to authorize their attorneys to negotiate a settlement in the Rebecca Tatum case.

Formerly a secretary at Riverchase, Tatum filed suit when she was dismissed last year for what she contended was unjust cause.

After being asked to take over the job of bookkeeper, Tatum had asked that the books be audited but the school refused and she found herself out of a job.

It was agreed that the settlement in the case not exceed $1,775.

In other action, the panel approved leasing a van from Sherman Holland Ford for an internal mail distribution system approved at the last meeting.

The vehicle is being leased for $223 a month with the option to buy. Knowles said he hopes to have the system underway by the time school opens.

Bids were taken for auditing work of school accounts with the contract going to King and Moody. The Pelham firm's low bid was $12,000.

It takes a smaller portion of your Social Security check to buy 750 kilowatt-hours today than it did in 1960.

In 1960, it took 18.6% of the average monthly benefit in Alabama to buy 750 kilowatt-hours of electricity. In 1979, it only took 15% to buy the same amount. But it's still mighty hard to live on a fixed income. Our free Levelized Monthly Billing service can help you keep your

Ray and Cotney will be missed

Retiring servants leave legacy

Within a week of each other, two longtime public servants, who have devoted their careers to making Shelby County a better place, have announced their retirements.

It was James L. Ray, Jr., last week who retired after 31 years of planning, building and maintaining the county's road system.

This week Marian Cotney announces her retirement after 41 years, during which time she touched and improved the lives and homes of almost every county resident.

Both have made enormous contributions to the safety, health and welfare of the people of this county. It is a tremendous loss that they are both going at the same time.

In their positions as county engineer and county home demonstration agent, neither had to stand election, but they both had to survive the vagaries of public whim as it was reflected at the polls.

Not only did they survive it well, they both could probably have been elected to their offices overwhelmingly if the law had required it.

The quality of their work was so high, their abilities were never questioned.

Their advice and expertise were sought, not only by county residents, but by individuals and groups throughout the nation.

Jimmy Ray literally took this county out of the mud and put us on good paved roads.

Marian Cotney improved our diets, showed us how to better our surroundings and led the way to better lifestyles for all. They both worked ceaselessly for the public good.

When you talk about 'devotion to duty' you are talking about the work and careers of Jimmy Ray and Marian Cotney.

A thousand thank-yous are not enough to express our appreciation for their work. May they both have long and happy retirements while we struggle to carry on,

Civil War graves identified at Shelby Springs hospital

At least 25 previously unknown Civil War soldiers buried at old Shelby Springs hospital have been identified.

According to Ken Penhale, president of the Shelby County Historical Society, records identifying the soldiers were located at the national archives in Washington, D.C. The men are from several southern states, said Penhale.

The list includes soldiers from all across the south, he said.

Over 70 tombstones for Shelby County soldiers of the Civil War have also been ordered. Several of them have already come and are in Montevallo waiting to be picked up by family members or other interested parties who will place them at grave sites.

A list of these Civil War soldiers is available at the Shelby County Historical Society office on the University of Montevallo campus.

Helena doesn't make quorum

Only two councilmen showed up for the Helena council meeting Monday night, so the meeting was canceled.

City Clerk Frances Parrish said she did not know what happened to prevent the others from attending. But when there was no quorum, Mrs. Parrish, along with Councilmen Paul Cribbs

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Security in the Body of Christ

Those who are in the body of Christ have real security. The blessings of Christ are to be found only in His body.

First, in Christ are all spiritual blessings. "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ." (Ephesians 1:3).

Second, in Christ is forgiveness of sins. "In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of our trespasses, according to the riches of his grace." (Ephesians 1:7).

Third, in Christ we are reconciled. "And might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross, having slain the enmity thereby." (Ephesians 2:16).

Fourth, in Christ is salvation. "Therefore I endure all things for the elect's sake, that they may also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory." (II Timothy 2:10).

Fifth, in Christ there is no condemnation. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus." (Romans 8:1).

Sixth, in Christ the Christian is complete. "And in him ye are made full, who is the head of all principality and power." (Colossians 2:10).

Dear Reader, to be in Christ is to be in His body. "So we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and severally members one of another." (Romans 12:5). To be in His body is to be in His church. "And he is the head of the body, the church" (Colossians 1:18). Thus, security is to be found in the church of the Lord. Read I Corinthians 12:13 to find out how to enter the one body!

Board surveys area financial firms

At the end of last year, the Iron and Steel Credit Union had $95.8 million in assets — ranking it higher than all but six of the 32 banks in the Birmingham area.

The First National Bank of Birmingham, with $1.72 billion in assets at the end of last year, has five times the assets of the 36 credit unions in the Birmingham area.

The assets of area banks at the end of last year were $4.7 billion, a 7 percent increase over the previous year, while savings and loans recorded $2 billion in assets, a 3.7 percent jump, and credit unions recorded an 8.8 percent increase to $336 million.

This is some of the information included in a survey of area financial institutions compiled recently by the Metropolitan Development Board.

The First National Bank of Birmingham continues to lead all other financial institutions with assets in excess of $1.7 billion, a 1.7 percent increase over 1978.

The largest commercial bank outside Birmingham but within the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area is the First National Bank of Jasper ranked sixth in assets.

Chelsea tests truck

Chelsea Fire Department volunteers met early Sunday morning at a local farm pond to try out the pump on their most recently acquired fire truck. The new piece of equipment was purchased early in the year with an interest-free loan from an unnamed individual in the community. The loan was repaid with proceeds from the department's July 4th barbeque. Chelsea FD now has 3 trucks in service and a 4th which is being made into a tanker. On hand for the Sunday morning test were Chief Verne Craig, Chris Craig, Alice Hudgens, Lanny Hudgens, Jack Lee, Charles Shirley, Stanley Chesser, Allen Morgan, Billy Weldon and Wallace Blackerby.

Does Christmas come in August?

by David Moore

It was an unusual situation and Christine Norris was surprised. She was surprised because usually Santa Claus doesn't wear a blue police uniform and usually Christmas doesn't fall on the first day of August.

The story started three weeks ago with a fire in Alabaster. It destroyed the house where Mrs. Norris and her sister, Phyllis Baker, lived with their four children.

The fire destroyed nearly all of their belongings.

Fortunately, they were able to move in with their parents, Samuel and Louise Bryant, on Sykes Street in Pelham. Still, Mrs. Norris said she felt pretty low and knew starting over was going to be tough.

She is in school, hoping to transfer to UAB to study respiratory therapy. Her sister works in the records department of Brookwood Hospital. And all the children are in elementary school.

Mrs. Norris was in a dilemma. Then Santa Claus showed, and although he wasn't able to solve all the problems, he surely helped in more ways than one.

Santa was in the person of Pelham police officer Mike Brasher, who had known Mrs. Norris' mother for years.

"Something needed to be done," Brasher put it simply. "So I cleared it with the mayor and police chief and did it."

On his own time, Brasher visited numerous groceries and businesses in the Pelham area, asking for whatever donations people might want to give. After three days he had racked up toys, clothing, six large boxes of store and home-canned foods, and $230 in cash. Donations are still coming in, he said.

Last Friday, Santa and his helper, Mayor Burk Dunaway, made an early Christmas run, showing up at Sykes Street in a green pickup full of help.

"You could say this is Christmas in disguise," Mrs. Norris said. "In a world that's on the rush, it makes me know there are still some Good Samaritans."

Now, she explained, maybe she and her sister can move into an apartment before school starts again in the fall. Now, maybe they can pull things back together.

"It helps a lot more than I can really say in words," she said.

Santa and his helper just smiled.

The Board of Registrars will be at the Alabaster City Hall August 12 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. They will register anyone in Shelby County 18 years or older who has not been registered.

oldest french settlement's on our continent.

Others on the trip were James and Ruth Carroll and Donald and Betty Jones of West Blocton, and Tommy and Shirley Falkner and Wayne and Sharon Farmer of Calera, also Maurice and Faye Williams of Jemison, and Doug and Doris Rasco of Columbiana.

Being sure not to miss some good fishing Jim Hollon and Tom Morton threw their lines in near Sturgeon Falls and brought home a good catch of lake trout.

Our son, John Michael is pretty quick for his one and a half years. He can pull out all of the pots in our kitchen cabinets in an amazing 30 seconds. He can get a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on the floor, all over his high chair, and in his ears while managing a whole third in his mouth all in 20 seconds. We were quite sure he held the world record for emptying out potted plants until I talked with my sister-in-law. My nephew had him beat by 3 seconds. Oh well, we lost that record but who knows he may make the Guinness World Book of Records yet. Until next week, I'll be seeing you 'around the county.'

Shelby County fair will open September 8

'jammed with exhibits, special events'

The Shelby County Fair will open this year on Monday, September 8 at 7 p.m. It will continue through Saturday night, September 13, according to fair manager Charles Jones of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club.

UM to give awards at commencement

U.S. Sen. Donald Stewart and three top area educators, Alexander City Junior College President W. Byron Causey, Selma City School Superintendent Joseph A. Pickard and Berry High School Principal Jo Ann Pritchett, will receive awards during the University of Montevallo's summer commencement exercises this year.

They will receive the awards during ceremonies Friday, Aug. 8, beginning at 8 p.m. in UM's recently renovated Palmer Hall.

Stewart, the commencement speaker, will receive the annual James W. Tingle Award for Service to the State above the Requirements of the Profession. The award is named in honor of the chairman of the UM Board of Trustees.

Causey, president at ACJC since 1965, the institution's first president, will receive the Kermit Mathison Award, which honors the former director of admissions and records at UM. The award goes each year to a junior college administrator.

Pickard will receive the Kermit Johnson Award, named in honor of the immediate past president of Montevallo. The award goes to a superintendent each year.

Mrs. Pritchett will receive the Lawrence Malone Award, which is named in honor of the former head of administration in the UM College of Education faculty. The award goes to a principal each year.

UM President James F. Vickrey, Jr. said a campus committee selected the education award winners.

This event, the 31st annual fair sponsored by the Shelby County Fair Association, will be jammed with exhibits and special attractions.

Visitors may review the full displays of farm, produce, commercial products, art and community services in the Exhibit Hall. Of especial interest will be the Miss Alabama Cultural Pageant and Talent find, presented at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium by the Farm Bureau. The County Extension Service will sponsor a 4-H dog show on Tuesday, a 4-H horse show on Wednesday and a dairy show on Thursday.

Wednesday will be Kiddie Day from 3 p.m., free to those under 12. Special musical entertainment will be featured at the weekend.

All proceeds from this county fair go for scholarship to the University of Montevallo - one graduate selected on merit from each of the county high schools - and for other community purposes.

Trees make money

The National Arbor Day Foundation is now making it possible for organizations to sell trees for fall planting as a fund-raising project.

Youth and school groups, clubs, churches and other organizations can sell trees in their community to raise money for their activities, and the Foundation will mail the trees directly to the customers' homes. The local sponsoring organization never has to handle the trees, according to the Foundation.

The Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life in communities throughout the country by encouraging tree planting.

"Trees are an unusual fund-raising idea, much different from the usual candy or cookies. Trees can be a profitable fund-raiser because many people will buy several," a Foundation representative said.

Red Maple, Sugar Maple, Red-bud, Weeping Willow, Tulip Tree, and white Flowering Dogwood trees are sold for $3.50, including a profit of $1.25 per tree for the local sponsoring organization.

The trees are four to six feet tall and come with complete planting instructions. They are delivered at an appropriate time for fall planting. The Foundation says that for best results, trees should be sold from August 15 to October 31 for fall delivery.

Organizations may obtain sample sales literature and further information by calling (402) 474-5655 or writing the National Arbor Day Foundation, Arbor Lodge 100, Nebraska City, NE 68410.

Want to cut energy use and save money? Chelsea builds water heater that saves

by Shelba Nivens
Anyone who never seems to have enough hot water, or who is tired of paying to heat a lot of it, might like to employ Floyd Kendrick's method of heating water.

During cold months, he keeps plenty of hot water at his Chelsea home by running it through his coal furnace. And he said the method will work equally well with a gas furnace, a wood or coal-burning heater, or a fireplace.

With the temperature reaching 100° and more every day, this may not seem like a good time to talk about furnaces, stoves and fireplace. But, now might be a good time to begin building a water heating system for this winter.

Kendrick said he would be glad to help anyone he can by furnishing information on the way he built his system.

"Years ago commercial laundries used laundry heaters which has a special little piece of plumbing in them for the purpose of heating water," he said. This is what started him to thinking about using his furnace to heat water.

He said that when he first began thinking about rigging up a system of his own, he talked with an old boiler maker to try and find out more about how the old laundry heaters worked.

"He couldn't recall many details," said Kendrick, "But I talked with several people about it and found out all I could before I built mine."

Kendrick said the system he uses is called "thermal-siphon." Pressure, built up by heat, keeps the water circulating through the system. This keeps hot the water already in the pipes and storage tank and heats additional water which flows in when a spigot is opened to take out hot water.

He explained: "I turn on a valve in the winter-time that routes the water through the fire chamber of the furnace and then to the storage tank, and from there to the electric hot water heater. The furnace pre-heats it and the electric heater keeps it hot."

It is not necessary that an electric water heater be used, he said. The lines from the storage tank can go directly to the hot water spigot.

He uses an electric heater for two reasons. It doubles the hot water supply and he keeps his electric heater turned on at all times in case the fire in the furnace goes out. But, as the water is hot when it enters the electric heater, the thermostat does not cut a heating unit on to heat it.

Kendrick uses a discarded 40 gallon hot water heater, without units, for a storage tank. "The storage tank must be at least two feet above the heating coil inside the furnace for it to work," he cautioned.

Water is piped in from the water source through lines leading to the furnace. Here, it runs through coils where it is heated. "Just so the coils are over heat -- in a heater, fireplace, solar panel, or anything -- it will heat," he explained.

From the furnace the water goes up to the storage tank. A water line in the bottom of the storage tank feeds back into the line leading to the heating coils in the furnace. This insures continuous circulation and heating of the water.

A line leads from the top of the tank to the electric hot water heater, or to the spigots. "The line from the storage tank should be in the top of the tank because this is where the water is hottest," said Kendrick. He added that just as boiling water in a pot on the stove causes the water to rise, heat in the tank causes the hottest water to rise to the top.

Kendrick has also rigged up a solar panel for heating water in the summer time. However, it became damaged during the winter and he has not yet repaired it for use this summer.

Valves control the flow of water through the solar panel, the furnace or straight from the water source to the electric hot water heater.

"This method has been employed for years, but electricity came into common use and was pretty cheap," said Kendrick, adding "Now that electricity is so expensive, people are beginning to go back to this method."

Columbiana girl represents county at state 4-H meet

Jan Gibson of Columbiana, is representing Shelby County at the Alabama 4-H Community Resource Development Conference this week.

She is among 80 4-H'ers from all over the state attending the conference, which is being held at the new Alabama 4H Youth Development Center in Shelby County.

At the conference the young people are taking part in sessions designed to help them take their places as responsible members of their communities.

Session topics include value clarification and decision making, principles of trade, setting and achieving goals, energy conservation and creative recreation.

Participants will also be enclosed in a role-playing activity on community action for or against a nuclear energy facility.

This is the first 4-H CRD Conference held at the new million dollar 4H Center. All expenses for the young people's trip are being paid by Chevron USA, Inc.

Amendment No. 1

STATE OF ALABAMA
A PROCLAMATION
BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at the Regular Session 1980 ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the said election be held on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, the day of the Primary Election in the year 1980; and

WHEREAS, the Primary Election in the year 1980 will be and occur on Tuesday, September 2, 1980; and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment to be given by proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 2nd day of September, 1980, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

The operation of bingo games for prizes or money by non-profit organizations for charitable or educational purposes shall be legal in Jefferson County, subject to the provisions of any resolution or ordinance by the county governing body or the governing bodies of the respective cities and towns, within their respective jurisdictions. The said governing bodies shall have the authority to promulgate rules and regulations for the licensing and operation of bingo games, within their respective jurisdictions, provided, however, that said governing bodies must insure compliance with the following provisions:

(a) No person under the age of 19 shall be permitted to play any game or games of bingo, nor shall any person under the age of 19 be permitted to conduct or assist in the conduct of any game of bingo;

(b) No bingo license shall be issued to any non-profit organization, unless such organization shall have been in existence for at least 24 months immediately prior to the issuance of the license;

(c) Bingo games shall be operated only on the premises owned or leased by the non-profit organization operating the bingo game. If the premises is leased, the rate of rental shall not be based on a percentage of receipts or profits resulting from the operation of bingo games;

(d) No non-profit organization shall enter into any contract with any individual, firm, association or corporation to have said individual, or entity operate bingo games or concessions on behalf of the non-profit organization, nor shall said non-profit organization pay consulting fees to any individual or entity for any services performed in relation to the operation or conduct of a bingo game;

(e) A non-profit organization shall not lend its name or allow its identity to be used by any other person or entity in the operating or advertising of a bingo game in which said non-profit organization is not directly and solely operating said

bingo game;

(f) Prizes given by any non-profit organization for the playing of bingo games shall not exceed $1,200.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any bingo session or $2,400.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any calendar week;

(g) No person or organization, by whatever name or composition thereof, shall take any salary, expense money, or fees as remuneration for services rendered in the operation of any bingo game.

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901 be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

Football:

It won't be long, now

Kickoff: T-minus three weeks, one day and counting. It won't be long now.

For the legion of followers and fans, football fun gets under way Friday evening, August 29, when kicking cleats across Shelby County boot off the 1980 season to the tune of high school bands accompanied by loud cheers and yells.

(The Shelby Academy Raiders are the exception to the August 29 date. They open their season against rival Coosa Valley at home on September 5.)

But for the estimated 300 young men who will play varsity ball this fall, the "fun" has already started.

A lot of players have been spending the long, hot summer afternoons at their schools lifting weights, building muscles. This is so they can fire off the line or out of the backfield and blast their opponent out of the way.

(Confucius say: "Team on feet has better chance of winning than team on seat.")

In accordance with Alabama High School Athletic Association rules, Monday was the first day teams were allowed to don helmets. And today is the first day they are allowed to workout in pads.

During this first official week of practice, most county teams will be on a twice-a-day workout schedule.

Vincent is an exception to this schedule. According to VHS head coach Harold Garrett, this week the Jackets will hold afternoon practices only. Next week they will run two practices per day.

Morning sessions on the county's practice fields are more for learning plays and working on the "what to do" aspects of the game. ("What do I do after I catch this thing, coach?")

Afternoon sessions deal more with the physical, or "how to" aspects of football. ("You mean if I stick my helmet right there in his stomach, we can score a touchdown?")

Although most people think of football in terms of cool, brisk fall nights, there is nothing cool or brisk about an August afternoon when one is doing leg lifts, wind sprints, Alpines and three-on-one containment drills. And football fields are notorious for their lack of shade trees.

To put it mildly, football may be fun, but an awful lot of sweat and work go into preparation for the game.

But, somehow, this sports writer has to think that the 300 players in the county will consider it all worthwhile when they tear through that banner stretched across the goal posts as the band is playing and everybody is yelling and screaming.

It won't be long, now.

One-on-two

Wingback Ricky Wash runs into a little trouble as he goes one-on-two against linebacker Scott Beauregard (throwing the good-natured clip) and defensive end Tim Bailey. The three Pelham seniors are among an estimated 300 young men who officially started varsity football practice this week in Shelby County.

Seat breaker

L.Q. Long, who is nearly legendary in the annals of Lay Lake fishing, demonstrates his two-handed method of setting a fish. Once, he recalls, he set a bass so hard the seat in his boat broke.

Old angler tells secrets

If anybody can fish Lay Lake...

Ask someone on Lay Lake if anybody is catching any fish. Chances are the name L.Q. Long will pop up like a cork with a bream bobbing at the bait.

Maybe that's because he's been fishing the lake for 35 years. Maybe it's because he thinks like a fish. Or maybe it's because Margie Pauline, his wife, lets him fish all he wants, as long as he doesn't clean his catch in her kitchen sink.

The Longs moved to Glasscock by the shores of Lay Lake eight years ago after he retired from the sheet metal business in Birmingham. Since he had spent so much time fishing there anyway, it seemed like a natural retirement location.

"I was born wanting to go fishing," Long confesses with a soft, gruff chuckle. "All my people back in Mississippi liked to fish, especially on my mother's side. Daddy was a bird hunter and I turned into a bird hunter, too. Guess it's hereditary."

As a youngster spending summers at his grandmother's, Long says he carried a fish hook with him everywhere he went. Whenever he'd spot a grasshopper, he'd grab it, find a switch for a pole, tie on his hook and catch a bream.

Listening to him talk, one gets the feeling he hasn't changed much in all these years.

"I remember when a fellow could step across Spring Creek, back before they raised the river. The first four years after they raised the water, the bass fishing was fabulous! But now it's leveled off," Long says softly, talking out of the side of his mouth.

"If you catch the limit now, you gotta' work for it," he continues. "Still, Lay's about as good a bass lake as I've seen. And I've fished every mudhole in the state of Alabama that people thought had fish in it."

Long's record catches from Lay Lake have weighed in at 13 pounds-5 ounces for a large mouth bass, 8-3 for a small mouth, 7-6 for a spot, 4-8 for a fresh stripe and 19 pounds even for a salt stripe.

His predictions for next year's fishing sound promising. Measuring out a distance on his weathered hand from the tip of his middle finger to his watch band, Long notes that Lay is full of small Kentucky, or spotted bass that size. Next year, these same fish will be weighing in at two pounds, making for some good times on the lake, he predicts.

Even though he claims he can go out and catch 25 small bass any time he wants, he explains that he'd rather wait for next year. Then he'll have something that will really be worth pulling in.

Even in scorching weather, Long apparently has the know-how to go out and catch a mess of fish.

The Fourth of July a few years back, Long went fishing at twelve-a-blistering-o'clock and within an hour and a half had pulled nine bass out of the mouth of Blue Creek. The largest of the bass weighed better than eight pounds and the stringer totaled 63 pounds.

How does he do it?

"I fish religiously by the solar tables," Long explains in a soft mumble that makes you want to listen hard.

"The best time to go fishing is whenever you can. The best time to catch the big ones is the three days right before and the three days right after a full moon."

"I don't know what it is, but the moon sure does affect the way those fish feed. The best time is the hour just before and after the moon rises and sets - I mean the hour or so, give or take a couple minutes," he says, tapping his watch.

Long continues. "This time of year I fish for bass exclusively with worms. Blue or black is always a good color in this murky water and this water is always murky after you get a foot or two deep."

"You couldn't give me a weedless. I use a straight shank worm hook and keep the worm just as straight as possible and rig it where it'll be weedless."

"Another general rule is on a light day, fish with a light lure, and on a dark day fish with a dark lure."

"If I'm fishing for bass, ninety-nine percent of the time I don't use but three lures, a worm, a Model A Bomber, and one of these little flippers." The flippers, he notes, are made by Jack Winsley who lives next door at Pine Harbor.

"And if there's a cold front moving in or out, you ought to be on the lake. But if the front's already here, stay at home."

"In the summer, I like the early mornings. But it's going to be slow fishing til things cool off in September."

"If I'm fishing the banks in the summer, I like to get just off a ledge, anchor in the deep water so I won't scare 'em if they're feeding in the shallows, and cast into them."

"I don't like to fish for crappie in the summer. They're better in the winter, say from November to April. In the summer they're too mushy for me." Long rubs his thumb and index finger together to show how the summer crappie tastes.

He goes on to explain how he makes his own jigs, pours the lead shot, ties on a tail (often made of deer tail hair) and paints them.

"I'll tell you the truth - I think my jig will catch more fish than a store-bought one. They put too much on the tails and make them too long and the fish won't hit them."

"I kept Glascock in jigs last spring. I had to wake up at four o'clock just to tie enough for a day's fishing for everyone."

As for equipment, Long says he didn't know anybody other than Ambassador even made reels. He uses two old rods that he rewraps himself every few years.

"When I set a bass, I set one, too," says the 66 year old fisherman. "I use two hands. Once I set one so hard I broke the seat in my fishing boat!"

But the old pro admits he's not infallible.

"Bass are the most unpredictable thing you could fish. Long about the time I think I got bass fishing pretty well figured out, I'll go out and they'll skunk me and I'll come home feeling lower than a mole's belly," he says.

All in all, L.Q. Long knows a lot about fishing. But there's one thing he doesn't know. He doesn't know what "L.Q." stands for. That's because it doesn't stand for anything. That's his name.

"When they named me, they ran out of names," he says with a laugh. Apparently the question still tickles him after all these years, tickles him like tearing into an 11 pound bass.

And that's enough to tickle anybody.

Shoal Creek gets eye as possible PGA site

The golf course at Shoal Creek Country Club is currently under serious consideration as the site of the 1984 PGA championship.

According to reports, four of the five top officers in the Professional Golfers Association visited the course recently and turned in very favorable reports. A final decision may come within the next several weeks, one of the officers said.

If the Shelby County course is awarded the contract, it will be the first time Alabama has ever been host to a major golf tournament.

Along with the Masters and the U.S. Open, the PGA championship draws the world's biggest names in golf, names like Palmer, Nicklaus, Watson, Trevino, Green and Pate.

The course was designed by Jack Nicklaus, who has been quoted as calling it his "masterpiece."

It is also under consideration as the site for the 1985 USGA National Amateur championship tourney.

Football signup held for Chelsea

Registration for pee wee football will be held at Chelsea School Saturday, August 9 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Softball makes big hit among Chelsea females

This was the first year the Chelsea Youth Team has sponsored girls' softball. And according to coach Mary Ann Moore, interest was high among the young females on the four teams.

The Chelsea Bombers, coached by Frank Watts, placed second in their division, and three of the 13-15 year-olds made the all-star team. They were Celeste Melton, Jenni Corn and Sharon Corn.

Sharon Corn was voted by her teammates as MVP at an end-of-season party at Hargis Retreat, and Michelle Whitfield was voted most improved.

The 6-9 year-old Darlings and the 10-12 year-old Champs placed third in their divisions.

The Darlings were coached by Cindy Culpepper and Lois McAliley and their all-stars were Carol Carden, Charlotte White, Rachael Bearden and Wendy Massey.

Coaches for the Champs were Mary Ann Moore, Pat Burdett and Susan Shaw. Their MVP was Sandy Brasher.

Both teams had post-season parties at the home of Phil and Kitty White.

The Challengers were Chelsea's 16-18 year-old team and they were coached by Eddie Kratz and Dale Hollis. All-stars were Luisa Borroughs, Karen Bradberry, Lynn Jones, Joy Tatum, Judy Tatum, Donna Dorrough, Vanessa Brasher and Rhonda Brasher.

In the gardening corner

Plants rooted in feeder

by Shelba Nivens
B.F. "Hap" Hatchett has already plowed up his summer garden to begin one for fall. But, he can't do much about a fall garden, either, without rain, he said.

He has planted butter beans, squash, corn, pepper and peas, and is watering them himself, hoping for rain.

He said that these vegetables can usually be harvested from early June on through 'til frost -- if conditions are favorable. "I'll probably have some corn, but not much," he said.

His peas were planted over three weeks ago and are just now coming up. "They are usually up in three days," he laughed.

Hatchett is trying to get some plants ready to set out in the garden as soon as there is enough moisture in the soil.

Using a long, thin chicken feeder filled with good soil, he rooted cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower. When the plants are a little larger, he will put them into the ground in a small shaded spot and keep them watered so they can get a good root system, he said. After a good rain, he will set them out in rows in the garden.

The Columbiana resident has also rooted tomato plants from cuttings off his large tomato plants. To do this, he broke the "suckers" from the main branches of the plants and put them in soil to root. These will later be transferred to the garden.

Hatchett said that he plans to plant turnip greens and rutabagas a little later this summer. They can be harvested until very late fall.

Beating heat

B.F. "Hap" Hatchett says in all of his 50 years of gardening, he has never seen a summer as hot and dry as this one. He is rooting plants in a chicken feeder sitting in the shade of a fruit tree for transplanting to his Columbiana garden "after we get a good rain."

Harpersville team wins softball league title

The boys from Harpersville defeated their counterparts from Sylacauga twice last week to claim the championship of the Men's Independent Softball League.

Both teams were tied for first with 15-3 records before

Harpersville defeated Sylacauga 3-0 on Tuesday and 1-0 on Thursday.

With regular season play now complete and the championship tucked under their belts, the Harpersville men still have the Men's Independent Championship Tournament to look forward to.

That tourney will be held August 16-17 at Buck Creek in Alabaster. Along with Harpersville, softball teams from Pelham, Wilsonville and Columbiana will represent Shelby County. The other eight teams participating in the tourney will come from Talladega and St. Clair Counties.

Pelham boosters to hear football rules reviewed

Officials from the Alabama High School Athletic Association will review football rules Monday, August 11, at the Pelham Boosters Club meeting. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the school gym and the public is invited.

Reserved stadium seats for the football season will be on sale at the meeting, according to cheerleader sponsor Fran Hunter.

4-H Horse Club riders returned home from the state horse show last week loaded down with ribbons and trophies. Pictured above with some of their prizes are: Lisa Usher and Melissa Schoel (kneeling), Beth Bowman, Carolyn Smiley, Cindy Argo, Jessica Ann Eisenberg, and Ashley Ford.

Local 4-H riders show class

Even though the state 4-H Horse Show gets bigger every year, local competitors continue to bring home some of the top prizes.

The seven Shelby County riders who spent three days in Montgomery last week, earned eight blue ribbons, and won two championships plus a number of other ribbons.

Six of the group qualified for the Southeastern regional show to be held in Raleigh, N.C., Aug. 14-16.

Registration set

Riverchase Middle School registration will be August 11 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Donations, dues and enrichment funds are payable at this time.

Follow-up registration will be August 18 through 23 from 9 until 3.

One of Jessica Ann Eisenberg's blues was awarded in the individual demonstration class. The Shelby Academy student showed the versatility of her pony Wild Turkey in saddle seat, trail and driving classes.

Jessica Ann also earned blues in junior English showmanship and the junior trail class. In the English type gelding class, she was awarded the grand championship.

Cindy Argo's prizes included blue ribbons in junior English pleasure, junior saddle seat equitation, and a second place award for junior English pleasure.

Beth Bowman was the blue ribbon winner in senior English pleasure and senior saddle seat equitation.

Two other blues were earned by Carolyn Smiley in the junior gelding class and Lisa Usher who copped the grand championship in hunter type mares.

Twelfth winner takes Talladega title

Talladega has now seen 12 NASCAR Winston Cup stock car races and 12 different faces cross the finish line.

Neil Bonnett came across at an average speed of 166.89 miles an hour to be declared winner of the 188-lap classic. His earnings with the Purolator Mercury last Sunday totalled $35,175.

During the race, the lead swapped hands 36 times among 11 drivers.

Finishing only one car length behind Bonnett were Cale Yarborough, Dale Earnhardt and Benny Parsons. The three battled to the finish with Cale coming in second, Earnhardt third and Parsons fourth.

Rounding out the top 10 finishers were Harry Gant, Richard Childress, Bill Elliott, Lake Speed, Kyle Petty and Dick May.

Buddy Baker was pole winner and dominated the event for 56 laps before his Olds developed engine problems and forced him out after 60 laps.

Several pre-race favorites were forced out of the race after developing engine problems.

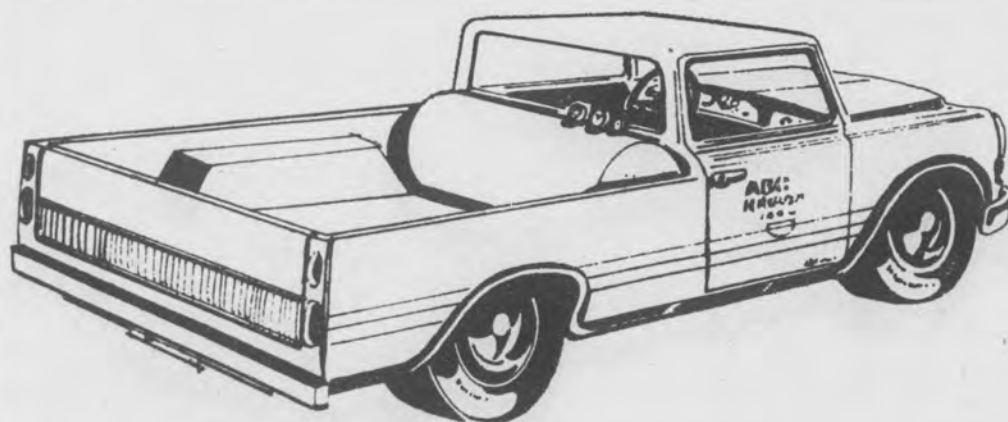

Among them were Bobby Allison who blew an engine after 44 laps, Donnie Allison who lead twice for 11 laps and David Pearson who made it through all but 34 laps.

Richard Petty's Olds, driven by relief driver Joe Millikan, led three times in 154 laps before dropping out with engine problems. (Petty was still sore from earlier injuries.)

Bonnett had his day of glory before an estimated crowd of 80,000.

Rider returns from west, says home state best

After riding through 111 degree heat, it was a welcome relief for a Columbiana man to reach the top of Pike's Peak and see snow on the ground.

According to Mike Atchison, reaching the 14,100 summit where the temperature registered 42 degrees, was a high point of the 13 day trip.

Atchison and his friends, Ken and Kathy Wesley of Hueytown, have traveled on their motorcycles to various locations in summers past, but this was their longest trip.

"We found a number of different lifestyles along our route," Atchison pointed out, but he said he was convinced the people of Alabama live better than they do anywhere else.

Commenting on some of the things they found to be universal, Atchison declared that he and his friends had their fill of hamburgers and pizza at McDonalds and Pizza Huts which were found all along their route.

For him, Atchison said, the most interesting part of the journey was Rocky Mountain National Park in Colorado. The travelers used an entire day to ride through the park.

And he listed Carlsbad

Caverns in New Mexico as another fascinating place to see and explore.

Carrying his clothes in three suitcases strapped to his 1979 Suzuki GS 1,000 E, Atchison said he only made two stops at laundromats during the journey.

Most days, he related began around 5:30 a.m. and ended at approximately 6:30 p.m. when the travelers checked into a motel.

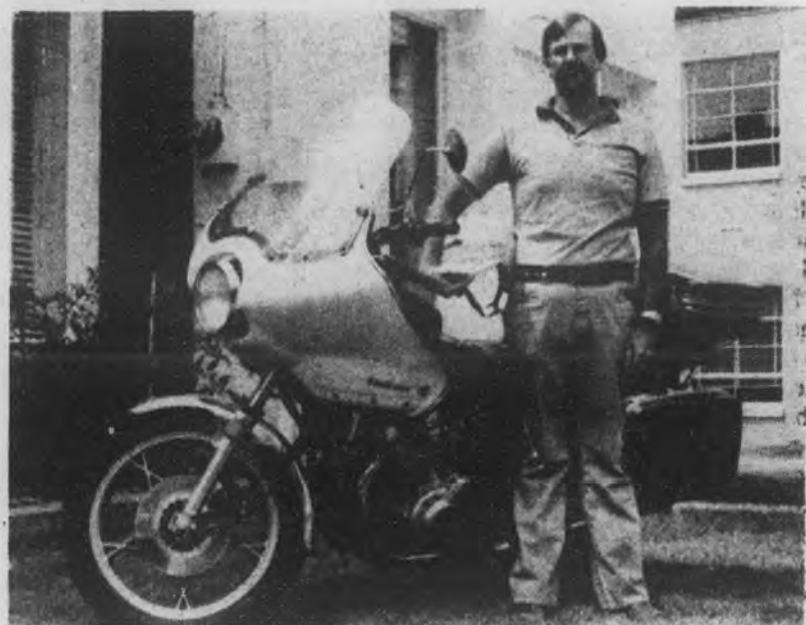

The longest day's journey, he noted, was 580 miles. And he mentioned that the elements only slowed them down twice - once during the intense heat and again when rain hampered their progress.

States the group traveled through were Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Talking about the experience after he arrived home Wednesday, one thing Atchison said he couldn't get over was "the sight of those farms out west which covered 10-12,000 acres.

But the young lawyer clearly prefers the Alabama countryside. Next summer he declared his intention to travel with his friends on the highways and byways of his native state.

Journey ends

Mike Atchison returned Wednesday from a 4,800 mile trip he and two friend made by motorcycle. This picture was made a few minutes after he pulled up at his parents' abstract office next to the Reporter.

Briarcliff makes fantasy trip

Tickets for the flight to Hawaii were picked up Friday morning in the dining room at Briarcliff Nursing Home.

And even though it was only a "fantasy flight," the residents of the Alabaster facility looked forward to the trip with relish.

A luau held Friday evening in the flower bedecked dining room was the culmination of Aloha Week.

Members of the Alabaster Baptist Church topped off the evening with a musical program for the Briarcliff tourists.

In addition to the songs of the islands, there was also a session of limbo dancing and a crowning of King and Queen Liliokualani.

The royal couple were Flora Smith and Marion Varden.

Three weeks of planning went into the festivities. And Monday, residents began to get into the mood of the event as they heard Sandi Bailey give an educational program on Hawaii.

Musical entertainment was provided the following day by Linda Dorough and clothing and jewelry from the islands were exhibited by Elizabeth Yarbrough from Shades Crest Baptist Church Wednesday.

Residents worked on tissue paper flowers and musical instruments the day before the luau and the Jolly Rover Senior Citizens constructed six palm trees to lend atmosphere.

WMU leaders also did their part to make the dining room resemble a tropical fun spot. They contributed streamers, lanterns, and murals. And a local florist gave fresh flowers for the tables.

Others who helped with the event were Girls in Action who made tissue paper flowers and grass skirts.

Activities during the week included a performance by the Briarcliff Wahines. Residents also got to see a hula hoop contest during one of the fun filled days.

Coordinators of the event were Franki Tommlin and Freda Crump.

Burglars make off with food chain safe in Montevallo

A burglar or burglars made away with a safe Monday night from a fast food service in Montevallo.

Montevallo police were notified of the break-in Tuesday morning after employees of Jack's Hamburgers came to work and discovered the safe missing.

According to MPD Chief Troy

Kirkland, the break-in was apparently made through the rear door of the building. The safe weighed between 200 and 250 pounds and contained an undisclosed amount of money, he said.

Kirkland speculated that the break-in was probably done by a person from outside the area.

Alabaster throws out auto bid after dealer protests

by Bert Seaman

After reading three bids on a new police car for the city, Alabaster Councilman Wayne Lucas was startled when he opened the fourth envelope.

Inside was a letter of complaint and the writer was in the audience to hear his words read and to give the panel further insight as to why he felt slighted.

Alabaster Ford dealer Sherman Holland claimed that he had been excluded from the bidding because the specifications sent out could only be met by a General Motors car.

Someone's personal preference had cost him the contract, he wrote.

In discussing the matter, Mayor Charlotte Burke said she felt specifications should be written to include more than one make of car.

And the panel went along with that thinking, voting to reject all bids and have the specs redrawn.

Another point Holland made was that the city should patronize local dealers. The lowest of the three bidders was Adamson Ford in Birmingham.

However, City Clerk Dot Henry reported she had not sent the out of town dealership a letter.

In any case, Holland pointed out that the Birmingham dealer could not have lived up to the contract because Ford, he said, does not make the motor that the specifications had called for.

Adamson's bid was $7,961.04, Eagle Chevrolet bid $8,239.49 and Strickland Chevrolet submitted a figure of $9,292.37.

After some discussion, the council agreed to enter into a lease-purchase agreement with the Dogwood Fire Department who asked for the use of an old city owned fire engine.

The suggestion for that type of arrangement was made by the city's next mayor, H.A. "Doc" Robin.

A purchase price of $4,500 for the 1952 model vehicle was mentioned when Fire Commissioner Wayne Lucas said that Vandiver had agreed to pay that amount if they could raise the money.

Under the lease-purchase agreement, the city will not have any liability toward the vehicle, which Fire Chief John Cochran reported has been sitting idle for a year.

The mayor appointed Lucas and Councilman Roger Wheeler to work with the Dogwood group in making final arrangements.

In other business, Athletic Booster Club President Lawrence Barnett asked the city for a $200 contribution to help pay off the stadium loan for Thompson High School.

Barnett had previously asked the city for a larger donation, but the plan now, he related, is to ask individuals for donations of $100 or more.

The names of those who contribute, Barnett told the council, will be put on a sign to be placed permanently in the stadium.

When his group took out the loan to improve the football stadium several years ago, Barnett said the amount borrowed had been $26,000.

He mentioned that the boosters still owe $6,300 on the note which he said he hopes to burn at the first football game.

Two black residents among the crowd at Monday's meeting complained about garbage pickup and a street needing repair.

However the mayor silenced Henry Tolbert after he spoke several minutes about being boycotted because of the way he had voted in the city's election.

Tolbert, who runs the Sportman's Club, reported that residents said they had been told to stay away from his business because he had voted against Councilwoman Mayo Taylor.

The black councilwoman made no reply and the mayor told Tolbert that the meeting was not the place to air his complaint.

which the District was established. F. REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES: The Trustees of the District propose that the foregoing Schedule of Service charges will provide support for the maintenance of a fire station located on Valleydale Road in the northern end of Shelby County (County Road No. 17) approximately one-half mile east of Calwell Mill Road (County Road No. 29), together with a staff of professional firemen providing twenty-four hour staffing of the department with qualified paramedics on each shift, will provide for support by volunteer firemen, and will additionally provide for the payment by the District of any annual charges for fire hydrants levied by Birmingham Water Works for periods commencing on or after October 1, 1980, but not until after the expiration of the initial three year period levied against developers of subdivisions.

G. CERTIFICATION OF TRUSTEES: The Trustees certify that the service charges proposed in this petition will provide adequate financing for the services enumerated in Section F hereof, and will also provide for the interest and maturities on all outstanding debt of the District.

This petition is submitted by the following named individuals, being all of the duly elected Trustees of the District: Martha Geyer, John P. Drell, Stephen Wright, Jr., Larry Duell, and John V. van Pelt, III, said petition having been filed in the office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, on the 25th day of July, 1980.

Said election shall be held on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, between the hours of 7:00 o'clock a.m. and 7:00 o'clock p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Beat 12 Box 1 and Bryan Memorial Church in Beat 12 Box 3 and Inverness Apartment Clubhouse in Beat 12 Box 4.

Done this 25th day of July, 1980. Thomas A. Snowden, Jr. Judge of Probate

We the undersigned, being all of the duly elected Trustees of the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District (hereinafter referred to as "the District") hereby petition, in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 62, H. 313 First Special Session 1977 (Acts 1977, c. 1483) as amended by Act No. D-369 First Special Session 1979 and to hereby request the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, to "revoke" the election held on the 25th day of July, 1980, and for the following reasons:

1. Shall the following Schedule of Service Charges be approved as applicable within the district, effective for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980, and for ensuing fiscal years, and for such fiscal years supersede the Schedule of Service Charges, heretofore approved by the voters of the district in an election held May 1, 1978.

A. Service charges in general. 1. The charges shall be levied upon and be collectible from persons and properties served by the system established for the district, or the District may at its discretion, levy the charges in the first instance upon the owners of the land upon which the structures stand. The charges shall be a personal obligation of the occupant and the landowner. The term occupant includes persons who have the right to occupy a structure, whether or not such persons physically occupy the structure. In the case of multiple units, the district has the option of billing and initially collecting from the owner of a group of apartments, an office building, a shopping center or the land upon which mobile homes are located.

2. To secure the collection thereof, the charges shall, unless otherwise prohibited by law, be a lien in favor of the District against the structure or structures available for use by the occupant and on the land on which such structure or structures are situated.

3. The lien shall be enforceable by sale of the land in the same manner in which municipal assessments for public improvements are enforced.

4. If more than one occupant or owner is liable for the charge during a fiscal year, the District shall have the right to collect any unpaid "annual charges," "prorated charges," and "other charges" including arrears from prior fiscal years from the persons who are separately liable therefor; or from the sale of the land as provided in 3. above; provided however that the total "annual charge" or "prorated charge" collected from all occupants or owners who are separately or severally liable from the sale of the land shall not exceed the sum of all "annual charges," of all "prorated charges," and of all "other charges" which are unpaid as of the date of such collection.

5. Service charges are collectible whether or not timely billing of such charges is effected. Penalties for late payment are assessable whether or not the original billing of the service charge defined in Paragraph E1 is effected.

6. In the event that there is ambiguity in the classification of a particular property, or in the application of any service charge, the Board of Trustees shall render a decision as to the appropriate classification or the propriety of such application but only in accordance with appeal procedures hereinafter provided, and such decision shall be final.

7. Service charges are collectible if any portion of a structure is located within the district.

8. In the event partial payment is made in respect of a property the payment shall be applied first to the latest outstanding charge.

9. The Board of Trustees may, upon appeal, but in their sole discretion, waive "annual charges" if the property owner is indigent, considering his total assets, in the opinion of the Trustees.

10. Definitions. 1. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - A single family residence is a structure designed primarily as a dwelling to be occupied by one family (one or more persons all of whom, or all but two of whom, are related to each other by birth, adoption, or marriage) and includes all outbuildings or other structures such as garages, pools, sheds, campers and movable trailers located on a single parcel of land except when the use to which any such outbuilding or other structure is put represents a commercial endeavor, or if any of such outbuildings are used as a dwelling (in which event such building shall be classified as an apartment). If any portion of the principal structure is held open for lease, such portion shall be deemed to be an apartment or more than one apartment, depending upon the circumstances, and as determined by the Board of Trustees. In certain instances, a structure may serve a dual purpose, e.g. serving as a dwelling and concurrently being utilized for commercial purposes. In such situations, the Trustees of the District will determine, based upon a review of the facts, and in a large measure being guided by the square footage devoted to each use, which is the predominant purpose. If a commercial enterprise, school, church or other enterprise provides living accommodations for employees or others, the structures shall be treated as individual units in the pertinent classification which would apply if the structure was not related to the commercial enterprise, school, church or other endeavor.

2. CLASS - References to various classes are to the various classifications of fire protection as determined by the Insurance Services Office, Montgomery, Alabama or such other rating service that may be designated by the State to rate fire protection services.

3. MULTIPLE UNITS - Multiple units refer to structures which, singly or together, house more than one occupant (i.e., owner, lessee, second household) and include individual condominiums in which an association acts for the individual owners; individual apartments; portions of residences held for lease, identified as one or more apartments; separate structures, located on parcels of land attached to a residence identified as apartments; office buildings; shopping centers in which the structures are separable and individual units in mobile home parks.

4. MOBILE HOMES - Mobile homes are single width trailers, fourteen feet in width or less serving as residences or held for residential occupancy, which are mounted on foundations and/or connected to utilities and to which no remodeling other than the installation of steps to provide access to the structure has been done which alters the outside dimensions of the structure. Furthermore, outbuildings related to such mobile homes will represent an additional category of structure. Residential mobile home units which do not conform to the foregoing dimensions would be classified as appropriate residence classification.

5. GROUND AREA COVERED - When the charge for a structure is based upon the ground area covered the measurement shall include all roof overhangs, porches, wells, outbuildings, garages, sheds, air conditioning units, and pools (whether or not part of the air conditioning system). In the case of commercial endeavors, churches, schools or non-profit organizations serving functions, the business shall be measured individually. Except that any structure deemed to be a single family residence, apartment or mobile home shall not be included in the aggregate square footage. In any situation, structures contiguous to a residential unit (including those separated by public roads, streams, etc.) shall be treated as separate units.

6. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENT - Commercial establishments include all structures, farms, operated for a profit, livey stables, research centers, manufacturing plants, sales offices, stores and other similar enterprises. A swimming pool may be chargeable as a separate unit from the accompanying residential unit, in the case of farm homes, serving as the abode of a farmer or a farm manager, the structure would be classified in the appropriate category of residence, and would not be included as a commercial structure.

7. ANNUAL CHARGES - The following types of structures shall be subject to the indicated charges, if the structure is closed in (covered by a roof, whether or not a finally finished roof, other than a swimming pool used for commercial purposes) which shall be chargeable after the pool construction is completed, on or before the fifteenth day of the first month of the fiscal year of the District:

1. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class 7 - $10.00

2. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class 8 or 9 - $50.00

3. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - Class 10 - $25.00

4. CONDOMINIUMS - Each unit - $100.00

5. TOWN HOUSES - Each unit - $100.00

6. APARTMENTS - Each unit $50.00

7. SINGLE FAMILY (Single structure without basement with no more than 300 sq. ft. of ground area covered) - $25.00

8. MOBILE HOMES - Each unit - $25.00

9. OUTBUILDINGS, such as structures, either in mobile home parks or owned by owners of individual mobile homes, which represent the only structure on otherwise unoccupied land - $100.00

10. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS, AND NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - Less than 500 sq. ft. to the highest extremity above ground level - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .02

11. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS AND NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - From 500 sq. ft. to the highest extremity above ground level for any structure - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .02

12. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISHMENTS, SCHOOLS, CHURCHES AND OTHER NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS - More than 80 feet to the highest extremity

above ground level (excluding in this measurement, church steeples) - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .20

13. SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES - Structures with no structures above 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level (excluding in this measurement, church steeples) - per square foot of ground area covered for structures devoted to public use (Minimum charge $100.00) - .01

14. Should the district be related to a lower classification the single family resident, condominiums and town houses charge applicable to such lower classification will be $10 higher than Class 7 for each lower step in the classification scale.

D. PRORATED CHARGES: 1. If any structure (similar to those enumerated in the section dealing with annual charges) is closed in with a roof for a swimming pool used for commercial purposes, the charge for such pool shall be prorated on the basis of the number of months of the first month of the fiscal year of the District, the charge for such structure for the balance of the fiscal year shall be obtained by multiplying the annual charge as shown or computed under Section C, above, and multiplying such charge by a percentage obtained by dividing the closest number of months (one-half or more of a month shall be treated as a full month) remaining in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

2. In the event that the class or classification of any structure is changed to a class or classification providing for an increased service charge, the additional billing shall be determined by computing the difference between the initial (and lower) service charge and the revised (and higher) service charge and multiplying such difference by a percentage obtained by dividing the closest number of months remaining (one-half or more of a month shall be treated as a full month), as of the effective date of such change in class or classification, in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

3. In the event that a residence is subdivided into apartments or additional units are added to a trailer park, if each instance increasing the aggregate number of occupants of the structure, in excess of those for which charges should have been made at the commencement of the fiscal year, the additional billing shall be determined by computing the difference between the initial service charge and a revised service charge as determined by the total number of units have been present at the commencement of the fiscal year and multiplying such difference by a percentage obtained by dividing the closest number of months remaining (one-half or more of a month shall be treated as a full month), as of the effective date of such change in class or classification, in the fiscal year by twelve, with the resultant product being increased to the next highest even dollar.

E. OTHER CHARGES: 1. Any payment for a charge not received by the District within 90 days of the original date upon which the liability arose, whether or not such charge was billed by the District, shall incur an additional charge of $15.00 for each month (individually for each of several multiple units) upon which the charge is based, except that in the case of charges based upon square footage or hours, the charge of $15.00 per unit shall apply only to a chargeable billable structure or function.

2. There shall be a charge of $20.00 per hour of time, from the time equipment leaves the station until return of all equipment to the station, or dispatch of all equipment to another site, for fighting of forest or grass fires on property in the District (as determined by the Board of Trustees) not otherwise covered by service charges, such charges to be paid by the owner of record of the property.

3. All owners and occupants of residences, condominiums, townhouses, and apartments (exclusive of owners and occupants of apartments served only by private metered fire hydrants with no annual maintenance charge) in all areas of the District designated as follows: (a) all areas of the District (as determined by the Board of Trustees) and all commercial, church and school customers served by water lines of Birmingham Water Works shall as of October 15th in each fiscal year be assessed an amount computed as set forth below; in addition to any charges otherwise due for the purpose of providing money to the District to enable it to pay annual rental fees and maintenance costs on fire hydrants on the lines of such water system; when the annual rental fee established at no more than $90.00 (exclusive of utility tax) this surcharge shall be $5.00, and there shall be a $1.00 increase in such surcharge for each $10.00 or any part thereof by which the annual rental (exclusive of utility tax) exceeds $90.00.

4. An application for appeal to the Trustees of the District with respect to any service charge must be filed within 30 days of the date as of which the charge becomes legally assessable, whether or not billed. An appeal may cover more than one service charge assessable against a single appellant. Once an application for appeal has been timely filed, the Trustees shall enter into discussions with the appellant to determine a mutually satisfactory date for the holding of a hearing on the appeal.

5. A property owner shall be liable for all costs incurred by the District in enforcing collection, including an allowance for reasonable attorney's fees, advertising, filing fees, mailing costs, and allowances for collection efforts, whether or not a Court suit is actually entered, and for interest at maximum legal rates from the date of filing of any formal lien notice, entering of a Court citation or commencement of foreclosure proceedings. Liens against the property are a subject of the enabling legislation under

A sudden downpour accompanied by hailstones and gale winds hit Columbiana Thursday felling trees and power lines and knocking out electricity and telephone service. This giant tree landed in the highway in front of the Board of Education office blocking traffic for several minutes.

Probate office split heads election ballot

by Marcia M. Sears

An important proposition for Shelby County will be up for a vote on September 2.

After many years of heated political argument, a proposal to divide the duties of the probate judge and create an additional officer to serve as chairman of the county commission, will be put to a vote.

Yet the proposal seems to have created little interest, this year now that it is finally open to vote.

The wording of the proposal states, in part, "There shall be elected...a fifth county governing body member who shall be the full-time chairman of the Shelby County governing body...Said person shall replace the probate judge as chairman of the Shelby County governing body...

Section two provides "The full-time chairman's salary shall be 10 percent more than the amount paid to the highest non-elected county official..."

Section three provides that the first election of the full-time chairman shall be in 1982, by an at-large vote of the electorate.

In section four it states that the act will go into force "only if approved by a majority of the electors...voting in a referendum to be held at the time of the next county primary election."

The question on the ballot will be: "Should Shelby County have a full-time chairman of the county governing body elected at large to serve as chairman in place of the county probate judge? Yes () No ()

The proposal will be on the voting machines in a column separate from party candidates who are seeking election.

The bill to allow the vote was introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner, who represents the northwest section of Shelby County. Probate Judge Tommy Snowden had promised to bring it before the electorate, but two years ago, the bill failed to get through the legislature.

Alabaster group hears judge candidates

by David Armstrong

Shelby County's two candidates for district court judge were put on stage before the Alabaster Suburban League Monday night. And perform they did.

Harry Lyon, a Pelham lawyer, took the spotlight first.

Speaking with a firm, confident voice, Lyon told the crowd of approximately 50 that he is not politically obligated to anyone in the county and that he will remain that way.

Lyon said he has not only turned down offers from people to help his campaign financially, but he said he has also declined offers to help put out posters.

He said he is doing this because it is important for the district judge to remain uncommitted to anyone. Because cases heard by the district judge are decided by the judge instead of a jury, Lyon said, he must remain uncommitted to be just.

Lyon said he is the most impartial candidate and he stressed his belief in "Justice for all."

Lyon then turned his comments toward his opposition, incumbent Judge Patti Smith, and her record.

He rhetorically asked the crowd if they wanted to keep a judge who has "historically rendered political rather than legal decisions," and who looks at "how much money you have,

and who your attorney is" when considering a case.

Money is not the reason he wants the position, Lyon said. He noted that he owns three houses and two automobiles and that he did not need the $35,000 a year salary that the position pays. He said the reason he wants the job is because he is tired of the district court being run like a country club, where money and status are important.

Because the candidates had been asked not to be present while their opposition was speaking, Judge Smith was not present for Lyon's comments. And when Smith arrived, Lyon went into another part of the building.

Smith took the stage and soon took control of the audience's attention. Speaking with an authoritative voice, Smith said she was proud of her record as district court judge and she encouraged anyone to talk to the people she has tried if they want to know what justice is.

The attractive 28 year old said she doesn't think looks or age has anything to do with the job a person can do.

Smith told the people of cases she has tried and explained that she has attempted to temper justice with mercy in the six months she has been judge. But she says she doesn't mind admitting that she is a "pretty tough cookie" when she needs to be.

After Smith had finished her speech, she opened the floor for questions -- and the questions came.

Lyon had invited students from a law class that he teaches at Miles College and the majority of the questions Smith answered came from the students.

Always prefacing her answers with "I'm glad you asked that," Smith told the group that her campaign has been completely above board.

When asked if the district attorney is supporting her campaign, she said that he was not actively campaigning for her as far as she knew.

She was asked if she had received any campaign contributions from attorneys, to which she replied: "No, I have accepted contributions from three individuals and none of them are attorneys." She said her contributions are public record and if anyone wants to examine them they are available.

After Smith had answered all questions, Rev. Jimmy Underwood announced his support for her and he noted that Smith had refused to accept contributions to her campaign from a local group so that she could remain uncommitted.

Robert Tolbert, head of the Suburban League, said his group had not made any official endorsements yet.

Candidates for the Shelby County Commission will speak at the group's meeting next Monday at 7 p.m.

Board of Registrars wants more space

The excitement generated by upcoming elections is causing a problem for the County Board of Registrars.

Mrs. Doris Turner, chairman of the group, told members of the Shelby County Commission Monday that the small office the board occupies is becoming cramped.

In addition to potential voters registering for the Sept. 2 primary and the Nov. 4 general election, Turner noted there was a voter reidentification plan on tap to be handled.

It might take as long as two years to update the county's list of 34,000 voters, the chairman reported.

The panel agreed to look for more space and also to see about hiring a full-time registrar for the office.

Turner and the two other board members are considered part-time employees.

Busbin seeks place 3 on county commission

Jim Busbin of Alabaster has announced that he will run for the third district seat on the Shelby County Commission.

Busbin has coordinated volunteer efforts that have resulted in voter registration drives throughout the county. Busbin was the Shelby County chairman for Presidential candidate George Bush.

He has lived in Alabaster for over three years and is a member of the Shelby County GOP Executive Staff representing commission district three. He is also a member of the Alabama Republican party Capitol Club.

A graduate of the University of Alabama in Birmingham, he has a degree in electrical engineering and he has completed some graduate studies in engineering at UAB.

Busbin was awarded the Navy Achievement Medal for his service in Vietnam with the Marine Corps. He was also given the Good Conduct Medal.

Some of the things Busbin said he will work on if elected include: the addition of a county courthouse annex in the north section of the county, the redistricting of the county commission districts, the attracting of industry into the county in a controlled way and the establishment of a sound water policy for the county.

Busbin is married to the former Sue Jarrett of Birmingham.

Gasohol may reignite Coosa Valley farming

by Marcia M. Sears
Editor, Shelby County Reporter

Part I

The heyday of the farmer may return to the Coosa Valley.

If it does, the farmers will have - of all things - the nation's gasoline crisis to thank for it.

A glowing picture was painted last Friday of the need for great quantities of corn and sorghum, by a group of men who would like to make gasohol in Childersburg.

They said many new farm jobs would be created to raise the grains they would need for ethanol production. This was one part of their argument to convince local leaders to grant them the go-ahead in a complicated deal involving land owned by Talladega county that lies between the old Beaunit property and the army ordnance property.

The deal also involves two alcohol stills now owned by the state that were intended originally for use in manufacturing smokeless powder.

The stills are located on land the army has sold to Kimberly-Clark on a lease-back arrangement. They will have to be moved within two years.

The meeting Friday brought the presidents of three companies who are forming a tri-party agreement, to Talladega to lay out details before the county industrial development board. They listed their credentials for taking on the project, stating they had both the money and the technological know-how to make it a success if further studies are as favorable as they expect.

The press was asked not to divulge the names of the companies, but one of them has years of experience in oil exploration, refining and marketing. The oil company president said his company has been managing $250 million per year in projects from Alaska to Brazil.

The proposal is considered the best that board members have heard. A Birmingham based group called GRASP received notice of a federal grant of over $1 million to study the feasibility of producing ethanol in Childersburg, but that group told the industrial development board they did not have the financing to go into production, if their study was favorable.

The tri-party group on Friday said their study would cost only $200,000 or so, and they would provide that out of their own pockets.

Earlier the board had tried to interest major oil companies in the site, but were told that the majors thought the project was too small.

The group would put the steam plant into operation, move the stills to the county property or the Beaunit property, and develop the surrounding land as an industrial park for other industries.

They presented a three-phase program. During the first phase they propose producing ethanol, restoring the steam plant, retrofitting and providing sewage disposal.

The second phase would involve the planned development for the total industrial park, providing the excess steam and water for use by the other industries they hope to locate there. Several industries are already interested, they said.

In the third phase, they propose the overall development of other lands if and when they become available to the county. This presumably means the land still owned by the army that lies between the county property and Kimberly-Clark.

This group wants a lease-purchase agreement with the county over a 3 to 5 year period. If the county held title to the land, several grants for developing an industrial park would be

Montevallo's council lauds Shelco service

Shelco Unit One, the rescue operation that ceased to function after an unfavorable vote on a proposed fire district on July 8, was publicly praised and thanked by the Montevallo City Council, Monday night.

Montevallo Mayor Ralph Sears signed a check made out to the Board of Directors of Shelco in the amount of $2,000. Explaining the check, Sears stated, "Because members of your organization continued to serve the southwestern part of Shelby County in spite of a lack of financial support and because, as we understand it, your organization has incurred debts in this service, members of the council have voted, as a gesture of goodwill and appreciation to issue your organization a check in the amount of $2,000 to aid you in your financial plight."

In his letter of appreciation addressed to Wayne Davis, chairman of the organization's board of directors and Doug Ballard, chief, Sears stated, "It is with regret and sadness that we note an unfavorable vote in a recent election designed to put Shelco One on a sound financial basis. We are dismayed to know that your organization will no longer be able to provide this service."

In addition to the letter and check a wall plaque expressing the appreciation of the citizens of Montevallo was presented.

Davis and Ballard did not attend Monday night's meeting.

Ready by April?

Columbiana ponders cable TV

If Columbiana city fathers give the nod, residents won't be lacking for entertainment in the future whether it be day or night.

Twenty four hours of sports programs will be one of the offerings of the cable TV hookup that was proposed at Thursday's meeting.

A representative of TAC-CAN asked that the city sign a franchise for the system which he said would cost subscribers $7.50 for the basic service.

The only other cost to customers, the representative said, would be a $25 installation fee.

From the revenue the service would generate, the city would receive three percent, council members were told.

It was reported that 20 channels, including a 17 hour a day station with children's programs, would be available.

Expressing interest in the proposal, the panel agreed to let city attorneys study the contract before they made a decision.

If the franchise is signed, the hook-up would be ready by April, the cable representative reported.

Another member of the audience also had something to offer the city. And in this instance there was no hesitance about accepting.

Bill Henke, who works with the Dixie Youth baseball program, asked if the city would like to have trophies the city's teams have won to display in the lobby of city hall.

Since the city is the primary sponsor of the teams, Henke said he thought it appropriate the trophies be placed in the municipal building.

When it came to a monetary request, Henke was told he would have to wait until the September 1 meeting to see what would be available in the budget.

In order to improve the calibre of players on the school baseball team, Henke had asked the city for a $2,600 donation to buy a pitching machine.

In other business, the panel touched on cutting a new road to the elementary school which had been discussed earlier in the year.

However, the minutes of those meetings revealed no commitment had ever been made to do the work, and it was agreed that the project should be handed on to the next administration.

Troubadours tune up

Columbiana City Council accused of unbusinesslike practices

City fathers in Columbiana were put on the defensive Thursday evening when two complaints were registered by members of the audience.

Johnny Crawford pointed out that his license to make bonds had been withdrawn by the city without his knowledge.

And the panel was questioned by Jim Strickland on their reasons for not reappointing him to the water board.

Bringing up the matter of his license being revoked, Crawford said that it hadn't been handled in a businesslike manner.

He had been informed of the matter by a convict, Crawford related, who has seen a notice that he couldn't make bond, posted at the county jail.

Police Commissioner Harold McCord defended the action by saying the city was out $5,000 because several men Crawford had made bond for had skipped town.

Contending that he had never received the necessary papers to go after the men, Crawford said he would have taken immediate action if he had been informed.

It wasn't ascertained who was responsible for getting the papers to Crawford. The bondsman said that he needed a warrant and a certified bond in order to go after a man and arrest him.

Crawford was told that the city's attorneys were working on the matter.

Prior to the discussion of his license, Crawford had asked permission to put a mobile home on the used car lot he had recently opened.

Chubby's Bait Shop had formerly occupied the property on Shelby Road where Crawford now operates his business.

After being assured that he would take the necessary steps to keep up the appearance of the trailer, the council voted to allow Crawford to put it on the lot.

When he asked to speak, Strickland said he was perplexed about the panel's failure to reappoint him to the water board.

Bob Barrett had been appointed to replace him by a 3-2 vote when a secret ballot was taken at the council's last meeting.

But he had heard another vote was going to be taken at Thursday's meeting, Strickland told the panel.

Telling Strickland that the action had been taken prior to the meeting, Councilman Paul Smith said the panel hadn't wanted it reported in the newspaper.

Their reasoning, he explained, was a concern that it would appear Strickland and Barrett were being pitted against each other.

It wasn't because of his performance on the water board that he was replaced, Strickland was told, but simply because Barrett had wanted some civic responsibility.

McCord pointed out that Strickland serves on two other municipal boards.

Mentioning the reason for a second vote being taken, Smith said the panel had found the secret ballot method wasn't the proper way to vote when making an appointment.

To fill Shelco void

EMS planned for Montevallo

By a unanimous vote Monday night, Montevallo's City Council paved the way for the establishment of a municipally operated emergency medical service.

Councilman Grady Parker, chairman of the city's police and fire committee presented a resolution to the council establishing the rescue team.

Parker's resolution states: "Whereas, public sentiment today favors a publicly supported system of providing emergency medical services to residents of municipalities, and

Whereas, until July 8, 1980 residents of Montevallo enjoyed such services furnished by Shelco Rescue Unit One, and

Whereas, Shelco Rescue Unit One ceased functioning on July 8, 1980, leaving residents of Montevallo without emergency medical services, and Whereas, the Montevallo City Council wishes to respond to public sentiment and provide emergency medical services to residents of Montevallo, therefore,

Be it resolved, that a rescue organization be established in Montevallo to provide emergency medical services to the citizens of Montevallo."

Parker's motion to adopt the resolution was seconded by Councilman Johnny Holsomback. The vote to adopt the resolution was unanimous.

After a brief discussion with visitors who crowded the council chambers, Council members voted to appoint Councilman David Nichols administrator of the new organization. Nichols did not seek reelection to the council this year.

The new service unit will be an independent entity of the city, not a part of the fire department.

In accepting the directorship of the organization, Nichols explained that he would have the framework of the rescue unit underway in a few days and would have a proposed list of equipment ready for the council's approval later this week. Nichols called for a meeting of the city's fire and police committee and representatives of the Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services staff Wednesday afternoon.

In other action council members nominated Agee Kelly and Dr. Philip G. Beasley to fill expired terms on the city's Industrial Development Board.

A group of citizens from the Dry Valley community were present at Monday night's meeting to inquire about the possibilities of annexation to the city.

The group's presence was prompted by a recent resolution passed by the city council that will terminate certain city services such as police and fire protection outside the Montevallo city limits early next year.

Mayor Sears told the group that the city is not actively recruiting areas to be added to the city, but that city personnel will work with interested parties to answer questions regarding annexation.

Students get incentive for better attendance

If students in Shelby County schools need an incentive to improve their attendance, now they have it.

The plan was adopted last week at a meeting of school administrators.

One hundred extra points can be earned during each six week grading period if a student is present for every class session, if they are on time, have homework and assignments complete and bring required materials.

If the student doesn't meet the criteria in any of these five areas on a given day, 3 1/2 points will be deducted.

An added plus can be gained at the end of each semester, however, if the student attends class every day that it met. This will merit him a five point bonus which is to be added to the semester exam grade.

One teacher explained the reason for the plan like this, "You just can't teach students who aren't present!"

Although the problem is mainly in high school and middle school, administrators report it also affects elementary school students.

CAT scores reported with grades

When report cards are taken home this year, the results of the California Achievement Tests administered during the 1979-80 school year will be included.

The decision to let parents see the test results was made during a school administrators' workshop which was held at Shelby County's Board of Education office Aug. 4-8.

Principals and their committee had studied the idea for a year before taking action.

Results, along with an explanation sheet will be enclosed in the student's first report card.

If further interpretation is needed, a school conference can be arranged.

A spokesperson from the Board of Education office reported that parents, teachers and administrators had felt that test scores should be sent home ever since the state implemented the testing program.

IT'S A POLLSTER...SAYS THERE REALLY IS A SENATE RACE GOING ON IN ALABAMA AND WANTS TO KNOW WHO WE'RE FOR"

Delegates hear from governor

by Fob James

By now you have seen three consecutive nights of the Democratic National Convention on television. As the debate continues as to what course our country should take, I would like to share with you some thoughts of my own on the future of our country.

Last week I wrote a letter to each Alabama delegate to the Democratic National Convention in which I outlined my concerns for the Democratic party and for the country. What follows is an encapsulation of that letter.

Inflation: Inflation is the result of misguided federal policy which puts more money into circulation than is warranted by the real growth of goods and services. It erodes the hard-earned income of everyone, especially the elderly on fixed incomes. The Democratic Platform should advocate a disciplined and consistent monetary policy that will strengthen the dollar and move us toward a return to the gold standard.

The federal deficit and taxes: A cut in taxes without a cut in the federal bureaucracy is a hoax. The platform should require that a balanced budget be achieved before a tax cut is authorized. If that is not done, the federal government will simply print more money and further fuel the fires of inflation.

National security: History shows that weakness, not strength, leads to war. The all-volunteer army has proved to be a failure and has lowered our level of readiness to defend our country. The platform should support military superiority for our nation, not just parity.

Education: The fourteen billion dollar Department of Education, which was just recently created, is simply another layer of bureaucracy at the federal level. This money is sorely needed at the state and local level to improve education. The new department should be eliminated and a state and local level "War on Illiteracy" should be initiated in its place.

Energy: Our dependence on foreign oil is dangerous and inexcusable. The platform should recommend a restrictive tariff on imported crude oil and a deregulation of energy-producing fuels.

The economy and jobs: The federal policy of creating artificial jobs at the cost of billions of dollars to the taxpayers has proven to be a failure. The platform should support the elimination of all such programs and the replacement of them with incentives for the creation of real and permanent jobs in the private sector. This can be done by lowering the tax rates on interest and dividends to encourage thrift and investment and acceleration of depreciation schedules to encourage productivity and industrial and agricultural expansion. The platform should also oppose corporate welfareism such as recently exhibited with the Chrysler Corporation and it should also support a free market for agricultural products anywhere in the world.

The federal bureaucracy: It is good for those who make the laws to have to come home and live under them. The platform should urge a limit of two six-year terms for U.S. Senators, a change of the terms of U.S. Representatives from two to four years with a 12-year limit on service and a change in the Presidential term from four to six years with a one-term limit.

These were the major parts of my letter to the delegates. I hope as you read this the Democratic Convention has acted on these important and pressing issues.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Who could the man in the closet be?

I just couldn't get it out of my mind all the while I was talking to a friend recently.

Dropping by his office for a visit, we were interrupted during our conversation when a door on the opposite side of the room opened and a man stuck his head out.

He appeared to be standing in a closet. And as my friend, whom I'll refer to as ole buddy, sauntered over, I realized I knew this guy in the closet.

But you know when you see someone out of their accustomed setting, it's difficult to place them. At least that's the way it is with me.

Anyway, this guy glanced my way a time or two while he and ole buddy chatted. But I didn't detect any sign of recognition on his part.

When my friend rejoined me, he told me that the hole in the wall I'd supposed was a closet was his darkroom.

And he explained that the man within was working on some equipment.

"Well, I'm sure I know him from someplace," I insisted. "Who is he?"

"I believe you're mistaken," ole buddy said. Lowering his voice, he informed me that the poor guy had recently been released from a mental institution.

"What was his problem?" I inquired, wide eyed. "He was a real bad sex maniac," ole buddy told me.

"I have to wait until all the secretaries in the office go home before he can come in to work," ole buddy went on to say.

He stressed the fact that the man often went berserk at the sight of a woman.

"Well, he didn't seem to have any reaction when he looked at me," I pointed out.

I noticed that ole buddy seemed to be having a little difficulty with his breathing after I made that remark. He kind of choked or something.

However, he assured me that he'd just swallowed the wrong way.

"Where could I possibly have seen that man before," I wondered during the rest of my visit?

"I'm not going to be able to rest until I figure out where I've seen that guy before," I told ole buddy as I was leaving.

This time he didn't choke. Ole buddy just burst out laughing. My leg had been pulled, I found, and hard.

It turned out that the poor, innocent man in the closet operated a camera store which I'd visited on a number of occasions.

I'm not looking forward to seeing him again. How will I ever be able to keep a straight face?

Under the dome

The last day to register to vote in the September 2 primary elections is Friday, August 22.

Mrs. Doris Turner, chairman of the county board of registrars, reports that registration has been heavy the past two weeks.

On Monday 133 people were registered at Alabaster city hall and 40 more were registered at the courthouse.

Mrs. Turner advises registering before the last day to avoid standing in line.

Writer praises APD

Letter to The Editor:

I am writing to inform the citizens of Alabaster that they should be very proud of the police department they have. Not every one would let a citizen come to the station and sit because they had been threatened and were afraid to stay by themselves.

Cadet Sergeant Ricky Headley sat and talked with me because this incident happened to me. I don't know what I would have done if Mr. Headley had not showed some concern for a fellow human being. I think people who show concern for other people as well as doing a good job, should be praised.

All we ever hear about is how rough and mean the police are when in fact they are our best friends in time of need. They risk their lives every day just to protect residents, business, and people. Just think about it. Who do we call when we need help?

Our law enforcement officers are our friends and should be treated as such.

I just want to say thank you to Cadet Sergeant Ricky Headley and the Alabaster Police Department for their help through an otherwise terrifying experience.

Of state's industries

Trees soar to top

by David Armstrong

You're driving down the road and you pass an old truck, a yellow door, a blue door, a brown fender, another fender that looks like it used to be brown, but it's now so crushed and rusty that you're not sure.

The bed of the truck has a pine log about ten feet tall standing in each corner. There are four rear tires pushing against the ground as if they're about to burst, and two more, on an axle just behind the four, that are on the ground but obviously not under as much pressure. The truck is loaded with logs.

About two more miles down the road you pass a much larger truck that is carrying logs about 50 feet long with a red flag tied to the longest. On your left you notice acres and acres of tall southern pines that look as if they were planted in rows like corn.

When you get home, you pick up this newspaper, read this article, and learn that you have been noticing the raw materials for what has become Alabama's number one manufacturing industry -- the wood industry.

Then you look around wherever you are and notice some of the end products, including this newspaper.

All of this has made you wonder how big the wood industry really is in Alabama. It has also made you wonder how big the forests of Alabama are, and how many people work in the industry.

A recent study conducted by Auburn University faculty member Dr. Warren Flick gives you these answers:

The wood industry within the last few years surpassed the heavy metal industry as Alabama's number one industry. Flick's study is based on something called "value added," which considers the value produced from the raw material to the end products.

Forest-based industries produced 1,378.5 million value added dollars in Alabama in 1978. Forest-based industries include lumber, plywood, paper and allied products.

The wood industry is also one of Alabama's leading manufacturing employers. State Forestry Department Director C.W. Moody says the industry is now producing approximately 65,000 jobs.

Two-thirds of the state is in forests. The 21.3 million acres of commercial forest land in Alabama has exceeded only by Georgia and Oregon. Seventy-five percent of the commercial forests in the state are privately owned.

Alabama's forests are made up almost equally of hardwood and softwood.

But how do all those facts and figures translate into something that is close to you? Read the next two parts of this series and you will learn about the man who was driving the multi-colored truck at the beginning of this story. Then, the following week, you'll see how the end products, like this newspaper, are made.

Former UM professor dies

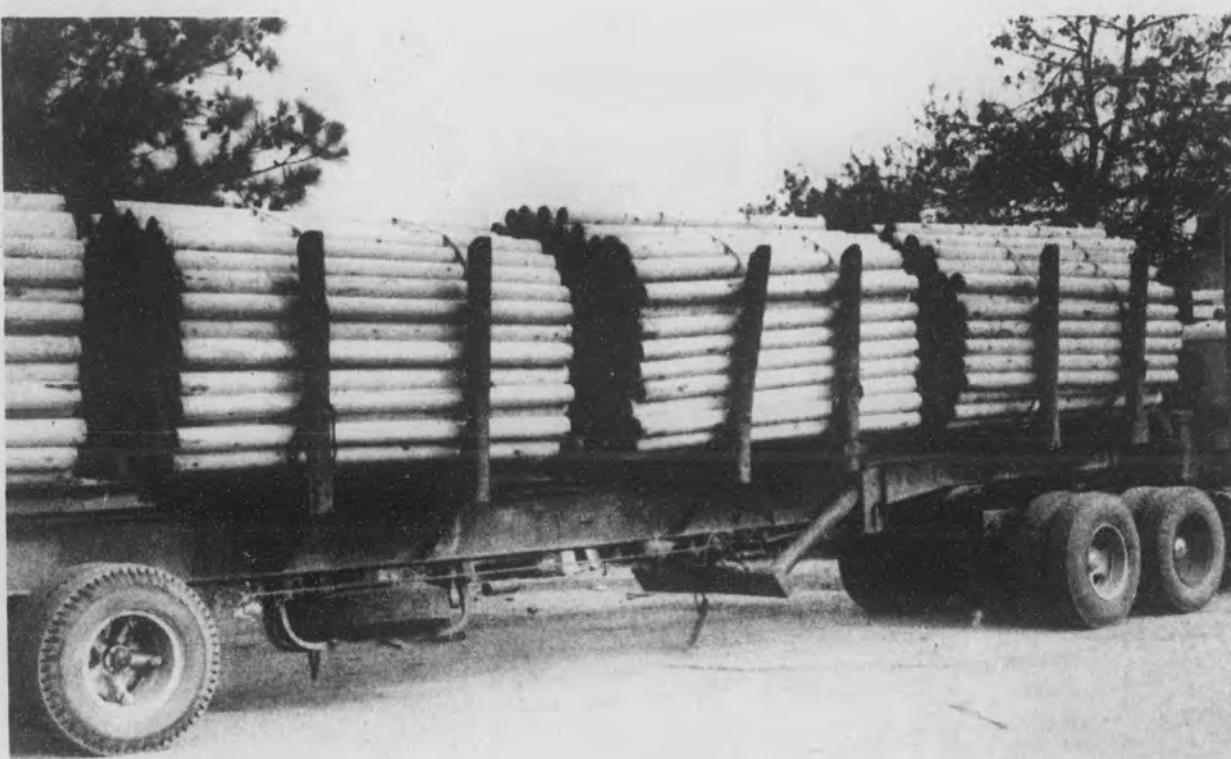

Funeral services for James Edwards, a former member of the University of Montevallo faculty, will be held this afternoon at St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Montevallo.

Burial will follow in the Montevallo Cemetery.

Edwards died July 24 while on a tour of Yugoslavia. He was 58 years old.

For the past 19 years, Edwards lived in Glassboro, N.J. and taught mathematics at Cumberland County College.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Anne Eastman Edwards.

Trucks like this fill Alabama's highways everyday to meet the huge demand for wood products in the state. The wood industry is now the number one

Students need shot certificate

Students must either have a certificate of immunization in their files or bring one when they enter school this year.

Otherwise, says Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, the student won't be allowed to attend classes until the document is furnished.

The reason for the school system's insistence on having proof of immunization is the state's Compulsory Immunization School Law, Act 1269.

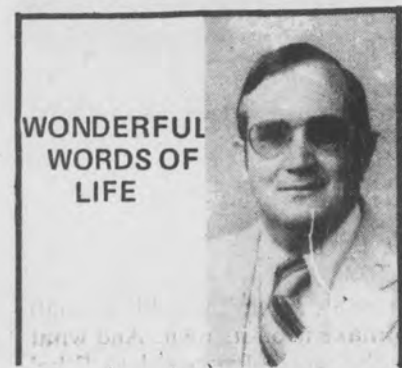

This applies to students from kindergarten through the twelfth grade.

The document can be procured from either a private physician or the Shelby County Health Department.

For those who need immunization, clinics will be held at the following times and places: Pelham City Hall, 1st & 3rd Tuesday, 1:30-3:30 p.m.; Columbiana, Shelby County Health Department, every Thursday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

Harpersville, Crow Medical Clinic, 1st & 3rd Thursday, 1-3:30 p.m.; Dunnivant, Community Services Building, 1st & 3rd Thursday, 1-4 p.m.

Alabaster, City Hall, every Friday, 8-11 a.m.; Montevallo, City Hall, every Friday, 1-4 p.m.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Baptism: Is It Necessary To Salvation?

Many religionists deny that baptism in water is necessary to salvation. Of course, one should be governed by what the Bible teaches instead of by the opinions of men. A few questions should make clear to you, dear reader, the importance of baptism.

First, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Christ say, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be condemned" (Mark 16:16)?

Second, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Peter command the Pentecostians, "Repent and be baptized, everyone of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins" (Acts 2:38)?

Third, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why were Cornelius and his household commanded to be baptized in water (Acts 10:47,48)?

Fourth, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why was Saul of Tarsus commanded, "And why tarriest thou? Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins calling upon the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16)?

Fifth, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Paul state that "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ" (Galatians 3:27)? See also Ephesians 1:3 which states that all spiritual blessings are in Christ and II Timothy 2:10 which states that salvation is in Christ.

Sixth, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Peter state that "baptism doth also now save you" (I Peter 3:21)?

Seventh, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Christ state, "Except a man be born of water and of the spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God" (John 3:5)?

Eighth, if baptism is non-essential to salvation, why did Paul state that the cutting away of the sins from the soul takes place when one is buried in baptism (Colossians 2:11-13)?

Dear Reader, have you been immersed in water for the remission of your sins?

Steam plant

The steam plant in Childersburg, built for wartime readiness, may soon be reactivated to help in the search for gasohol. All the equipment was carefully "laid away" by the army so it could be used again.

Industrial area

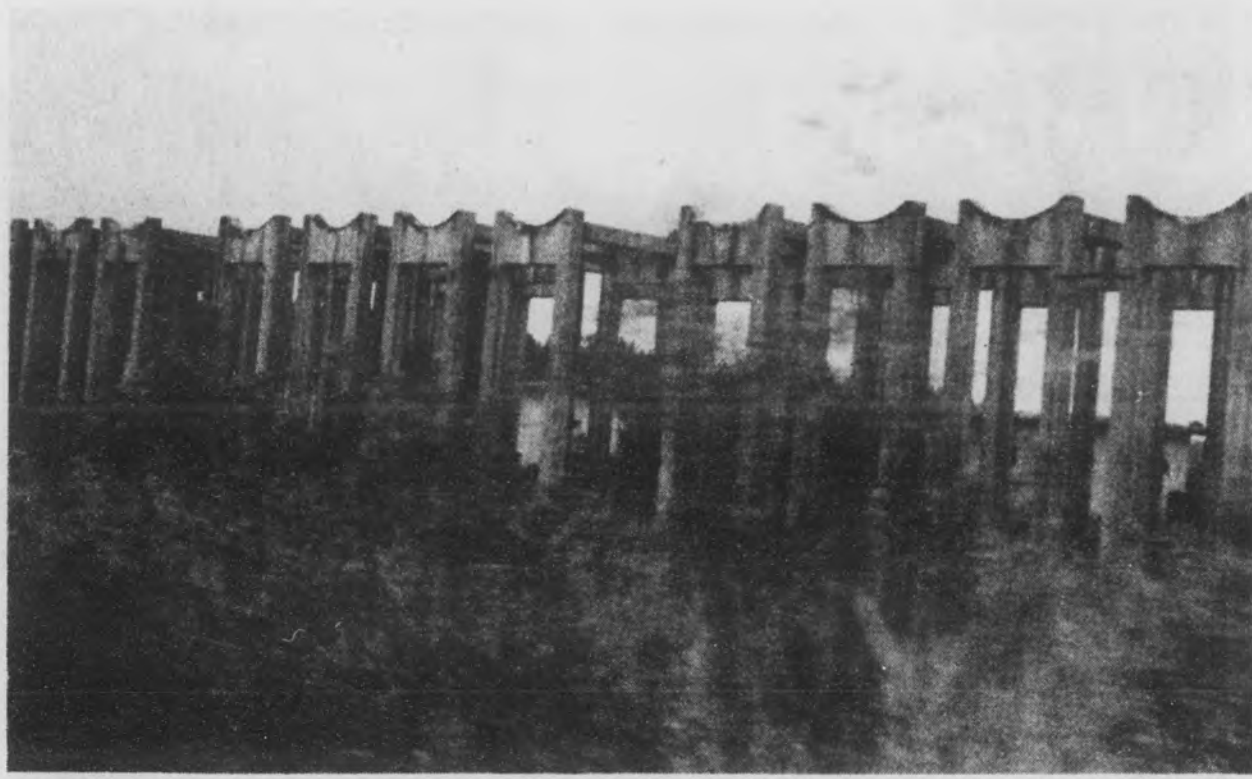

Old buildings house powder producing equipment at Childersburg. With the nation's urgent need for fuel supplies, renewed interest in all the Childersburg army and industrial property has increased.

Still awaits new use

An alcohol still that has not been used since World War II may finally get back into action if the move to produce gasohol in Childersburg proves successful. This is one of two stills installed by the army to make powder at the Ordnance Works. It is 42 feet high and 6 feet in diameter, made of copper.

Pillars

Tall support pillars on the army property at Childersburg are a reminder of past years. Hundreds of Shelby County residents worked on this property during and after World War II.

Gasohol gets intensive study

available that would not be available to a private company, they noted.

To get phase I in operation would take between $32 and $40 million, according to company engineers. They said they are waiting for a report from Grady Harmon, an Auburn engineer who has been studying the location at the request of Talladega County officials, before they can make further commitments.

The number of jobs provided by the ethanol production would be about 100, but the other industries in the park and the jobs provided for the farm economy would really mean a boon to the entire Coosa Valley, spokesmen said.

The industrial development board, headed by Cleve Jacobs, is still studying the various proposals, and has not made a recommendation to date.

The Friday meeting was attended by area senators Lister

Hill Proctor and John Teague, as well as members of the Talladega County Commission and other interested persons.

County borrows to pay its bills

In order to pay bills for the remainder of the fiscal year, the commission agreed to borrow $112,036 against the last federal revenue sharing check which is expected in October.

One expenditure the panel okayed Monday was for engine repair of the county library's bookmobile. The cost was figured at $500.

When bids were opened for the printing of beer stamps, Roberts & Sons submitted the low figure and was awarded the contract.

Learning that Chevron Oil Company was requiring a 12,000 gallon fuel tank be installed at the Shelby County Airport, it was agreed that bids be sent out for the larger receptacle.

When the subject of the county's animal shelter came up, commissioners decided an investigation should be made of the county's legal responsibilities before taking any action.

The feasibility of expanding was mentioned and it was also brought up that the best course of action might be to turn the facility over to the Humane Society.

Offices planned

A new office park has been announced for the junction of U.S. 280 and I-459. Cahaba Office Park, a $15 million complex, will have 250,000 square feet of offices on 17 acres. Construction is expected to begin later this year.

Proposed promotional events for the City of Calera were discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the Calera Chamber of Commerce.

Merchants are holding a back to school series of sales this weekend.

Plans were also discussed for the town's annual Christmas parade. Saturday, December 13 was picked as the tentative date for the evening parade.

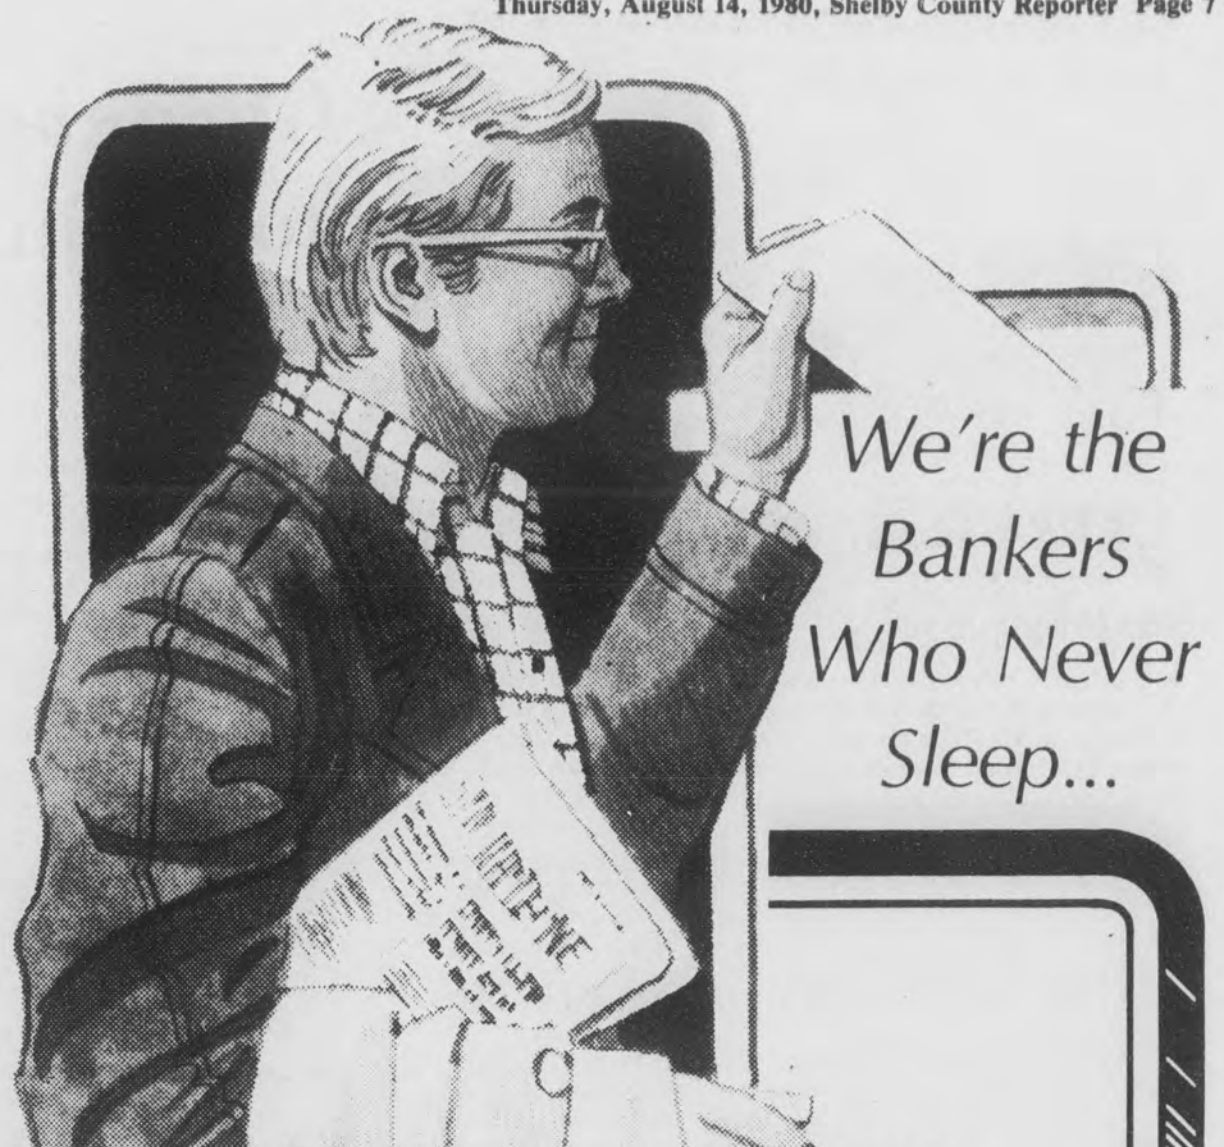

Kermit Roberson, president of the local chamber, presided at Tuesday's meeting and told members to make efforts to obtain a broader base of participation in the Christmas parade.

This year's parade will be jointly sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Calera Civitan Club.

Before adjourning this month's meeting Roberson proposed naming four areas of concern for the chamber to consider. Committees will be appointed to become active in the following subjects: education, municipal government, small businesses, legislative affairs.

This month's meeting was held Tuesday noon in the Calera Civitan building.

Making plans

School administrators made plans for the new school year during a workshop at the Board of Education office last week. Shown holding a discussion are TES principal Henderson Walker, CMS principal Ouida Bentley and Rebecca Draper and Beverly Hall from the central staff.

Principals nail down new school programs

School administrators put their noses to the grindstone last week and came up with some improvements for this year's school program. Meeting at the Board of Education office every day last week, principals, assistant principals and members of the central office staff worked on instructional programs, budget, and discipline policies.

Countians earn Samford degrees

At Samford University's commencement on Saturday, the following Shelby County residents will receive degrees. Carla DeAnn Turner, Associate of Paralegal Studies; D. Craig Holt, Bachelor of Science in Business Administration; Andy Lyn Hodges, Bachelor of Science in Education; Elizabeth Boggan Howard, Educational Specialist; and Joseph Ronald Sams, Bachelor of Arts, all of Pelham. Karen Leigh Guthrie, Associate of Science in Nursing of Montevallo; Patricia Green Vacarella, Bachelor of Science in Nursing of Helena; and Lou Ann Gibson, Master of Science in Education.

Gardeners advised to get jump on fall

Even though this hot, dry weather really ruined many of the gardens in Shelby County, there's still time to salvage your gardening plans. How? Plant a fall garden. You still have time to grow vegetables if you plant them now. Lima beans, peas, snap beans and potatoes still have time to mature. Fall crops of cabbage, collards and broccoli can be seeded for growing a crop of fall transplants. And it only takes a few minutes to prepare the land and seed a turnip patch or plant a row of rutabagas. Even though most of the vegetable-growing areas in the nation were not seriously affected by the drought, many home gardens suffered. Therefore, more people will be buying vegetables. This will push the cost of fresh produce to record highs. So if you're ready to toss in the towel on your gardening ventures, remember -- growing a fall garden is still worth the effort.

Around Shelby County

by Becky McDonald

Hurricane Allen didn't disturb Dale and Sue Henderson, Russell and Beth Henderson, Danny Endress, Mrs. Sally Gaskins and 19 teenagers from the Pelham Baptist Church as they built their bonfire on Laguna Beach last Saturday night, and rose to watch the sun come up over the water Sunday before the sunrise service.

Swimming and lounging on the beach can well be remembered by this group. As I have it from a reliable source, they can be distinguished from the crowd by their deep tans and red noses.

I'm sure the mothers of Pelham with young children will be happy to hear that the Methodist church has decided to open a Mother's Day Out program beginning September 9. Registration will begin August 21 between 9 and 12.

Interested mothers with children from newborn to age 5 are encouraged to call Gail Casey at 663-2663 and Mary Pihakis at 663-6239 for more information.

In an effort to "put some feet on giving" says Rev. Ron Cox, 18 skilled laymen along with the ministers from the First Assembly of God of Alabaster paid their own way to San Pedro Sulas, Honduras on August 1. They went for the express purpose of building a church in six days. In the group were Rev. Cox, Mark Sims, Ken Bryars and Barry Franks.

Each day from 4:30 till dark the men constructed a church of block and mortar, designed to be earthquake-proof.

The following Friday with the help of an interpreter the church was dedicated and turned over to the local pastor. Oddly enough, the first earthquake in two years hit Honduras that night and the building withstood it.

This summer Calera High School has been preparing for the 1980-81 season. Drum major Lee Morrison and the majorettes went to camp at Auburn, and the color guard traveled to camp at Jacksonville State University.

However, this week band director Mike McCreless plans to bring the entire program together as they have band camp from 8 to 5.

Saturday at 12 the band will present a polished program to all parents and members of the community who wish to attend. Following the program there will be a band booster drive and refreshments.

Rain or shine the Falkner School on Highway 43 between Vandiver and Highway 280 will be the site of the Falkner family reunion on Sunday, August 17. All family, friends, former students and teachers are invited to share their dinner in the one room school house that now only opens its doors for Homecoming Day and this Falkner reunion.

Everyone is encouraged to come early - around 10 - so there will be as much time for getting reacquainted as for enjoying the meal.

In our town, as I'm sure in others, summer is a time for visiting grandma's house. I was reminded of this as I passed Ben and Mary Nell Skelton's home one day and saw Mary Nell playing with two small children in the back yard.

I've also noticed that if you want to find Jackie Cates, the best place to look is where her new grandson is.

Last week while driving downtown I had just enough time to see the reason for the big smile on Nell Fulton's face. In her arms was a baby dressed in blue.

Though summer is coming to an end, I'm sure plans are already in the making for the holidays.

Then once again it will be time to be off to grandma's house.

Until next week I'll be seeing you, 'around the county.'

MRS. WESLEY ACTON
...the former Connie Brogden

Brogden-Acton plight troth

Elliottsville Cumberland Presbyterian Church was the setting at 7 p.m. Saturday, August 2, for the wedding of Miss Connie Sue Brogden and Wesley Houston Acton. Reverend Roy Hall officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Bess Brogden, Mr. Alvin Brogden and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry R. Acton.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, W.H. McClendon. Matron of honor was Mrs. Debra Barashes. Miss Monique Davis served as bridesmaid and flower girl was the bride's niece, Miss Lisa Guyton.

Mr. Acton was his son's best man. Groomsmen were Mike Bice and Lynn Acton. Master Phillip Hoggle, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Mrs. Jenna Worrell, sister of the groom and Miss Teri Shipp served during the reception which followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

After a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the couple will live in Altus, Oklahoma where the groom is stationed with the United States Air Force.

Retirement tea set to honor Cotney

Marian Cotney will be honored with a retirement tea on August 21. She retired from the Cooperative Extension Service at the end of last month after 41 years of service.

All friends are invited to come to the tea and wish Miss Cotney a long and happy retirement.

It will be held at the Columbiana United Methodist Church Fellowship hall from 2 to 4 p.m.

Pickens welcome new daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Pickens announce the arrival of their daughter, Bridgett Renea on July 27. She weighed 7 lbs. 15½ ozs. and was 21" long. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H.L. Edmonds of Wilsonville and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pickens of Westover.

Miss Alabama heads Guild fashions

Our Lady of the Valley Ladies Guild will hold its third annual fashion show Tuesday, August 19. Heading the show will be Miss Alabama Paige Phillips.

Fashions for this year's show will be provided by Birmingham clothing store, and will be modeled by members of the guild and their children.

After the buffet luncheon, a tea cup auction will be held in which handcrafted items donated by the guild will be sold. Door prizes will also be given out at the fashion show.

The fun starts at 11 a.m. at the church on Cahaba Valley Road. Ticket information and reservations can be made by calling 967-9629.

The fashion show is the guild's primary fund raiser and proceeds go toward church and community projects throughout the year.

Shelbian visits family in Shelby

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Campbell and their son Larry Jr. were visited last week by Mrs. Campbell's father.

Mr. Bob Rogers had not seen his daughter in ten years and he had never met his grandson and son-in-law. Rogers lives in Shelby, Mont.

The Campbell family and Rogers left Saturday for a visit with Mr. Campbell's sister in Miami, Fla. After that they will attend a Rogers family reunion in Homestead, Fla.

Meet JIM KING and his family!

Jim King was born in Pelham in 1935 and attended Shelby County public schools. He earned a B.S. Degree in Business Administration with a major in accounting at the University of Montevallo.

Jim married Rose Marie Stewart, also a native of Shelby County, and they live near Helena with their five children.

After serving 4 years in the U.S. Navy, Jim worked for the U.S. Treasury for 17 years, retiring in 1979. He is now self-employed in Pelham as a licensed Public Accountant and Tax Consultant.

Jim and his family are active members of the Helena Baptist Church. He has served in leadership positions for 22 years as a deacon, Sunday School Director and Sunday School Teacher.

A concerned parent, Jim is Chairman of the Pelham High School Trustees and Co-Chairman of the Shelby County Educational Committee. He is also serving as Vice President of the Cahaba Valley Little League Association and as a member of the Shelby County YMCA Board of Directors.

Other offices have included: Legislative Committee Chairman working for better schools, Executive Vice President of the National Treasury Employees Union, past officer of the Civitans and President of a local chapter of the Toastmasters International.

Optimists organizing in north end of county

An organizational meeting for a new Optimist Club in Shelby County will be held next week in Pelham.

The new club is being sponsored by the Shades Mountain Optimist Club which covers the Vestavia/Hoover area. It will draw its membership predominantly from Riverchase, Alabaster, Pelham, and the Cahaba Valley.

Optimist International, with which the new club will be affiliated, boasts over 125,000 members. Members strive to project their thoughts and actions towards the good of the community with emphasis placed on community improvement and youth oriented projects.

A.J. Benintende, Jr., vice president of the Shades Mountain chapter is acting as sponsor of the new club. Benintende told the Reporter he and a committee are looking for a nucleus of interested area leaders to get the club rolling.

This nucleus, he said, would be running the meetings after the first few weeks, and would seek membership of 25 people so a charter could be obtained.

The organizational meeting will be held Tuesday, August 19, at 6:30 p.m. at Shoney's on Hwy. 31. The club will continue to meet each Tuesday at the same time.

For more information, contact A.J. Benintende at 823-1385.

Storm wreaks havoc

The flagpole at the Shelby County Courthouse separated as it hit the ground during the sudden storm that rained into Columbiana without warning. But the pole was quickly repaired and the flag hoisted aloft again this week.

Health dept issues certificates

Death certificates in Shelby County will now be easier to obtain.

During the past legislative session, the legislature passed Act Number 80-403, which authorizes the Shelby County Health Department to issue death certificates on those persons who died in Shelby County, except where an autopsy is performed.

This is only for a period of one year after the person's death. Thereafter, copies will have to be obtained from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Alabama Department of Public Health, Montgomery, Al.

The local health department will begin issuing these certificates, to next of kin or other qualified individuals, upon request effective August 15. Such requests must be made in person at the Shelby County Health Department in Columbiana.

The certificates can only be issued on persons who died after August 1, 1980 and the initial certificates have been signed by the physician or other authorized person and received by the Health Department. The charges for issuing these certificates are set by law and are $5 or the initial copy and $2 for each additional copy requested at the same time. Only cash or money orders can be accepted for payment.

Death certificates where autopsies have occurred or for any alteration in a certificate must still be obtained at the Department of Public Health, Montgomery. Regular death certificates can still be obtained in Montgomery.

Church news

The deacons of Ryan Baptist Church near Montevallo were honored by a special service August 10.

Honored were Jerry Brantley, Norman Brogden, Bill Huckabee and Clarence Yessick. During the service the deacons had carnation boutonniers pinned on them by their wives, Barbara Brantley, June Brogden, Virginia Huckabee and Essie Yessick.

A gift and a large poster of appreciation made by Mrs. Brogden was presented to the deacons by Rev. Larry Harrison. In his sermon, Rev. Harrison expressed the church's appreciation for the work and dedication of the deacons.

Prophecy in Sterrett.

Guest singers at the 7 p.m. event will be the Alexander City Times and the Victory Makers from Leeds.

Rev. Billy Burcham will be the evangelist at the revival being held at Summer Hill Baptist Church Aug. 18-22.

The public is invited to attend the nightly services which will begin at 7 p.m.

Summer Hill Church is located on old Hwy. 25.

Proration casts gloom over county schools

Will Shelby County schools have to close down because of proration?

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles hopes it won't come to that. But the ten percent bite that's being forecast in state funding will severely curtail the operation of county schools.

It may not be possible, Knowles said, for the school system to absorb a loss that will amount to at least $1,000,000, and still continue to operate.

What it amounts to, the superintendent remarked, is that the Board of Education will be adopting a million dollar budget that won't be spent.

Enumerating the cutbacks that will be called for, Knowles said that needed building repairs won't be made, no new buses will be purchased, land purchases will be held up in addition to limiting programs already in progress.

"It's a bitter pill to swallow," the superintendent noted, "since the people of this county have just approved a one cent sales tax to fund a better education for their children."

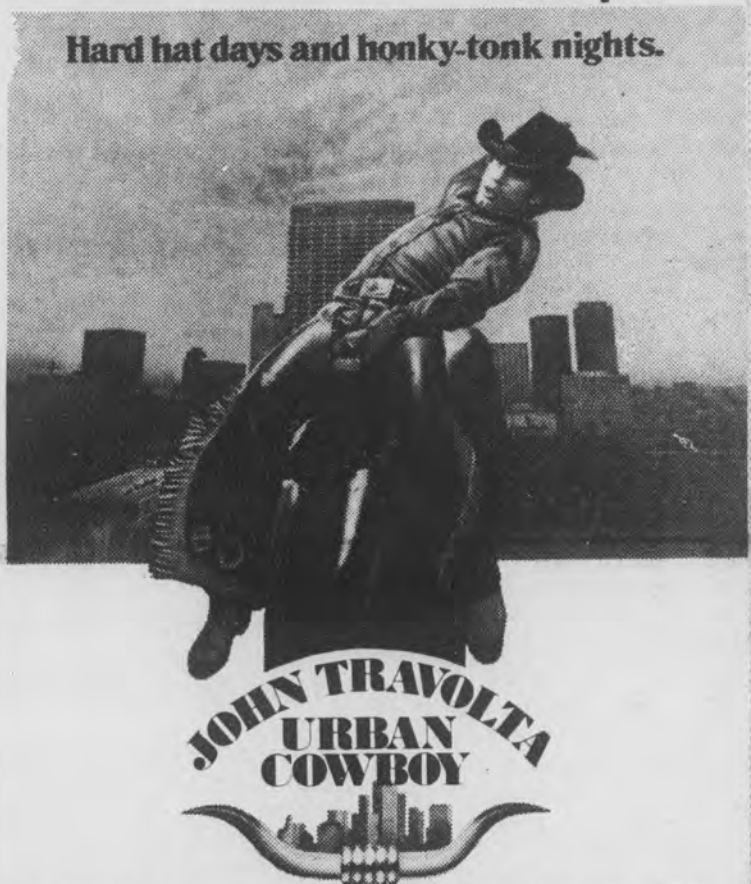

But instead of the money being used to improve county schools, now it must be used to replace state funds that won't be paid, Knowles said.

Proration during the past two years, the superintendent related, has dealt a crippling blow to local schools due to an $800,000 loss of state funds.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

WIC PROGRAM PURCHASES

Spraying season

Good spraying practices controls insects and results in a good cotton crop for county farmers.

Cotton holds promise

Although it won't be the easiest crop to pick, extension agent John Jones predicts that cotton farmers will have a fair to medium harvest this year.

And prices look like they will be better than usual, he added.

However, the farm agent injected a note of caution by saying that it's still a long time until the Oct. 1 picking.

If the plants continue to fruit as they've been doing and insects can be controlled, Jones sees a favorable outcome for the crop which occupies 5,000 acres of county farmland.

The reason it will be difficult to pick, Jones explained, is due to the small stalk caused by lack of rainfall.

However the unusually hot weather has been in the cotton farmer's favor, the extension agent pointed out, because the plant has fruited more than it normally does.

And a better price, he noted, is due to a smaller surplus plus the fact that 100% cotton shirts are now in demand.

Jones also mentioned that the weather has affected other major cotton growing areas of the country more than it has here.

And it's expected that the county will contribute above its normal share to the cotton market since three new producers have joined the ranks of cotton growers.

Stewart makes talk on Montevallo campus

College graduates today have the chance to become part of a new American revolution, U.S. Sen. Donald Stewart told the University of Montevallo summer graduating class.

But such a revolution will be fought with ideas, not guns, Stewart said.

"Truly this is an opportunity that should not be taken lightly, but should be taken with a deep commitment to improve life in the future," he told the 191 degree candidates, of which 109 were receiving masters level degrees.

Americans no longer live in a time of optimism that has characterized the first 200 years of American independence, he said, and many nations no longer have faith in this nation as the leader of the free world.

"Internally, the lowering of American productivity has fueled the double-digit inflation that has brought the nation its worst economic conditions since the Depression," said Stewart.

"America will need to adapt to new international and domestic conditions to continue its leadership role. But history has shown time and time again that we not only adapt to change but that we grow and prosper with a more productive society than ever before."

Also at Friday evening's program, Stewart received UM's second annual James M. Tingle award for service to the state above the requirements of the profession.

School sign-up set in Wilsonville

Monday, August 25 those parents wishing to pre-register their children for Wilsonville Elementary school can do so at the following times: 1-2:30 p.m. and working parents from 6-7:30 p.m.

A parent or guardian must be present to fill out and sign the proper forms.

All donations will be accepted. Kindergarten and new first graders will need to bring their birth certificate and proper immunization slips.

Tuesday, August 26 will be the first full day of school. All students are urged to be present and on time, according to Rosie Liveak, principal.

IS GOD?

IS GOD? Does God exist? There are many views about God. The "deist", the "atheist", the "infidel", the "pantheist" all have differing, unjustified views.

THE THEIST BELIEVES in one God, the creator and ruler of the universe by the regular workings of his established laws. This view point is supported by the indisputable, conclusive evidence available to us.

SUCH METHODS as the "cosmological", "teleological", "ontological" and others are weak and inadequate. The two historical theories are "universal consent" and "historic-theological". More contemporary views are those of the "subjectivists", the "logical idealists", and followers of "neo-orthodoxy".

GOD'S WORD DOES what none of the humanly devised theories can do. It reveals the true God, and in believing and obeying this word; we accept and please this God. (Rom. 10:17; John 20:30, 31; James 1:22-25; 2:20-24).

REMEMBER: "The fool has said that there is no God." "Blessed is the nation whose God is Jehovah."

Amendment No. 1

STATE OF ALABAMA A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at the Regular Session 1980 ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the said election be held on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, the day of the Primary Election in the year 1980; and

WHEREAS, the Primary Election in the year 1980 will be and occur on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, and

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment to be given by proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 2nd day of September, 1980, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

The operation of bingo games for prizes or money by non-profit organizations for charitable or educational purposes shall be legal in Jefferson County, subject to the provisions of any resolution or ordinance by the county governing body or the governing bodies of the respective cities and towns, within their respective jurisdictions. The said governing bodies shall have the authority to promulgate rules and regulations for the licensing and operation of bingo games, within their respective jurisdictions, provided, however, that said governing bodies must insure compliance with the following provisions:

(a) No person under the age of 19 shall be permitted to play any game or games of bingo, nor shall any person under the age of 19 be permitted to conduct or assist in the conduct of any game of bingo;

(b) No bingo license shall be issued to any non-profit organization, unless such organization shall have been in existence for at least 24 months immediately prior to the issuance of the license;

(c) Bingo games shall be operated only on the premises owned or leased by the non-profit organization operating the bingo game. If the premises is leased, the rate of rental shall not be based on a percentage of receipts or profits resulting from the operation of bingo games;

(d) No non-profit organization shall enter into any contract with any individual, firm, association or corporation to have said individual, or entity operate bingo games or concessions on behalf of the non-profit organization, nor shall said non-profit organization pay consulting fees to any individual or entity for any services performed in relation to the operation or conduct of a bingo game;

(e) A non-profit organization shall not lend its name or allow its identity to be used by any other person or entity in the operating or advertising of a bingo game in which said non-profit organization is not directly and solely operating said bingo game;

(f) Prizes given by any non-profit organization for the playing of bingo games shall not exceed $1,200.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any bingo session or $2,400.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any calendar week;

(g) No person or organization, by whatever name or composition thereof, shall take any salary, expense money, or fees as remuneration for services rendered in the operation of any bingo game, and

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901 be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

Montevallo arrests decrease for July

A slight decrease in the number of arrests in Montevallo during July was noted in Police Chief Troy Kirkland's monthly report to the city council, Monday night.

Kirkland's written report indicates that his department received 184 complaint calls during July and that his officers made a total of 60 arrests.

More tickets were written for speeding than for any other violation last month. Twelve speeding tickets were issued. Nine arrests were made for writing worthless checks, five for assault, four for public intoxication, three each for disorderly conduct, driving while intoxicated, driving on the wrong side of the road, driving with a revoked driver's license and operating a vehicle with improper lights and muffler.

Two arrests were made for criminal mischief and operating a vehicle with a switched tag. Single arrests were made for the following: criminal trespass, running a red light, operating a vehicle without a driver's license, drinking in public, violation of probation, possessing alcoholic beverages in the city park, running a stop sign, obscuring traffic view, passing in an intersection, improper passing, and reckless driving.

The police chief's report also showed that the city collected a total of $2,666.50 in fines during July.

Officers drove 5,040 miles during the month.

The city spent $218.10 on food for prisoners lodged in the city jail.

Date changes for tourney

The date of the Montevallo slow-pitch softball tournament has been changed. The change came too late for the article about it in the sports section of this issue of the newspaper.

Coach David Bailey telephoned the Reporter late Monday night to say that the new date will be August 23. It had to be changed from August 16 because of a prior tournament, he said.

Pot goes up in smoke

by Reporter Staff

An estimated $1.5 million worth of pot went up in smoke Friday in Chilton County as authorities set fire to some 3,800 marijuana plants which were discovered growing there.

Meanwhile, two Shelby County men and a man from Kentucky were arrested in connection with the 1.5 acre field of illegal weed.

The plants were reported to have grown to a height of 3-8 feet. A spokesman for the Chilton County Sheriff's Department speculated that the three men had come to the field to harvest some or all of the plants because they were carrying scissors at the time they were arrested.

Twelve-fifteen pounds of marijuana were also discovered in the truck the men had driven to a point near the field.

Arrested were Leonard L. Martin, 48, of Helena, Lloyd Ray Lowe, 41, of Maylene, and David McDaniel, 20, of Fordsville, Kentucky.

The field, located two miles north of Maplesville near Hwy. 139, had been under surveillance by the Shelby and Chilton Sheriff's Departments for six weeks.

Kids win prizes for reading books

Christy Grimes found plenty to do this summer. So did David Dilmore, Michelle Colvin, Jamie Grimes and at least 25 other children from the Pelham area.

The four children were winners in the Pelham Library Summer Reading Program which closed out Monday with a party. Certificates and prizes were given out at the party.

Christy read 292 books this summer, David read 72, Michelle read 100 and Jamie read 150.

In all, 80 children from grades 2-6 participated in the program and read a total of 1,532 books over the summer. Twenty-five of the children read 15 books or more, according to librarian Mary Carver.

Farmers take part in B'ham meet

Several members of the Shelby County Farm Bureau took part in the recent commodity producers conference and trade show held in Birmingham.

They were:

Mr. and Mrs. Royce Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Bearden, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Luger, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Bearden, Miss Marion Cooney, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tate, Mrs. Hoyt Blalock, Col. and Mrs. Claude Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kent.

Church is site for gymnastics

Gymnastics classes are being taught at the Columbiana First Baptist Church Family Life Center by Dan and Kitty Perkins.

The classes are taught to children ages 3 to 14 on Monday afternoon.

For more information, call 669-9077.

During the course of the stakeout, Sheriff Buddy Glasgow flew several reconnaissance flights over the field. Other personnel from Glasgow's department involved in the case included Chief James Jones, investigators Reed Smith, John Pratt and Bill Davenport. Investigator Bob O'Connor from the district attorney's office was also involved in the case.

Chilton County inmates and reserve deputies pulled up the plants Friday afternoon, doused them in diesel fuel and burned them in front of TV cameras called to the scene by Chilton County Sheriff James Earl Johnson.

Later that afternoon 1,000 additional plants 3-4 feet high were pulled up and burned south of Buxahatchee Creek west of Shelby.

All three are out on bail. Lowe and McDaniel were released on $5,000 bond and Martin on $1,000 bond.

The case has gone to a Chilton County grand jury.

Oklahoma Yellow Jackets?

In the course of a rather physical workout the other day, Vincent Head Coach Harold Garrett put his Yellow Jackets through the three-on-three, Oklahoma drill. Someone down in Harpersville later said they heard leather popping from up Vincent way, but Garrett said his boys still need to toughen up a bit.

Editorial comment

Football should be a simple fun sport

High school football. It's a rough, physical sport in which a team strives to run, pass, push or kick a pigskin across its opponent's goal. The concept is fairly simple.

On a more ideal level the game is supposed to build character through discipline, dedication and hard work.

But at the bottom line it should be a simple, fun sport; this activity (or passion) we call football.

Here's the problem: some people, it seems, are not content to let high school football remain a mere sport. They elevate it to a ridiculous height of importance. Then they proceed to play "games" with it.

Part of the reason this occurs (commonly, throughout the United States) is because we have created and live in a "win" oriented society.

Example: Often as not, John Q. Public (or John Q. Sportswriter) tends to make comments such as "The Los Angeles Rams lost the Super Bowl." Is it no honor that the Rams made it to Super Sunday in the first place? Is there no honor at all in being number 2 in front of everyone but the Steelers?

Whatever happened to people who believe "It's not a matter of winning or losing, but how you play the game"?

Another problem plaguing high school football is that the sport has been turned into a political animal of sorts. It goes against my grain to see individuals, teams, coaches, booster personnel, ad nauseum be manipulated by sideline coaches and drug store athletic directors who, just because they carry a little weight in a community, think they're qualified to run the whole show.

Take two or three such people with varying views and you can tear a community apart, not to mention an athletic program supposedly aimed at developing the character of tomorrow's leaders.

Advancing this line of thinking to a much broader scale brings to mind the way nations use the Olympics to advance their political ends.

A third general problem with high school football today stems from what appears to be an apparent change in attitude among players around the county and, doubtlessly, elsewhere.

There's nothing in the world wrong with a kid who simply doesn't care to play football. There is, however, a problem when a player decides he no longer wants to be part of the team because he thinks they might have a losing season. Same goes for the player who wants the glory without paying the price of work. And when a kid (or grownup) won't acknowledge the fact that the coach has to be the one calling the shots, there's a

by David Armstrong

"We want to play football, but not under this coach."

Giving these words as explanation, eleven young men walked out of a meeting with Shelby County High School's football coaches last week. The group, ten of whom had already quit the team or never joined, said they approached head coach Larry Molton because they wanted to play football and because members of the team had asked them to join or rejoin the squad.

According to members of the group, they were asked by some of the SCHS team members to meet in Columbiana last Thursday. At the meeting, which lasted more than 90 minutes, they said they talked with the team and they decided to ask Molton if they could be on the team. They said all 33 at the meeting decided to do the same thing -- they would all play or they would all quit.

The group members who had quit the team said they felt the new head coach was asking too much from a high school ball player. They claim Molton was requiring extra work from them because they had not worked out during the summer when other team members began running and weight lifting programs.

"It's all right to ask us to get in shape," one of the young men said, "but some of us have to work and we didn't think it was right for us to be required to do extra work, so we quit."

Many in the group who walked out of the meeting with Molton had been on the starting lineup last season, according to one member of the group. He also said most of the 23 players who are left on the team had not seen much action in varsity football games.

"We went into the meeting with Molton wanting to be on the team, but after about 45 minutes we knew he didn't want us, so we left."

Molton said everyone had an equal chance to play football for the Wildcats. He said some of the young men had been willing, so far, to follow his leadership and they are still on the team. He said the boys who had quit were not willing to follow his leadership and, as a consequence, they are no longer on the team.

Molton said he was hired as head football coach to win football games. He said he is doing his best to do what he was hired to do.

Approximately 23 young men are still on the football team, considered by most to be a small number for a 3A high school team. But as one member of the team pointed out, it only takes eleven to play the game.

SCHS opens its season against Pelham, August 29.

Vincent cheerleader named All-American

Vincent High School head cheerleader Helen Kidd was chosen as All-American Cheerleader by the National Cheerleaders Association recently.

She was picked from a field of 300 girls during the cheerleading camp held two weeks ago at the University of South Alabama in Mobile.

The VHS senior is the daughter of Bernice Kidd of Vincent.

Accompanying her to the four day camp was the rest of the Vincent varsity cheerleading squad, comprised of Lisa Cooper, Letitia Kelley, Valerie McCarthy, Nancy Dunlap, Staci Watson, Toni Dunlap, Terri Cockrum and Regina Garner.

Of the 50 cheerleading squads attending the camp, VHS was one of four groups to be chosen to compete for the excellence award, and the girls brought home five blue ribbons for their superior work.

They were chaperoned by Frances Watson.

One in 300

Vincent senior Helen Kidd was chosen as "All-American" out of 300 cheerleaders who recently attended a clinic at South Alabama.

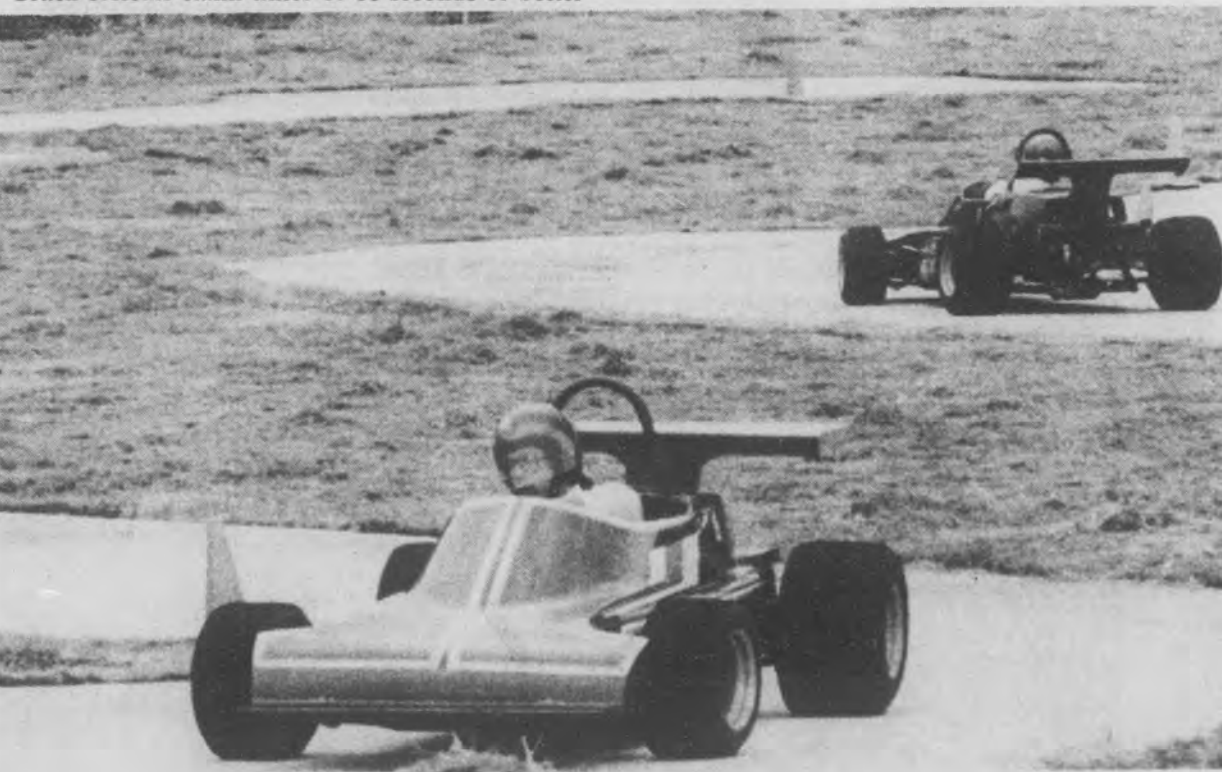

D.F.M.

The enemy

Racers at Action Track race against the clock, which translates into racing against yourself. Track officials claim times of 60 seconds or better are really burning it up, but that figure may have to be lowered.

Fantasy lives

The Lola mini-racers got off to a fast start this weekend when Action Raceway opened on Hwy. 31 in Pelham. Gunning around the half-mile of 30 tight curves at better than 30 mph truly adds up to fast-paced action - especially when you aren't but six inches off the ground. Besides making money for car dealer Allen Willey and his eleven limited partners, the rent-a-racer business is designed to relieve some of the Mario Andretti/Walter Mitty desires that plague many people.

New sport takes off with-zoom

The fantasy is not at all unusual.

It goes like this: There you are, strapped into a low-slung, fire-breathing racing machine. Revving the engine to a fever-pitch you grip the tight feeling steering wheel. Intent. Concentrating. Waiting for the word, "Go!"

And then you're off with a scream, leaving a blue cloud of burned oil and rubber lingering in the air behind you as you burn down the track.

Maybe it's Talladega. Maybe Le Mans, Indianapolis or the German Grand Prix. It doesn't really matter where you place this fantasy because it's just that, a fantasy.

Or, rather, it used to be just a fantasy.

Now you can rent a mini-Lola racer at Action Track in Pelham and take the imagination out of this fantasy.

Of course, the mini-Lola cut the speed from 200 mph to maybe 45 mph and whittled the car to 3/4 scale. But they also trim a few hundred-thousand bucks off the price tag of professional racing.

Most importantly, the little Lolas put you in the driver's seat. The track is laid out in twisting, contorting curves which turn you around about 30 times before winding you to the finish line.

Sitting nearly on the ground like you do seemingly multiplies the speed by a factor of three or four.

More than a glorified go-cart, the Lolas are equipped with independent, four-wheel suspension. And with steering that's tighter than a reporter's budget, the car, literally, goes where you point it.

Fishtailing around the track sounds like you're burning it up, but actually, better times can be turned in by keeping the machine running smoothly.

Besides, if you spin out, slide a few wheels off the track or knock over one of the rubber pylons, you get a foul on the lap, which disqualifies the time.

The computerized timing system gives each driver his lap time to the hundredth of a second as he passes the finish line. At the end of however many laps you run, you are given a readout sheet so you can show all your friends how good you are, or conveniently lose it so no one will know the truth.

As of Monday morning, the record lap time had been sliced down to 54:80.

The mini-Lolas are serious, fun toys.

FOR BETTER HUNTING AND FISHING

by Earl F. Kennamer

We face a paradox in our present lifestyle. Today we're supposed to gird up our loins, slow down our credit card buying. We're supposed to economize by turning down our air conditioners, cutting heating costs, reducing gasoline consumption. There's the popular trend toward cashing in newspaper coupons on grocery items.

I added my paltry bit by suggesting we buy smaller boats and motors, by fishing and hunting close to home, etc. But there are high prices and expenses we haven't exploited in the outdoors field.

For example, I just received a new Browning catalog. In addition to the usual line of boots and fishing rods for sale I checked on shotguns and rifles.

Would you like to own an over-and-under (superposed) 12-gauge, 3-inch magnum shotgun with one extra set of barrels for close-in quail or woodcock shooting? Several choices are pictured. All are beautifully engraved, with selective single trigger and with gold inlay and with a price tag of $10,700! If I could afford this fancy blunderbuss for bagging $5 doves and $200 turkeys, I would have to take along a cheaper shotgun to keep someone from stealing the Browning!

Orvis, in business before the Civil War, still issues a catalog and still makes bamboo flyrods of superb quality. For $626 you can order an 8-foot, 4 and three-eighths ounce impregnated bamboo rod. This is top-of-the-line fish-catching gear, but wouldn't you cringe if you broke the rod tip when you shut your car door?

Now what about the expense of salmon fishing? The rental charge to fish for salmon on the choicest British rivers for a week runs from $3,345 to $4,460 for the best beat. Reportedly, according to a Sport Fishing Institute Bulletin, one company recently paid $2½ million for a 20-year lease of a famous beat on Tweed. The company is now arranging all-expense package tours for Europeans at 1,000 British pounds or $2230 a week per person!

If that person catches one 20-pound salmon, it will have cost him $113 per pound. Whooee! What some people will pay for the thrill of laying the ingredients of a salmon loaf on the stream bank! And I thought that the Japanese price of $25 per pound of beefsteak last year was ridiculous! We conservatives squirm over $4 per pound for prime rib. Right now I'm lunching on $1.79 per pound chuck roast. Shucks, the brown gravy is work the cost!

Of course, you'll spend money when planning air flights for hunting and fishing. Braniff Airlines offers package deals for reaching all parts of the world where the action is.

Here are examples of trip costs. For a party of two for four days, three nights to Alaska's Bell Island for big salmon, giant cod and halibut, the cost is just $666 per person.

You can fly to Mexico where the literature says "100 bass per day" from Lake Guerrero's 90,000 acres of flooded trees and scrub. There's dove shooting in Columbia, where an individual can shoot as many as 12 boxes of ammo a day to bag the Andes dove which resembles our mourning dove and is so abundant it poses a serious annual threat to crop production. No birds are wasted. Some are cooked for meals and most are eaten by people living near the shooting area. The price per person for five days and four nights for a party of four or five is only $570.

If you want to get on the Amazon and fish for dorado and piranha, a 7-day trip for a party of two is only $575 per person.

One of these days I may just buy that highest priced shotgun, outfit myself with a couple of those quality bamboo flyrods and make one of those fancy trips out of the country.

That may have to wait until I make that second million dollars. I gave up on the first one.

Aiming for next week

The Tri-County Muzzle loaders held a club shoot last weekend to practice for a big event this Saturday. A turkey shoot will also be held for shotguns. The 9 a.m. event will be held in Dunnivant near the old dunebuggy track and will benefit the Dunnivant Volunteer Fire Department. (Photo by Gardner)

Season continues

Summer's end may be drawing to a close, but softball action in and around Shelby County is still hot and furious.

This Saturday in Montevallo, the high school's booster club is sponsoring a men's slow-pitch tournament. Teams interested in playing the round-robin tourney can still sign up by calling coach David Bailey at 663-4916 or 665-2970 before Friday.

On Saturday and Sunday of this weekend, Harpersville, Montevallo, Wilsonville, Columbiana and Pelham will be playing in the Men's Independent Softball Tournament, which has been moved and will be played in Childersburg.

The single elimination tourney, which will include other teams such as Anniston, Fayetteville, Sylacauga and Childersburg, will get started at 8 a.m. Saturday morning.

Sunday's action in Childersburg will begin at 3 p.m. with semi-finals. The finals will be played later that afternoon

Chelsea digs it

Members of the Chelsea Youth Club dig post holes for a fence around the new little league ball field at Chelsea. Almost every Saturday morning finds several interested parties working at the field. Among those working on the project last Saturday were Turhan Moore, Gene Shaw, John Melton, Joe Kimes, Tom Turner, Hugh Hardy and Glen Holcombe.

Archers set shoot

The twelfth annual Howard Hill invitational archery shoot will be held August 23-24 at the Creek Archery Club in Vincent.

Named in honor of Shelby County's famed bowman, the late Howard Hill, the event is expected to draw a crowd of about 500 people. When the scores are tallied Sunday evening, 56 trophies will be awarded to top-scoring archers.

The shooting gets underway Saturday at 9 a.m. and again that day at 2 p.m. Sunday the action starts at 2 p.m.

Bluegrass music will be provided by a band Saturday afternoon, and that evening archery movies will be shown at the range. Door prizes will also be awarded.

DID YOU KNOW?

Our residential customers use more electricity than the national average: 15.9% more.

In 1979, the average residence in the U.S. used 8,828 kilowatt-hours. Alabama Power customers used an average of 10,231 kilowatt-hours. One of the reasons for higher use in Alabama is the lack of adequate home insulation. Another reason is the increasing use of air conditioning and other convenient electric appliances.

Solid hit

Vandiver ballplayers gave their new field a workout Sunday when the first game was played there. Veteran players pitted their skill against today's sluggers but they wound up on the losing side of the score card. However, everyone seemed to have a good time, especially when they smacked the ball like the player above.

Vandiver ball players go to bat on still unfinished ballfield

Vandiver ballplayers went to bat on their own field Sunday. And the lack of grass didn't keep either the veteran players or the rookies from fighting tooth and nail for a win.

But the new crop of players outshone the men who were part of the Camp Branch league in 1969, defeating them by an 11-1 score.

Even though the field is unfinished, the two softball teams were anxious to get in a game before work continues.

For the past three years, members of the community have put on a number of fund raising projects to get a field and an outdoor entertainment area.

The pavilion with an area for dancing is also a reality now and a crowd gathered there Saturday night for a concert of gospel music.

According to Cliff Brasher, an officer in the Community Center Association, the group hopes to have the ballfield sanctioned for league play next spring.

The county cleared the 315 foot square for the field, but Vandiver volunteers will be picking up "a million or so rocks," putting sand in the infield and laying sod.

Poles and lights for the field are being donated, Brasher reported, as well as fencing.

Leo Parker, a Vandiver resident who works for the county highway department, said that he and several fellow workers spent ten hours some days clearing the land for the field.

Lending their efforts to the project were Ed Smith, Lee Perkins, and Cordie Alred.

It's finished

Cliff Brasher (l), Alice Ellyson and Dick Karrasch discuss the successful gospel music concert held Saturday evening in the new outdoor entertainment pavilion at Vandiver's Community Center.

Montevallo Methodist Church

nursery school uses 'fun' to teach

Combining learning with activities that are fun is the way the nursery school operated by the First United Methodist Church in Montevallo gets youngsters ready for kindergarten.

The three and four year olds who meet in the building adjacent to the church have both instructional periods and free play.

Carol Golson teaches the Monday, Wednesday and Friday sessions which include music, creative arts, story time and outdoor play.

Participants are also taken for a tour of the city and find out who the community helpers are. During the school term, there's also a trip to the zoo.

One of the most important things the school does, Golson related, is to teach children how to work together in a group.

Activities begin at 8 a.m. and conclude at 11 a.m. during the three day a week sessions.

According to the teacher there are still a few vacancies. She said that anyone interested in enrolling their child could call her at 665-1918 or Jerri Harris at 665-7610.

Ready to go

Some of the students enrolled at the nursery school sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Montevallo look over some of the toys they'll be playing with. They are (r-l): Shane Caton, Brooklyn Presley, Linda Golson and Kelly Robertson.

Pleasant Ridge

holds revival

Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church will hold a revival on August 18-22 starting at 7 p.m. each evening.

The church is located on county road 41 about 1 1/2 miles south of Dunnavant.

The evangelist will be the Rev. Wayne Horton from Shelby. The pastor is the Rev. J.D. Davis. Everyone is invited to attend.

The ministry outreach program from the back of a pickup truck features Pelham United Methodist Church young people and adult leader Jean Pryor. Performing as clowns are Jennifer Todhunter, Lynn Boren, Pam Butler, Karen Casey, Cindy Wilson, Leah McCoy and Eddie Fogel. Dawn Wilson, Destiny White and Jeff Todhunter perform backstage as puppet operators. The "love wagon" also calls at Green Park South each Wednesday.

Columbiana Kiwanis fair has provided 200 scholarships

Almost 200 scholarships have been awarded to top students from Shelby County high schools as a result of past Shelby County Fairs.

Awarding scholarships to deserving students are the premium reward to those laboring to put on the annual county fair, according to fair manager Charles Jones.

For 30 consecutive years the proceeds from the fair have financed "The Kiwanis Club of Columbiana Scholarships" for a graduate of each county high school to attend the University of Montevallo. $2,800 has been pledged for the fund from this year's fair scheduled September 8 through 13.

The University will match these grants on a 50 percent basis, raising the total to substantially cover tuition and fees for the freshman year. Selections are made on merit by each of the county high schools and the selection committee of the University. The Shelby County Fair Association and the Columbiana Kiwanis Club take pride in presenting the names of the current scholarship winners, all scheduled to enter college this fall:

Calera High School - Robin Lea Godfrey; Chelsea High - Lewis F. Jones, Jr.; Montevallo High - Tod Beers; Pelham High - Karen Gayle Jones; Shelby County High - Jeffrey Alan Seale; Thompson High - Lorrie Leigh Austin; Vincent High - Lori Ann Lee.

While the merits of the fair, its exhibits, demonstrations and fun, stand on their own, those attending will take satisfaction in supporting these valued scholarships.

Vincent names book winners

Vincent's public library summer reading program and story hour enrolled 38 children this summer.

The figure was in a report issued by Ruby Smothers, librarian.

She said average attendance was 35.

Contests were held in the different age groups to see who could read the most books in the nine week period.

Jeremy Duke read 48 books, winning the grades 1-2 competition. Second place went to Stacy Cox who read 36 books.

In the 3-4 grade competition, Wayne Barber took the prize after reading 91 books, and Donald Bowyer came in second with 39.

Alan Jemison read 10 books to win the 5-6 grade competition. His runnerup was Deanie English who read 9.

UM offers music for grades 1-12

The Preparatory Division of the University of Montevallo Music Department is registering students for the 1980-81 school year, according to Ellen Torgimson, division coordinator.

The UM Preparatory Division offers private instruction in piano, voice, organ and guitar for grades 1-12 and for adults. In addition, some special programs to be offered this year are pre-school piano-music readiness classes, combination group and private lessons in piano and adult piano classes.

Teachers in addition to Miss Torgimson are Mary Shaw, piano; Glinda Godwin, voice; and Deborah Englert, organ.

Mrs. Godwin and Mrs. Englert are both graduates of UM, were they earned bachelor's and master's degrees in music. The most recent addition to the staff, Mrs. Shaw holds a bachelor or music from Loyola University,

New Orleans. UM instructor Torgimson holds degrees from Louisiana State University and Southern Methodist University.

Anyone who wants more information can call Miss Torgimson, UM Music Department, 665-2521, ext. 202 or 378.

Old Johnson Cemetery to get perpetual care

The first grave in the old Johnson Cemetery will be decorated at the organizational meeting for perpetual care of the cemetery on Aug. 23.

Lucindie Johnson was buried on the hill near Beeswax Creek in August of 1822.

Descendants and friends of Moses Johnson have been buried in the cemetery since that time and members of the Johnson family have kept it up.

But since there are no longer family members in the vicinity to shoulder that responsibility, the association is being formed to take over the upkeep of the graves.

Officers will be elected and by-laws drawn up during a business session at Old Chapel Church at 10 a.m. This will be followed by a memorial service.

Persons attending are asked to bring a picnic lunch which will be eaten at noon and then the families will go to the cemetery to decorate graves.

Each family is asked to bring their own flowers plus any artificial decoration they may have available.

The association has set a $5,000 goal for the perpetual care fund.

Anyone who would like to contribute to the upkeep of the cemetery, which is located on County Road 5 between Columbiana and Wilsonville, may send a check to H. T. Duncan, 1521 19th Pl. SW, Birmingham, 35211.

Local grads named to UM board

A local University of Montevallo alumna, Augusta Lovelady, and a former resident, Courtney Parker Murphy, have been named to the UM Alumni Board.

Mrs. Lovelady, a 1947 graduate, has been involved in several civic, business and religious activities in the Montevallo area. She is on the Cahaba Council Girl Scout Board and has served on the City of Montevallo Zoning Board.

On campus, she is a charter member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and has been an adviser of the local chapter since 1972.

Mrs. Lovelady is associated with her husband, Don Lovelady, in a downtown business.

She and Mrs. Murphy were among eight new members named to two-year terms on the 24 member board, according to Jeanetta Keller, alumni director.

Mrs. Murphy, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Grady Parker of Montevallo, is a 1974 graduate of UM and works as film liaison specialist for the Alabama Film Commission in Montgomery.

ISS students excell on tests

Indian Springs School announces that its students have scored exceptionally well on advanced placement tests.

Last spring ISS students took 84 examinations and scored so well that college credit or advanced standing was granted for 76 of them.

Most of the students taking the exams were seniors, but some were only sophomores.

The 11 different subjects of the exams ranged from history through foreign language to calculus.

The advanced placement program is a nationally administered effort which enables academically gifted high school students to receive college credit while in high school or to enroll in advanced classes when they enter college as freshmen.

Cadet Kenneth R. Beers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Beers of Montevallo, recently received practical work in military leadership at the Army ROTC advanced camp at Fort Riley, Kan.

He is a student at Jacksonville State University.

Alabaster fills council, but allegations still fly

Every seat at the council table was filled when Alabaster's governing body met Monday night.

Gene Glasgow's place had been vacant for several months, and at the last council meeting, Councilman Dan Gillis resigned.

So two members of the incoming council, L.O. Farris and Calvin McCune, agreed to begin their terms this month and were sworn in.

However, there still appears to be a battle for place number 2 even though Glen Naish was elected in the July 29 runoff.

The incumbent, Mayo Taylor, is claiming that the election was unfair and has filed a suit to that effect. Naish was served with a summons Monday.

She claims that her loss by 26 votes was due to the fact that 36 voters living on old Hwy. 31 were put outside the city limits by illegal procedures and thus kept from voting for her.

But city officials say these voters did cast a challenge ballot and their votes were counted.

The question of where the city limits was in that area first came up in 1978 when black residents of the area objected to a junkyard there.

But Bill Siener, owner of the business, claimed that the property was outside the city limits.

And after checking on the matter, city officials found that the sign marking the city's boundary was indeed in the wrong place.

City officials attempted to remedy the situation by having their attorney draw up a petition to be signed by residents requesting they be brought into the city.

Everyone signed except Taylor's sister, who is not a resident but who owns property in that area.

In her suit, Taylor also says that a poll watcher counted the number of blacks who cast ballots at box 2 in district 17.

And the number she recorded was not consistent with the number of votes cast for Taylor, the suit contends.

However, it's reported that not all the black residents of the area support Taylor.

Another point in the black councilwoman's suit refers to the breakdown of the voting machine which "contributed to the inaccuracy of vote counting - causing her failure to be elected."

Birmingham attorney Oscar W. Adams Jr. is representing Taylor in the suit.

Clearing away wreckage

It took rescue workers approximately five minutes to reach the lifeless body of an Alabaster man who was buried beneath a load of sand in an accident Friday morning. Twenty four year old security guard Martin Kemp was killed when a tractor trailer rig hauling the material overturned on his vehicle. He was stopped at the intersection of Cahaba Valley Rd. and Hwy. 31, waiting for the light to change. See story page 2. (Photo by Seaman)

FOP members aim sharp questions at candidates

Just about the time the embers in the grill at the Shelby County FOP lodge were cooling down, the candidate's forum inside the building was beginning to heat up.

The office seekers were served hot dogs before being seated at a table in front of an audience who fired some pretty heated questions in that direction during the course of the evening.

Commissioner Jake Morris and District Judge candidate Harry Lyon were the targets FOP members aimed at most often.

The Pelham attorney, who is running for the office now held by Patti Smith, raised some hackles when he implied that because defense attorneys belonged to the lodge, cases could not be handled impartially.

And Lyon's mention of his seven out of nine case dismissal record which involved two cases in which District Attorney William R. Hill Jr. represented the state, brought some sharp words from the DA.

Nettled by the reference, Hill asked how many jury cases the Pelham attorney had actually tried.

Answering that he'd only tried one case in circuit court in which his client had been found guilty, Lyon emphasized that it was his experience in district court that counted.

In her remarks, incumbent Judge Patti Smith keyed in on the treatment of youthful offenders. She mentioned a work program to teach them "accountability."

During the questioning, Smith was asked about political favors. "Have you ever been approached by a police officer and asked for a favor?" investigator Tom Barnes wanted to know.

The judge said that she had not. And Alabaster Police Chief C.E. "Bull" Carter, who heads the county's Police Chiefs' Association, added that his organization had never asked her for any political favors although they had backed her for appointment to the post.

It was Lyon's contention that "the whole system of justice needs an injection of impartiality."

And he said he thought it would be a good idea to get the defense attorneys out of the FOP because their membership in the organization was a "conflict of interest."

Commissioner J.E. "Jake" Morris, the only incumbent member of the Shelby County Commission running for reelection to show up at the meeting, had his feet put to the fire by Chief Deputy James Jones.

Bringing up the matter of additional road deputies the sheriff's department has been asking for, Jones declared that law abiding citizens still hadn't been given the protection they deserved.

"You'll see a change in October," Morris said. But the Chief countered that remark by saying, "We haven't seen any changes since you've been in office."

The new employees hired by the sheriff's department, Jones pointed out, were required by state and federal law to staff the new, larger jail.

When the commissioner brought up the subject of the county's governing body increasing the sheriff's budget, Jones noted that the figures were deceptive.

Giving the 1976 figure as $500,000, Morris reported that this year's budget amounts to $1.4 million.

Up until this year, Jones said, fringe benefits hadn't been included, but this year they have. And his remark that the budget had been increased by the new jail which provided prisoners "a -- -- of a place to spend the night," was greeted by loud applause.

The money from the one cent sales tax passed this year, was to have gone to the general fund with the sheriff's department getting top priority. Morris noted that the first check has only recently been received.

And revenue from the beer tax that was passed in 1977 was also to have been used for law enforcement, reported personnel board member Larry Dillard.

The largest expenditure of the $25,000 set aside for operation of the board, goes to pay the secretary, Dillard noted.

He indicated that the rest of the money must be hidden in the general fund.

Dillard wondered how much is actually coming in and called for accountability.

Pointing out that everyone takes pot shots at the commission, Morris said that he too wanted accountability.

The commissioner was commended for the "guts" it took to come to the meeting.

Others running for commission seats who took part in the discussion were Jim King, Don Murphy, J.V. Jones, Edgar Vick, and A.E. "Codger" Etress.

Blood drive starts

Red Cross volunteers in Shelby County will begin a new blood donor program Tuesday, August 26.

According to volunteer Roy Jowers, the program will involve a number of workers who, during the given week, will contact donors by phone, according to the types of blood currently needed at hospitals in the area.

On Fridays, nurses will be on hand at the First Baptist Church in Pelham to take blood from the donors. The new program will start drawing blood October 29, Jowers said.

Bearden makes his bid for third office term

One of Shelby County's heaviest vote getters is running for re-election to the Shelby County commission. If elected, this would be his third term on the commission.

He served earlier for two six-year terms, on the county board of education. J.E. "Ned" Bearden of Helena started his career as a dairyman and his dairying operation is now one of the largest in the state. He has dairies at Helena and in the northeast section of the county, with his gross sales now topping $1 million a year.

J.E. "NED" BEARDEN

During his career, he has been a trustee at the Helena School, and has held numerous positions in agricultural circles.

His family was named Master Farm family of 1963.

He is a charter member of the Central Civitan Club of Alabaster, where he was named Citizen of the year in 1977.

He was chosen as a director of the First Bank of Alabaster, and was elected president 13 years ago.

During his tenure on the county board of education and the commission, Shelby County has undergone considerable change and growth.

Bearden notes that he has dealt with dozens of problems in government and has the experience to best deal with future problems. He emphasizes that he voted to hold the line on expenditures especially when the county budget was tight, as it is now.

He feels that the gasoline tax and the re-evaluation of property will possibly ease the county's budget problems within two years. But he says, "With so many problems, the county needs experienced leadership."

A Democrat, Bearden is running against Jim King in the primary for the district 3 seat.

Vick seeks place one on county commission

Edgar L. Vick of Chelsea is challenging Democratic county commissioner James "Jake" Morris for his seat, representing district one.

Vick was born and raised in Alabaster, and worked with Martin Marietta for several years. He is a former owner of Chelsea Sanitation Company.

Vick has several ideas that he has adopted as a platform. He wants to see an ambulance at each fire station in the county. That would give ambulance service within five minutes to any given point, he says.

He says he understands there is money available for a civic center and he would like to see it located centrally in the county.

Hiring a purchasing agent to buy supplies for the entire county would be a money-saving step, he thinks, if a commissioner pre-authorized all purchases.

He is interested in the free flow of information, and feels the people should keep the commission informed of their needs through a voluntary committee made up of a few people from each community. He also would like to have commissioners publish open letters to the people once a month in the newspaper.

Vick has been interested in political activities for many years. Among his public services are work with Boy Scouts.

He said he would encourage the commission to work with municipalities and with the sheriff's office as much as possible. He also favors doing business with local people and using county labor for all county work.

Roll Tide

Retiring Shelby County Highway Director Jimmy Ray gave his hearty approval when the band which played at his "Roast" last week struck up with the Alabama fight song.

Colleagues roast Ray

More than 200 people turned out last Friday night to honor retiring Shelby County Engineer James L. Ray, Jr.

At a dinner, held at the new state 4-H center east of Columbiana, Ray was "roasted" by a half dozen of the state leaders he had worked with over the years.

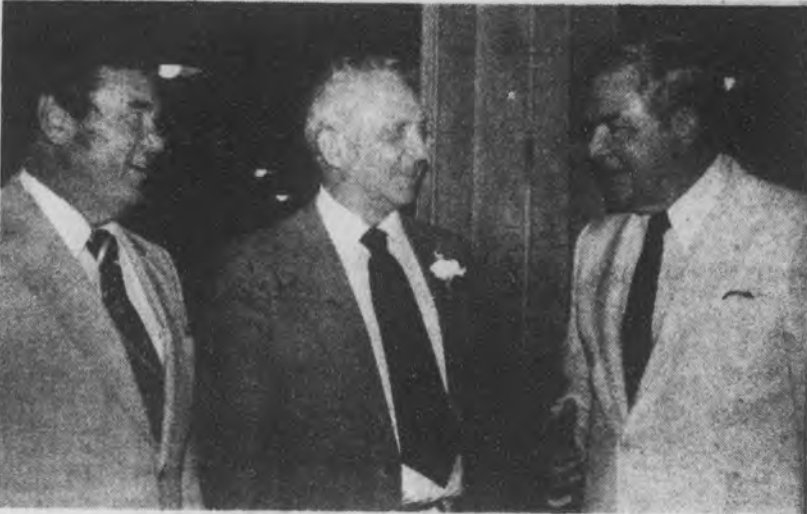

Former Probate Judge Conrad Fowler returned from Lanett to serve as master of ceremonies for the affair.

Among those who good-naturedly took pokes at Ray were former state highway directors Rex Rainer and Ray Bass. Sumter County Engineer Percy Dickson, B.A. "Buddy" Riddle, former president of the County Engineers of Alabama; B.A. Reynolds, probate judge of Dallas County; Buddy Sharpless, executive secretary of the state association of county commissioners; and Chris Doss, Jefferson County Commissioner.

Congratulatory letters were read from Governor Fob James and from the president of the National Association of Counties.

The present state highway director, Bobby Joe Kemp, was on hand as well as federal highway administrator Bill Boyston, state senator Lister Hill Proctor. Representative Sonny Moore, all members of the Shelby County commission, former commissioner Doug Ballard, former division engineer Clyde White of the state highway department, and the current division engineer Mac Roberts.

Issue of fire chief heats up in Helena

by David Armstrong
For the first 30 minutes of the Helena City Council meeting Monday night, things were calm.

The council quickly read over their bills, looked at bids on old city automobiles, decided to buy two new police cars and made exceptions to the city's zoning regulations to allow two trailers to be put on non-trailer zoned property. Other minor issues were disposed of and mayor Charles "Sonny" Penhale began asking the council members if they had any new business.

When Penhale asked, Councilman Paul Cribbs said he wanted to nominate Skip Cantrell as new fire chief and paramedic. Cribbs said he had brought Cantrell before the council for an interview and he said he thought Cantrell was well qualified for the position.

But a second to Cribbs' motion was never given.

Councilman Bill Harris said he thought more men should be interviewed for the position before the council makes a decision. He said he thought the council may have made a mistake by being too hasty in their decision to hire the last fire chief.

Cribbs asked the other members of the council if they had made an attempt to interview any other applicants for the job. None of the council members answered. Cribbs said he was willing to meet with the council at any time to interview other applicants because he said the town needs to fill the position quickly.

Mayor Penhale said he thought

Democratic candidates oppose split office

Most of the candidates running for seats on the Shelby County Commission say they are opposed to splitting the office of probate judge and commission chairman.

The question was one of those asked candidates who attended a forum at the Fraternal Order of Police lodge last week.

Most of the candidates opposing the proposal said they felt the funds that would have to be provided for an extra salary could be better used elsewhere.

The salary of a full-time commission chairman, according to the wording of the bill, would be 10% more than the amount paid to the highest non-elected official.

Saying he was happy that the people of the county were "getting a chance to vote on something," candidate Don Murphy remarked that he would also like to see the citizens of the county set the salary if the proposal passed.

He also told FOP members he didn't think a commission chairman should be "hand picked."

"I think there are priorities in other areas," commented Jimmy King, who is running for the district 3 seat.

And Edgar Vick, who is one of the challengers for the district 1 post, said he would rather see the money used to "hire four or five good law enforcement officers."

Incumbent commissioner J.E. "Jake" Morris also agreed that the money could be better used elsewhere.

J.V. Jones, another contender for Morris' seat, said that he would be against the proposal because of the county's financial problems.

Two of the candidates running on the Republican ticket for commission seats favored splitting the office.

Because of the rapid growth rate of the county, Jim Busbin of Alabaster said he thought there should be a full-time person keeping an eye on commission business.

A.E. "Codger" Etress also approved dividing the office.

Another issue that came up during the forum concerned opening a courthouse annex in the north part of the county.

Republican candidates Murphy and Busbin both mentioned the inconvenience of north Shelby residents having to drive to Columbiana to transact county business.

And Murphy also said he thought a sub-station for the sheriff's department was needed in the north end of the county.

Truck flips in Pelham kills Alabaster man

An Alabaster man was killed Friday morning in Pelham when a tractor-trailer truck flipped over on his car, burying him under an estimated load of 62,000 pounds of sand.

An inspection of the truck indicated that its braking system was defective according to the accident report filed by Pelham police officer John Ellison.

Martin Upson Kemp, 24, of Stacy Drive in Alabaster was in his automobile on Hwy. 119, waiting for the light to change at the intersection of Hwy. 31.

At 7:45 a.m. a northbound truck driven by James Dale Spencer, 37, of 3328 East Brookwood Drive, Montgomery, veered off Hwy. 31 and onto the Hwy. 119 entrance to avoid tailgating a second truck which was stopping for a changing light at the intersection.

According to investigating PPD officer John Ellison, Spencer's truck was traveling about 45 mph as it turned onto 119. The truck flipped over on its left side, crushing Kemp's vehicle and burying both car and driver under a 6-8 foot mound of sand.

Kemp's body was trapped some five minutes before rescue workers were able to reach him. Coroner Billy Thompson said suffocation was the apparent cause of death.

Even with the assistance of the Pelham Fire and Street Departments, County Deputies and the Highway Patrol, it took police more than three hours to clear the scene.

The truck was inspected by Ellison and Alabama Public Service Commission officer Sgt. Earl Miller. Miller cited Spencer for unsafe operation of a vehicle.

PPD Capt. Allen Wade told the Reporter the case will probably be brought before the next session of the Shelby County grand jury and criminal charges may be sought.

The truck, a 1972 White, is owned by Billy Raybon and had been leased to Capital City Haulers, both of Montgomery.

Chamber officers

The recently formed Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce elected their first full-term slate of officers for 1980-81 during a general membership meeting held last week at Pelham City Hall. Pic-the three newly elected council members should have some voice in the choice of the new fire chief. Cribbs said he thought it was urgent that the council hire someone at the earliest possible date before anyone was hurt or property damaged.

Glenn Holmes, a member of the Helena fire department, said he and the other members of the department would like to talk to the council about the applicants for the position because they will be the ones that will have to work with him. Holmes also pointed out that until the new chief is hired, the Pelham and Alabaster fire departments have agreed to help with any fires.

Cribbs said there were only four or five members of the volunteer department and that "wasn't much of a fire department." He also said he had been told that the other departments would not help with Helena fires unless the local fire engines arrived at the scene first.

After the council members finished their comments on the fire chief position, a Helena resident said he thought the council should try to find a chief soon. He said if someone's house should burn while the town is without a chief, the town might be liable to a law suit.

Cribbs said since the council didn't want to vote on the man he placed in nomination, that he would ask him to come back to the next meeting.

Chamber's first full-term year are: vice-president; Robert Owens, 1st Federal Savings & Loan; secretary, Ron Currin, 1st Shelby Nat'l Bank; and treasurer, Ed Neal, public accountant.

Directors include Bruce Jacobs, Moore-Handley; Michael Byars, Strickland's Dept. Store; John Tanner, Attorney; Bill Martin, Olympic Fence Company; Ken Williams, MMI Agency; and Bill Watson, Shelby State Bank.

Hamilton, who succeeds interim Chamber President Ken Williams, begins his second term October 1 on the Pelham City Council, and serves in the areas of finance, and city planning and zoning. Hamilton has been a resident of Pelham for eight years, and been very involved in civic and business affairs. He serves on the advisory board to the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission, and is a member of the Shelby County Industrial Development Board.

President Hamilton stated, "My first order of business will be to appoint committees, revitalize our membership drive, and establish long-range goals."

Mayor Dunaway, who served on the nominating committee with Bob Esdale and Bill Watson, expressed his appreciation for the work done by the interim officers and board members in getting the Chamber organized and underway. The Chamber has 53 members, and has already been active in such areas as political forums, recommendations to our educational leaders, and views in Opposition to changes suggested by state government regarding Pelham, and this immediate area.

Link sought in cases

Personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department recovered a pickup truck Tuesday which is thought to have been used during a Montgomery rape-robbery last week.

According to Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, investigation is now underway to connect that crime with an armed robbery in Homewood early Sunday and an auto theft in Columbiana a day earlier.

The sheriff reported that the three black juveniles picked up by Homewood police Sunday are suspected of stealing a car belonging to Sonny Payne, owner of Sonny's Gulf in Columbiana.

His late model Chevrolet was stolen around 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

And it's believed the trio are the same youths who fled from Montgomery in the pickup found by the sheriff's department.

A search was begun for the vehicle after Montgomery police reported they thought the pickup used in the rape-robbery had been abandoned somewhere in Shelby County.

Glasgow related that it was found in the parking lot of Sumnerhill Church between Calera and Columbiana.

Investigators suspect that after abandoning the pickup, the juveniles stole Payne's Chevy and drove to Homewood.

Two of the juveniles have been released from Homewood jail, Glasgow said. And the other suspect is being held for Shelby County on an auto theft charge.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF SHELBY COUNTY

Dear Citizens of Shelby County:

My opponent in his campaign has made several untrue allegations to which I feel compelled to respond both as an individual and as a public official.

Throughout this campaign, my opponent has made much of an "alleged" backlog of cases in District Court implying I have been less than an efficient Judge. The most recent statistics compiled by the Alabama Administrative Office of Courts however, show I have a disposition ratio of 99 percent. This means that for every one thousand cases filed in my court, I have cleared nine hundred and ninety.

My opponent has also more than implied that there is something unethical in my having the support of the local attorneys in this county. I am proud that the Shelby County Bar Association passed a resolution recommending me for this judgeship. Having worked my way through both college and law school, it is most rewarding that the men and women of my chosen profession find me to be a competent and capable Judge. Since this issue has been raised, I urge you to call your attorney, whoever he might be, and ask his opinion as to who is most qualified to be District Judge.

Along a similar vein, my opponent has accused me of being "soft on criminals." But the fact is the Shelby County Chiefs of Police Association also passed a resolution supporting me for this judgeship and I feel I have the unqualified support of law enforcement throughout the county. If a judge is "soft on criminals," a policeman would be the first to know and the first to complain. So again, ask your local police officer how I have run the District Court, whether I have rendered fair, firm, and just decisions. And, ask him who law enforcement is supporting for Judge.

Finally, my opponent has made several untrue accusations which strike at the heart of my personal integrity and my sense of fundamental fairness. Being a public servant, first as an Assistant District Attorney, and since becoming Judge, I have had the responsibility of being the people's prosecutor and now, the people's judge. But find out the truth for yourself. Ask those who I have worked with and those who have come before me at the bar of justice. I am confident that you will be told that I treat everyone with the same degree of dignity, make decisions based solely on the evidence presented, and administer justice without regard for one's status or position in life.

My integrity is my most valuable asset. Whether I win or lose this election, I know that the people of Shelby County will find the truth as to these allegations.

As always, I am available to talk with anyone concerning your District Court and the issues in this campaign. Please feel free to contact me anytime you would like to discuss why I am proud to be, and want to remain, your District Judge.

Sincerely,

Patti Smith

Four men indicted by the grand jury for first degree escape and first degree arson can receive life sentences if convicted.

With their prior records, Michael Ray Hogan, Ricky Hale, Phillip Martin and Matthew Bullock can all receive the stiff penalty under the state's new criminal code.

Last month the quartet jumped out a window of the Shelby County jail after burning through one of the plastic panels which replaced bars in the modern facility.

According to District Attorney William R. Hill Jr., the arson charges were brought to discourage prisoners from attempting escape.

Of the 120 cases brought before the grand jury this month, 96 indictments were handed down. Ninety-one were in felony cases and five were for misdemeanor.

The panel dismissed 11 cases and continued 13 others.

Indictments were returned in 12 drug cases and 24 burglary and theft cases.

Tommy Wayne Jones, Larry Wayne Palmer and Charles K. Ingram will all be tried on first degree rape charges.

Ingram has 20 counts of first degree rape and seven counts of first degree sodomy against him.

Drug abuse is reported to have caused the death of 19 year old Charles Allen Burr, an inmate in the Shelby County jail just prior to his death in May.

A state autopsy report that was just issued does not name the drug, but indicates it was probably administered by injection.

According to jail administrator Wayne Lucas, the inmate had suffered from headaches several months before his death on May 19.

Burr had been taken to the doctor a number of times and medication had been prescribed, Lucas said.

But he reported that the prisoner had never been given dilaudid, the narcotic pain killer thought to have been the cause of death.

He noted however, that illegal drugs are smuggled into the jail from time to time.

The jail administrator also noted that all medication given at the jail, with the exception of insulin, was given in liquid or pill form with guards observing.

After complaining of severe headaches, Burr was taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital May 12. Learning that he would have to be hospitalized, the sheriff had him transferred to Kilby prison's infirmary because he was a state prisoner.

At the time of his death, he was a patient at St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery.

Burr had started serving a ten year sentence for armed robbery in January, 1979.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

In 1972 I wrote: They'd slip up unaware and hang around for half a day. Then they'd slip away so quietly one wouldn't know they were gone for a long time. They had done it all through the last part of May and now it was a little past the middle of June and they were still doing it.

Most of the time they were white and fluffy, like balls of cotton candy in the sky. And sometimes they looked like big mudholes up there. But they just slipped in and slipped away without making a sound.

In 1974 I wrote: Josh Burnett and I planted gourds in February. Josh had eye-balled the almanac off and on for weeks and decided maybe this would be the year to make a killing.

"We've gotta have rain," I said.

"We'll get it," Josh said. "The almanac says so."

The gourds got up pretty good by the last of April. So did the corn and okra and beans and tomatoes. They looked about the same by the first of June. We'd had four cloudy days and 28 drops of rain at my house. Josh had had four cloudy days and 26 drops of rain.

By the middle of June you'd look at 'em and want to cry.

In 1977 I wrote: He looked up at the clouds and listened to the thunder and wondered how far away the rain was this time. Dark, puffy clouds that came and went like fish swimming. And thunder like the sound of coon dogs in a deep hollow.

"This is our last chance for a while," he growled. "The man says it'll be fair and cooler tomorrow."

She looked at him without answering. After two summers without rain, it seemed useless to talk about it.

In 1978 I wrote: I had lost two battles but I was determined not to lose the war. And it had been a war at my house since the first of May.

Nobody believed I could dip the pond dry in Shelby. But I did, hauling it away in three garbage cans and dumping it on my garden. But the sun kept shining, and a little wind came up every day, warm as a feather bed, and I lost that battle.

I counted the casualties: three rows of corn, a row of potatoes, a row of tomatoes and a row of okra. And enough hours worked at ten cents an hour to buy a pretty good wheelbarrow.

And tonight, in 1980, I'm writing: We got a rain today. It was the 12th day of August. Too late for my first two gardens, and too late for this one too-- except for a few tomato stalks and and half dozen stalks of corn, maybe waist high.

But I was delighted to get it.

How 'red' is education budget?

by Fob James

There has been a considerable amount of speculation recently as to just how much in the red our state education budget is going to be when the fiscal year ends on Sept. 30. About the only thing anyone can agree on is that it will definitely be in the red.

There is an effort to include in the call of a special session this fall additional revenue for education for the coming fiscal year. Just this spring, just a month or two ago, we passed the 1980-81 education budget and already we are hearing that more money is needed for the fiscal year that doesn't start for another month.

During the regular session of the Legislature this year I urged that we think our educational priorities and work toward eliminating the costly duplication in programs and facilities in higher education. The savings realized in this way could be put into primary and secondary education where our children must build a firm foundation before a higher education is of any use to them.

It is my belief that there are millions of dollars in savings that could be realized if we worked to insure that the education dollar is spent as efficiently as it can possibly be spent. The longer we postpone this effort the more we cheat our children.

I told the State Board of Education last week that I will not support any additional funds for education until the education house is put in order. By that I mean that we must eliminate the waste that we know is there and show the taxpayers that the education dollar is being spent responsibly before we give education more money.

I can see nothing constructive coming from simply throwing a few million dollars at a problem and not trying to eliminate the cause of it. I will not support a patchwork, bandage approach that will only postpone the crisis a few more months.

I urged the State Board of Education to design a reform package that would address this critical problem and which would solve it for all time. This is the kind of problem which the board was created to address and the time to act is now.

I pledge to the board all the assistance that I and my staff can give in this endeavor. There is quite a bit of homework that must be done so that we can sell these reforms to our legislators and explain to them why reform is good for Alabama. That is my job as governor and, with the help of the state board, I will do my best to sell a reform package once it is put together.

There is nothing more important than the education we give our children. For that reason, I will continue to push for policies that stress quality and not quantity in our educational system. That is the least that you as taxpayers, as well as your children, deserve.

Medicaid changes proposed

Congressman Richard Shelby, who represents Shelby County in the U.S. Congress, hopes to improve the Medicaid program with a series of amendments.

His amendments to Title XIX of the Social Security Act will get a hearing before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee on August 27.

His four bills, will, in his words, "alleviate the regulatory burdens weighing so heavily on many state Medicaid programs."

In brief they are:

- H.R. 7028 - allows families of Medicaid recipients to contribute to costs of medical care.

- H.R. 7029 - gives states the choice of requiring patient co-payment for essential Medicaid services.

- H.R. 7030 - permits states to cancel Medicaid eligibility for up to one year for proven fraud or abuse.

- H.R. 7031 - allows states to purchase medical services on a competitive bid basis.

Library users fail to return books

Letter to the Editor:

The very desirable increase in circulation at the Pelham Library has unfortunately produced an undesirable side effect - that of books not being returned. Currently there is in excess of $300 worth of books overdue.

Prorationing has hit the libraries as well as the schools. The county library will be receiving 16.8% less in state funds during the coming year and probably 16% less the following year. This financial pinch will be reflected in all the municipal libraries in Shelby County, and may well mean that Pelham will not be receiving books from the county as before, but must buy its own. Hardback books now average $10 or more in price, and the library cannot afford to give away books.

Many overdue notices are being ignored, and the library is thus forced to adopt stronger measures.

On June 2 of this year, the Pelham City Council passed an ordinance providing that if overdue books are not returned or paid for after due notice, the patron will be brought into court and fined not less than $10 or more than $100.

It is not necessary for the library to be open for books to be returned. They may be placed in the book drop in the hall outside the door. If they are overdue, check with the librarian on your next visit to determine the amount of the overdue fine, as additional books may not be borrowed until the overdue fine of 5 cents per day is paid.

It is with extreme reluctance that the Pelham Library Board of Trustees adopts this course, and patrons are urged to return all books promptly.

SCHS players "cut off noses" by walking out

Letter to the Editor:

"Cut off your nose to spite your face".

This is a saying we have heard all of our lives but last week it was proven. I feel this is what the players who walked out on SCHS have done. There has been a lot of controversy concerning the football team at SCHS. It is this writer's opinion that it is time for us to show support instead of looking for fault.

In years past there was hardly any discussion of football except how good the team was or how many games they could win. Now all you hear is 'the coach works us too hard'. I think that some truth should come out of this.

One player told the coach that he could not make practice. Well and good. But, it was later learned that his player had gone to a concert. The coach asked the player to apologize to the rest of the team and he refused to do so then walked off of the field.

Later in the day this player called several other players and convinced them to back him. Who was in the wrong? I am sure that there are a lot of people saying the coach was wrong for telling the player to apologize.

In my opinion, the coach was in the right. The player obviously had no respect for himself, the team or the coach. If he respected any of these, it would not have been necessary for him to be untruthful. When one or several people can influence a ball team enough to get them to walk out, let them go. They were not dedicated enough in the first place to even be called a Wildcat. What if these few that quit had been asked to walk through a fire. Would they have followed then? Some of the boys who quit would play except for the pressure exerted by their "friends". Are they really your friends? There are a lot of questions that need answering concerning the actions and attitudes of the ones who did walk out.

The boys said that they were worked too hard. "Bunk". The coach may have worked you hard. Would you expect to win any games without a lot of practice to get you into shape. Remember one of the games last year when the players got leg cramps, had loss of breath and overall fatigue? Their coach must have not worked with them as thoroughly as you were worked with then and have been worked with this summer. So why wait until now to start your complaining two weeks before the first game? You either have been looking for an excuse to quit all summer or wanted to play without the practice the other boys have put in or you are just not men enough to take it.

How can over half of the boys tolerate the 'work' when a handful cannot? The players that are left are serious, dedicated young men in my opinion trying their best to help a new coach adjust to our town. They have been willing to make practice and work hard. When the victory is theirs, I wonder how many quitters will want to come back. The players that are left have alot of guts to choose football instead of being bullied by a few hot headed kids. In the long run, you will be the ones envied, not the handful that quit when the pressure got rough.

We can all criticize someone else but the blame is really ours. People like to sit back and complain instead of being supportive when it is needed. I feel it is needed now. Football is a fun sport as long as you work together under a coaching staff. Why have a coach? Why not let a tenth, eleventh or twelfth grader coach? Would you know what to do in any given situation. You should be proud to have someone willing to work with you after all of the trouble at the end of school last year.

Parents cannot run a school or football team even though they try. There are people assigned to these positions who have been trained for them. Some of these parents are not aware of what goes on except when it is their child that is involved. This is only natural to defend one's child but not at alot of other peoples expense. I believe the parents should swallow their pride and teach their children to do the same. Then they could work, learn and play together instead of saying they had been wronged.

Some people have said that the new coach wanted the respect of the boys before he had earned it. In my opinion, he had the respect when he accepted this position. In the midst of turmoil, Larry Molton had the guts to accept a position at SCHS to try to get a team going. Now a few self-centered boys are trying to knock him down before he has a chance to get up. The boys that walked out have proved one thing - "When the going gets rough - walk out - not to get going!"

It is this writer's opinion that Coach Molton should be given a chance. We have not seen what his potential is because some people are not willing to give him their support. If we all work together the outcome could be a great surprise. Why not give the coach a pat on the back and let him know that we are glad he chose to come to 'Ole Shelby High'.

Good luck to Coach Molton, his staff and the young men who are willing to work hard enough to have a team and proudly wear the Fighting Wildcats uniform.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I've always thought it would be so terrific to have a razor sharp mind and a memory that would operate like a bear trap.

That meeting the other night would have been covered if the information that had been given to me several weeks earlier had been retained.

Ah yes, if only the old memory had clamped down on the date and hung onto it, I would have been there snapping away and scribbling to beat the band.

But as it was, the conversation which provided me with time and place simply dropped into some hidden crevice without leaving a trace. So I had no clue that particular evening that I was supposed to be someplace.

But my faulty memory even trips me up when I get to the right place on the right date at the right time.

The other night, while trying to keep up with the speakers who were engaged in heated debate, I suddenly realized my pen was not writing.

Usually, or sometimes anyway, I have an extra pen. But I hadn't remembered to carry a spare this time.

So while I tried to borrow one from everyone within earshot, I missed a few hundred words.

And before that meeting ended, I fell flat on my face again. I was horrified to find myself on the last page in my notebook without any other writing material available.

Just as I was about to start scribbling on my arm, an accommodating gentlemen seated next to me realized my plight and came to the rescue.

He simply walked over to where the moderator was seated, picked up his pad and returned with it.

I hope the poor guy was finished with it. In any case, he couldn't have needed it any worse than I did.

At its best, my memory isn't very good, but after midnight it really flounders.

The other evening my son-in-law was driving me home from an event we'd both attended. And his father, whom I seldom see since he lives out of state, was riding along with us.

Well of course I was trying to put my best foot forward, but my unreliable memory once again tripped me up.

It was almost 2 a.m. as we pulled into my driveway. And I suddenly remembered my car wasn't at my house but at my oldest daughters.

"Oh my, I can't believe I forgot where I left it," I apologized with a little laugh to the two sleepy men.

My daughter's spouse has seen me in action before so he wasn't too surprised.

But his father looked at me as though he thought I might be missing some marbles.

And I think my next remark convinced him.

When we reached my daughters, the thought suddenly occurred to me that the car keys were in my purse and I couldn't remember where that was.

"You're not going to believe this," I chuckled. "but I don't have my keys so you'll have to take me home again."

So now my in-law connection thinks I'm a ding-a-ling.

I can hear you out there saying,

"Well, doesn't everybody?" And I don't think that's fair. We all have our faults, and just because I miss a meeting now and then, don't have the tools of my trade with me all the time and have trouble keeping up with car keys on occasion, that's no reason . . .

Well, come to think of it, maybe those are some pretty good reasons to think I'm inclined to get a little off track.

And how else, I ask you, could I come up with Scrambled Eggs every week?

Pelham residents worry about traffic safety

by David Moore

Problems of street traffic safety brought more than the usual amount of citizen traffic to the Pelham council chambers Monday night.

Ray White and Mike Kopp, both of the Cahaba Valley Road area, approached the council with a request for some sort of action to be taken against speeding trucks on Hwy. 31.

White said their concern over the speeding trucks had grown considerably in the wake of the death of an Alabaster man, Martin Upson Kemp, Friday at the intersection of Hwy. 31 and Alabama 119.

Furthermore, he pointed out to the council, school begins its fall session in a few weeks, and will thus add to the congestion on Hwy. 31, especially near Valley Elementary.

It was noted that Kopp had been involved in an accident in April at Hwys. 31 and 119, when a truck flipped over, crushing and burying several cars under its load of asphalt, and nearly claiming the lives of several people. Kopp said he drove up to the same intersection Friday just two minutes after a sand truck flipped over and killed the Alabaster man.

White added that the entrance curve from Hwy. 31 northbound into Hwy. 119 was banked the wrong way.

It's an automatic load shift for a truck speeding into that curve," he explained.

"If there's anything you can do, especially about the speeding trucks, it'd be appreciated," he said.

Mayor Dunaway said many citizens complained that the police in Pelham used radar excessively, although he disagreed with the claim himself. He also told the audience that the current 50 mph (45 mph between Hwys. 105 and 52) on the busy four-lane in Pelham was set by the state.

"There's nothing we can do about lowering the speed limit," the mayor said. "But we do enforce it."

"Well, we needed to start here," White said, indicating he had hoped the council would be able to act.

Three residents from Crosscreek Trail complained to the council that speeding was still a problem along that road and that vandals had destroyed mailboxes there, as well.

"We basically want some corrective action," said Goldman. Additional speedbreakers along the road and a street light in the 800 block would go a long way toward solving both problems, he said.

Dunaway appointed Councilman John Tanner to come up with a recommendation for the street light, and Councilmen Willard Payne and Ray Hamilton to study the speedbreaker proposal. Their findings are expected at the next meeting of the council on Sept. 8.

Resident Chuck Gilpian, noting the continued growth of signs being erected along Hwy. 31, especially near the entrance to Chandalar where he lives, asked the council for some kind of action on the matter.

"It's going to be all lit up with fancy signs," he lamented. "I was wondering if there's something we can do?"

The mayor agreed action was needed and said the matter would be studied to see if signs now up violated the city ordinances.

He mentioned that the traffic study now underway in Pelham would make some recommendations on that problem and might provide some solution to the problem of speeding trucks.

Councilman Ray Hamilton announced a public hearing for the rezoning from A-1 to B-2 of the property of Dr. Michael Meon on the south side of Valleydale Road (2000 block). The hearing is set for the Sept. 15 council meeting.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Love--The Supreme Virtue

The greatest description of love is found in 1 Corinthians 13. Paul ends his description by stating, "And the greatest of these is love."

The context in which the apostle emphasizes love is that the church in Corinth was composed of Christians who had received miraculous gifts as a result of the laying on of the apostles' hands. However, some of these saints were disregarding the purpose of the gifts, and those who possessed certain of the gifts felt superior to those who possessed other gifts. Paul urged that the church could be built up only through love, the supreme virtue.

During the Civil War, as the battle lull-ed at the close of a day, Union forces and Confederate forces were separated by a narrow river. The quiet was broken by the Union soldiers singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," which was answered by the Confederates, who sang "Dixie." The Northern soldiers then sang "Rally Round the Flag," and the Southerners sang "My Maryland." After they answered with numerous of each side's patriotic songs, the sweet words of "Home, Sweet Home" filled the air. Both sides immediately joined in singing the song together. In a brief moment, their common love for father, mother, son, brother, sister, wife, or sweetheart back home united their hearts and drowned out the bitterness of war. For a few moments, at least, their differences seemed insignificant when each remembered home!

How the strife, envy, and bitterness would cease if each person would love God and His fellowman as the apostle commands!

A warm welcome awaits you at the Columbian Church of Christ, Hwy. 25, ByPass.

Volunteer martyrs to be dunked at fair

Silhouetted against the evening sky, the Dunking Machine resembles the gallows in construction and its capacity to punish. Yet, its victims have not been convicted in any court of law, and seemingly are more the target of lynching mobs. Their punishment followed the pirate tradition of walking the plank.

The sufferers, all volunteers, cling desperately to the lofty, collapsible seat over the cold water in the tank far below. The self-elected torturers throw hardballs at the grapefruit-size trigger, all set to instantly remove the seat from under the condemned. Peering down, the lonely martyr tenses with the first miss, and the second, then, with the hit, plunges wildly down for his chilly dip as the crowd roars. The seat moves back into position for the citizen next in line, while the first surfaces and drags his soaked body and clothes from the tank.

The volunteers for this machine will be those offering their names in support of the Shelby County Fair and its worthy objectives. Courageous politicians and other community leaders and good citizens will be welcomed on the high seat, and may don swimsuits or other appropriate clothing. Project Director Conrad Fowler of the Columbian Kiwanis Club will be glad to receive their names. The hardballs to throw at the trigger which releases the seat may be purchased at the site, three for a dollar.

This fiendish Dunking Machine is the creation of the Shelby County Area Vocational Center, and its excellent construction testifies to the sound vocational skills learned at that fine school. The Shelby County Fair Association is proud to present this unique entertainment at the Fair, September 8 through 13. For good clean fun, take a ride on the Dunking Machine, or test your marksmanship by helping your favorite target take a dive.

Diabetic class given at SMH

A series of lessons on diabetes will begin September 2 at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

The six lessons will deal with the disease itself, the use of exchange lists in meal planning and preparation; eating out; exercise; complications and the role of the diabetic in the control of his condition.

The weekly diabetic sessions will be held in the board room, at the hospital from 10-11:30 a.m. every Tuesday from September 2 to October 7.

All diabetics and the people responsible for the care of diabetics are urged to attend. Miss Becky Goodwin, Nutrition Education Coordinator, Project HELP, UAB, is the instructor in charge. Other health professionals will assist her.

This series of lessons is sponsored by the Shelby County Extension Service. Call 669-6763 to enroll.

Planning for gifted

Three new teachers hired for gifted

With the hiring of three additional teachers, the gifted program in the county is ready to swing into high gear this year.

This gives the program six teachers to work with the 202 students identified as gifted.

Dr. Linda Nolen, who heads up the special education program in the county, noted that most systems only have one or two teachers to give instruction to students with high IQ's.

With the expanded staff, Dr. Nolen reported that each student in this category will receive at least five hours of instruction per week.

And the county is also ahead of many others, Nolen related, in the number of grades served.

While most systems limit the program to grades 1-8, the Shelby County system is serving the high school level as well.

Among the plans for the older group that the gifted teachers came up with during a workshop last week, was a unit in career exploration.

Consultants from the University of Alabama will offer other suggestions as they work with the teachers to develop a curriculum for the gifted program.

Although a $12,000 testing program was carried out this summer to identify gifted students, Dr. Nolen said that testing will continue throughout the year as referrals are made.

The amount of time a student spends in these special classes depends on the number of gifted students in a particular school, Dr. Nolen explained.

Because of the higher number at Thompson Elementary and Valley, two of the teachers will be there on a permanent basis.

And the other four teachers, she went on to say, will travel to the other schools in the system.

In addition to activities on the local level, teachers in the gifted program are also putting county-wide programs on their agenda this year.

UM schedules tryouts for 'The Music Man'

Public tryouts for the University of Montevallo Lyric Theatre production of Meredith Willson's "The Music Man" are Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 1 and 2.

The auditions begin at 7 p.m. both nights in the UM Music Building's LeBaron Recital Hall. Parts are available for men and women, boys and girls of all ages, according to Dr. Benjamin Middaugh, director.

"We especially need young people ages eight to 16 to audition for the show," Middaugh added.

To be presented Nov. 13 and 14, "The Music Man" will be the second of a six-production season for the UM Lyric Theatre.

Other members of the production staff are Pam Middaugh, choreographer; Spencer Shaw, orchestra conductor; and Robert Pitts, production coordinator.

Anyone who wants more information can call 665-2521, ext. 383.

Fire department sponsors fair

The Cahaba Valley Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a weekend of trade days and a fair Aug. 29, 30, and 31.

A dunking machine and a cake walk will be featured at the fair which begins at 5 p.m. August 29 and ends at 5 p.m. August 31.

The fair will be located in the parking lot of the Cahaba Valley Branch of the First National Bank of Columbiana at the intersection of Hwy. 119 and 280.

Vendors wanting a place at the fair should call 967-6187.

DID YOU KNOW?

Today's residential customer is using almost one and a half times as much electricity as in 1969.

Because of increased usage and inflation, the power bill is taking a bigger chunk out of the average family income in Alabama.

For example, in 1969, 1.88% of the family income was used to pay for electricity. In 1979, it rose to 2.58%. In 1969, our average residential customer used 7,697 kilowatt-hours. In 1979, that same customer used 10,231 kilowatt-hours.

Yamaha LC50 lost on Tannehill trip

On camping trips, Walker Reach likes to go exploring on his little Yamaha LC 50.

But as he and his wife drove home from Tannehill Park last week, the strap holding the bike broke and the Yamaha was lost.

Reach reported that he believes the Yamaha was lost on Hwy. 13 between Whispering Pines farm and County Hwy. 1.

Anyone finding the bike can contact Reach by calling 663-0981.

MR. & MRS. R.E. BERRY
...the former Lisa Ferguson

Nuptials unite

Ferguson-Berry

Miss Lisa Gayle Ferguson and Robert E. Berry, Jr. were united in marriage, Friday, July 4, at 4 p.m. at Camp Branch United Methodist Church. The Rev. M.A. Heatherly, grandfather of the groom, officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Ferguson of Alabaster. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Berry, Sr., of Alabaster are the parents of the groom.

Mrs. Debbie Blankenship, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Debra Payne and Miss Freddie Tezak.

Robert E. Berry, Sr., father of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Tommy Blankenship and Randy Blankenship. Stephen Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Warren, was the ring bearer.

Music for the wedding was presented by Mrs. Sandra Glover and Miss Debra Payne.

A reception followed the service. Hostesses were Miss Laurie Moore, Miss River Collum, and Mrs. Linda Kennedy.

The guest register was attended by Miss Rivers Collum. After a wedding trip to Panama City and Pensacola, the couple are at home in Alabaster.

ROBERT F. KING, JR.

Robert Farrell King, Jr. celebrated his second birthday August 18. He is the son of Bobby and Donna King of Double Oak Mt.; grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Carl King of Chelsea and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Attaway of Leeds, great-grandson of Mr. Walter Attaway and Mrs. Ethel Barte of Leeds, and Mrs. Inez King of Birmingham.

Family holds reunion

The seventh annual Creamer family reunion was held Sunday, Aug. 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Othar Denard in Alabaster.

Mrs. Roxie Creamer Scott and four of her sons -- Virgil, John, Lacy and Jackie -- along with her daughter, Mabel Denard, were present. Also attending were many other friends and relatives.

Several rodeo friends of Michael Denard, who is leaving for the Marine Corps August 19, attended.

On August 24, Shady Grove Baptist Church will have a 4th Sunday afternoon singing beginning at 2 p.m. The Chelsea Trio will be the guest singers. Everyone is welcome.

The church is located near the intersection of 280 east and Shelby County Road 41.

A banner will stretch across Main Street this week in Calera - D'Andrea Cordone designed the banner to proclaim the coming parade of the Puppet Ministry of the Calera Baptist Church. Saturday police cars, several brightly decorated cars, a fire truck, and a float, compliments of Susan and Edwin Childree, will make their way through Calera beginning at 9 a.m. Their destination will be Oliver Park where at ten puppets, under the direction of Charles Murphy, will give a show entitled, 'The Promise of the Rainbow'. In keeping with the theme, rainbow snow cones will be served by Ann Crouse. The coordinator of this event is Debbie Horton.

Hard work and pride make band worthy of the name the 'Pride of Shelby County Warrior Band' according to band director Elson Hood. Band camp has been in progress at Thompson since the first of last week and will continue until this Friday.

The 150 band members from Thompson High School won every contest they entered last year and plan on a repeat performance this year.

mance this year, Mike Dioss of the Madison Scouts Drum and Bugle Corps has been hired to drill what Elson Hood says is the largest drumline in this part of the state. A majorette from the National Baton Twirl Association has also been hired to instruct the majorettes. The color guard is sponsored by Tim Anderson.

The Thompson Band will be led on the field by drum major Andy Elkins.

The annual picnic for the Progress Homemaker's Club of Wilsonville was held August 9 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Mulner. Those attending the lawn party were Mr. and Mrs. J.F. Ireland, Mrs. Evelyn Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny King and their son, Dan, also present were Mrs. Greg Storey, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Muse, Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Storey.

At each monthly luncheon the members exchange ideas concerning home management and provide programs of interest to homemakers.

There are 11 Homemakers clubs in Shelby County. Anyone interested in joining a club or organizing one in their area should contact the county extension service.

Homemakers in the Wilsonville area are invited to call June Storey at 669-7445.

While yellowjackets with bald heads and curlers in their hair decorated the walls, the music of Elvis and the Platters filled the room at the Ensley 23-year class reunion. The reunion was held at the Green Valley country club last month. Those from Shelby County were Josephine Kitchen of Pelham, Lecil Colburn of Helena, and Dr. James Franks also of Pelham.

Hiking and camping were the main attractions for several vacationers from Pelham last week. The group including Bobbie, Carrie Sue and Kim Hinds, Eddie Fogle, Mike Savani, Dawn Wilson, Jean, David, Lindy, Holly and Steve Pryor, took their campers and tents to the Great Smokey Mountains and camped beneath the stars and among the bears.

Splitting their trip between Smokemont and Elkmont campgrounds the campers hiked four miles to Chimney Top and eight miles from Newground Gap. Other mountaineers were Cindy and Angie Wilson, Ida and Mason Cumberland, Doc, Mary and Kelly Martin and Richard Demarzo.

Children are full of surprises so I try to be prepared. However, my daughters caught me off guard when they baked cookies. How could I turn down two smiling little girls? There they stood with aprons past their ankles and plates in their hand piled high with (well I wasn't really sure until they told me) cookies. While trying to smile, I began to nibble. However, there were no surprises when they proudly gave me their recipe. Take one cup of flour, 1 egg and 1/2 box of salt. Mix well and roll into balls. After putting them in a cookie sheet leave in cold oven for 5 minutes. I had to add a final step - Be prepared. Until next week I'll be seeing you 'around the county'!

Seeing red

For some elusive reason the tackling dummy at Shelby Academy is red and the Raiders attack it with a passion. SA opens its season September 5, a week later than most area schools, playing the team in red from Coosa Valley.

Football teams work toward 1980 kickoff

By this time next week it'll be here.

High school football, for those of you who've been far out of town for the past month, kicks off the 1980 season in Shelby County next Thursday night at 7:30.

At that time the Thompson Warriors will take a little trip down to Jemison to see if these people have any "tough" in their football squad. You can bet the big Jemison boys will be fired up for Thompson, so it would be an exciting game.

Meanwhile, the Montevallo Bulldogs will take a short trip over to Oliver Park and initiate the Calera Eagles into 2-A gridiron action. The two next door neighbors have developed quite a rivalry amongst themselves so the action should be rather intense.

Friday the 29th will see near full-swing action as everybody but Shelby Academy and Briarwood sets out to put a few grass stains on their uniforms. (Those two teams both go under fire on September 5.)

The games on tap for the 29th are Pelham at Shelby County, Vincent at Abrams, Chelsea at Talladega and Coosa Valley as host to Chambers.

Although the fans and the players are certain to be anxious for kick-off, the coaches are starting to feel a pressure that's similar to cramming for finals or finishing a news story on deadline.

For the teams, this matter of "playing" football has thus far boiled down to a lot of hard work and sacrifice, especially considering how hot the county's practice fields have been these past few weeks.

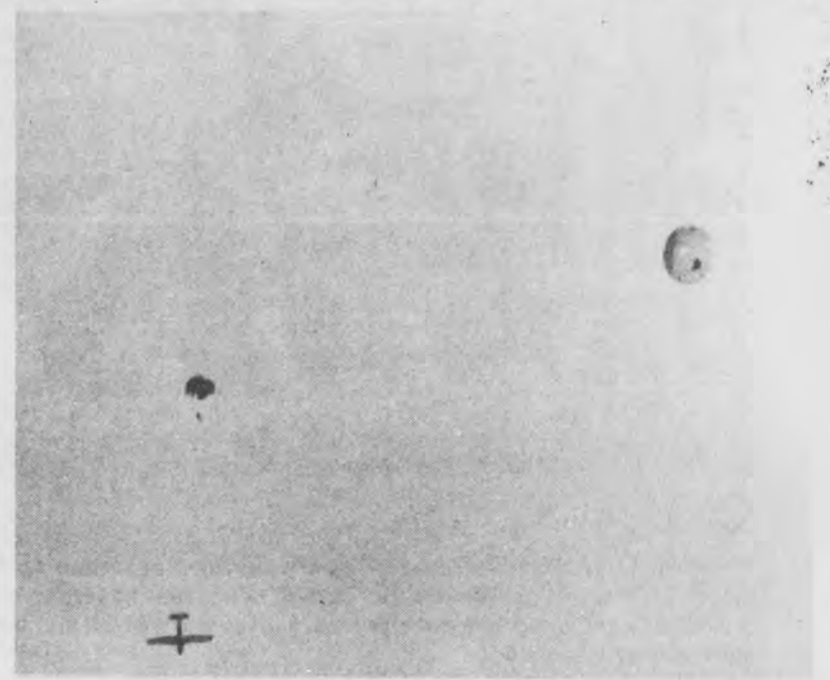

And the sun's not the only thing that bears down hot on the players. Take, for instance, the coaches.

"You call that a block, boy? I thought you were bent over tying your shoe!"

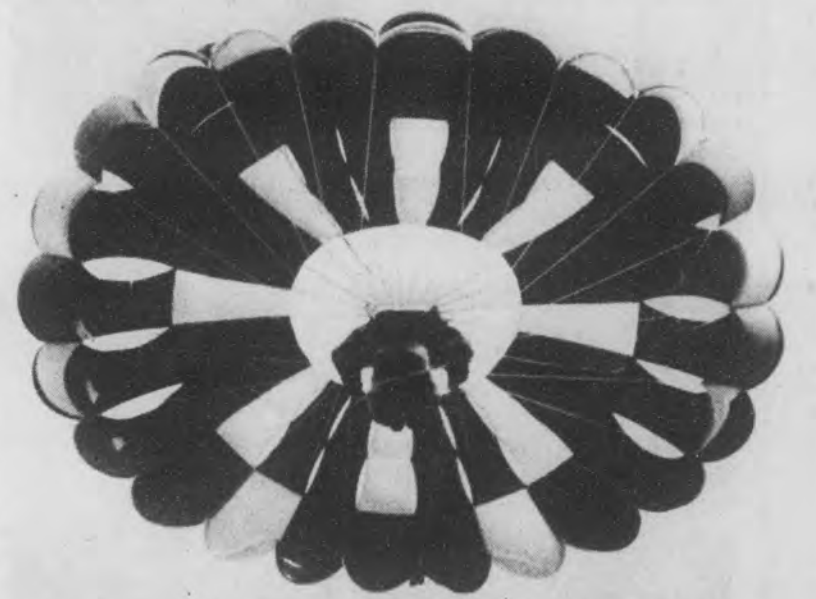

"I know some football players on the other side of this county who are gonna' make you look like somebody's little sister if you can't run any harder than that!"

And of course the all-time classic, yelled at the overly eager kid who insists on jumping the count: "Somebody give me a football player who knows how to count!"

But very soon now, it will all become worth while. Football 1980 is almost here.

Down...

down...

...and touchdown!

Crossing a football goal isn't the only way in the world to make a touchdown. After jumping from an airplane 3000 feet above the earth, a handful of grass is worth a lot more than six points.

Thrill of parachuting starts with first step

Expanding on the old adage that whatever goes up must come down, it's safe to say that skydiving has an equal number of both ups and downs.

The trick is to land with a smile on your face.

At their Vincent drop zone, a stone's throw from the Coosa River, the Alabama Aero Sports Club goes to great pains to see to that divers do land with a smile, because smiling skydivers mean a safe program.

Before a student takes that first big step out the door of the plane, he or she is given at least several hours of what jumpmaster Ray Hara refers to as "survival instinct" training.

During training a student is taught a fundamental understanding of the competition type equipment with which the jump will be made. Instructions are given on exiting the plane and holding the body in a stable arch during the fall.

Too, the student is instructed on how to land under canopy.

For the approximate three-minute interval between the time a student climbs out the door of the plane 3000 feet in the sky and jumps, to the time touchdown is accomplished, Hara or another instructor is in contact with the jumper via one-way radio.

When one is alone in a big, quiet sky, dangling for the first time from a contraption called a parachute, that electronic voice coming over the radio can be a real comfort.

To call skydiving an incredibly Continued on page 14

Calera football camp builds team unity

Picture this: a high school locker room packed with 20 or 30 rambunctious football players.

"Boy, did you see that lick..."

"I'm gonna' cream that joker..."

and other such comments clamor over the clacking of cleats and good natured popping of pads. And above it all hangs the distinct smell of honest sweat and once-white athletic socks.

The scene is a bit wild and goes on from 20 minutes to an hour.

Now picture this: summer football camp. It's all of the above, multiplied by 24 hours per day for a week. And you can add to the picture a ton of hard work.

Two weeks ago the Briarwood Lions held their football camp in the mountains near Mentone. Last week the Thompson Warriors are conducting day camp on campus.

Last week, too, the Calera Eagles held their annual football camp. Sleeping in the gym, catching meals in the school cafeteria and working out twice daily on the practice field, they lived and worked from Sunday to Friday, together, as a team.

"We tell the kids we're going to live together and build team unity," head honcho coach Danny Alverson said, explaining his theory behind the camps. "We talk football and have meetings. We work out twice a day. We figure if we're working harder than our opponents, it'll pay off."

"Also," he grinned knowingly, "camp insures us the players'll be here at seven o'clock in the morning for practice!"

Reveille came early for the groggy Eagle campers as Alverson and his staff booted them from their nests at 6:15.

Nineteen of the 26 varsity players brought beds with them when they moved into the gym Sunday, August 10. Others slept on pads and mattresses lined against the walls. Stereos, suitcases and bumper pool tables completed the nest.

The players stumbled into the cafe and ate "The Breakfast of Champions," and home-made cakes. From there, they donned pads and hit the field by 7 a.m.

At that hour the grass was still wet with dew.

Senior Danny Holladay was used to wet grass on the field from the days he practiced with the Calera marching band. This is his first year to play football and attend camp. The wet grass is a different animal when you have to roll in it, he said.

"It's tough going two-a-day. Tougher than I thought it'd be. I miss my kingsize bed at home, too. But I wish I'd been playing (football) all along," Holladay stated.

The morning drills dragged out at least until nine o'clock. The hours were long.

"Coach says 'One more!' and we'll end up doing 20 more drills," Kirk Ross said. He added perspective to the statement by noting that he also griped about the food, but went back for second and third helpings.

The morning's sweat dried during the free time that was allowed until 11 a.m. Most of the players ate a light snack of homemade cake.

"We eat a lot of cake," Alverson explained. He pointed out that the cakes were baked by the cheerleaders, band members, and majorettes, thus adding to the overall school effort and spirit backing the team.

From 11-11:45 assistant coach Mark Lovett worked the line, running them through their assignments in shorts and helmets.

Lunch, like supper, was a big meal. It was cooked and served by Boggie Johnston, Anita Davis, Opal Alverson, Evelyn Barefield and Betty Wells. There was much joking and clowning between the women and players during these meals.

In fact, there was a lot of joking among the players and coaches in general. The syndrome was probably due to a cross between Alverson's personality and one liners, and a certain sense of slap-happiness such as one might observe in a person who had stayed up for three days straight.

This is not to say the Eagles took football camp lightly. On the contrary, they appeared to take it quite seriously. The joking and kidding were just part of the glue that held the team together.

In the early afternoons the backs worked out in helmets, running through plays until shortly after two. From then until 3:30 the players watched game

Preseason secrets?

The Calera coaching staff swears they aren't working on any secret plays, but if Eagles' Richard Russell, Ricky Winterbottom and John Killingsworth take to field like this, somebody's going to be surprised - especially if it works.

Understanding

Coach Danny Alverson has a little chat to reach an understanding over a play with quarterback Ricky Winterbottom (rear), end Raymond King (right) and another player. Alverson can usually ease some of the pressure of a long hot afternoon by his (some would say "bad") sense of humor.

Quick-kick

Quick-kick: 1) A play used occasionally on third or second down in which the offensive surprise-kicks the ball as a means of getting out of a hole; 2) what you drink when the coach gives you a break and there's no water or Gatorade.

Conkle to be honored

Richard Conkle appreciation day will be celebrated August 24 in the Chelsea High School lunchroom.

All former players, students, teachers, coaches and friends of Conkle are invited to visit with the coach from 2 to 4 p.m.

Conkle, who coached his final season at Chelsea last year, was football coach for 14 years.

For more information call Coy Brasher, Gene Mathews or Earl Niven.

Putting out

"They're doing everything we ask them," says Chelsea's new football boss Daryl Burnham of his Hornets. And when it comes down to long dirty hours of hard physical contact and conditioning drills, one best believe Burnham and staff are asking a lot.

Columbiana readies for youth football

Columbiana Youth football welterweight association registration date will be August 20, 21, 22. Hours are 9-12 a.m. and 3-6 p.m. at the Columbiana park. Boys age 6-13 are eligible and should bring birth certificates.

films, or maybe just took it easy and watched the band practice as it got its turn to sweat.

Evening practice ran from 4-6 and sometimes later, depending on how things went.

Tackle Wayne Giddons, who was attending his second camp, said, "I was looking forward to camp all last week, but now...it's tough."

Will it pay off???

Answered Giddons, "Yeah! We're going to beat Montevallo, and you can put that in big words!"

Is the work worth it?

Answered linebacker Steve Bearden (sounding a lot like Thompson head coach Larry Simmons), "Wait till after three games and I'll tell you."

Running back Richard "Sleepy" Russell, a junior, noted, "We need the camp because we've got a lot of beginners out there. It'd be nice if it ran for another week. It brings us closer together."

Alverson and his staff planned different activities each night of the week, such as going to see a movie, roller skating or Six Flags. Thursday night was designated family night, with the parents eating dinner with the team.

The most mysterious aspect of football camp, at least at Calera, was what went on in the gym after the lights went out around 11 p.m.

Camping in

Though coach Alverson wisely saw fit not to allow camp fires in the gym, the players still managed to gather around for chats in their make-shift bedroom.

Parachuting takes a big step intense experience is easily true.

On the way to the drop zone for the first jump, a student may have enough butterflies in the stomach to take off without an airplane. But once you get there, start getting into the instructions, and see other skydivers eagerly awaiting their turn to hop a plane ride to altitude, the butterflies gradually settle.

By the time that big beautiful chute pops out over your head, any remains of fear have usually been converted to ecstasy. Nothing compares to the thrill.

Like any sport, skydiving is not for everybody. But like any sport, those that do enjoy it often find themselves hooked.

As one skydiver put it, "I've been known to sell some of my record albums to get enough money to make a jump. I get to feeling kinda' weird if I don't do it for a week or so."

For the mass of people who shake their heads in utter disbelief at why anyone would want to jump out of perfectly good airplane, the only answer a skydiver can give is "Try it and see."

And if you do happen to get stuck on the sport of skydiving, you certainly don't have to worry about getting "stuck up."

Logan Martin hosts jet ski tourney

The U.S. Jet Ski Boat Association has chosen a site on Lake Logan Martin for its 1980 southern national championships on August 30-31.

Alpine Bay Inn Resort and Country Club (formerly Point Aquarius) will be sponsoring the event and will provide a $10,000 cash purse for the relatively new sport of jet ski racing.

More than 150 competitors are expected from as far away as California and Connecticut.

Eleven events for five classes of competition will be run. They include closed course and slalom races for women, novice and expert riders. Also featured will be a freestyle event, often compared to trick skiing competition used in tournament water skiing. The jet ski rider is allowed a two-minute period to perform a variety of maneuvers that range from handstands to headstands, deep-water spin-arounds and riding two jet skis at one time.

Qualifying events will be run on Saturday, August 30th. Finals will take place Sunday. Events will start at 11 a.m. both days. Admission is free.

Bass tournament set for Jordan Lake

The Birmingham Chapter of Striper, will sponsor a striped bass tournament August 23 and 24 on Lake Jordan. The project will raise funds for the Alabama Fisheries Department to do an electronic survey on this popular gamefish.

Departing at 6:30 a.m. on the 23rd from the public launching ramp at the mouth of Softkahatchee Creek (located on the east bank above Jordan Dam near the YMCA Camp and 231 south), the tournament is aimed at family fun, charges a small entry fee and offers prizes - including a $1,000 first prize. Details and pre-entry forms may be obtained by contacting Keith Burbank at 205/822-3980.

"With Jordan Lake being the smallest lake in Alabama, but the one most heavily stocked with striped bass, this promises to be a super tournament for a very good cause," said Striper president, founder and director Stu Tinney.

Explains lineman Derrick "Big D" Merritte, "Life in the gym after lights...well, it's much funner than the days!"

Unconfirmed reports have it that the Calera Club ran some rather unusual "secret" plays across the gym floor at midnight.

Said Alverson, "You know how boys are..."

The head coach explained, however, that in the six years Calera has run a football camp, there have been no problems with discipline.

Alverson, who is quite keen on the idea of holding the camps, explained that the camps actually go beyond football.

"Some of these kids never get the chance to go to movies or skating or to Six Flags. We try to teach them some of the social aspects of life in general."

Alverson grins. "We do all this and get two-a-day practice, too."

Assistant coach Gary Griffith summed up this summer football camp program this way: "It's just one big happy family." on

United Way trains campaign workers

J.E. "Ned" Bearden and Bobby Hosea, co-chairmen of the United Way fund campaign in Shelby County announce that campaign workers are now training volunteers for the up-coming campaign.

Section chairmen for the drive are:

Harold Bissell, Air Engineers; Judge Robert Armstrong, Circuit Judge; Ray Mayfield, Director Continuing Education University of Montevallo; Dan Spitzer, Attorney Commissioner; Harold Davenport, Shelby County; Bob Thomas, Western Electric Company; Steven R. Sears, Attorney.

The Shelby County Campaign is part of the tri-county effort which also includes Jefferson and Walker. John Woods, President of Alabama Ban Corporation is the tri-county chairman.

Shelby County has always benefited by being a part of this three-county effort according to Mr. Hosea. For instance, records kept by the 47 agencies of United Way indicate that about three times the money raised in 1979 in Shelby County was spent on the needs of Shelby County residents.

Last year there were 10,658 employees in Shelby County whose employers participated in the campaign. The employees gave $100,256 while the companies they worked for gave $45,055 for a total of $145,311. That means that the average individual working in Shelby County gave an amount of $9.41 last year. If each had given one hour's minimum wage pay of $3.10 per month, the average would have been $37.20 for the year as compared to $9.41. "You can see we have a long way to go in supporting this effort," says Hosea.

"Of course," he added, "when we deal with averages we do not take into account that less than half of these 10,658 employees gave all the money. These people deserve a lot of tribute and the ones that do not give are missing out on strengthening their own health."

Only 7 1/2 cents of every dollar contributed goes to overhead while 92 1/2 cents goes for services to people with real needs. Hosea explains, "Every time I think about how my contributions are helping so many people, I feel warm inside because I know it's right."

Hosea can also vouch for how the money is spent in that he serves as the chairman of a visiting budget team that reviews four agencies who receive United Way funding. He also is first vice president of the Visiting Nurses Association. He has also served as a United Way industrial section chairman, senior volunteer and sponsored executive.

Bearden has been active in many civic dairy and business organizations in Shelby County through the years. He has been elected by wide majorities to every public office he has ever sought in Shelby County. His business and personal integrity in the county are known to be outstanding. He represents the interests of most long time residents of Shelby County when he encourages them to participate in United Way giving so that Shelby County people can receive the help they may need as the county grows.

A few of the United Way organizations that some 10,000 people in Shelby County used last year are Children's Hospital, YMCA, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, American Red Cross, Children's Aid Society, Crisis Center, Positive Maturity, Salvation Army, Shelby County Mental Health Association, Montevallo service Center, Workshop for the Blind and Disabled just to name a few.

Volunteers make the financial decisions that determine what organizations will be funded. Raising $8 million locally enables an additional 40 million dollars to be obtained as matching money from the federal and state governments, so that each year between $40 and $50 million are spent on services that help people in the three-county area.

Many Shelby County people serve on the boards of United Way agencies.

This means that Shelby County interests are better represented than ever before. Both Bearden and Hosea encourage all individuals interested in progressing in United Way efforts in Shelby County to get involved and help make the decisions in the future.

Schools tighten

check-out policy

Anyone who has had occasion to stop by the office in almost any school has observed a number of students checking out.

Most of the time they simply tell the secretary or the student in charge their reason for leaving and sign their name on a sheet of paper.

But these reasons aren't always valid and parents are often unaware that their children aren't in class.

So this year, principals are cracking down on these frequent check-outs by requiring written permission from the student's parent or guardian.

The decision was made at a recent workshop for school administrators which was held at the Board of Education office in Columbiana.

Another stipulation for checking out, is that the student be picked up by an adult whose name is on file in the principal's office.

The only exceptions will be in emergency situations.

Not only will the new policy cut down on the congestion in the office and leave more time for secretaries to fulfill other duties, but it will also assure parents that their children are in school.

Pulp hauler's lot a hard one

by David Armstrong

A few paintless but sturdy chainsaws, a not-so-good looking but reliable truck, and a couple of rough, hard working men. These are the only things really needed to become an owner and operator in Alabama's number one industry -- the wood industry.

That's one of the reasons many people in our area decide to cut and haul wood for employment instead of some other job, one local pulpwooder explained recently.

"I've been pulpwooding off and on for most of my life," he said. "My father was a pulpwooder and I started working with him when I was a young boy."

"I've had a few other jobs in my life, but I've hauled pulpwood part-time even when I had other full-time jobs."

He said he finally quit his job and started working pulpwood full-time when his son dropped out of high school.

"When my boy quit school he had a hard time finding a job. I knew I couldn't keep feeding him with the job I had, so I had to find him some work. I was getting tired of the job I had so as soon as I saved enough money to make a down payment on a truck, I quit. Me and my boy and another fellow been hauling pulpwood ever since."

All of the pulpwooders in our area didn't enter the business for the same reasons, but many have a lot in common.

According to the owner of an area wood yard where many pulpwooders sell their loads, many of the men in the pulpwood business do not have a high school diploma and they would have a hard time finding work anywhere else. He said the majority of them are unskilled workers who started in the business when other work wasn't available.

But others, he said, are pulpwooding because they can work when they want to and as long as they want to-- they are their own boss.

"Some folks think we make lots of money," the local hauler said, "and if you only look at how much money we get when we sell it to a wood yard, we do make a lot."

"But the expenses make it hard for a man to feed himself if he's in pulpwood."

He said he gets about $120 a day from two loads of pulpwood on his truck. Out of that he pays his two workers $15 apiece per load -- $60 total. That leaves him $60 or approximately $1,200 a month to pay his bills. His bills include a $200 a month truck payment, a $400 a month gasoline bill, and many more dollars for constant truck and chainsaw repairs.

"That don't leave a man much to feed himself and his family with," he said.

He added that many times in the winter he and his workers can't haul wood because of the weather. Also, when his only truck, or one of his chainsaws break down, it not only costs him for repairs but it also limits the amount of wood he sells. And then there are times when he can't find wood to cut.

The money isn't good, the work is long, difficult and dangerous and he never knows when he might not be able to sell his wood because of a slump in paper production, he said. But the industry is good right now and he says the freedom he has to run his own business helps make the problems bearable.

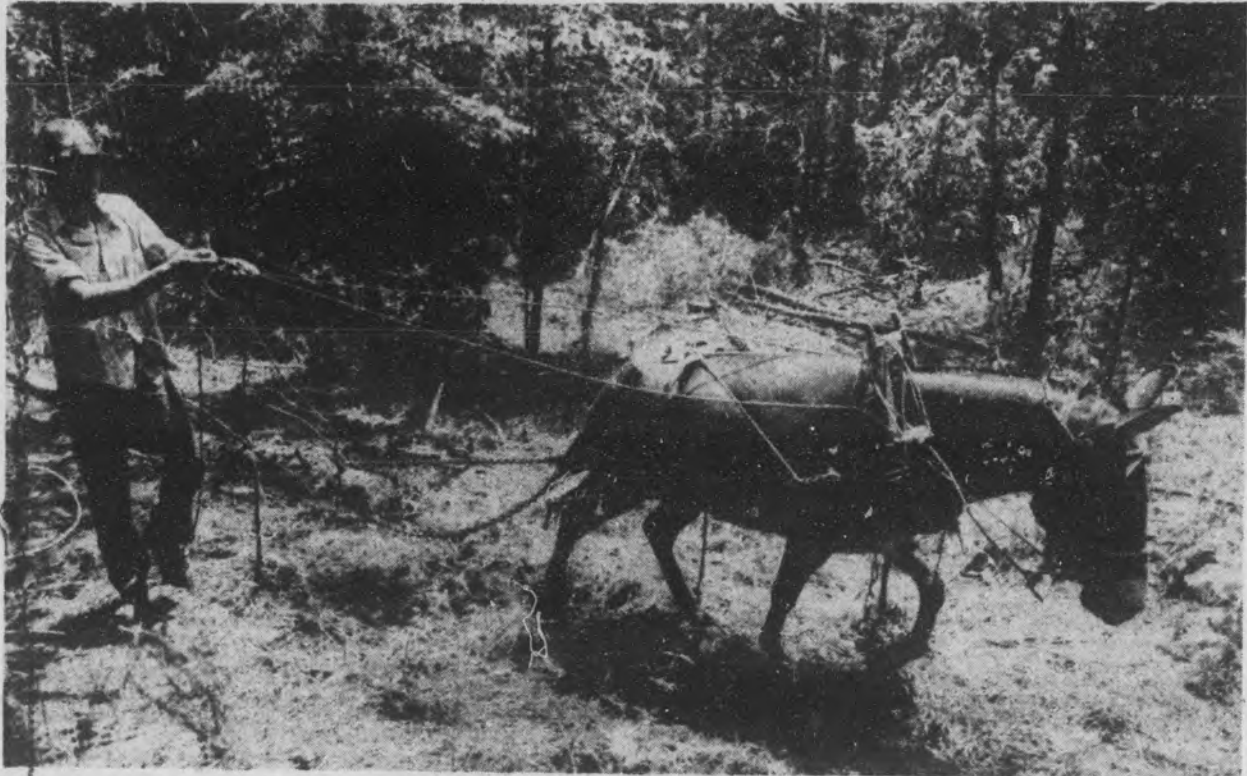

Not every pulpwooder is in the same condition as this one, but the majority seem to be in the lower income brackets. The irony of this is that they are working in the state's number one money industry.

"Somebody may be making a lot of money but it isn't us," another pulpwooder said.

Some of the men say that a labor union of some kind might help them get better prices for their labor and make them more economically stable. But others are afraid that a union would take away their freedom and maybe even their jobs.

So it seems that for right now the pulpwooder will continue to be an important part of the wood industry. Some, working harder and better equipped, will make more money than others, but probably, very few will become as well off as the people working in the industries to which they supply the wood.

Hay-burning log skidder

James West of Columbiana steers a log-pulling mule toward a pulpwood truck. Hubbert Howell of Columbiana, who owns the mules, says they don't break down as often as modern tractor-type log skidders. They also get better gas mileage according to Howell. He is one of a very few pulpwooders who still uses mules. (Photo by David Armstrong)

Sprinklers get busy when nature fails to bring enough rain to pine seedlings at Kimberly-Clark's farm on Highway 76 in east Shelby County. The trees will help provide for the continued importance of the logging industry in the area.

Boys, Girls Ranch benefit held

Getting in is cheap. It's the leaving that's hard to do.

That's the sentiment of thousands of participants who join the Barbara Mandrell family and friends each year at the Barbara Mandrell Benefit for the Alabama Sheriffs Boys and Girls Ranches. Still Waters Resort near Dadeville is the site for the golf tournament and other events scheduled for October 3-5.

Scheduled activities for the three-day weekend include a concert at Auburn Memorial Coliseum Friday, October 3, featuring Barbara Mandrell and Las Vegas entertainer Wayne Newton; a tennis tourney Saturday October 4, fishing excursions with well-known bass fishermen; a putting tournament for children, as well as a two-mile "Fun-Run" and a 6.2 mile Marathon Run, both on Saturday October 4.

Tickets for the concert, $7 and $8, may be purchased by mail from Auburn Memorial Coliseum, Entertainment Office, P.O. Box 591, Auburn, AL 36830 by cash, money order or cashier's check.

Call For An Election

North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District

In accordance with the provisions of Act
No. 62, H. 213 First Special Session 1977, as amended by Act No. 79-369

First Special Session 1979.

An Election is hereby Ordered to be held to permit the qualified voters residing within the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District to vote on the question of whether or not the below listed Schedule of Service Charges be approved as applicable within the district, effective for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980.

The election is called in response to a petition signed by the duly elected Trustees of the District, namely, Martha Geyer, John Pruett,
L. Stephen Wright, Jr., Larry Dillard and John V. van Pelt, III; said petition having been filed in the office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, on the 25th day of July, 1980.

Said election shall be held on Tuesday,
September 2, 1980, between the hours of 7:00 o'clock a.m. and 7:00 o'clock p.m., at New Hope Presbyterian Church, in the City of Birmingham, Alabama, at 12 Box 3 and Bryan Memorial Church in Beat 12 Box 3 and Inverness Apartment Clubhouse in Beat 12 Box 4.

Done this 25th day of July, 1980.

Thomas A. Snowden, Jr.
Judge of Probate

We the undersigned, being all of the duly elected Trustees of the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District (hereinafter referred to as "the District"), herby petition in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 62, H. 213 First Special Session 1977 (Acts 1977, p. 1483) as amended by Act No. 79-369 First Special Session 1979 and do hereby request the Probate Judge of Shelby County, Alabama, to call an election in accordance with the provisions of Sections 5, 7 and 13 of said Act No. 62,
First Special Session 1977, as amended,
on the following question:

1. Shall the following Schedule of Service Charges be approved as applicable within the district, effective for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980, and for ensuing fiscal years, and for such fiscal years supersede the Schedule of Service Charges, heretofore approved by the voters of the district in an election held May 1, 1978.

A. Service charges in general.

1. The charges shall be levied upon and be collectible from persons and properties served by the system established for the district, or the district may at its election, levy the charges in the first instance upon the owners of the land upon which the structures stand. The charges shall be a personal obligation of the owner and the landowner. The term occupant includes persons who have the right to occupy a structure whether or not such persons physically occupy the structure. In the case of multiple units, the district has the option of billing and initially collecting from the district, or from apartments, an office building, a shopping center or the land upon which mobile homes are located.

2. To secure the collection thereof, the charges shall, unless otherwise provided by law, be a lien in favor of the district against the structure or structures available for use of such occupant and on the land on which such structure or structures are situated.

3. The lien shall be enforceable by sale of the land in the same manner in which municipal assessments for public improvements are enforced.

4. If more than one occupant for the fiscal year, the district shall have the right to collect any unpaid "annual charges," "prorated charges," and "other charges" including arrears from prior fiscal years from the persons who are separately liable therefor, or from the sale of the land as provided in the preceding paragraph;
however that the total "annual charge" or "prorated charge" collected from all occupants or owners who are separately or severally liable, or from the sale of the land shall not exceed the sum of the "annual charges," of all "prorated charges," and of all "other charges" which are unpaid as of the date of such collection.

5. Service charges are collectible whether or not timely billing of such charges is effected. The penalty for late payment are assessable whether or not the original billing of the service charge defined in Paragraph E1 is effected.

6. In the event that there is ambiguity in the classification of a particular property, or in the application of any service charge, the Board of Trustees shall render a decision as to the appropriate classification or to the propriety of such application but only in accordance with the appeal procedures hereinafter provided, and such decision shall be final.

7. Service charges are collectible if any portion of a structure is located within the district.

8. In the event partial payment is made in respect of a property the payment shall be applied first to the oldest outstanding charge.

9. The Board of Trustees may, upon appeal, but in their sole discretion, waive "annual charges" if the property owner is indigent, or, having the total assets, in the opinion of the Trustees.

B. Definitions.

1. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE - A single family residence is a structure designed primarily as a dwelling to be occupied by one or more persons or persons all of whom, or all but two of whom, are related to each other by birth, adoption, or marriage) and includes all outbuildings or other structures such as garages, pools, sheds, campers and movable trailers located on a single parcel of land except when the use to which any such building or other structure is put represents a commercial endeavor, or if any of such outbuildings are used as a dwelling with which event such building shall be classified as an apartment. If any portion of the principal structure is held open for lease, such portion shall be deemed to be an apartment or more than one apartment, depending upon the circumstances, and as determined by the Board of Trustees. In certain instances, a structure may serve a dual purpose, e.g. serving as a dwelling and concurrently being utilized for commercial purposes. In such situations, the Trustees of the District shall determine, based upon a review of the facts, and in a large measure being guided by the square footage devoted to each use, if a commercial enterprise, a school, church or other enterprise provides living accommodations for employees or others, the structures shall be treated as individual units in the pertinent classification which would apply if the structure was not related to the commercial enterprise, school, church or other endeavor.

2. CLASS - References to various classes are to the various classifications of fire protection as determined by the Insurance Services Office, Montgomery, Alabama, or such other rating service that may be designated by the State to rate fire protection services.

3. MULTIPLE UNITS - Multiple units refer to structures which, singly or together, house more than one occupany (i.e., owner, lessee, second household) and include individual condominiums in which an association acts for the individual owners; individual apartments in which the residences held for lease, identified as one or more apartments; separate structures, located on parcels of land attached to a residence identified as apartments; office buildings, shopping centers, and other structures which are separable and individual units in mobile home parks.

4. MOBILE HOMES - Mobile homes are single width trailers, fourteen feet in width or less serving as residences or held for residential occupancy, which are mounted on foundations and/or connected to utilities and to not remodeling other than the installation of steps to provide access to the structure, has been done which would alter the outside dimensions of the structure. Furthermore, out-buildings related to such mobile homes will represent an additional category of structure. Residential mobile home units which do not conform to the foregoing dimensions would be classified in the appropriate residence classification.

5. GROUND AREA COVERED -
When the charge for a structure is based upon the ground area covered the measurement shall include all roof overhangs, porches, wells, out-buildings, greenhouses, sheds, air conditioning units, and pools (whether or not part of the air conditioning system). In the case of commercial endeavors, churches, schools, or non-profit organizations, separable functions or businesses shall be measured individually. Except that any structure deemed to be a single family residence, apartment or mobile home shall not be included in the aggregate ground area covered in any situation. Structures on non-contiguous parcels of land (including those separated by public roads, streams, etc.) shall be treated as separate units.

6. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISH-MENT - Commercial establishments include office buildings, farms operated for a profit, live stables, research centers, manufacturing plants, sales offices, stores and other similar enterprises. A swimming pool used for commercial purposes would be chargeable as a separate unit. In the case of farm houses, serving as the abode of a farmer or a farm manager, the structure would be classified in the appropriate category of residence. Structures on non-contiguous parcels of land (including those separated by public roads, streams, etc.) shall be treated as separate units.

7. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE -
Class 8 or 9 - $50.00

8. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE -
Class 10 - $100.00

9. CONDOMINIUMS - Each unit
$100.00

10. TOWN HOUSES - Each unit
$100.00

11. APARTMENTS - Each unit $50.00

12. SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE -
Class 10 - $100.00

13. MOBILE HOMES - Each unit
$25.00

14. OUTBUILDINGS, each such structure, either in mobile home parks or owned by owners of individual mobile homes or which represent the only structure on otherwise unoccupied land - $10.00

15. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISH-
MENTS, CHURCHES, AND OTHER NON-
PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - Less than 35 feet to the highest extremity
above ground level - per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .02

16. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISH-MENTS AND NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - From 35 feet to 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level - per square foot
of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100.00) - .01

17. COMMERCIAL ESTABLISH-
MENTS, CHURCHES, AND OTHER NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATIONS, other than schools and churches - More than 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level (excluding in the case of churches, the steeple), per square foot of ground area covered (Minimum charge $100) - .20

18. SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES with no structures above 60 feet to the highest extremity above ground level (excluding in the case of churches, the steeple), per square foot of ground area covered for structures devoted to public use (Minimum charge $100.00) - .01

19. Should the district be related to a lower classification the single family, mobile home, condominium or town house charge applicable to such lower classification will be $10 higher than Class 7 for each lower step in the classification scale.

D. PRORATED CHARGES:

IN MEMORY

In Memory of Lake Harris
Son its been six long and painful years since you went home to be with Jesus. We miss you today as much as ever. Lake you were like a big field full of daisies. Like to wild birds singing their beautiful songs. Like the breath and scent of warm pine trees. Like bright beautiful butterflies flying around. Like the green leaves in the spring. Like the pretty colored leaves in the fall. As amazing as the snow and ice in the winter. You were a blessing to everyone around you. A friend who cared for all. You were a son sent to us for a few precious years. You shared a million blessings with us all. You were what living was all about. Oh how we miss the little things you did every day. Son we love you and we miss you so. You are such a great loss to us all. Love you son.

Voter list update to begin Tuesday

The voter re-identification program in Shelby County will begin on election day, next Tuesday.

Cards will be available at the polls for voters to fill out and mail to the registrars.

Every registered voter must re-identify within the coming year if his or her name is to remain on the list of qualified voters.

Purpose of the program is to purge the list of names of persons who have moved out of the county or who have died.

Doris Turner, chairman of the county board of registrars, said cards will also be available at the polls at the November general election. After that, the cards will be available at banks and post offices for persons who may have failed to get them at the polls.

In addition, re-identification can be done by coming to the courthouse or calling 669-9396 between the hours of 9 and 4 on weekdays.

Voters who vote in the Democratic primary Tuesday will find 16 names on the ballot. They will have three choices for county commissioner from district 1: J.V. Jones, James E. "Jake" Morris and Edgar L. Vick.

Two are running for the district 3 seat: J.E. "Ned" Bearden and James L. "Jim" King.

Beat 17 voters will find two more names, Douglas Bunn and Jim Wood, who are running for constable.

Harry Lyon is trying to unseat Patti M. Smith in the race for county district judge.

The U. S. Senate race has drawn Democrats Jim Folsom, Jr., Donald Stewart, Mrs. Frank Stewart and Finis St. John.

Voters will have five candidates to choose from for president of the PSC: Billy J. Camp, Tom Davis, Elmer Dill, Gil Kendrick and Gene Thrasher.

Republicans will find seven names on their ballot. For the county commission district 3 seat, Jim Busbin and Donald Murphy are running.

Three are seeking a seat in the U.S. Congress: Jim Bacon, Fulton Gray and Robert Shores.

A race that has drawn wide interest is for the U.S. Senate, where Jeremiah Denton is running against Armistead Selden, a former U.S. Congressman who represented Shelby County for 14 years in the House.

Other issues on the ballot include the proposal to create the position of chairman of the county commission by splitting duties of the probate judge; two statewide amendments, and the special fire district vote for Beat 12, box 1,3 and 4 voters only.

Off with a roar

Like this Briarwood Lion roaring out of the backfield, the 1980 football season in Shelby County will be off and running by 7:31 tonight when Calera tackles Montevallo at Orr Park, and Thompson journeys to Jemison in search of scalps. For the predicted outcome of these games and the action on tap for Friday night, see what the guest football forecasters have to say on page 15 of the Reporter. (Photo by Moore)

Calera Hi principal dies in auto crash

Rounding a curve on County Road 12 Friday night, Calera High School Principal Ricky Cairns and another Calera man, Reporter features

special sections

This week's Shelby County Reporter has two special sections as integral parts of the newspaper.

The Shelby County Fair is the subject of one Reporter tabloid and football is the subject of the other.

The Fair section describes the events that will take place during the annual week-long fair held in Columbiana in September.

The football section goes into detail about Shelby County teams whose first games will be played this week.

The staff hopes the Reporter's readers will enjoy this double treat.

Tommie Cost, met head on.

Both drivers were killed in the crash which occurred at approximately 8:45 p.m.

Cost was reported to have been in the wrong lane since the point of impact was in the southbound lane.

His station wagon was on the road when rescue workers arrived, and Cairns' small pickup was in the ditch.

It took members of the Calera Rescue unit over an hour to extract both men from the wreckage.

The Calera principal had been the host for the annual teachers institute at his school that morning.

Shortly before the wreck, he had stopped at the Alabaster home of Thompson High School Principal Allen Fulton who was celebrating his birthday.

Cairns and his family lived in Southern Hills Subdivision, just off County Road 12 which is also called Smokey Road.

The wreck occurred just over a mile from Hwy. 119.

Last meeting

Calera High School Principal Ricky Cairns (l), who was killed in an automobile accident Friday evening, was the host at a teachers institute that morning. Columbiana debates value of city library

Does the city receive enough benefit from the library to warrant what it costs?

That was what one member of the Columbiana Council wondered Thursday when a request for $600 was read.

After a heated discussion, the panel finally voted 3-1 to provide the funds.

According to Library Board Chairman, Sue Phillips, the money is needed to carry the library through until the next fiscal year.

In her letter, Phillips explained that unexpected expenses, such as the increased cost of electricity, has caused the library to come up short.

Mayor Bob Bolton reminded the panel that the city had contributed $18,000 to the library during the past year.

And Councilman Paul Smith pointed out that although the city library occupies only one fourth of the building, the city pays half of the expenses.

Another member of the panel noted that a supporter of the athletic program at Shelby County High School had been turned down at the last meeting when he asked for $2,600.

Bill Henke had asked for the funds to be given half this year and the remainder next year, so a pitching machine could be purchased for the baseball team.

Educators get ready to begin school year

"It's amazing to me, all you've had with the little help you've had from the state."

That was the compliment paid to the Shelby County School System by State Board of Education member Victor Poole Friday.

He was one of the guests who spoke to teachers and support personnel at the institute held prior to the opening of school each year.

Most of the teachers in the system were present in Calera High School's auditorium to participate in the opening program of the day.

During remarks by Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, the teachers showed approval by loud clapping on two occasions.

The first round of applause came when the superintendent commented on the 16% pay raise teachers are scheduled to receive.

"It's badly overdue and it's still not enough," Knowles declared.

There was also agreement when Knowles said that when state funds fall below an acceptable level, "we should close the schools."

He reminded the group that proration had been responsible for a $800,000 loss in state funds during the past two years.

And this year, a 10% bite out of state funds has been forecast, the superintendent reported.

Although things look grim on the educational front, Poole was optimistic in his outlook.

"We'll prevail because of you," he told the teachers.

And he commented on the institute being the best one he'd been to in 25 years. Mentioning the group singing during the program, Poole confessed that he couldn't remember the last time "we stood to sing patriotic songs."

The main speaker for the occasion was Dr. Robert T. Baggott, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Opelika.

The underlying theme of his humorous talk was to "Listen to your roots."

He told the audience those roots were "in God, in your best self, and in other people."

During the session, Board of Education Chairman Dr. Elaine Hughes made her farewell remarks. Since she has recently moved over the county line into Bibb County, Hughes is giving up her post.

Morris seeks 2nd term on county commission

James E. "Jake" Morris is seeking re-election to the Shelby County Commission.

Morris has served for the past four years, representing District 1.

JAMES E. "JAKE" MORRIS

Born and raised in Shelby County, he was on the Wilsonville city council for 8 years, and was mayor for 8 years.

He is a member of the county Democratic Executive Committee, a member of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission, is on the advisory board of Nunnally State Technical Institute and on the state election law commission.

He is a longtime member of the board of stewards of the United Methodist Church of Wilsonville and chaired the building committee. He and his wife Emily, have three children.

In looking to the future, Morris says he would like to see the county build a new building and improve the courthouse so the people could be served "in a modern way."

If re-elected, he vows to continue keeping a close eye on the county financial situation and expand services as money allows.

Fire claims life

Alabaster firemen found the mobile home of Bobby and Anna Louise Bivens engulfed in flames when they arrived shortly after 9 p.m. Friday. A young visitor from Montevallo, Natasha Lee, was asleep inside when the fire broke out. Her body was found on a bedroom floor after the flames had been extinguished. See story page 3. (Photo by Seaman)

School attendance program fails

A plan that school administrators had felt would boost attendance didn't pass muster when it was presented to the board of education Thursday.

One of the main objections was the fact that students could not make up points that would be deducted if they were absent more than two days.

And Board Chairman Dr. Elaine Hughes and Paul Summers, a member of the panel, both complained that the system could keep a student from getting a scholarship or making the honor roll.

The plan proposed by school principals at a recent workshop was designed to give students an incentive for regular attendance by giving extra points based on five criteria.

But if any of the standards of judgment weren't met on a given day, 3 1/2 points would be deducted.

And Hughes also expressed strong sentiments against item number three on the list. She pointed out that determining class participation every day called for a subjective judgment on the part of the teacher.

If a student's grade were lowered by the proposed method, Hughes noted that a parent could challenge the board in court.

So it was the board's decision to turn the plan back to principals with the suggestion they revise it by seeking input from teachers and parents.

When a second plan the administrators came up with was presented by Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, the panel had no hesitancy in giving it their endorsement.

The plan for stricter enforcement of check out policies, Knowles pointed out, will relieve principals from playing Sherlock Holmes.

At the present time, he noted, they are put in the position of having to determine whether an excuse to leave school is legitimate.

Another item on the agenda which received board approval was to give more leeway in the reimbursement of in-state travel expenses for authorized school personnel.

At the present time, only $30 a day is allowed for meals and lodging.

It was proposed that payment be made on the basis of "real" expense with signed receipts to back up the claims.

Knowles contended that if the system is properly managed by administrators, there will be no additional cost.

Wilsonville PD chief criticized by council

None of the Wilsonville city council members acted like they wanted to deal with the issue, but some obviously thought they had to.

At Monday night's meeting at the town hall, some council members said chief of police Sherman Humphries should be "talked to" about the way he performs his job and about his financial obligations.

The issue began when Grace Robinson of Robinson's Grocery in Wilsonville asked the council why the city had not purchased much gas from her business. It was pointed out that the town has an agreement to purchase gas from all of the gasoline stations in the city limits on a rotating basis.

Mayor Austin Mitchell said he had talked to the policeman about the gas buying procedure but that it had evidently done no good.

Councilwoman Dot Scruggs said the problem was Chief Humphries owed Mrs. Robinson money and because of that he didn't want to face her. Other council members then pointed out that the city had already issued garnishments against Humphries.

When asked if she had attempted to get her money from the chief through a garnishment, Mrs. Robinson said she didn't want to do that but that it might be her last alternative.

Councilman William Ray pointed out to Mayor Mitchell that it was the mayor's position to speak to the policeman about matters like this. Mitchell said he had talked to Humphries many times and that he would talk to him again.

"You're going to have to do something more than talk to him like he's your son," Ray told Mitchell. Mitchell said he would and if there are no changes in the chief's actions, the council could take action.

In other action the council - discussed a request from the Tac-Can cable television company to install a microwave tower to receive television signals of cable broadcasts and to service the Wilsonville area. The council decided to study the request and discuss it at the next meeting.

- noted that the installation of a larger water line along county highway 47 would be res-

Delinquents get work

by David Armstrong

Juveniles found guilty of some crimes in Shelby County might be required to work off their sentences through a new program.

Sponsored by the Shelby County YMCA, and judge Patricia Smith and probation officer Bill Rush of the juvenile court system, the new program will make available work opportunities to young offenders.

According to Molly McGregor, executive director of the YMCA, the juvenile offenders chosen for the program will be given "responsible employment to make restitution for their crimes."

Phase one of the three part program will give the juveniles a chance to work in the YMCA on maintenance projects and as junior leaders in certain programs. After working in the "Y" for awhile, the juveniles are evaluated. If they have adequately performed their assignment at the "Y," they enter phase two of the program.

In phase two of the program, the youths are counseled about their performance and placed in a values clarification group. When they have proven to the leaders of the program that they can do satisfactory work in a job, they progress to phase three of the program.

Phase three means a job. Local businesses, mayors of towns and leaders in service organizations throughout the county have helped the program by offering jobs, Ms. McGregor said.

Juvenile court judge Patricia Smith said she hopes giving the youthful offenders a job where they can make restitution for the crime committed will teach the youngsters "accountability."

Juvenile probation officer Rush said he hopes the program can expand to the point that youths other than offenders can be helped. One group he hopes can be helped is children in need of supervision, CHINS. He said this group includes children who have run away from home or who are not controllable by their parents.

Ms. McGregor said the program's success depends on cooperation from the judicial system, police departments and the business community in the county. She said she will be available to civic organizations to explain the program and any businesses interested should contact her at the YMCA in Alabaster.

Child dies in blaze

A nighttime fire in Alabaster Friday, claimed the life of two year old Natasha Lee. When firefighters from the Alabaster Fire Department reached the mobile home on 5th Ave. SE owned by Anna Louise and Bobby Bivens, it was totally engulfed in flames.

The youngster was alone in the trailer when the fire broke out around 9 p.m. Her body was found on the floor in one of the bedrooms.

It was reported that some boys in the area had tried to get into the trailer before the fire department arrived to rescue the youngster, but were forced back by the flames.

Alabaster police and three units from AFD responded to the call which was received at 9:08 p.m.

Natasha and her mother Sandra Lee from Montevallo were visiting in the Bivens home at the time of the tragedy.

According to reports, there was no electricity in the trailer and it's thought that the candles used for lighting may have caused the fire.

The case is being investigated by the state fire marshal.

Graveside services for the young victim were held in Montevallo Monday.

RESPONSE TO THE CITIZENS OF SHELBY COUNTY

Dear Citizens of Shelby County:

My opponent in her open letter to the people of Shelby County, published in the August 21 issue of the Shelby County Reporter to you has misrepresented facts in an effort to mislead you away from the crucial issues of this District Court Judgeship race. I have run my campaign on the Christian principles of truth and honesty and set as my foremost interest to serve you, the public, above all else.

The issue of the backlog of cases in the Civil Division of District Court is an important issue. My opponent in her letter used statistics to imply there is no backlog in the Civil Division of District Court. The fact remains that there is a backlog of approximately 200 plus cases in the Civil Division of District Court. I attempted to secure a copy of the District Court Civil docket to prove to you the truth of the matter. An employee of the District Court Clerk, Mrs. Betty Carter, advised me that Judge Patti Smith had postponed hearing the Civil docket of District Court until after the election. Mrs. Carter further stated that a copy of the docket containing the number of cases making up this backlog was unavailable because it was too lengthy.

My opponent has publicly stated that she has only 6 months experience in Civil Law cases. I have approximately 3 years of experience in Civil cases. I respectfully submit to you that I have the experience necessary to eliminate the current backlog of Civil cases in District Court and insure you a speedy, fair trial.

My opponent misrepresents the facts to you to make you believe that an endorsement by the Shelby County Bar Association is unethical. There are two separate issues here, not one.

First, the Shelby County Bar Association has not endorsed my opponent for this election. There are, however, a few attorneys who are actively supporting her campaign in various ways.

The most important issue then is impartiality. I ask you, can a Judge hearing a case where there is no jury (the Judge in District Court always determines the facts of each case as well as making conclusions of law) in which one attorney before her actively supported her campaign and the other attorney did not, render a fair, impartial decision?

My opponent would have you believe that she has various endorsements for her candidacy. The fact is that not only has the Shelby County Bar Association not endorsed my opponent in this election but neither has the Fraternal Order of Police or the Shelby County Chiefs of Police Association. She has, however, been endorsed by the Alabama Democratic Conference, a black voter organization. Judge Smith failed to inform you of this endorsement in her "open" letter.

I am a strong supporter of law and order and I make no apologies for this. If elected, I will not rubber stamp any plea bargaining agreements. I will fulfill my duty to you the citizens of this county to see that a criminal case is prosecuted when the facts justify warrant.

From the beginning, I have been the people's candidate. I openly fought for your right to elect your District Court Judge while my opponent was negotiating to keep you from having an election. I have intentionally kept lawyers and public officials from campaigning for me. I have come only to you, the people, whom I seek to serve, for support. This will allow me to IMPARTIALLY look at the merits of each case and nothing else.

The integrity of the District Court Judgeship is at stake. If you have any questions concerning myself or the issues in this campaign, please call me at my home, 663-1639.

Sincerely, Harry Lyon

Election night goof-ups could be eliminated

by Marcia M. Sears
Editor Shelby County Reporter
With an important election coming next Tuesday, let us hope that the mechanics of vote tabulation will be handled better in Shelby County than they were the last time.

The election returns from Shelby County were about the last to be turned in of all the 67 counties in the state.

Having been in the courthouse for every election night vote-counting since 1967, this writer can recall some tumultuous scenes, long delays, and scrambled counts, but never one in which the system just fell apart like it did last time.

Everyone who had a part in the election process was partly to blame, except for some of the polling officials who tabulated the votes according to instructions and delivered them promptly to the courthouse.

The problem started with other polling officials, who did not have the returns in the correct envelopes, or made no preparations for getting them to the courthouse.

One or two even sent to the courthouse the papers that were supposed to be locked up in the voting machine.

Most of the confusion, however, in the last as well as other recent elections, came about because nobody really took charge of the vote counting.

In the case of primary elections, the Democrats and the Republicans have some responsibility in seeing that the votes are counted correctly. But election returns are also the responsibility of the sheriff, to some extent.

In addition, the probate judge's office has traditionally shouldered some responsibility. No one seems to know exactly where the legal responsibility lies for tabulating the 'unofficial' votes on the night of the election.

The law is clear on the 'official' count which starts on Wednesdays, the day after the election.

But everybody wants to know on Tuesday night at least a rough idea of how the vote went.

Last time some of the tabulations were stopped unfinished, around 11 p.m. when the confusion became too great. Wrong envelopes were opened, envelopes were mislaid, nobody kept track of which boxes were in.

The television set in the courtroom was announcing at 9:30 that the majority of Democrats in the state had gone for Jimmy Carter, yet at that same time, not enough votes in Shelby County had been tabulated to give any idea of the score.

In this writer's opinion, the situation could be improved with:

1. Polling officials who read their instructions, fill out the correct forms, double-check the figures, get them in the right envelopes, and get them to the courthouse promptly. If the officials cannot make the trip, (after all they have worked from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.) then police, deputies, or others empowered by the law, should do so.

2. The advance preparation of two kinds of tabulation sheets: one for counting the votes as they come in, the other for listing them by beat and box. The first count would give running totals. The second listing would show which boxes are still not counted.

3. The pre-appointment of a battery of tabulators, skilled at handling numbers and adding machines. They should preferably be people who have worked with election figures before.

4. The appointment of one person to receive the ballots, see that the 'unofficial' envelope is opened for counting and passed to the right person.

The Democratic and the Republican chairmen should figure out their legal responsibilities in this primary election, and have trained people to carry them out.

Neither party, however, would be responsible for counting such items on the ballot as the constitutional amendments or the proposal to split the probate judge's duties. Who is?

Somebody should decide in advance how the count on those items is to be handled.

This writer does not believe that anything like vote-tampering went on in the last election, or in earlier ones. But with the gross carelessness that was exhibited at all levels of the process, such a thing might become a possibility in the future if someone so inclined wanted to try it.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Yesterday I saw him in the flower bed. He didn't care if the bloom was brown or yellow or pink, busy, as he was, sipping nectar from each blossom.

I think, if I had waited, I would've met some of his pals. But things had happened that had kept me hurrying all morning. Little things I wouldn't even remember tomorrow.

The water fountain sprang a leak, a little hole no bigger than a match head, but the water had leaked out. And the jays and sparrows and redbirds and one solitary robin just stood gawking, and picking at themselves in the half shade.

Two babies fell out of a gourd on my martin pole. The sun had slipped down, between the martin pole and a tall hickory, and they scrambled too near the opening and fell out. I got them back in, pushing them through the hole, and they didn't seem too excited. But the mama martin, making a low fussing noise, let me know things weren't going too well.

Then, the next morning, I saw him in the corn patch below the house. Since a shower one day last week, the corn had tasseled and put on shoots and he was buzzing around the tassels, along with half a hundred bees.

Years ago, I guess about 60, we had caught his great grandparents in Granny's corn patch, out past the pecan trees, and tied thread on their legs and let them buzz in little circles around our heads.

But this morning, with the primroses blooming in the bed beneath a big oak, he seemed content to sit on a single blossom and let the world go by. Without noticing even, the bluejay that sat on a limb no more than ten feet about his head.

But he did notice. And he tried to fly away, getting a few feet before the bluejay nabbed him.

Life is so uncertain it scares me!

Under The Courthouse Dome

The Chevron Oil Company will not continue delivering gasoline to the Shelby County airport unless the county installs a 12,000 gallon gas tank there.

Other gasoline companies are apparently not interested in servicing the airport.

County commissioners heard civil defense director Bill Tucker explain the dilemma Monday and they opened a bid from a Tuscaloosa firm for nearly $20,000 for a tank and its installation.

Commissioner Ned Bearden suggested getting statements from other companies in writing before making such a huge expenditure.

Tucker reported that the airport sells about 10,000 gallons of gas per month. The county treasury collects 2 cents on every gallon sold.

The bid was tabled until commissioners can find out if the county is limited to dealing with Chevron.

On the subject of gas tanks, it was reported that a 2,000 gallon tank has been ordered for the sheriff's substation in north Shelby county.

Tucker also said that an FAA inspection at the airport showed that trees have grown too tall at the end of the runway and should be cut. The report found other small matters that needed attention.

The trees may be offered to loggers to cut for firewood.

The county commission passed a formal resolution Monday to bind their action of August 11 when they borrowed against next year's federal revenue sharing.

The sum borrowed is $111,203 at 7 percent interest, payable on October 31, 1980, one month after the beginning of the next fiscal year.

Questions about the county's new employee insurance arose in regard to radiologists' bills. The insurance company executive is being asked to attend the next commission meeting to explain the coverage.

Repairs to the courthouse were another major topic of discussion. Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds asked to have the floor repaired in her office. On the third floor office, (former jail) she has requested the walls be replastered and painted and other work undertaken. The commission agreed to the floor repair only.

Commissioners agreed to make the two temporary workers assigned to the office of Tax Collector Fay Quick permanent employees. DeLene Cost from that office outlined the serious space problems facing the workers, and the fact there is no space for expansion.

This led into a general discussion of space problems for all county offices during which the subject of the proposed agricultural building was again raised. Commissioners decided to ask county planner Paul Owens to make a comprehensive plan for them to study.

Ray Wade of the Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services Systems asked the county to pay telephone bills of approximately $200 per month to operate radios from emergency vehicles to hospitals.

Commissioner Harold Davenport said "I would not be opposed to putting something into the budget for it." The request is to be effective with the new budget year, beginning October 1.

The commission voted to buy five additional voting machines from a New Jersey company for $650 each. The machines are the same type as the county now uses. Payment will be deferred until January.

Board hurries tests as time runs out

"It looks as though we've painted ourselves into a corner," declared a member of Shelby County's Law Enforcement Personnel Board Wednesday night.

The panel was in a quandry about squeezing under the deadline in administering a test to an employee whose temporary status will soon expire.

And what presents a problem is the fact that the yardstick whereby applicants are to be selected hasn't been drawn up as yet.

After Elsie Carter's CETA time ran out, the board gave their stamp of approval in May to her being put on the sheriff's department staff as a fulltime employee.

But it was called to their attention that it had been unfair to other applicants not to have been given a chance at the position.

So it was decided that until the testing program was instituted, Carter be designated as a temporary employee so she could continue working as a radio dispatcher. But that four month period runs out Sept. 1.

Board chairman Teddy Brasher related that Jefferson County's Personnel Board Director Joe Curtin, who also has his own consulting firm, had agreed to set up a testing system for the county.

However, the board questioned whether it could be done in time to meet the deadline in Carter's situation.

And another problem lies in the fact that board secretary Brenda Parsons must notify all of the 67 applicants who want jobs with the sheriff's department regarding the upcoming test.

The panel agreed with Mickey Johnson that Curtin be asked to draw up one test to cover this job classification and administer it as quickly as possible.

The names of the top three applicants will then be given to the sheriff for him to make the final selection.

Although the panel didn't make a final decision on giving Curtin the go ahead to draw up the entire testing program, they indicated that his company would probably be given the contract.

His prices seemed the most reasonable, Brasher reported. The cost of setting up the testing system would be in the neighborhood of $4,000.

In order that there be no pressure on board members to let applicants see the tests in advance, the panel decided that after being drawn up, they would be kept under security in Birmingham.

Another matter brought up at Wednesday's meeting concerned the request for continuous service from jail employee Emory Weathers.

The board had ruled against him at their previous meeting and Weathers wrote that he was appealing the matter to circuit court.

However it was later learned that the corrections officer had changed his mind about filing the appeal.

One factor that entered into his decision not to pursue the matter was a 30 day limit in filing an appeal in circuit court.

Weathers was informed of the board's decision July 16 which means that his time had run out.

During the panel's discussion of the matter, Mickey Johnson noted that there was some confusion as to the date Weathers' claimed his permanent status with the department should have begun.

The jail employee had contended that he should have been given the first job which came open after he had completed his CETA training June 23, 1978.

And Johnson said there was no way that the board could determine that date.

So their decision was to set Aug. 3, 1979 as the date of permanent employment with the sheriff's department. Up until the time, records in the commission office list him as a temporary employee.

If the panel had approved an earlier date of fulltime employment for Weathers, the corrections officer would have been entitled to more vacation time and sick leave.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Mondays are always hectic, to say the least.

But I can't remember the beginning of any week starting quite the way this Monday did.

My first surprise of the day came when my car wouldn't start.

And before I could decide what I was going to do about that situation, I learned that I had the key belonging to the staff member who mans our branch office.

The thought also occurred to me that people would be waiting for me to take their picture the first thing that morning.

Although things were looking dismal, a little bright spot appeared when my son told me he had recently bought some jumper cables.

But being a nice guy and getting my car started didn't pay off for him. While engaged in his good deed, the entire back seam of his pants split open.

Now, if I was your typical homemaker, I would have whipped out my little sewing machine and had him on in his way in those britches in no time flat.

As it was, he had to grab another pair before dashing off to work. And since I still wasn't dressed when my car's engine was brought to life, I hurried in to dress while it continued to run.

Then, just as I was about out the door, the phone rang.

And a friendly voice imparted the news that unless I paid my insurance that very morning, I would be cancelled.

So grabbing my son's pants to take to the menders, and my overdue bill, I leaped into the car and took off.

Then, for some reason, my seat belt buzzer came on and wouldn't quit. So with that noise droning in my ear, I decided a quick stop at a garage would be in order.

However, nothing was accomplished by that move other than being reassured I could turn off my motor and it would start up again.

Rushing in to pay my insurance, I found I had the wrong bill. But they took my money anyway.

I had made arrangements for someone to cover for me on the picture taking assignment. But I still had to get the key to our locked out staff member.

By now I was about 20 minutes overdue at his office. And when I finally arrived, I found him at the store next door, frantically phoning around trying to find me.

My next stop was a junkyard. And trying to get some pictures of a wrecked vehicle, I managed to lose my footing while climbing off the roof of a car, making my descent a little faster than I'd planned.

I landed feet first though, so I felt a ray of hope that things were going to get brighter as the day progressed.

And I was right. Even though I was sidetracked on a story while carrying the pants to the mender and people looked at me curiously as I took notes with them draped over my arm, the rest of the day was pretty uneventful.

My car went to be repaired and its still having its insides worked on. In the meantime, I'm driving a company car with a manual shift.

So if you see a little red Chevette approaching with someone who looks like me behind the wheel, be sure and drive defensively.

Student supports football players

Letter to Editor

I disagree with the August 21st anonymous letter concerning SCHS football players who walked off the team...

Are players supposed to allow football to run their lives completely? Dedication with high school football can go only so far....

I can't really blame the players for walking out. I do believe they made their decisions individually and for good reason.

It would be great if SCHS could cooperate within itself, but it won't as long as outside influences continue to interfere with matters that don't concern them.

I'll sum up my opinions by saying that the boys who walked off the team have more people backing them every minute. Last week's article has been torn apart by many and referred to as a pack of lies.

The unknown writer... didn't even have the guts to include his name. What a shame.

Studies need more emphasis

Letter to the Editor:

Our educational priorities are somewhat confused these days. The extra-curricular activities are at the top of the list.

If only people were as interested in curriculum as they are in sports, we would have the best schools in the state. Let's get the emphasis off the football field and into the classroom where it belongs.

Blood donors asked to give again

If you've given blood to a Red Cross drive somewhere in Shelby County recently, you may get a phone call soon asking for more. Roy Jowers of Pelham, newly elected chairman of the Shelby County Red Cross branch, said local volunteers began phoning past donors Tuesday to line them up for a new weekly blood drive in Pelham. Jowers, who succeeds Bill Keller of Montevallo, said the new drives will begin this Friday. "We plan to make the phone calls Monday through Thursday each week and to collect on Fridays," he told members of the Shelby County Red Cross Board of Directors.

The new weekly drives, which will be conducted at Pelham Baptist Church, will collect blood in addition to that collected in community and industry drives. A sign along U.S. Hwy. 31 near Pelham will announce the weekly drives, he added.

Shelby County topped its annual blood drive goal this year for the first time in several years, blood drive committee chairperson Marian Cotney said. In the last fiscal year ending June 30, 2,692 pints were collected. The goal was 2,670 pints.

A large number of small drives last year and a significant increase in donations at high school drives were major contributors to the total, according to Emily Rabren, county executive secretary.

Of the county's annual total, 693 pints were collected in the high school drives. Dan Acker, who is chairman of the high school blood drive program, said that Thompson High School won the contest among county high schools with a 57 percent participation among juniors and seniors. Second was Shelby County High School with 54 percent, and third was Chelsea with 49.5 percent.

Sue Lee of Alabaster, who heads the Red Cross School Health Program at Thompson High School, received a plaque from the chapter which recognized her leadership in local school health work. Volunteers gave 1,164 hours to Thompson High School and worked with more than 3,650 "student-contacts."

Other new officers elected during the meeting were Conrad Fowler of Columbiana, vice chairman, and four new board members, Guy Burns and Becky Glass, both of Montevallo, and Gary Ray and Eddie Lary of Columbiana.

TV companies vie for contract

City fathers in Columbiana listened with interest Thursday as representatives from two cable TV companies made a pitch for a franchise.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Two Gates-- Which Will You Choose?

Among the many sermons preached by Jesus was this-- "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat: because strait is the gate and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." (Matthew 7:13,14)

First, note the contrast between the two gates. The strait gate is one of difficulty, of sacrifice, and of obedience. The wide gate, however, is so easy to enter that most people enter it.

Second, please observe that the broad way is spacious and roomy. One can travel this way without any restrictions or sacrifices.

Third, notice the confining character of the narrow way. One must conform to God's word to travel this way. It is God's way, the right way.

Fourth, note the two groups traveling the ways. Truth is not found by head-count, for the huge majority are taveling the broad way.

Fifth, please notice the two destinies of those traveling the two roads. All of the travelers of the broad way are headed for destruction in eternal misery in hell fire. Only the way of the cross leads home! The narrow way leads to eternal life.

Dear reader, you can enter through the strait gate into the narrow way by hearing God's word (Romans 10:17), believing (Hebrews 11:6), repenting of every sin (Luke 13:3), confessing Christ as God's son (Romans 10:9,10), and being baptized into Chrt for the remission of sins (Galatians 3:27; Acts 2:38).

Curtis A. Cates, Evangelist Columbiana Church of Christ Hwy. 25, ByPass

Clark Dean, representing Satellite, spoke first. He reported that the company had been given the franchise by the county commission to serve the unincorporated areas of the county.

His company's monthly subscription cost for twenty channels, he told the panel, would be $4. And those who signed up for the service within the first 30 days, he went on to say, would get their installation free of charge.

If his company was granted the franchise, Dean said that preliminary engineering studies to determine the location of an earth terminal would be done within 30 days.

The device, to pull the picture off the satellite, would be put up in Columbiana, Dean reported.

He added that construction would be initiated within 45 days and be completed by March of 1981.

Questioned about the revenue the town could expect, Dean gave the same percentage as the TAC-CAN representative had at the previous meeting.

He said that it would be 3% of the gross revenue within the corporate limits of the city.

Making his second bid to get the town's business, Edward Spriggs from TAC-Can threw in a few more channels to make his offer more enticing.

He said that his company would have 35 channels available and that the system would be in operation before the end of the year.

And the promotional device of providing free installation for the first few weeks would also be offered by his company, the TAC-Can rep said.

However, the monthly charge for the basic service in his proposal came to $7.50.

Because the microwave tower that would be used for transmitting is already available in Atlanta, it was reported that TAC-CAN is able to provide service faster than most companies.

Both cable company representatives admitted that because lines are mounted on power poles and telephone poles, agreements with the utilities to use the poles often caused a holdup in service.

City attorney Sonny Conwill, who was present at the meeting, was instructed to study both contracts and to make a recommendation on which should be accepted.

Candidates endorsed

The Shelby County Chapter of the Alabama Democratic Conference (ADA) has endorsed a set of candidates who are running in the September 2 election.

According to George Dailey, chairman of the chapter, the following endorsements were made: Patti Smith for district judge; Jake Morris for district 1 commissioner; and Jim King for district 3 commissioner.

The group also backs splitting the duties of the probate judge to create a new position of chairman of the county commission.

Deadline changed

Because next Monday is Labor Day, the Reporter deadline for classified advertisements will be moved up to noon on Monday.

Late shots lead to lengthy lines

The Shelby County Health Department has been faced with a problem the last few weeks.

With county schools opening this week and the state's new immunization law in effect, the department has been literally overrun with school children who have not met the new requirements.

First day

Shelby County youngsters settled in for the new school term Tuesday. And most of them seemed eager to be back in school again. Students in Mrs. Ann Rochester's second grade at Montevallo Elementary School didn't waste any time getting to work.

Driver joins friend in ditch

As Andrew James Shirley, III neared the bottom of the hill below Pelham High School he probably was not expecting to see his friends' car flipped over at the intersection of Hwys. 105 and 261.

The 19 year old Bessemer man pulled off the road to see what had happened. But before his 1980 Camaro came to a stop, the right wheels of the car fell into a ditch, flipping it over on its roof.

The two single-car accidents occurred about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, within 60 seconds of each other.

Richard Fant Taylor, 16, driver of the first vehicle, a 1980 2-door Chevrolet, apparently lost control of the car while driving down the hill, according to investigating Pelham police officer Bill Pinson. Of the four people in that car, all of Bessemer, two, Taylor and Lynn Nivens, 17, were taken to Lloyd Noland Hospital and later released.

Shirley, and the two passengers in his car, Benjie Scalise, 20 and Cindy Nivens, 16, all of Bessemer, were also taken to Lloyd Noland and later released.

The two car loads of people had come to Pelham as a group to go swimming earlier that day, officer Pinson said.

According to Wylodine Hill of the county education department, parents of students were told about the new law at least six months ago but many have waited until the last moment to act.

She said the new law requires all students, kindergarten through twelfth grade, to have a certificate of immunization, or a statement from their doctor saying the child's health doesn't permit immunization or a statement that it is against the religious beliefs of the family to take immunizations.

Officials at the health department said lines of students and parents have been forming outside the clinic for the last few weeks. They said they expect another long line today (Thursday), because it is the first day since the opening of school that immunizations will be given at the clinic.

Mrs. Hill said all students, immunized or not, are expected to attend classes. She said that the students who have not been immunized will not be "officially" enrolled until they present their certificate.

YOUR VOTE on Tuesday, September 2nd can make a BIG DIFFERENCE!

VOTE FOR JIM KING

Shelby County Commissioner

NEW LEADERSHIP can make Shelby County a better place to live!

JIM KING is committed to:

Honest, open, efficient and effective county government.

Christian principles which guide his personal, business and public life.

Establishing a better financial policy for Shelby County government that will streamline revenue collection and buy more for our tax dollars.

Bringing in new industries compatible with Shelby County that will provide more money and jobs for Shelby County citizens.

Working for better highways, better schools, better law enforcement and more local control of our resources and our lives.

Issues like these challenge our county government:

- County-wide water system.
- County-wide road improvement plan.
- County-wide support for senior citizens.
- County-wide support for youth programs.
- County-wide support for education.
- County-wide support for law enforcement.
- County-wide Emergency & Medical Services.
- County-wide Planning.
- County-wide Unity.
- Improved Court House Facilities.

JIM KING KNOWS SHELBY COUNTY PEOPLE—

He has lived in Shelby County all his life. He has volunteered his time and money working for better schools, better county services, better youth programs and better government.

JIM KING can BRIDGE THE GAP between long-time residents and newcomers to Shelby County. A united county can solve problems and seize opportunities to build a better life for all our residents.

JIM KING has the KNOWLEDGE and EXPERIENCE to formulate a sound fiscal policy for our county. He is a licensed Public Accountant and tax consultant experienced in budgeting, accounting procedures and financial management.

JIM KING will LISTEN to YOU, weigh the facts and ACT to meet the needs of all our Shelby County families.

Jim King was born in Pelham in 1935 and attended Shelby County public schools. He earned a B.S. Degree in Business Administration with a major in accounting at the University of Montevallo.

Jim married Rose Marie Stewart, also a native of Shelby County, and they live near Helena with their five children.

After serving 4 years in the U.S. Navy, Jim worked for the U.S. Treasury for 17 years, retiring in 1979. He is now self-employed in Pelham as a licensed Public Accountant and Tax Consultant.

Jim and his family are active members of the Helena Baptist Church. He has served in leadership positions for 22 years as a deacon, Sunday School Director and Sunday School Teacher.

Jim, Rose Marie, Steve, Mike, Kathy, Chris, Lara.

A concerned parent, Jim is Chairman of the Pelham High School Trustees and Co-Chairman of the Shelby County Educational Committee. He is also serving as Vice President of the Cahaba Valley Little League Association and as a member of the Shelby County YMCA Board of Directors.

Other offices have included: Legislative Committee Chairman working for better schools, Executive Vice President of the National Treasury Employees Union, past officer of the Civitans and President of a local chapter of the Toastmasters International.

Jim King has the kind of experience and financial background so urgently needed on the Shelby County Commission.

MRS. THOMAS BUTCHER
...the former Gail Hardage

Garden ceremony unites couple

Miss Gail Hardage of Birmingham became the bride of Thomas E. Butcher of Pelham on July 26.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hardage.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lasman J. Butcher of Pelham.

The garden wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. David A. Larson in Birmingham.

Kelly Mayhan served as maid of honor. The groom's father was best man and Mark Rogers of Montgomery was groomsman.

The couple will reside in Lafayette.

Sorority opens doors to prospective members

Epsilon Rho of Beta Sigma Phi held its August meeting at the home of Toni Grossman. The guests were Diane Grillo, Linda Bazemore and Babs Daniel.

The meeting was open to prospective members and was designed to give the guests an idea of what Beta Sigma Phi is. Each committee chairman outlined plans and purposes for the year.

A social hour was held afterward and an informal program on the State convention held in June was given by Jeanette Lackey and Toulia Greenwood.

The white elephant was won by Linda Bazemore.

Those present were Toulia Greenwood, Toni Grossman, Jeanette Lackey, Susan Bayne, Sarah Sides, Linda Williams and Sue McConnell.

Plans are being made by the sorority for an old fashioned carnival to be held September 20 from 10 to 4 at the Siluria Depot in Alabaster. There will be games, races, space bounce and much more. Tables will be available for individuals to set up their arts and crafts. Call 663-3873 or 663-4604 for more information.

Tot gets lesson in sharing

Little Jennifer Wilson, age 3, was trying to find a way to keep her candy and eat it too the other day.

Her brother, Allen, age 8, asked her for a bite, and her great grandmother, Myrtle Booth of Rt. 4, Montevallo, said she should share.

At this point Jennifer rolled her eyes heavenward and said, "Dear Lord, will you please tell ma (her name for Mrs. Booth) that when you don't have but a little bitty piece of candy, you're not supposed to share."

In a minute she looked back at Mrs. Booth and asked, "Have you got the answer yet?"

Whereupon Mrs. Booth said, "No, but if He would answer me, He would say if you have a little piece you should share a little, and if you have a big piece you should share a big part of it."

The disappointed Jennifer sighed, "Oh, is that what you're supposed to do!" Then she broke off a piece and gave it to her brother.

Chapter plans year

The Alpha Nu Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met at Elvin Hill Elementary School on August 18, for a summer fest workshop. The theme of the workshop was "Designing Quality Living". Each committee discussed plans for the coming year. Committee reports will be given at the October regular meeting.

Officers for the coming year are: Mrs. Ann McGaughy, president; Mrs. Tommie Harrison, first vice president; Mrs. Anne Hamilton, second vice president; Mrs. Emily Pendleton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ann McCulley, recording secretary; Mrs. Wylodean Hill, treasurer; Mrs. Rebecca McGaughy, parliamentarian.

KAREN LEIGH GUTHRIE

Nurse graduates

Miss Karen Leigh Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian H. Guthrie of Montevallo has completed the RN program at Samford University and graduated August 16 with an Associate of Science Degree in Nursing.

Miss Guthrie is a 1974 graduate of Montevallo High School. She will be employed in her new position at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Midshipman sails

Midshipman Scott C. Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walt Moody of Columbiana and Helen Moody of Tuscaloosa, left August 18 on an extended tour aboard the Nuclear Submarine, U.S.S. Tinosa. Moody is attending Auburn University on an R.O.T.C. scholarship.

Student makes A's

Patricia Binion of Montevallo is on the dean's list at the University of Alabama for the summer quarter where her grades were all A's.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Binion, Jr.

Family reunites

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Falkner III in Columbiana was the setting for the annual reunion of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Falkner's children and their descendants.

The weather was perfect for the outdoor gathering among the trees in the spacious back yard.

Present were the 7 living children: Ethel F. Sewell and Donald Falkner of Birmingham; Vernie F. Acker of Alabaster; Curtis J. Falkner, Jay Falkner, Dessel F. White, and Fay F. Quick of Columbiana.

After a bountiful picnic lunch, swimming, games and good fellowship were enjoyed by the 84 present for the happy occasion.

Hostess entertains

Mrs. R.F. Walters was hostess at her home in Alabaster last Wednesday at a spend-the-day party.

Attending were Elizabeth Thompson, May Spain, Annie Myrtle Fitzgerald, Lois Hurst and Irene Crawford. They each brought a covered dish and had a good time reminiscing and talking over old times and new.

Earlier in the week, Mrs. Walters entertained Tally Imsend of Mobile, Ruth Falcone of New Orleans and Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Fortner of Wetumpka, who visited while passing through Alabaster.

Attention Shelby County Taxpayers!

Before you vote on September 2nd.

1. Do you want a split in the office of Probate Judge and the County Commission Chairman?
2. Is there really a need for this?
3. Can we afford it?
4. Will we get better representation from a split?
5. Will it help solve any of the needs the county has now?

We think the answer to all these questions is NO.

Think about it.

1. Will a split in the office just create another political office?
2. Do we need other personnel in other areas more?
3. Will the new position proposed to be created add another burden to an already overburdened County Budget?
4. Can one qualified person continue to handle both responsibilities?
5. Will it take money from the budget that could be better used elsewhere?

We think the answer to all these questions is YES!

Think about it.

Near the turn of the century the original Calera Baptist Church building burned. It was then that Deacon H.T. Brown cut the lumber to rebuild that building. In the latter part of his life Deacon Brown began to lose his hearing. When asked why he continued attending church he leaned back smiled and said, 'Why Brother, I just want to show whose side I'm on!'

Such has been the spirit since 1877 at Calera Baptist Church when it began with four members.

Now with over 900 members the Rev. Mack McCollum is planning to build again. Kick off Sunday for the sanctuary building fund has been designated September 7.

While their parents vacationed in Panama City, Christi, Mark and Scott Dennis had a ball. First stop for the children was a visit to grandparents Dick and Hazel Dennis of Pelham. After several days of Nanny's home baked cookies and very special treatment from Granddaddy the children were off to Aunt Willie Mae Syder's also of Pelham, for a swimming party. Then Ann Pool and cousins Tracy and Richard Payne treated the youngsters to hamburgers and ice cream. Grandmother Dorothy Chapman's in Helena was the next stop for them. As always the children enjoyed playing with the toys that this talented grandmother makes. According to both grandmother's Christi kept their phones buzzing while she chatted to her friend Chanda Woods of Alabaster.

CHARLES L. HARRELL

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell of Siluria announce the arrival of a son, Charles Lawson Harrell, 8 pounds, 5 1/2 ounces.

He was born August 19 at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

BENJAMIN LOVELADY

Benjamin Baker Lovelady was born Aug. 20 at Baptist Medical Center Montclair.

The 7 lb. 11 oz. baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Lovelady of Montevallo.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Baker of Montevallo and Mrs. Edith Lovelady of Birmingham.

Great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Orin Eddings of Montevallo.

SAMUEL EDWARD WARD, JR.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Edward Ward are parents of a son, Samuel Edward Ward, Jr., born on August 9 at University Hospital. His weight was 5 pounds, 3 ounces.

His mother is the former Teresa Bennett. The family lives in Wilsonville.

His grandparents are Jeanie Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Robershaw, all of Columbiana.

(Jim and Sue Dennis) returned home to Alabaster. When asked where their parents went the children answered "Oh they went off to Florida but we went on vacation."

After attending a vocational teachers workshop in Montgomery, Evan and Linda Major and their children drove south. Stopping off in Bay Minette the Majors visited with Maury and Bessy Lou Wilson and their nine month old daughter Maura.

Sightseeing filled the rest of their trip as the family saw the Mobile City Museum, Fort Cadie and the fire Museum of Mobile. According to Melonie and Fred Major the best part of the trip was a tour of the U.S.S. Alabama in Mobile Bay. The Majors returned to their Columbiana home last Saturday.

Last weekend Ray and Suzie Payne were made welcome to Columbiana at an informal get acquainted party. The occasion was hosted by Erkin and Lois Bentley. The Paynes came from Dothan. Ray will teach at the Columbiana Middle School and Shelby County High School. Welcome to Shelby County, Ray and Suzie!

This summer if I wanted to get a smile out of my youngest daughter all I had to say was 'I saw Mrs. Davis today.'

Jamie met Lisa Davis when she registered for school last spring. Since then Mrs. Davis had been up there somewhere between Wonderwoman and Spiderman.

I remember last year the hero worship of my girls were their kindergarten teachers. It seemed if the teacher says it, it must be true. However I became suspicious when I heard that the teacher said Jennifer, really should stay up past bedtime to watch Mork from Ork.

I'm looking forward to this year when homework begins. I expect to be elevated in my daughters' eyes. Oh, maybe not as high as Spiderman, but then, who knows? Until next week I'll be seeing you 'around the county.'

Honorary tea

Retired members of the Extension Service were guests at last's week tea which honored Marion Cotney. Pictured with the guest of honor are: Polly Morris, "Buck" Clark and A.A. Lauderdale.

Extension agent lauded for dedicated service

You would think that anyone who had devoted 41 years to a job would begin their retirement with a long, relaxing vacation.

However, just the opposite is true with Extension Agent Marian Cotney.

She's now putting in longer hours than ever before trying to sort out the items she's accumulated over the years.

A tongue in cheek tribute to the longtime employee of the extension service compared her decisions on whether to save or throw away to Russian roulette.

The humorous paper was read by Polly Morris, a former secretary in the extension office, during a tea in Cotney's honor Thursday.

The event was held at the First United Methodist Church in Columbiana, where she is a member.

For their going away gift, members of the Extension Family and the Farm Bureau presented the retiring agent with a set of matched luggage.

As he presented a plaque of appreciation from the extension service and central administration at Auburn, District Agent Coordinator Ralph Sherer said that he viewed Cotney's departure with mixed emotions.

"The excellent program you have here shows the dedication and hard work she has put in," Sherer declared.

Auburn's president, Handley Funderburk also sent a certificate which was given to Cotney, expressing the school's appreciation for her services.

And a personal letter from the AU president went along with the document which praised Cotney for "a job well done."

Best wishes for an enjoyable retirement were extended by Eleanor Tanner, District Agent for Home Economics. But she added that Cotney would be sorely missed.

In addition to Morris, other retired extension workers who attended the tea in Cotney's honor were: A. A. Lauderdale and "Buck" Clark.

The tribute which Morris read concluded with the suggestion that a rummage sale might be held to dispose of the accumulated items the extension agent had hoarded over the years.

"And the proceeds could be used," the writer went on to say, "to expand the second floor of the courthouse for the Home Demonstration Department."

It was pointed out that this would be a fitting memorial to "a lady who spent many unpaid hours of labor and love to make Shelby County a better, more beautiful and healthier place to live than any other county in the USA."

Banker promoted

A veteran Columbiana banker has been named business development officer of Shelby Bank's Columbiana office.

Announcement of Hylott L. Armstrong, Jr.'s appointment is being made this week by bank president Ken Kirkland.

A native of Shelby and valedictorian of the class of 1954 at Shelby County High School, Armstrong has been in the banking business for the past 26 years. He is a graduate of the School of Banking of the South at Louisiana State University and has completed numerous American Institute of Banking courses.

Armstrong is a three year veteran of the U.S. Army. He served in Germany with the Second and Twenty-fourth Infantry divisions.

Church group gathers for its 100th year

The centennial celebration of the National Baptist Convention, U.S.A., Inc. will be held September 9 through 14 at the Civic Center in Birmingham. An attendance of 25,000 is expected.

More than 20 National Baptist Churches from Shelby County will participate in the convention, according to Rev. M.L. Copeland, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Calera and Corresponding Secretary of the Shelby Springs Association.

This year's theme, "A century with Christ," will emphasize the constructive work of the past and the goals of the future. The convention is returning to Alabama because of the founding in Montgomery in 1880.

For more than two and one-half decades Dr. Joseph H. Jackson, Chicago, president, has guided the 6.3 million members, the largest Negro organization in the world.

During these years his prophecies on civil disobedience, ballots for progress and international relations have become history, according to a long time staff representative.

The establishment of the Million Dollar Miracle Fund in 1976 conveys Dr. Jackson's philosophy of creating a sound financial foundation. Assistance from this fund for scholarships will be announced at the convention.

Selma University is one of six schools nation-wide receiving support from the funds. The program and an additional fund-raising campaign would encourage denominational schools to be independent of federal government support.

Copeland said the following churches in Shelby County will be represented at the convention: Baker Grove Baptist of Vincent, Everdale Baptist of Montevallo, Epibeth Baptist of Aldrich, First Baptist of Wilsonville, Galilee Baptist of Saginaw, Green Chapel Baptist of Montevallo, Liberty Baptist of Alabaster, Macedonia Baptist of Columbiana, Scott Grove of Vincent, Star of Bethlehem of Wilsonville, Mt. Sinai, Shiloh, Faith, and Pilgrim Rest, all of Montevallo; New Hope Moriah Baptist of Calera, Mt. Olive of Harpersville, Mt. Pleasant Baptist of Helena, First Baptist of Calera, Providence Baptist of Shelby, Union Baptist of Columbiana, New Elam Baptist of Helena and Mt. Olive Baptist of Alabaster.

Mental health holds open meet

The Chilton-Shelby Mental Health Center invites the public to attend the annual board meeting Wed., Sept. 10, at 3 p.m.

The board will listen to the public's suggestions for improving the center's programs.

The hearing will be held at the center's office, just off Hwy. 31 south in Calera.

GOD CONTROLS US

GOD CONTROLS OUR LIVES only if we want him to do so. He will not overrule our will or our choices. He will not impose his will upon us. If he did no one would be lost. (2 Peter 3:9).

GOD HAS LIMITED his power. He does not arbitrarily control us, but he does offer to us the opportunity to accept or reject his control. When we do accept God's control, it is not the control of direct miraculous intervention, but the control accomplished by our obedience to God's word, as it applies to us. (Luke 8:11,15; James 1:21-25).

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST is God's power to save. (Rom. 1:16,17). Whether we believe the evidence and obey the commandments is our decision to make.

GOD HAS MADE US responsible beings, and we cannot shift the responsibility to him, Christ, the Holy Spirit or to anyone else. "Submit yourselves therefore unto God... Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you." (James 4:7,8).

DID YOU KNOW?

Your color TV set exposes you to about 1,000 times more radiation than a nuclear power plant.

A color TV set exposes you to about 1 millirem (a unit of radiation measurement) per year. One coast-to-coast jet flight, about 5 millirems. One chest X-Ray, about 50 millirems. And a nuclear power plant, only about 0.001 millirem per year. Small wonder then, that nuclear power plants rank at the bottom of any list when it comes to sources of radiation exposure. And at the top when it comes to clean, safe, efficient energy. That's a fact that you should be exposed to.

What's a 'substantial penalty for early withdrawal'?

Do you lose your freedom... or your house, car and kids... or do you have to mow the lawn at your nearest United Federal office?

The answer: none of the above.

A 'substantial penalty' means not receiving some of the interest a Certificate of Deposit (CD) would have earned had the original deposit (principal) remained untouched for the full term of the CD.

Generally, this could amount to three to six months' interest depending on the length of time of the CD and the amount of principal withdrawn.

You never lose any of the money you originally deposited (principal).

This penalty for early withdrawal of any principal from a CD is a federal regulation which applies to all banks and savings and loan associations.

But a big difference at United Federal is our savings consultants. They can explain all of the facts on the many savings plans available today. In plain talk. Visit with our savings consultants soon. You'll enjoy 'substantial benefits' by saving with the professionals at United Federal.

Golf lessons anyone?

Many frustrated golfers walk long and lonely fairways all their lives, stroking away in hopes of sinking the ever elusive hole-in-one.

Eight-year-old Michael Knight is not one of those frustrated golfers.

Tuesday, August 19, the youngster swung into a tee shot with his number 2 wood, driving it some 75 yards in the air. The ball hit, bounced a few times, rolled onto and across the green, and said, "plop!"

After playing golf less than two years, young Knight had sunk his first hole-in-one.

"I just hit it and it came down and bounced up on the green and rolled," Michael told the Reporter. "My dad started yelling that I had a hole-in-one. I ran down there. I thought my dad was tricking me. I thought it had gone past the hole.

"Then I looked down and there it was," he said, his shy grin growing bigger than a sandtrap.

"I don't think his feet touched the ground the whole way," said Michael's playing partner, coach and "dad". "I've never seen anyone so excited!"

Young Knight has a slightly different account of who got the most excited. "Dad was more excited than me."

But who can blame dad?

The historic event occurred on the Oak Grove par three course in Homewood. The hole-in-one came on the third hole. Jelly Fowler and C.L. Thornton signed Michael's scorecard as witnesses.

The youngster's score of 38 for nine holes was further enhanced on the fourth hole when his ball hit the flag and fell in for a par shot.

When the father and son twosome returned to their home in the Shadow Brook subdivision in North Shelby County, mother Martha Knight said of her son, "Well, I see Jack Nicklaus has moved into our house."

Although the young Knight is apparently already learning the ropes of golf, he pointed out that soccer is his main sport.

A few more holes-in-one, however, just might change his mind.

Hole-in-one smile

If Michael Knight is smiling, it's little wonder. The eight-year-old sank a hole-in-one last week at Oak Grove golf course. That's right, eight years old.

Calera racer wins big "Unbelievable!"

That's the way Waymond Stricklin, Jr. described the way he felt after claiming a big weekend worth of wins on the tracks in Birmingham and Montgomery.

Running his 306 c.i. '72 Nova to near perfection at Birmingham International Raceway Friday night, the 19 year old Calera driver won both his heat and the 15 lap limited sportsman feature race which followed.

Averaging 100 mph, Stricklin said nobody even ran close with him.

Fired by the win, he packed his crew and 600 hp Camaro to Montgomery International Raceway to play with the big boys in the modified sportsman class Saturday night.

The competition included names like Mike Alexander, Henry Brooks and homegrown Denny Rewis.

Stricklin said he was running neck and neck with Alexander when the ace hit engine trouble on the twelfth lap. From there on, the Shelby County upstart had clear sailing.

The event marked his first win on the half-mile MIR track in the modified feature class.

The win will no doubt help fire Stricklin and his team up for the big September 5-6 race at MIR which will draw names like Bobby and Donnie Allison and David Pearson onto the track for a 200 mile race.

Furthermore, the win should help on Labor Day at BIR when the Calera lad takes on Bubba Siner of Shelby County who currently leads in the point standings there.

Stricklin is sponsored by his father, Waymond, Sr. Making up the pit crew are Jimmy Walker, Coot Walker, Bit Wildman, Bruce Cummings and Ronnie Brasher.

SCHS adds parking fee for all home games

From now on when you park your car for a football game at Shelby County High School it's going to cost you.

SCHS Booster Club member Bob Upton explained that the minimal charge will go toward the field's lighting system. No lights, no game, right?

Thompson youth hold barbecue

Thompson Youth Football Association will hold a barbecue on Saturday, August 30.

Proceeds will go for TYF activities. Hours of the barbecue are 9-5 at Phillips Field.

11th Annual HHI

Strings sing at Vincent

They just keep getting bigger every year.

The 11th Annual Howard Hill Invitational Archery Tournament drew 362 registered bow shooters from around the state to Vincent for some fancy sharpshooting last weekend. And Sunday, adding to the twang of bowstrings in the air, was the twang of the Bluegrass Only band from Childersburg.

"It was the biggest shoot we've ever had, as far as I know," commented Creek Bowhunter President Ray Woods of Harpersville, whose club sponsors the event.

"It's getting bigger and bigger every year." Despite sounding tired from the work he and some of the club's estimated 150 members put into the tourney, Wood added, "It's getting better, too."

A total of 56 trophies was awarded Sunday, as well as 25 ribbons. And 50 people carried home doorprizes.

The tournament was also distinctive in that for the first time in its history, it had a repeat champion. Shooting in the Master's Class of the Men's Bowhunter Division, Clint Gilbert of Birmingham fired a 522 to claim first place, a feat he did once before in 1976.

But Wood points out that it wasn't just a shoot for the "old timers". A lot of trophies went to people who had only been shooting bows for a year or so, and Wood said there were a lot of new faces in the crowd.

Named in honor of famed archer, the late Howard Hill, who was born in Wilsonville and later lived in Vincent, the tournament is held every fourth weekend in August.

First, second and third place winners, respectively, were:

Beginning Cub Girls - Marcia Simmons, Sterrett, 302. Amber Wood, Harpersville, 196.

Cub Girls - Dana Thomas 528. Billie Bice, 504. Tammy Abbott, Harpersville, 496.

Golf benefit termed successful

Thirty-five golfers entered the Shelby Youth Services and Attention Home Benefit Golf Tournament held Saturday at Buxahatchee Country Club in Calera.

After some $3400 in proceeds were counted, Bob Turberville, administrator of the programs, hailed the event a tremendous success.

On top of all the money, the course was in fine condition, thanks to manager Claude Harris, and everybody had a good time, Turberville said.

Probably leading in the "good time" department were Bill Norsworthy, Sgt. Sherwood Florence, Dave Flowers and Cal Trice. Why? The foursome placed first with a team score of 18 under par, that's why.

Jim Shubert, Don Bunn, Bill Rush and Turberville, who tied the third place team with a 16 under, claimed second place with their better score on the last nine holes.

Third place went to Ken Williams, Jim Treet, Leon Davis and Vance Brown. Fourth place was claimed by Bill Allen, Joe Hubbard, Jerald Martin and B.B. White.

The proceeds from the event, which Turberville would like to see become at least an annual affair, will be used as match money with grants from the Alabama Law Enforcement Planning Agency, Tuberville explained.

Acting as hostesses for the event were member of Beta Sigma Phi service sorority from Alabaster.

Guests catch the spirit of football forecasting

by David Moore

It's a little known fact that one of the few sports both more fun and more dangerous than football is the sport of football predicting.

In an effort to share some of the fun (and danger) of predicting the outcome of high school football over the next three months, I have decided to call upon the resources of guest predictors from week to week.

What I intend to do is put these people out on the limb with me by asking and coercing them into making predictions for the upcoming games.

The predictors didn't hesitate on calling most of their shots, with the notable exception of the clash between Montevallo and Calera. They all had to stop and hem-haw over that one.

And with good reason. Eagles v. Bulldogs calls for a dip in the pocket for a quarter to flip.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow noted that if his wife didn't get after him for predicting Calera, somebody else would, for sure.

One of us is bound to get in trouble because I went with Montevallo. Whoever wins that one will surprise a lot of folks because the winner will win big.

Next week I'll remind you how this week's brave predictors fared and present a whole new list of "fearless forecasters."

Good luck, all.

Triple F Club sponsors golf tournament

The first annual "Fans For Falcons" Open Golf Tournament has been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, September 13-14, at the University of Montevallo golf course, UM Triple F Club supervisor Bob Riesener announced recently.

This golf tournament is designed to benefit the Montevallo Golf Scholarship fund and to stimulate new membership for "Fans For Falcons", the University's athletic booster club.

Entry fee for the tournament is $30.00, which includes an Awards Banquet that Sunday night at 6 p.m. in the UM cafeteria, and a 1980-81 membership in the Triple F Club. Entry fees are tax exempt if the check is payable to the University of Montevallo and is designated as a donation.

Play in the championship flight is 36 holes medal play, but the field is limited to the first 72 entrants. Entry blanks and checks must be received on or before September 11, or before the field is completed, after which a waiting list will be established until tournament day. Play begins each day at 12:30 p.m.

Riding carts are available for an additional $7.00, and practice rounds are also available prior to the tournament upon payment of greens fees.

To obtain entry blanks or further information, contact either Dr. Leon Davis, Athletic Director, or Bob Riesener, Triple F Club Supervisor, at the University of Montevallo, Station 182, Montevallo, AL 35115, or call 205/665-2521, ext. 410. You may also sign up at the UM golf course.

UM public relations acclaimed

The University of Montevallo's public relations efforts have won national recognition.

UM's government-legislative relations program, headed by Dr. Joe Brindley, assistant to the president, won one of three national awards in the Council for the Advancement of Education (CASE) "Creativity 80 Recognition Program."

An entry prepared by Bill Keller, director of information services, was one of five entries recognized in the "Public Relations Program Improvement" category of the CASE program. The entry detailed improvements in UM's internal relations.

UM was one of only two colleges or universities in the state which received awards in the 1980 CASE competition.

Brindley, a former legislator, Blount County public school teacher and coach, and official at Snead State Junior College, has directed UM's local, state and national government relations work since August, 1977. He earned his bachelor's degree at Jacksonville State University, and his M.A. and Ed. D. degrees at the University of Alabama.

Keller, former managing editor of the Sand Mountain Reporter in Albertville and reporter at the Tuscaloosa News, earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees at Alabama.

City's emergency medical service gets boost with new rescue truck

Montevallo's emergency medical services unit took another step forward Monday night when the city council voted to accept a bid from Sherman Holland Ford for the unit's second vehicle.

Delivery of the 3/4 ton truck is expected within ten days. Upon arrival it will be equipped with a customized body, two-way radios and put into service. Medical equipment will be stowed in the customized body. The new vehicle has already been registered with the State of Alabama and is designated Rescue 20. A radio equipped back-up vehicle, currently in service, is designated Rescue 21.

Two other bid openings were held Monday night. After first rejecting all bids on two police cars, it was later determined that the successful bidder is Leach Pontiac-GMC. The two new police units will be delivered in October and are of the LeMans size equipped with V-8 engines.

All bids on a trenching machine to be used by the city's water board and gas system were held for detailed study by the city clerk and the chairman of the water board.

Councilman David Nichols, who is serving as administrator of the city's newly formed emergency medical services unit, reported to council members that excellent progress and cooperation are being experienced. Nichols stated that a staff of ten EMTs provide around the clock protection. The staff includes four paramedics.

Mayor Ralph Sears read a letter addressed to Wayne Davis and Doug Ballard of Shelco Unit One, expressing regret that Shelco's proposals to the city arrived after the city had already established its own service, and therefore too late to receive consideration by the council. Ballard, who was present at Monday night's meeting, told Sears he disagreed with the letter and accused council members of doing an injustice to Shelco and to Montevallo. Sears commented that the council still considered Shelco "the greatest" and that he is deeply sorry that Ballard reacted unfavorably to the city's letter.

In other action Monday night, council members elected Agee Kelly and Phil Beasley to fill vacancies on the city's industrial development board.

Montevallo merchants are joining several University of Montevallo offices to sponsor special "Welcome Week" activities this week.

Merchants have painted colorful signs on their store windows as part of the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored activities. And tonight (Thursday) they're sponsoring a downtown sale and party.

The two-hour special sale for UM students, faculty and staff begins at 6 p.m., according to Thomas Martin of the UM Division of Student Affairs, which coordinated Welcome Week.

A dance begins at 8 p.m. in the downtown shopping center parking lot.

During fall semester registration Monday and Tuesday, representatives of the Chamber joined several campus officials to man the Welcome Week information center tent near the Student Union Building.

Tuesday night, Welcome Week continued with a rock concert and dance in front of Main Hall, the largest residence hall on campus. Wednesday night, students met for another dance, a street dance in the parking lot behind Fuller Hall, another residence hall.

Cooperating with the Chamber and the Division of Student Affairs were the Office of Alumni Affairs, Student Government Association and Residence Hall Association.

Stores will be open from 6 to 8 p.m.

Proposed Flood Elevation Determinations
AGENCY: Federal Insurance Administration, FEMA.
ACTION: Proposed Rule.
SUMMARY: Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations listed below for selected locations in the nation. These base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the flood plain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).
DATES: The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in each community.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Insurance Administration gives notice of the proposed determinations of base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations in the nation, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR 67.4 (a)). These elevations, together with the flood plain management measures required by Section 60.3 of the program regulations are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their flood plain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or Regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents, and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and their contents. The proposed base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations are:

Amendment No. 1
STATE OF ALABAMA
A PROCLAMATION
BY THE GOVERNOR
WHEREAS, the Legislature of Alabama at the Regular Session 1980 ordered an election to be held by the qualified electors of the State of Alabama upon a certain proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama, which said amendment is herein set out, and ordered that the said election be held on Tuesday, September 2, 1980, the day of the Primary Election in the year 1980; and
WHEREAS, the Primary Election in the year 1980 will be and occur on Tuesday, September 2, 1980; and
WHEREAS, the Primary Election in the year 1980 will be and occur on Tuesday, September 2, 1980; and
WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment to be given by proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election:
NOW, THEREFORE, I, Fob James, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday, the 2nd day of September, 1980, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama in the manner and form prescribed by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

The operation of bingo games for prizes or money by non-profit organizations for charitable or educational purposes shall be legal in Jefferson County, subject to the provisions of any resolution or ordinance by the county governing body or the governing bodies of the respective cities and towns, within their respective jurisdictions. The said governing bodies shall have the authority to promulgate rules and regulations for the licensing and operation of bingo games, within their respective jurisdictions, provided, however, that said governing bodies must insure compliance with the following provisions:
(a) No person under the age of 19 shall be permitted to play any game or games of bingo, nor shall any person under the age of 19 be permitted to conduct or assist in the conduct of any game of bingo;
(b) No bingo license shall be issued to any non-profit organization, unless such organization shall have been in existence for at least 24 months immediately prior to the issuance of the license;
(c) Bingo games shall be operated only on the premises owned or leased by the non-profit organization operating the bingo game. If the premises is leased, the rate of rental shall not be based on a percentage of receipts or profits resulting from the operation of bingo games;
(d) No non-profit organization shall enter into any contract with any individual, firm, association or corporation to have said individual, or entity operate bingo games or concessions on behalf of the non-profit organization, nor shall said non-profit organization pay consulting fees to any individual or entity for any services performed in relation to the operation or conduct of a bingo game;
(e) A non-profit organization shall not lend its name or allow its identity to be used by any other person or entity in the operating or advertising of a bingo game in which said non-profit organization is not directly and solely operating said bingo game;
(f) Prizes given by any non-profit organization for the playing of bingo games shall not exceed $1,000.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any bingo session or $2,000.00 in cash or gifts of equivalent value during any calendar week;
(g) No person or organization, by whatever name or composition thereof, shall take any salary, expense money or fees as remuneration for services rendered in the operation of any bingo game.
and
I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901 be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding Tuesday the 2nd day of September 1980 in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

Split bill loses

Demos elect Morris, Bearden, Smith; GOP chooses Murphy

About 5,058 Democrats and 3,168 Republicans went to the polls in Shelby County Tuesday to choose party candidates.

Voting was steady at most polling places throughout the day, but at closing time, the vote counting was delayed at a few polling places when storms cut off electricity.

In the closest contest, Shelby County's Democrats chose J. E. "Ned" Bearden as their candidate for county commission, district three over Jim King by an unofficial vote of 2,549 to 2,347. The vote was close in most beats and one box was still uncounted.

In the three-man race among the Democrats for the district one seat on the commission, Jake Morris came out the winner without a runoff over J. V. Jones and Edgar Vick. Morris received 3,117 votes; Vick had 945 and Jones had 940.

County voters turned down the opportunity to split the duties of the probate judge and create a new position on the county commission. The vote was 2,859 against the proposition to 2,199 votes for it.

The County Republican party chairman, David Bradley, announced the totals for all Republican candidates to the crowded courtroom at 10 p.m. Tuesday night. The Republicans had a combined system of reporting by telephone and by the returns brought to the courtroom, putting them well ahead of the Democratic vote counters. They brought in professional accountants and an engineer to speed up the count.

In the District 3 County Commission nomination race, Don Murphy defeated Jim Busbin 1,612 to 935.

In the Democratic contest that generated the most heat locally, Patti Smith defeated Harry Lyon for the office of District Judge of Shelby County. Mrs. Smith received 4,453 votes to Lyon's 1,133.

Ballots were brought to the courthouse by a combination of deputies and polling officials. Vandiver and Maylene boxes were among the earliest to report.

The vote increasing fees for the fire district in Beat 12 passed by a margin of 814 to 479.

Winning the constable race in Beat 17 was Doug Bunn, who defeated Jim Wood.

Despite a nonexistent county organization, Admiral Jeremtah Denton carried Shelby County without even setting foot in it during his Senate campaign.

According to Shelby County GOP chairman David Bradley, Denton profited from "moral majority" support in defeating former Congressman Armistead Selden here, en route to an apparent statewide win.

Denton also overcame the facts that Selden represented Shelby County in Congress for 16 years, had a strong organization, and personally campaigned here. Projected the winner as early as 9:10 p.m. on election night, Denton's final tally came to 1981, to 1187 for Selden.

In the race for the GOP nomination to the 7th District seat in the US House of Representatives, Jim Bacon won a plurality with 1,007 votes to 717 for Robert W. Shores and 579 for Fulton Gray.

In the statewide Democratic contest for candidates for the U.S. Senate, Donald Stewart won the highest number of Shelby County votes. The tally was: Stewart, 2,537; Jim Folsom, Jr. 1,745; Finis St. John, 761; and Mrs. Frank Stewart 228.

School enrollment stays same

As of Tuesday afternoon, 11,784 students had enrolled in Shelby County schools.

According to department of education officials, this is not a significant change from last year's enrollment. However, the officials said this was not a final

The enrollment figure came as a surprise to some because recent census figures showed a big increase in population for Shelby County.

Cairns' spirit lives on, town follows example

Everyone who knew Calera High School principal Ricky Cairns described him as an optimist.

And even though the community and school are still reeling under the blow of Cairns' death in an automobile accident two weeks ago, everyone has expressed the determination to keep his spirit of optimism alive.

At a memorial service for the principal Friday, CHS teacher Lamont Franklin, who knew Cairns as student, fellow teacher and principal, told those gathered in the auditorium, that Cairns was "optimistic about the future of the school and he translated that optimism into plans for improvement."

"The greatest tribute we can pay to his memory," Franklin declared, "is to join the pursuit of excellence, becoming active participants in reaching the goals Rick Cairns had for Calera High School and for you, its students."

Part of the resolution passed by the Calera Town Council Aug. 26 referred to the principal's ability to motivate "a winning spirit" and it noted that he "molded character in the lives of all he touched."

As an expression of their high regard for Cairns, the council agreed to name the football field in Oliver Stadium, where he both played and coached, in his honor.

The name, Rick Cairns Memorial Stadium will be given to the field in formal dedication services Sept. 26 when the Eagles play the Jemison Panthers.

An outstanding student at Calera High School, Cairns attended the University of Montevallo.

He joined the Eagle coaching staff while he was still a student at UM and after earning his BS degree he became a fulltime teacher and assistant coach at his high school alma mater.

He was head coach for several years before being named principal 18 months ago. Both in his coaching, which resulted in winning seasons and in his duties as principal, Cairns was noted for his leadership and high degree of organization.

The last two years Cairns coached, the team went to the state playoffs, and was southern state runnerup the last year.

The evidence of his energy, enthusiasm and dedication to the school, Franklin said during the memorial service, can be seen in the "expanded curriculum, the cleanliness and orderliness of the school, the beautiful landscaping and the sense of pride we feel in our school are monuments to his leadership and effort."

Others who paid tribute to Cairns at the service were: student council president Tim Loftin, who struggled with his emotions for several minutes before he was able to speak, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles and Montevallo High School head football coach Richard Gilliam.

A written tribute from Evette Pearson, which was printed in the memorial program, contained these words - "Perhaps a pessimist would say that the future of this school and this town has been altered because one good man has died, but an optimist would say that because of the dedication, influence and inspiration of one good man, we as individuals, our school, and community are better because he passed this way."

Nozzle work

Montevallo firemen battle a fire in Wilton that occurred Sunday night. The house's owner, Magdalene Northcutt, was at church with her children when the fire broke out. No one was injured in the fire, but the six-bedroom house was a total loss. Made of heart pine, it was one of the oldest houses in Wilton. (Reporter photo)

Bus wreck investigation continues

Investigations are still being made into the cause of a school bus accident last Friday in Cahaba River Estates.

Although no one was seriously injured in the single vehicle wreck. Six children who were on the bus as it finished its afternoon route, were taken to Brookwood Hospital for the treatment of minor injuries.

The accident occurred when the bus left the road at the foot of a steep hill on a sharp curve on the narrow Hwy. 271, and slid down a steep embankment. It came to rest right side up in the underbrush.

Ellie Glasscox, temporary supervisor over the county school buses, told the Reporter, "The road and the shoulder were bad and unfortunately the accident happened. We're still looking into the matter."

Glasscox would not release the driver's name, but said that he had been suspended from the job at least until the matter was settled.

On the bus at the time of the accident were Pelham High School students Karen Pennington, 14, Keith Pennington, 14, David Phillips, 15, Randall Holt, 14, Sherry Rouse, 14, and Riverchase Middle student Norma Rouse, 12.

Cahaba River Estates, located north of the Cahaba River, can be reached only from Hwy. 150 in Jefferson County.

Calera plans new station

Calera's city council voted to build a new fire station at a specially called meeting on August 26.

Low bidder for the new Calera fire hall is the R H P Construction Company. Their bid was in the amount of $201,803. Two other companies submitted bids.

Councilmen voting in favor of building the new building were: Bobby J. Phillips, Terry Snow and William Watts.

Councilmen opposed to building the building were Don DeLoach and A.V. Parmer.

Discussion centered on a question of whether or not the city had clear title to the land where the proposed building will be built. Some councilmen did not want to saddle the in coming administration with the cost of the new building. Of the five councilmen, only Watts will be a member of the new council.

The proposed building was designed by Lucas and Carr, Birmingham engineers. It will have 6,000 square feet with four bays for engines, a reception area, chief's office, conference room, kitchen, bathrooms and showers, plus storage and shop rooms.

Underwriter officers

The new slate of officers and members of the Board of Directors of the Shelby County Life Underwriters Association posed for the Reporter following a meeting at an Alabaster restaurant last week. They are: (l-r) Olga Martin, Bill Morris, board members; J.W. Barrett, past president; Don Hurt, president; Ted Driver, 2nd VP; Joel Hollon, secretary-treasurer; Gene Shirley, board member; Jim Blackerby, 1st VP; and Aaron Sherer, board member.

Underwriters discuss insurance benefits

One man who had always claimed he didn't need life insurance was right, attorney John Ferree told members of the Shelby County Life Underwriters Association Wednesday.

Ferree explained that because the man had died unexpectedly, he didn't need the money. But his wife and family certainly could have used it, Ferree noted.

Besides mentioning the consequences of not having life insurance, Ferree also spoke to the underwriters on estate planning with and without a will.

District judge Patti Smith also made a brief talk to the group. Her opponent for the office, Harry Lyon, addressed the underwriters at their last meeting.

A community awareness program was brought to the attention of members by the association's president Don Hurt.

He reminded the group that they would be visiting every school in the county again this year to explain life insurance and the role of the agent.

It was suggested by Bill Morris that students who are juniors and seniors would be interested in casualty insurance and that an agent selling that type of insurance should be included in the program.

A new facet of the project, Hurt noted, would be the distribution of literature to math, science and economics teachers.

The brochures give hints for teaching classes in these subjects, Hurt explained.

Underwriters have been talking to students in economics classes for the past six years following the recommendation of the program by the association's board of directors.

At their Sept. 24 meeting, the underwriters will hear term deposit discussed by Drennan Williams.

County lacks kindergartens

by David Armstrong

Approximately 28 percent of the five year olds in Shelby County are enrolled in public kindergarten classes this year, according to Vern Davis, deputy superintendent of education.

The 28 percent figure is based on the number of children enrolled in the first grade last year and the number of children enrolled in kindergarten classes this year, Davis said.

He said 521 children were registered for this year's kindergartens and of that number, 300 are enrolled.

The fact that only 300 of 521 who wanted to attend are enrolled has upset many parents. They say they think all eligible children should have the opportunity to attend kindergarten.

Davis says the county board of education also feels this way but with the amount of money being given the county system, only a portion of the children can attend public kindergartens.

He said the 300 who are in the classes this year were randomly selected from the 521 who registered.

When asked if there was a chance that the children in the classes could be rotated by days or semester, which would allow all of the children who enrolled for the program to take some of the classes, he said no.

Opening of school creates headaches for education board

by David Armstrong

The opening week of school in Shelby County has created some headaches for the board of education staff.

Overcrowding has been a problem at some of the schools in the county, according to Vern Davis, deputy superintendent of education, especially at Columbiana Middle and Calera Elementary.

He said the overcrowding is not necessarily a result of too many children. The problems are a result of some new programs which have been added that require more space, Davis said.

The board is asking the federal government for grants to buy "relocatable buildings" to alleviate the space situation, he said.

Another problem the board had to deal with in the first week of school was a result of the death of Calera High School principal Ricky Cairns. Davis said assistant principal William Smith is doing a good job with the school. He said Cairns had the school so well organized that there have been no real problems in the first week. Plans are not definite but Davis said an interim principal will probably be appointed to finish this year and a new, permanent principal will begin next year.

Davis said the county has 22 more regular teaching units this year than last year, three more special education teachers, and one more title one teacher.

Some of the new teaching units are a result of new programs being added to the school systems. All of the middle schools in the county this year have vocational and home arts classes; Wilsonville elementary was given a title one teacher and an aide, and a half-time physical education teacher; and Columbiana's middle and elementary schools share a music teacher. In addition, all middle schools have counseling programs.

When asked how the county system could offer the new programs while expecting proration, Davis said the new programs were required by the state board of education and the funds for them were designated.

He said proration has hurt most in the area of buildings and maintenance. The estimated $500,000 in prorated funds has kept the system from minor renovations on schools and reduced the amount given to each teacher for instructional supplies from $400 to approximately $250.

He said he hopes the legislature will soon realize the dire financial shape the school systems are in around Alabama.

ONE DAY AT A TIME

LIFE COMES TO US in small installments, one day at a time. Therefore, there must be some sense in which God expects us to live it this way. IF WE CARRY OVER yesterday's mistakes, problems and failures; and borrow from tomorrow by being anxious about what that day may bring; today's load becomes too heavy.

TAKE UP CROSS DAILY. Referring to our Christian obligation and privilege, Christ says, "If any man (person) will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily (day by day), and follow me." (Luke 9:23).

DAY'S OWN TROUBLE sufficient - Christ teaches, "Do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Let the day's own trouble be sufficient for the day." (Mt. 6:34).

RENEWED DAY BY DAY - "We do not become discouraged; but though the outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day." (2 Cor. 4:16). A VICTORIOUS LIFE is lived one day at a time. This is neither imprudence nor irresponsibility, but good sense.

Grader doesn't fit

A truck carrying a grade-all tractor to Birmingham on Interstate 65 jammed into the bridge crossing the interstate at Shelby County Hwy. 22 Tuesday morning.

The driver of the low-boy tractor-trailer truck, James Roberts of Birmingham, said he was traveling north to Birmingham at about 45 mph when he went under the bridge -- but he was slowed to 0 mph on the other side of the bridge.

The arm of the grade-all he was carrying on the truck was too high to clear the bottom of the bridge and the truck was brought to an abrupt halt.

The bridge, owned and maintained by the state highway department, had a hole torn in its side. Some of the steel reinforcement bars were broken and others were bent.

County Highway Department officials said Hwy. 22 would probably be detoured for about three days to allow the state to repair the bridge.

Roberts, who said his neck was sore and was planning to be checked at the hospital, said he had driven the truck with the grade-all from Birmingham to Calera a few days earlier and had no problems with bridges. The truck and grade-all belonged to Vulcan Materials Company of Birmingham.

Pelham hires a city prosecutor

by David Moore

If you find yourself in Pelham's city court these days, you'll find yourself before more than just the judge and the police officer who arrested you. Birmingham attorney Charlie Waldrep has been hired as prosecutor to represent Pelham in municipal court.

The Birmingham attorney was chosen over four other applicants for the position because he is from out of the area and had no clients or connections that could lead to a possible conflict of interest, according to Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway.

The mayor said the city had been considering hiring a prosecutor for some time and that Waldrep had been selected at a called meeting of the city council three weeks ago. He started work August 19.

According to Dunaway, one advantage of having a city prosecutor is that it will relieve police officers of having to present their own cases in municipal court. He added that the acquisition of Waldrep would probably be a moral booster to the police department.

The Pelham Municipal Court convenes on the first and third Tuesdays of the month and is presided over by Judge Robert Esdale. Between 50-100 cases come before each session.

Waldrep's salary as prosecutor will not exceed $300 per month. Settlement of the salary will be reached in the next few weeks as the 1981 fiscal year budget is settled.

Waldrep, a partner in the Birmingham firm of Waldrep, Stewart and Kindrick, graduated from Jacksonville State University in 1973 and Cumberland School of Law in 1976. The Birmingham native lives in Center Point.

Pelham is the first Shelby County municipality to hire a prosecutor.

Plant wins approval

by Marcia M. Sears

Smiles wreathed 100 or more faces last Friday when the go-ahead was announced for a new industry in Childersburg. Promises of new industrial and agricultural jobs for a multi-county area cheered the crowd that gathered in the Talladega County courthouse for the good news.

In ceremonies attended by dozens of state and county officials, the county commission approved a letter of intent to produce alcohol and gasohol in Childersburg.

Coosa Energy Enterprises is the name of the company which received the 99 year lease to county property on the site of the old Army Ordnance Works. The new company is a consortium of three companies: J.N. Inc. of Cody, Wyoming, Liberty Log Homes of Centerville and Stephens Wholesale Building Supply of Birmingham.

Discussions have been going on for two and a half years to try to bring this about, according to Charles Stephens, who controls the former Beaunit property and has been actively seeking other industries to make one large industrial park.

The combination of alcohol stills located on the property, the steam plant, several acres of land, good rail service and availability of water made Childersburg a very attractive location for the new enterprise, according to company spokesmen.

The letter of intent gives the new company the assurance it needed to conduct extensive engineering work. Jim Nielson, president of J.N. Inc. told the crowd of well-wishers packing the county courtroom, "It's going to take a lot of work. It will be a long term project." He noted that the public may not see anything going on for three to six months, but during that time all the details of engineering will be worked out carefully, so there will not be any surprises or delays once construction starts.

If everything goes according to plan, production of alcohol should begin within 18 months. The plant is expected to cost $80 million. It will use up to 400,000 bushels of corn or other grains per week to produce 50 million gallons of alcohol per year. The alcohol will be mixed with about 90 percent gasoline to produce 500 million gallons of gasohol per year.

It will be the first plant in the United States to make alcohol through fermentation for the production of gasohol.

The spin-off possibilities for other industries has already inspired local businessmen to make additional plans. For instance, the dried feed which will be a by-product of the industry, could be used to feed cattle or hogs, which could lead to establishing feed mills, feed lots, meat packing plants and related industries. Enthusiasm ran high Friday as various new projects were discussed by small groups at the gathering.

Valley PTO meets

The Valley Elementary 1980-81 budget will be presented for approval at the school's PTO meeting Tuesday, September 9.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria, after open house has been held for grades 1-5. During the meeting a special music program will be presented by the fifth graders.

Valley PTO officers for the year are co-presidents Jeannie Harper and Jean Allarde, programs V.P. Alberta Autrey, ways and means V.P. Emily Fulmer, secretary Jane Hampton and co-treasurers Lyn and Doug Holland.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly "Good Morning" column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbia, member of the FDIC.

They came down the shady streets, walking, I guess because each one had his dog with him. Cy Bigham and Legrant Scott and John Vance Ward. Tony Jannett and Denver Shaddix. And Scott Richards and Lawton Franklin and Dick Leonard.

It was Wednesday and they were on their way to the Club House. A house at the end of a slough, built by the folks in Pine View Village, and used every Wednesday by the men, and three times a year by the whole Village.

Years ago, when they first came to Pine View Village, they put in water works, installing a 1½ horse power pump in the slough and laying 1500 feet of pipe to the houses. I guess that's why they have always had good gardens. It's the one place I know where folks don't spend most of the summer watching the clouds and hoping for rain. Like Cy Bigham's pound and a half tomato and Clyde Aycock's beans that reached halfway to the sky.

But the Club House is what caught my eye today when I went down to spend Wednesday morning with them. Eight men, retired from their jobs, walking into the sunset of life, meeting once a week and talking man talk and eating cookies and drinking coffee.

Remembering a night when they got caught in a fog half a mile from the Village and spent the night on a pontoon boat with a wind blowing out o' Chelsea cold as an iceman's leg. And how they felt the next morning when the fog lifted and they saw the Village half a mile away.

And the guys around the table, drinking coffee and eating cookies. Legrant Scott, who pitched three years for the University of Alabama and never lost a game. Tony Jannett and Denver Shaddix, who had their own water works on a different part of the slough. Cy Bigham, who grows the biggest tomatoes in the village. Dick Leonard, who got lost in a fog in England during the war. Lawton Franklin, who does missionary work all over the village. Big John Vance Ward, big enough to wrestle an elephant. And Scott Richards, who bought most of the material wholesale while he was still working.

Just ordinary fellows, their working life behind them, having a marvelous time in a quiet little village on the sleepy Coosa River. Guys who meet every Wednesday morning in their club house where there is only one rule:

"If he's not present, don't talk about him."

Dry Valley - Montevallo annexation eyed

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Dry Valley (Highways 25 & 155):

Since Montevallo's City Council recently voted to provide services for the corporate limits only beginning February 1, 1981, this leaves those citizens in the current Police Jurisdiction without certain services. Those services to be discontinued are: (1) Montevallo Police patrol and protection, (2) Fire protection and (3) Emergency Medical Rescue. A group of concerned citizens who live on or near Highways 25 and 155 have gotten together to discuss possible annexation to Montevallo.

What events have occurred since Montevallo's City Council made this announcement? Many citizens of this area have begun to investigate the pros and cons of annexation and some have decided to ask Montevallo to annex a certain area on or near Highways 25 and 155. Petitions are now being circulated to this effect. A meeting was held on August 5, 1980 at the Fire Station to discuss this matter. On August 11, 1980 we met with the City Council. Then another meeting was held with the Planning Commission on August 21, 1980 to discuss zoning ordinances.

If we should be annexed by the city, what benefits would be derived? First we would continue to have fire protection. This would mean that our insurance rates would not be changed from a class 8 or 9 to a class 10 (no fire protection). Insurance rates would either remain the same with protection or increase considerably (from $50 to $200 annually according to coverage) with no fire protection. Second we would continue to have emergency medical rescue. Recent events -- the automobile/truck accident and heart attack victims have shown how vitally important this service is and how much we depend on it. Just imagine no longer having this service! While a house or barn can be replaced, hard though it may be, a life or limb cannot. Third, we would continue to have police protection.

Another service would be garbage pick-up which would save a possible $60 per year. Also we would then be able to vote in city elections.

What does this protection (annexation) cost? Call the County Tax Assessor's office for exact figures; but for a piece of property assessed at $30,000 with homestead exemption the additional taxes would be only $21.00. Business licenses would be full cost rather than half as is now the case since we are in the current police jurisdiction.

What restrictions or ordinances does Montevallo now have? We would be annexed as an A-1 zone. Agricultural activities would be permitted and are written in the city ordinances. Further, city permits and licensing systems are for your protection. It is a common phenomena for older people or retired people to be "fleeced" by unscrupulous repairmen and other cheats. This restriction (licensing and building permit system) would help to prevent this. The majority of home maintenance does not require permits.

If you have questions that have not been answered by this brief letter, then see or call one of the signers of this letter or the appropriate city official.

We as concerned citizens along with representatives of the City Council, Planning Commission (Zoning), Fire Department, Emergency Rescue Squad and other officials will be having a public meeting to discuss the pros and cons on Thursday, September 18, 1980 (which is scheduled for 7:30 at the Park and Recreation Building) following the presently scheduled zoning meeting. Maps showing the proposed annexation boundaries, petitions, copies of the city ordinances, etc. will be available for inspection at that meeting.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

There was a character in the Little Abner comic strip, as I recall, who had a black cloud hovering over his head.

Well, that's exactly the feeling I get whenever I get in my car lately.

After it was released from the garage where it had its insides fixed last week, it acted up within hours.

However, I was being detained by a State Trooper at the time, so he was able to jump me off.

If anyone is wondering why I was being detained - it was because of a slight error on my part. I had just failed to come to a complete stop at a stop sign right at the place where a law enforcement person is usually concealed.

But it wasn't until I had committed the offense that I remembered that a man in blue was often nearby.

Peering anxiously in my rear view mirror, I failed to see any vehicle, but before I was finished heaving a sigh of relief, headlights appeared behind me.

And as I kept my eyes riveted on those lights, another light appeared - this time a blue revolving light.

Slamming on my brakes in annoyance as I pulled over, the trooper was hard put to avoid running into me.

As he sauntered up to the window of my car, I was already groping in my wallet for my driver's license. Somehow, I just couldn't get hold of that slippery little piece of plastic.

"May I see your license?" he asked pleasantly as I continued trying to latch onto the darn thing.

"I'm trying to get it," I said through clenched teeth.

And then I thought I recognized this fellow. He confirmed he was who I thought and then he suddenly remembered me.

After he cautioned me about stopping at stop signs, we continued chatting about this and that until a deputy coming from the other direction stopped to see what was going on.

Finding that the trooper wasn't trying to subdue a vicious criminal - that it was just me, he joined in the conversation.

Curious motorists stared as they were motioned on. When two people from the paper, traveling in separate cars, stopped to find out what kind of trouble I might be in, we had quite a collection of vehicles up and down the road.

After finding out there was just a friendly visit going on, they joined in the conversation for a few minutes and then as we prepared to leave, the cloud descended. Not even the slightest whir could be heard as I turned my key in the ignition.

But almost before I finished moaning, my trooper friend had his cable connected to my battery and I was off and running.

Well I was running that is, until a couple of evenings later at a big shopping center. Worn out from tramping through all the stores, I plopped down in the seat of the car, stuck the key in the ignition - and once again - complete silence.

Earlier in the evening I had bumped into some friends walking through the mall. Could I possibly find them I wondered?

I ran upstairs and down without spotting them. But just as I was about to give up, there they were. And can you believe, they did have jumper cables. So once again I was saved.

A few days later, the cloud made its presence felt again. Parked on a slight incline, my little vehicle rolled back as I tried to crank it.

As I got out to seek help, I noticed that I was right on the edge of a deep ditch. The man in the store where I had just been shopping didn't have those magic pieces of wire I was coming to depend on, but there was a gas station right across the street.

So the fat was pulled out of the fire one more time.

Now, whenever I get into what seems to be a jinxed car, I hold my breath. It's headed back to the garage, that's for sure. I just hope that black cloud stays way high up until I get it there.

Kindergartens lacking Fob's attention

To the Shelby County Reporter, To the Shelby County Reporter:

This is a letter I sent to the Governor over a month ago. So far I haven't received a reply. Would you please print this letter?

Judith L. Hatcher

Governor Fob James Montgomery, Alabama
Dear Governor James,

This year my son, Shawn, is five years old and should be able to attend kindergarten. His name was in a lottery for kindergarten with 49 other boys and girls. The state and county only gave our school 2 teacher units, so 9 children do not get to go to kindergarten. As you might have surmised by now, Shawn is 1 of those 9 unfortunate children.

I know that kindergarten was started in Alabama as a pilot program. In surrounding and far away states, kindergarten has been a part of the curriculum for many years. You should surely realize the need to educate children at an early age. By age 8, 80% of a child's adult intelligence has been formed. One of the primary objectives of kindergarten is to develop a readiness for learning. The need is definite. Why Alabama is always among the last to realize a need and take action is beyond me. Time is wasting. Every year thousands of boys and girls are overlooked by our government.

During your campaign you rode across the state in a school bus, giving the people of Alabama the impression that you were sincerely interested in improving education in Alabama. As I see it, Shawn's and many other children's civil rights have been violated. It is not right to provide education for some of the state's children and not for others. My husband and I pay taxes just like the parents of those children who have the opportunity to go. If ever there was a case of civil rights, this has to be one. I do not want to deprive those children who are going to have the opportunity. I only want to see justice for those who have not been provided this advantage. As I see it Governor James, you are truly interested in education, this is your opportunity to show it. Otherwise, I see your riding across the state in a school bus as only a case of showmanship on your part and your campaign as a sham.

We live in Chelsea. There are no private kindergartens in the area. The closest is 15 miles away. Even if there was a kindergarten at our back door, it would still be wrong for the "public" schools to not provide the same advantages for all citizens.

Governor James, only you can do something about this unfortunate situation. After all, you are suppose to be a servant of the people of the State of Alabama. I know you are interested in not spending beyond the State's means. I can appreciate that. In our own families this is a consideration we must make in times of inflation. Yet, there are some expenses which we must incur or overlook the health and well being of our children.

What I want to know, Governor, is why we can't have a half day program, as they do in many states such as Georgia, North Carolina, Missouri, and Tennessee. Almost everyone I talk to from out of state tells me that they have half day kindergartens. In fact, I have not talked to a single soul who says that they have a whole day program. Many parents feel that a half day program is adequate. If we had such a program in Alabama, twice as many children could be reached. I think this is something that warrants your immediate attention and consideration. With a little extra expenditure, more study, and more flexibility, all children in the state would have an opportunity for development during this crucial period.

Governor James, I call on you and our other elected officials to act quickly to end this inequity and this failure to provide for the development of our children's future before the beginning of this school year. After all, our children are our future and if we are to decrease illiteracy we must begin at an early age. I would appreciate your giving your utmost attention to this letter and a reply.

Sincerely,
Judith L. Hatcher

Under the Courthouse Dome

The Alabama Administrative Office of Courts has released the most recent statistics regarding case dispositions in the district court of Shelby County. A comparison of the Shelby County district court case filings for the period January through June, 1980 and the preceding six months, July through December 1979, revealed an increase in traffic filings by 64.5%, an increase in criminal filings by 14.7% and an increase in civil filings by 25.1%.

In spite of this increased caseload, the local court has maintained an above average throughput of 97.5% for the period January through June, 1980. Throughput is a comparison of the cases filed for a period to the cases disposed of in that same period. Despite the increase in filings, total case dispositions rose 15.5% for this period as compared to the previous six months period.

Patti Smith is Shelby County district judge.

Able-bodied food stamp recipients must actively search for jobs or be dropped from the program, under regulations proposed by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Labor.

"Under the proposed rules, people who fail to look for a job on their own or who don't report for the interviews at their state employment office will find their households dropped from the food stamp program for two months," said Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Those who are exempt from the work registration requirement are primarily the elderly and disabled, those already working, those responsible for the care of dependents and those already registered for work under the unemployment insurance and work incentive programs.

The new rules which may go into effect by early 1981, also require recipients who register for work to be called in to their state employment service, for an interview and job classification.

Foreman said under the existing program, funding limitations have prevented employment offices from actually calling in and interviewing any more than the most employable of the food stamp work registrants.

Shadowed pipework

UM concert series set for new pipe organ

The University of Montevallo will begin a two-year series of inaugural concerts to celebrate the new organ in UM's Palmer Auditorium with a concert by Dr. Betty Louise Lumby, professor of music and university organist.

The concert begins at 3 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 7.

Installed last spring, the new organ was designed and custom built for Palmer hall by Walter Holtkamp of the Holtkamp Organ Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Comprising 60 ranks, the organ utilizes some of the finest pipework from the Ernest M. Skinner it replaces, in the tradition of European organ builders, Dr. Lumby said. "This provides a warm and unique sound in the newly renovated auditorium of Palmer hall," she added.

Dr. Lumby's program will include Prelude in g Minor by Franz Tunder, Chorale Prelude "Jesu, Leiden, Pein and Tod," by John Caspar Vogler, Sonata No. 11, by Alessandro Sacchetti, Deuxieme Suite, by Guillaume, Prelude and Fugue in b Minor, by J.S. Bach, and Fantasie and Fugue on "Ad nos, ad salutarem undam," by Franz Liszt.

The series will continue with concerts by students, alumni and guests throughout the 1980-81 season. Later concerts will feature former faculty, guest faculty from area colleges and universities, and recitalists who played the Skinner organ in Palmer, including some who played the organ as far back as the 1940s.

Other concerts this fall include Dr. Patricia Fitzsimmons of Jefferson State Junior College, Sunday, Sept. 21, 3 p.m.; Ashley Burell, graduate recital, Thursday, Oct. 9, 8 p.m.; Charles Snider, Sunday, Oct. 12, 3 p.m.; and Susan Couch, Sunday, Oct. 19, 3 p.m.

In addition, Dr. Lumby's concert will be repeated for alumni on Founders Day, Thursday, Oct. 9 at 2:30 p.m. She will also show slides of the installation of the new organ, 50 years after the installation of the original Palmer Hall organ.

Dr. Lumby said that organ students and faculty can call her at UM, 665-2521 for an inspection of the new instrument.

Lyric Theatre

opens September 6

"An Evening of Broadway" with Pam and Dr. Benjamin Middaugh will begin a six-production season for the University of Montevallo's Lyric Theatre.

The Middaughs will sing and perform some of their favorite Broadway and popular selections Monday, Sept. 8, 8 p.m., in UM's LeBaron Recital Hall. The performance is open to the public at no charge.

Selections include songs from "Pippin" and "A Chorus Line," songs by Cole Porter, several "torch" songs and a tribute to the late Jim Croce.

Alan Lafayette Wood of Helena and Glenn Watson Crocker of Montevallo were awarded Bachelor's degrees at Auburn on August 26.

Two officers from Montevallo's VFW post attended a state officers training school Saturday.

Walt Blankenship, post commander and Harold Smith, quartermaster, participated in the session which was held at the Ramada Inn in Hoover.

Lay Lake boat crash hospitalizes one man

A 45 year old Birmingham man was still in intensive care at Brookwood Hospital Tuesday with injuries he received in a Sunday evening boating accident on Lay Lake.

Joel W. Cross was hit by a boat piloted by 35 year old Robert B. Dickinson as the two tried to avoid a collision.

According to Water Patrolman Raymond Webster, both men cut in the same direction trying to avoid hitting. And as Cross swerved sharply back in the opposite direction, Webster explained, Dickinson's runabout went over the back end of the smaller bass boat occupied by Cross and two passengers.

Cross was the only one injured. He suffered a concussion and several broken ribs.

The accident happened at 7:30 p.m. According to Webster, both boats had lights, but he pointed out that it's difficult to determine distances after dark. He added there was no moon that night.

Cross and his passengers, Fred Mann and his 13 year old son Fred Junior, were said to have been heading back to their campsite close to the ferry landing.

The collision took place in front of the Jim Wren cabin at Shelby Shores. Two doctors who have homes there treated Cross after Wren and a neighbor Mike Elward, brought the occupants of the two boats to shore.

Dickinson's only passenger was his 7 year old son who was reportedly unhurt.

Free Will Baptist plan homecoming

Central Free Will Baptist Church will hold its first homecoming Sunday, Sept. 7.

After Sunday school at 10 and the regular church service at 11, dinner will be served at noon at the community building behind Thompson School. The sounds of Calvary from Pell City will sing at 1:30, followed by a message from Donnie Husey, member of the Cahaba River and Alabama Home Mission Board.

Gazebo breather

Montevallo High School students and little Jody Arnold took time out from Montevallo's Labor Day celebration in Orr Park to look over the recently completed gazebo which was constructed by the city's Civitan Club. It's expected that concerts and other similar events will be held in the structure that was a commonplace sight in a bygone era.

Citizens come to Shelco's rescue

Shelco Unit One is nearly ready to hit the road again.

Donations collected from families who want fire protection in the area formerly covered by the fire and emergency medical rescue unit, have almost reached the amount needed for a two month period of operation.

Despite constant interruptions from some Dogwood residents and individuals who live on Hwy. 119, families wanting Shelco's services voted Tuesday night to contribute $20 apiece.

With tempers on edge throughout the meeting, a fight broke out as the crowd began to file out of the Moore's Crossroads Church of God.

However, it reportedly didn't involve what had transpired at the meeting, but occurred when a member of the crowd intervened in a family dispute.

Shelco has been out of service since July when an election to establish a fire district failed to pass. However a suit has been filed charging irregularities in the voting and the case is now set for Oct. 8.

Another letdown for the unit came when negotiations with the city of Montevallo to provide EMR services fell through and the city went about setting up its own unit.

Wayne Davis, President of Shelco's Board of Directors, said he was under the impression that the city was still negotiating with the unit when the announcement came that their latest proposal was made too late.

Only days before the meeting, Davis related, a councilman had told him the group's request to buy gas through the city would be discussed by the finance committee.

An agreement between the city and Shelco had stalled, Davis said, when members of the unit had expressed reluctance at accepting $2,000 for back services rather than the $4,000 that he said was originally offered.

But if the cost of gasoline were reduced, the unit had decided to accept the latter offer, Davis reported.

However, a council member had a different version of what happened. The call Davis referred to wasn't received until the Sunday night before the council meeting when plans had already been made for the city to form its own unit, he reported.

He also claimed that the city's agreement had been to give Shelco $2,000 with payments of $1,000 monthly after an EMR board was set up.

But since the board was never formed, the councilman said, the city gave up on trying to work out arrangements with Shelco.

It was Davis' contention that the unit intended organizing the board but was waiting on Montevallo, Wilton and the University of Montevallo to name their representatives.

Those would have been the areas Shelco would have served since they had pledged financial help.

Now, until the court case is decided, Shelco will provide service to the families who have made financial contributions.

The 15 or 20 people who made it difficult to transact business at last week's meeting, were apparently disturbed about the vehicles and other equipment Shelco has in its possession.

Davis pointed out that it belonged to Shelco, which is a corporation, and that the board of directors had ordered their removal from the Dogwood fire station when the unit ceased operations.

There were also reportedly some questions from Shelco opponents about what had happened to the money.

Davis said he wondered what money they were talking about since there had been very little financial support.

WIC clinics set for Vincent

Two clinics, for pregnant women and young mothers, will be held in Vincent on September 5 and September 19.

The statewide WIC (Women, Infant and Children) program of the state department of public health, is sponsoring the clinics. WIC is a nutrition program that provides supplemental foods and nutrition education to eligible persons.

It is part of the drive to reduce Alabama's high infant mortality rate and to improve the health of babies and young children.

The clinics will be held at the National Guard Armory in Vincent from 9 to 3.

Anyone interested may call 669-6867 for more information.

Briarcliff honors grandparents

Residents of Briarcliff Nursing Home will be honored during activities planned for Grandparents Day, September 7.

The dining room will be brightened by pink and blue silhouettes placed on each table.

Sunday School children from a local church are writing "What is a Grandparent" letters to be displayed and read on this day. Sunday School at 9 a.m. will start the day of activities. A special church service is planned for 2:30 p.m. in Building II.

Activities director Margie Payne says, "All residents, their families and friends are invited to visit the home on this day and attend any or all of the special activities. We offer a special invitation to those participating in our "Adopt a Grandparent" program to help us make this a special day. We also welcome letters and cards for our residents on this day. If you do not have a special person to write, just send the mail to the activity department of Briarcliff Nursing Home and it will be distributed to those who do not receive much mail."

New church organizes

The organization of the new Shelby Baptist Church will be held Sunday, September 7 at 7 p.m.

According to Rev. Bobby D. Williams the service will include the singing of the charter by all present, the adoption of by-laws and a constitution, a special organizational message and singing by Mr. and Mrs. Phil Dortch of Athens.

The Dortches will also be singing at the regular 11 a.m. service. Sunday school is held at 9:45 a.m. and the public is invited.

Some 55-60 people now attend the church which started on June 1. Rev. Williams has been with the organization since July when he moved back to Shelby County from Ft. Worth, Texas.

The church is located on Hwy. 31 South in Pelham at Acton Hill. For more information, call 664-0294.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

TAKE NO CHANCES!

When Christ's body was placed in the tomb, Pilate urged, "Ye have a watch, go your way, make it as sure as you can" (Matthew 27:65). He was saying to the soldiers, "Take no chances." The world is careful about virtually everything except their souls. "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Matthew 16:26).

People are generally careful in things pertaining to this life. First, if a person travels the highways, he gets a map and follows it closely. He will not allow his feelings to tell him he is on the right road. And, he would not say, "I know I am on the right road, because I can feel it right here in my breast." Likewise, one must get God's divine ROAD MAP, the Bible, in order to get to heaven (II Timothy 3:16, 17). The Bible tells us, "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool" (Proverbs 28:26). Jeremiah warned, "The heart is deceitful" (Jeremiah 17:9).

Second, when a person pays a debt, he gets a receipt. Why? Because money is involved. But, a person should be more careful to get a receipt from his or her preacher for the doctrine he preaches. Why? Because one's soul is involved. For example, when the preacher asks you to a "mourner's bench" or "the altar" to pray for pardon, ask him to give you book, chapter, and verse for it. Demand of him a "receipt" for that doctrine, because your soul is involved.

Third, when one is measuring, he uses a rule. The length of a building is easily settled when a rule is used. Suppose three men differed on the length of a building, one saying it is 40 feet, another 50 feet, and another 60 feet. Then, one suggests that they get a rule, and the rule says it is 60 feet long. They admit that two were mistaken and one was correct. The Bible is God's divine rule. This rule can enable one to learn what to do to be saved, to learn what church is the one Christ built nearly two-thousand years ago, and what one must do to live the Christian life.

Dear reader, take no chances with your eternal soul. Read follows God's road map to heaven, demand a receipt, and go by the rule. The soul you save may be your own!

County obituaries

Dr. Edward Hayes, 63, of Hueytown died Saturday, August 30.

Dr. Hayes was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Hayes of Calera.

He was a veteran of World War II and a graduate of the school of Veterinary Medicine at Auburn. He practiced veterinary medicine at the Hayes animal clinic in Bessemer for 28 years. He was a member of Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church in Hueytown.

Funeral services were held Monday with burial in Pleasant Ridge Cemetery. Dr. Billy Harris officiated.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Edith Wall Hayes; a son, Stephen R. Hayes of Helena; a daughter, Mrs. Ann Hayes Crooks of Fairfield; two grandchildren; 2 brothers, Dr. Howard Hayes of Hueytown and Dr. Hanceford Hayes of Foley; and four sisters, Mrs. Velma Findley, Mrs. Paula Ward, Mrs. Lethis Holcombe all of Calera and Mrs. Wilma Lawrence of Midfield.

Last week in reporting on the death of Justin Milam of Sterrett, the list of his survivors should have read: his wife, Lela Milam, a son, Edward Milam, Sterrett; a daughter, Mrs. Justine Segers; three grandchildren, Cynthia, Sharon and Nenna Segers, all of Linden; and two sisters, Bessie Davis of Trussville and Nettie Williamson of Arkansas.

Mr. Milam was a mechanic with the Shelby County Highway Department before his retirement. The Reporter regrets that the names of his wife and his grandchildren were inadvertently omitted from last week's report.

Wilsonville hosts drama

The Agape Players are coming to Wilsonville Baptist church on Saturday, September 6 and Sunday, September 7. They will be in concert at 7 p.m. on Saturday and at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

The Agape Players are a group of college-age young people from all across the United States who spend nine months traveling nationally and internationally, presenting musical drama and concerts.

Under the direction of Rocky and Alice Adkins of Lake Wales, Florida, who founded the group in 1969, these young people are sincere, exciting and personable. "The Rev. Estel Riddle invites the public, "Come share in their ministry and let them be a blessing to you."

Gladys Carder won the oval latch hook rug at the Wilsonville Friendship Club last week.

The 26"x48" rug was made by Mrs. Paul Smith, a member of the club.

Mrs. Zuda Kelley won a latch hook pillow made by Mozelle Eastis. The hand made items were offered as fund-raising prizes for the club. Recently a quilt was completed by five club members and was sold, with proceeds going to the club. Members plan to start another quilt soon, according to Mrs. Eastis.

Navy Seaman Recruit Cecil D. Ford, son of Bennie and Virtie L. Ford of Route 1, Vincent, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

A 1980 graduate of Vincent High School, he joined the Navy in June.

Shewbridge-Ray wed in Pelham

Miss Robin E. Shewbridge became the bride of Danny C. Ray on August 23 at the Pelham Church of God.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.W. Simonson of Ward, Ark.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Ray of Pelham.

Serving as matron of honor was Kim Dawson of Ward, Ark., Cindy Bray of Alabaster and Priscilla Shewbridge of Ward were bridesmaids.

The groom chose Steve Nivens as best man. His groomsmen were James Roberts and Joey Lovelady, both of Pelham.

After a wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina, the couple will be at home in Pelham, where the bride is with the police department and the groom is employed with the fire department.

It's news.. all around the county

by Becky McDonald
Tara Leigh McGraw recently celebrated her sixth birthday. She spent an hour in an ice cream parlor with several of her friends before heading home to Leeds, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. McGraw, and baby sister Melissa Page had a special family party planned. Grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Dick Osley of Columbiana and Mrs. Lallouise McGraw of Vincent joined the celebration.

Callaway Gardens was the site of the Tom Johnson and Mrs. Grady King family reunion. Mrs. King and her daughter Elaine, along with Joe and Nell Johnson and Jason Lovelady, all of Pelham, joined their family in a week of rest and relaxation.

Coming from Birmingham were Lynn Gause, Mae Hurley and Philonna Davis. Those in the family from Richmond, Virginia were Pat and Birdie Johnson and their son David and Alan and Jean King. Also joining the group were Mike King from the University of Alabama and Amy Williamson and Steve King from Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gaddy of Wilton (known as 'Big Daddy and mama Ruth' to their grandchildren) just returned from a trip to our nation's capitol. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gaddy from Sema. Though Mrs. Gaddy said she would like to have stayed three weeks the group packed quite a bit into their four day visit. A four hour boat trip up the Potomac took them to Mt. Vernon. Then it was back to the capitol for a tour through the White House and other places of interest.

The Gaddys enjoyed the time they spent in Washington and are already planning what they'll see on their next trip.

Terry Wayne Cunningham is quite a fisherman. Recently he caught enough blue channel catfish to feed a family reunion of over 40 relatives. Though he began by nailing tennis shoes on to a pair of old skis, his brother, Perry, can now ski quite well on one ski.

The proud parents of these two boys are Bill and Jimmie Cunningham. From their Lay Lake home at Lee's camp the family is looking forward to crappie season. Last year they boasted a catch of 38 from the bank in front of their home.

When we planned our trip to the Smokies I decided to put into action what I had read in 'The Total Woman'. With pen in hand I made several lists and started packing. When departure time arrived I checked off my list - 3 suitcases, picnic basket, 4 boxes of pampers, play pen, stroller, 3 pillows, 2 blankets and 6 lbs. of fried chicken. Since I had to pick the girls up at school and meet David at his mothers all that was left was to get my one year old and myself to the car. As I reached for John Michael I noticed one of his white shoes was missing. The next half hour was spent looking under beds and in closets. It wasn't to be found. Quietly grumbling I grabbed his tennis shoes and headed to the car. There I found the cat munching on a chicken leg. After almost killing a cat and throwing away the chicken I drove off.

Strangely enough the trip was great. And the missing shoe - we found it at our first picnic - between the paper plates and the mustard. Until next week I'll be seeing you 'around the county.'

Plants take off

Montevallo gardener Loyd Harris uses his tape measure to prove the 10 foot height of the tomato plants which grow around his mulch container. His three year old granddaughter Cammy Frye helped the pile to grow by tossing in leftovers which included watermelon rhines and potato peels.

Gardener takes his ease while plants grow tall

"This is the easiest gardening I've ever done," declared Loyd Harris as he stood beside his ten foot tall tomato plants.

After doing some reading on how to use compost to grow plants, the Montevallo man decided to give it a try.

And after observing the results, Harris says that he plans to use the method with most of his gardening from now on.

The nine tomato plants were only three inches tall when he put them in the ground next to the compost pile, Harris recalled. That was less than two months ago. Now the plants are out of reach and continuing their upward journey.

His pepper plants have also exceeded his expectations, Harris said.

Wire fencing surrounds the compost heap which measures six foot in diameter. Harris' wife Cliffordine explained that she saves leftovers and garbage which her husband tosses onto the pile. Even the plastic sacks into which the scraps are loaded become part of the compost.

Along with sawdust and straw, the plastic helps to hold moisture, Harris, pointed out. He noted that this eliminates the need for watering.

Plants for a winter garden have already been set out around a second compost heap Harris has started. They include cucumbers and collards.

Helena church bonds sold for new building

Members of Helena United Methodist Church have voted to build a new church at a new location.

The congregation recently voted to relocate on a five acre site near the Foxhaven subdivision on Highway 58.

The building will consist of a 300 seat sanctuary, a large fellowship hall, kitchen, nursery complex, classrooms, offices, and restrooms. The architectural firm of Turner and Batson designed the structure. Building contractor is C.W. Fulgham. Work will begin within a few weeks. Cost of the project is estimated at $400,000.

The church will begin the sale of $350,000 of church bonds on September 7. The bonds pay an average interest rate of 10 1/2% and are available in maturity lengths of one to 15 years. Anyone interested in purchasing bonds may call the church at 663-0111, the pastor at 663-3440, or Bond Chairman Keith Campbell at 663-3649.

The congregation hopes to sell the present building and use the proceeds for the new one. Anyone interested in the building may call the church, the pastor, or Building Committee Chairman Sonny Penhale at 663-7944.

The Helena Church is one of the fastest growing congregations in the North Alabama Conference. Of more than 900 churches, it ranked 6th in membership increase in 1979 and 11th in 1978. The rate of growth in 1980 is even higher. The members feel that the new building will enable them to reach more people and to offer a more complete program for all ages.

Troubadours field their largest band

by David Armstrong

The Montevallo High School Marching Troubadours took to the gridiron last Thursday night at Calera's Oliver Field and did their usual impressive job.

Under the direction of Jim Weese, his tenth year at Montevallo, the Troubadours have built a reputation as one of the finest group of high school marchers in the state.

Last year's list of awards was typical of the high-class performers' yearly achievements. According to Weese, last year's group scored all ones (top score) at the Mid, Central and District Alabama tournaments. In the state tournament, they didn't score all ones but they did earn one.

Most people think fall practice is the most difficult thing any youngster could go through. Some band members might disagree.

The Troubadours have been practicing since July for this fall's performances, and since the first of August, they have had to practice five to six hours a day on the average.

Weese said this year's band is the largest he has had at Montevallo. He has a total of 125, compared to his next largest group of 107 last year. Of the 125, 16 are in the flag corps, three are majorettes, one is the drum major and 105 play instruments.

This year's Troubadours have the potential to be as good or better than past year's groups, Weese said.

The group is trying to raise funds this year for a trip to Ft. Walton where they will compete.

This year's repertoire includes "Alabama Fanfare," "Tonight," from "West Side Story," "Chacita," "Peace in the Valley," and "Uptight."

As many Montevallo residents can tell you, going to Montevallo High School football games can be a joy even if you're not a football fan and even if the Bulldogs are losing because of the first rate performances given by the Troubadours.

No time to snooze

Calera's Richard "Sleepy" Russell (45) found little time to snooze Thursday against an MHS defense that showed improvement in the sticking department as the game progressed. Russell managed to drag out 97 yards on the ground in 22 carries for a 4.4 yard average. (Photos by Moore.)

Thompson reigns 29-14, Johnson leads the way

The Thompson Warriors took a lot of supporters with them to their opener in Jemison, Thursday night. And the Warriors did just what most everybody expected of them: they won. The score, 29-14.

The fleet-footed Arthur Johnson did just what most everybody expected of him: he put on his winged shoes and ran a mean football. In 22 carries the sophomore transplant rushed for 132 yards, an average bite of six yards of turf per carry.

Thompson took the opening kick and wasted little time. The second play from scrimmage, Johnson dashed off a 30 yarder, setting the tempo for the first half. Within 90 seconds QB Chuck Woody sneaked in from the one for six, and Jeff Willis added another point with his toe.

Apparently shaken by the punch, the Jemison receiver on the ensuing kickoff forgot to pick up the ball before he started running. Thompson recovered and in three minutes Woody was again sneaking in for a TD. the PAT missed and the score was quickly 13-1.

The Thompson defense gave Jemison plenty of problems with the likes of Warriors Joe Glass, Tod Harris, Greg Watts and Arthur Johnson. Too, the Warrior offensive line, headed by Watts and Brad Boone, was doing its share of the work.

Before the second quarter was half over, Woody had again scored from the one. Johnson added two extra points to make it 21-0.

With a fat lead under their belts, the Warriors came out a little flat in the third quarter. Jemison wasted no time in capitalizing on the situation with a fast touchdown and two extra points.

The Warriors thought they had revenged the matter when Johnson cranked off an 60 yard kick return a short time later. But head coach Larry Simmon's boys got called for a clip and the TD was nullified.

Then with 5:30 showing on the clock THS got back to scoring again, with fullback Randy Anderson doing the honors from two yards out. Willis hit again on the PAT and the score was 29-8.

Forced to the air in the game's later stages, the Jemison quarterback accidentally completed two passes to the wrong jersey, a Thompson jersey worn by Charlie Griffin.

The home team did complete a long bomb with about 3:00 left in the game which set up the final score of the 29-14 game.

"The team was better than we thought," commented Simmons. "We had a number of improvements come through for us. I was well pleased with the effort the boys gave."

"The thing that really impressed me was the lack of mistakes," he added.

THS was penalized only 30 yards (to 100 for Jemison) and both teams went without fumbling.

Woody was 0-1 passing, but the Warriors 177 yards rushing was good for 16 first downs. Jemison totaled 235 yards offensive for nine first downs.

Calera slips by Bulldogs despite the yellow flags

To the Calera Eagles' defeated Montevallo 9-6 before a packed house at Oliver Park Thursday night. It was Calera's debut as a 2-A football club.

Walking off the field after the game Calera head coach Danny Alverson nutshelled things this way: "It wasn't very pretty, but we won!"

Any aesthetics involved in Calera's win were marred by 110 yards worth of yellow penalty flags, most of which flew in the first half.

At one point in the first quarter three different penalties were called against Calera before they got off a snap, which was a big help to Montevallo's weak defensive start.

Calera got their first break when they creamed MHS quarterback David Melsoni like a sack of potatoes and picked up a fumble in their own territory. The Eagle offense sputtered (with flags) down to a first and goal from the six. But moving into the second quarter the 'Dog defense tightened up and held for three downs before Melsoni intercepted a pass to ensure the save.

With a good run by Tim Jones, the Bulldogs got out to the 31 before bogging down in jet blue jerseys led by tackle John Killingsworth. But again the yellow flag came out to haunt Calera, and with a roughing-the-kicker call MHS remained alive near mid-field.

Saved by the penalty, Montevallo mustered its only sustained drive of the night. Melsoni found receivers in Reggie Evans and Montez Thrift, Jones picked up some more hard yards and in seven plays the 'Dogs were first and goal from the one. The Eagle defense backed MHS to the six and held for three plays before Melsoni crashed over the score. The PAT wandered wide and when the half ended :45 seconds later the score was 6-0.

The third quarter see-sawed away until Calera took control on their own 44, just before the period ended.

The Eagles were flying now. Richard "Sleepy" Russell blasted for 14 yards, quarterback Ricky Winterbottom hit Raymond King for 15, Tim Loftin ran for another seven and the Bulldogs contributed and offsides penalty. Calera was knocking at the door, first and goal from the three.

From there it took four plays to get through the now stingy Bulldogs, but finally Russell rounded left end for three yards and six points. Derrick Merritte toed the PAT, giving Calera a 7-6 edge with 6:32 remaining in the game.

"If we can just hold them now..." Alverson cringed, pacing the sidelines.

As it turned out the Eagles did more than the coach asked.

Following the kickoff Killingsworth sacked Melsoni and MHS was faced with fourth and long from their own 16 with 5:05 left to play. MHS head coach Richard Gilliam later explained that Calera had eaten up nearly six minutes with their last possession and he was afraid if his Bulldogs punted away the ball they might never see it again...

Montevallo gambled. But...

Confusion on the sidelines led to only 10 Bulldogs on the field when Melsoni dropped back to the goal for a fake punt attempt. The Eagles came in flying. Melsoni scrambled. But nose guard Larry Johnson tackled him in the end zone for a safety.

Down 9-6, MHS attempted an onside kick but Calera took it on the 35. From there the Eagles looked as if they might score again until yellow flags and defense forced a punt.

Montevallo's probable last chance to score was dashed when Larry Johnson intercepted Melsoni inside the 'Dog 10. But Calera couldn't move it in for the score and gave up the ball on downs.

With :05 on the clock Melsoni was again intercepted, this time by linebacker Kirk Ross. Calera sat on the ball like a good sport and the game was over.

"We've got some growing up to do," commented MHS assistant Kurt Pnasek as he left the field.

Explaining later that several of his players got cramps early in the game, Gilliam said, "It was obvious I didn't have my guys conditioned enough. On the other hand, several guys got playing time who wouldn't have otherwise. We'll have more depth next week (for the road game at Dallas County)."

Gilliam pointed to the way his defense responded to goal line pressure as the brightest spot in MHS's performance. Surprise effort was noted in Sammy Nix, Rory Gilbert and Howard Gaddis at reserve QB.

Standouts noted by coach Alverson were "Sleepy" Russell, Winterbottom in his first full role as quarterback, Tim Loftin, Raymond King, Killingsworth, Ross, Johnson and Cliff Smith.

"Our kids pulled it out when they had to. They believed they could do it. They showed good poise after getting down," Alverson said.

"After the flags settled it was a well played game," he added. "But for a minute there I didn't think they'd ever settle."

The gang's all here

One of Calera's stronger points against MHS proved to be the defense, which saw a lot of leadership from John Killingsworth (55), who's joining in to gang tackle this Bulldog.

CVA upset by Chambers in one point squeaker

For the second year in a row Coosa Valley has dropped a home game to Chambers by one point. Last year the score was 13-12, thanks to a missed extra point.

This year the score was 20-19, thanks to a lost fumble in the end zone, a blocked punt, two missed conversions or a clip on a would-be 60 yard punt return - take your pick.

Head Coach Mark Green even adds another choice for the Rebel heartbreaker "Poor coaching on my part lost it. I'm to blame for our poor play calling and I didn't prepare for our mental mistakes," he said.

CVA showed strong determination in the first quarter with a goal line stand that turned back the visitors from Chambers.

But any glory in the goal line stand was lost when CVA then fumbled the ball away on their own one. Chambers recovered it and scored, adding the PAT.

In the second quarter, tailback Mike Wheeler scrambled 60 yards for a touchdown that got axed by a yellow clipping flag.

In the last seconds of the half Chambers capped off a drive with six more points and another conversion.

But with :04 left on the clock Wheeler a semi-replay, galloping the kickoff back for a Rebel touchdown. Ty Williams booted the extra point and the score at the half stood 14-7.

Coosa Valley's blocked punt came in the third quarter, giving Chambers the go-ahead for a touchdown from the Reb's 20 yard line.

Finally, in the fourth quarter CVA mounted a sustained scoring drive. After 73 yards took them down to the two, Eric Davis ran the ball over for six points. But some kind of jinx still lingered in the air and a bad PAT snap led to a 20-13 score.

But the Rebels were still in the ballgame and looking for a win. If nothing else, they would have probably liked to have ruined the evening for the squad of green jersey clad Raiders who came to Harpersville to see the game.

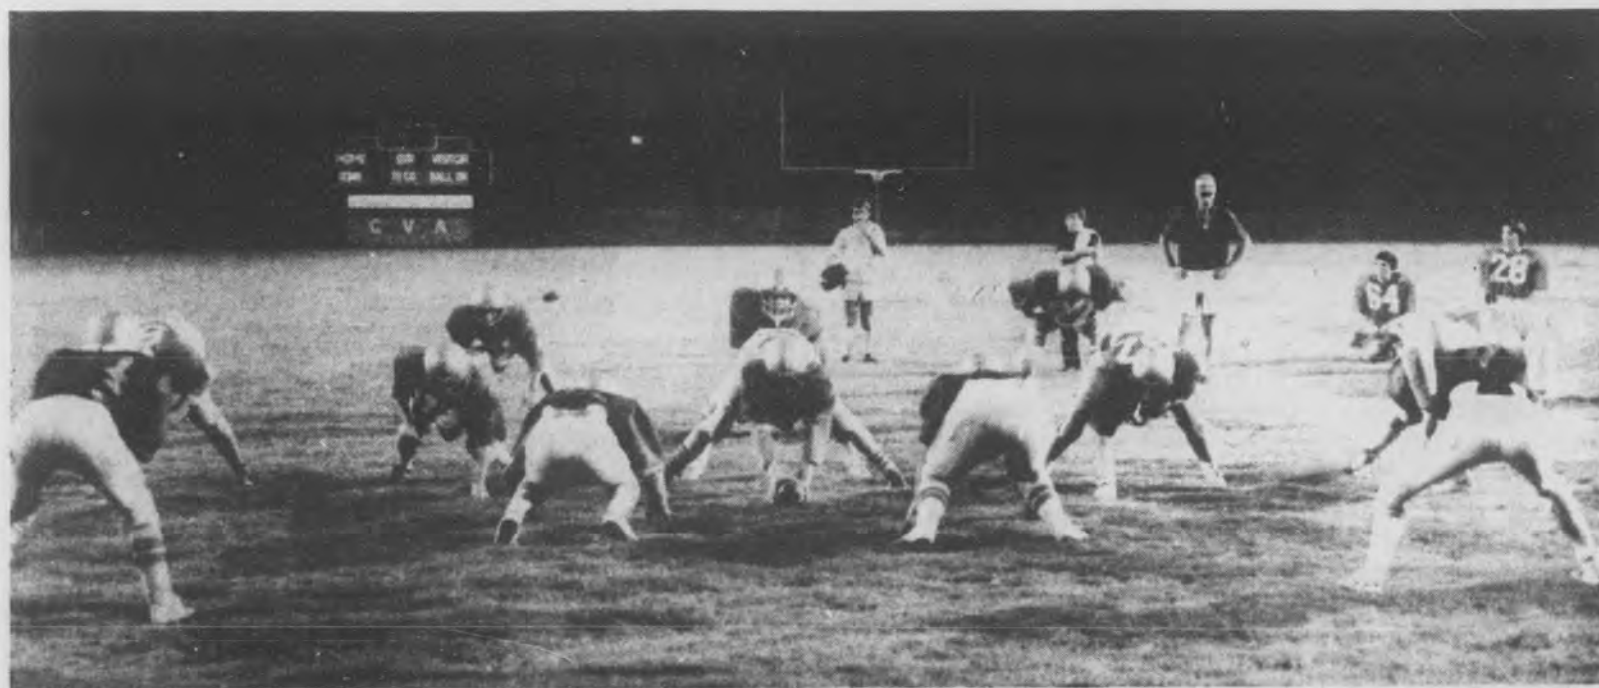

With less than three minutes left Davis hit Wheeler in the end zone with a 40 yard pass for the touchdown, making the score 20-19.

Coosa Valley went for the win but the pass attempt on the two point conversion was batted down. It was "one of those" nights.

Looking ahead to next week's clash with cross-county rival Shelby Academy, Green stated, "We're going to work on mistakes and our kicking game. Our mistakes killed us."

He added that the SA game would be a "knock-down, drag-out" contest and probably he's right.

Against Chambers, Wheeler lead the rushing with 74 yards, followed by quarterback Mike Norred with 58 (and 2-5 passing), Jim Haney with 43 and Troy Beavers with 40. Green said Haney turned in a good performance at linebacker, too.

Before the after picture

While practicing for the Chambers game the CVA Rebs looked good enough for head coach Mark Green to comment they were 100% improved over last year. After losing the game to mistakes, though, the coach (hands on hips to right) didn't feel quite so good about the team or the coaching. (Photo by Moore.)

Pelham machines down tough SCHS

Machine in motion

When Brian Bolton (30) and the other Panther running backs got behind their blockers, the gold and green football machine showed promise of a strong season on their way to whipping Shelby County 34-20. (Photo by Moore.)

Tough going

The Pelham defense made the going tough on Shelby County. But Wildcat tailback Daron Burns returned the favor with some tough running, tough enough to pick up at least a whopping 173 yards.

A big gold and green football machine from Pelham rolled into Columbiana Friday night to play the Shelby County Wildcats. The machine was designed to do one thing, and it did that by a score of 34-20.

Two main components made the machine run strong: an offensive line that could blast roadways through mountains, and a warehouse full of backs that knew how to use the line.

The Wildcats ran on spunky determination, one department in which they are definitely strong.

The first quarter sputtered rather slowly for both squads until Pelham got possession on the SC 36. Then they switched on the machine for a test run. Six plays later, with Guy Nichols scoring from the three, the machine started warming up. Eleven minutes into the game the machine was on top 6-0.

A faulty cog in the machine started showing up in the second quarter with some of the credit (blame) going to Shelby County. Fumbles. Pelham QB Steve Rye got walloped on a pass attempt and Timothy Smith recovered for the Cats in Panther territory.

But the Wildcats weren't primed yet and punted the opportunity away. On the next play, however, a fumble on the Pelham exchange gave Shelby County another chance when Roger Vincent recovered the ball. Still unable to move the ball, the Wildcats turned it over on downs.

Pelham, on the other hand, did know what to do with the ball. They gave it to fullback Nichols again and Nichols tore out like lightning through a cloud for a 70 yard TD run. QB Greg Olvey hit Matt Mace for the two point conversion making the score 14-0 at halftime.

After a short kick and a 34 yard pass from Pelham QB Steve Rye to Tracey Swinney, the machine looked to be humming. But it stumbled on a fumble again and Jason Head recovered for SCHS on their own 15.

All this time Wildcat tailback Daron Burns had been itching to rip open a few runs. He got started with an 18 yarder, which, coupled with a late hit call, put Shelby County at midfield. But SCHS wasn't quite yet ready to roll and had to punt away.

A sack that set the Panthers back to the 22 got the machine riled up. Runs by Brian Bolton, Jud Halcomb and Barry Faulkner carried Pelham to the end zone in 11 plays. Faulkner scored the TD from the one and Halcomb added one with his toe. 21-zip, machine.

Then Burns cut loose. After a kickoff return of 12 yards, he ripped off 49 more yards on the next five plays, taking the Wildcats down to the Pelham 13. After Head ran it to the one, the next play was inevitable. Burns scored. Then added two more (and lost his jersey) on the conversion as the third quarter ended. Shelby County was down 21-8, but it sounded like party night in Columbiana.

But the machine retaliated. Taking the onside kick at their own 43, the Panthers scored in seven plays, with Halcomb leaving tracers from his helmet as he dashed over from the 15 yard line. He added the PAT for a 28-8 score.

Things were quickly warming up.

Moments later Burns broke a 52 yarder putting the Wildcats on the eight. Benton then hit the No. 21 bullseye on Randy Lewis' jersey for a TD. Make it 28-14.

And again the machine went to work. The Panthers hardly hesitated as they marched 75 yards in 10 plays. Bolton scored from the three and Halcomb booted the extra point. With 3:00 to go the machine had a 34-14 lead.

"That oughta' just about do it," an official commented on the sidelines. Wrong.

After a short kick, two carries by Burns for 38 yards, and several other plays, Shelby County was on the five. Benton hit Thomas in the end zone and the score ended at 34-20.

Across the street in the gym, manager Kyle Templin came up to SCHS head coach Larry Molton and asked, "It was a good ballgame, huh?"

"No," said Molton, looking drained by the loss.

"Well, we didn't give up, did we," the youngster said. It wasn't a question.

"No. We sure didn't," answered the coach with a near grin.

Molton turned to this reporter and said, "A lot of things I'm proud about. A lot of things I'm not. We got after them real good, but they whipped us defensively.

The coaching has to get some flaws out of it, too."

If Pelham head coach Steve Rivers was happier, it's easy to understand.

"We have some backs that ran well, but the offensive line was super. I think that was the difference in the ballgame," Rivers said.

He added, "We were very, very poor tacklers. That's the worst thing we did. But part of that was (Shelby County's Daron) Burns."

Hornets lose to Lincoln 13-0

One county coach has described the Golden Bears from Lincoln as being, big, strong, quick and crazy. "When they put on a helmet they breathe fire and you can see their eyes gleam," he said.

After taking a long look at them during a road game Friday night, Chelsea head coach Daryl Burnham offered a more realistic description: "Anything they do, they do consistently."

After viewing films of the game on Sunday, Burnham noted that reruns were also consistent. Like the game Friday night, the films still showed Chelsea losing 13-0.

It happened like this: Chelsea went straight for the gamble with an onside kickoff. The surprise part worked, but not the possession part and Lincoln had the ball on their own 45.

A few punts later Lincoln recovered a fumble on the Chelsea 25 and moved in for a first and goal from the five.

But led by the efforts of Jack Shaw, Chris Thomas, Victor Smith, Bobby Bearden and Dennis Jacobs, the Hornet defense refused to budge any further and denied Lincoln on two passes and two runs.

The Hornets took the ball and made two first downs before having to punt. But Lincoln fumbled the punt and Chelsea was in business on their own 46. A sweep attack sent tailback Kelly Cooper all the way to the five. But a key fumble dashed the chance for a Chelsea TD.

Lincoln recovered and drove down to a first and goal from the eight. Again the Hornet defense was put to the test. And again they passed, stopping Lincoln on the one.

A scoreless game going into the third quarter, Lincoln intercepted a Randy Kennedy pass and ran it down to the two. Two plays later the score was 7-0, Golden Bears.

Lincoln was given another scoring opportunity in the fourth when the Chelsea punter fumbled away the ball deep in his own territory. Then with fourth and three from the 18, the Lincoln quarterback hit his receiver in the end zone for six. Chelsea locked the extra point attempt.

"You hate to lose," Burnham commented. "But still I feel we can take it and go with it and get better every week if we work hard. Our inconsistency hurt us. The hustle was there but not the execution (especially on offense)," he explained.

"We're real proud of the way they played. They played aggressively and put a lot of heart into it for 48 minutes. But to beat Briarwood it's going to take a big, big effort."

Burnham added that other leaders on defense were his secondary, manned by Kent O'Shields, Keith McCullers and Phillip Blackerby.

Panther's Pierce gets 'Lineman of Week'

The Reporter's lineman of the week award was a tough decision between a couple of lads from Thompson and nearly the entire Pelham offensive line. But when the dust finally settled, Panther Bart Pierce was left standing above the stack.

The senior offensive guard plays on the "weak" (hah!) side of the Pelham football machine.

He weighs in at 185 pounds and stands 5'11".

During their 34-20 win over Shelby County, the Panthers again and again charged through the giant holes Pierce opened in the Wildcat defense.

"Our most damaging plays went right over his position," said a well pleased Steve Rivers, head Pelham coach.

Vincent fights back to beat Abrams

Things looked bad for the home team.

First Vincent fumbled the opening kickoff. The visiting Blue Devils from Abrams recovered the ball, scored in four plays and added two extra points.

After exchanging punts, Vincent again fumbled and lost. This time it was near midfield and took five plays for Abrams to score. At the end of the first quarter the Jackets were down 14-0.

But with about five minutes left in the half, line-backer Bobby Howard blitzed the Abrams passer, tangling himself around him as he let go of the ball. James Oden intercepted the aerial and returned it more than 40 yards to the two. Taking the snap from center, Oden sneaked in for six, and Rodney Driggers booted the PAT.

Fumble fingers again hit the Yellow Jackets on their next possession. Although Abrams was unable to score, Vincent had their backs to the wall for the rest of the half.

In the third quarter nothing happened, but the fourth quarter more than made up for that, giving Vincent's largest crowd in four years more than their money's worth.

Defensive end David Isbell stuck helmet right on the football as he dove for a tackle, knocking the football loose on about the 30 yard line. Without even breaking his stride, Driggers snatched up the ball at a dead run and took it in for the score. Vincent missed the extra point and the score was 14-13.

On the kickoff return Johnny Whitehead knocked the ball loose from the Abrams runner and Phil Berryhill recovered for the Jackets on their own 40. From there Sidney Yowe ran it down to the two, picking up another yard when he got hauled down by his face mask.

James Oden scored over the middle, but Vincent was still having trouble converting the extra points. With 5:38 on the clock the score was 19-14. And Vincent was out of time outs.

The Yellow Jackets weren't finished fumbling yet, either. On their next possession they lost the handle and Abrams returned a grudge, picking up the loose ball and running 30 yards for the score. The Blue Devils missed going for two, but with 3:46 they were beating Vincent 20-19.

Then an unintentional onside kick caught Vincent off guard and Abrams recovered possession on the Jacket 45. If things looked bad in the first quarter for the home team, they looked a lot worse now.

But a Yellow Jacket is a hard critter to kill.

Lead by noseguard Johnny Wallace, Vincent's defense pushed the visitors back ten yards in the next three plays. And then on fourth down Dwight Spradley charged the Abrams punter, blocking the kick. When everybody was untangled Vincent was given possession on the Abrams 20.

With third and 12 and :43 left in the game, Oden fired a pass to Driggers in a crowd on the ten. Driggers stepped inside the defenders and grabbed the pass as they all collided. Driggers slipped into the end zone with :35 seconds to spare.

Again they missed the conversion but the crowd didn't care as Vincent went on to win it 25-20.

Winning his first game ever as a head coach, Harold Garrett was paraded off the field like some kind of king. Later he admitted that he had been ready to panic at one point when they were down, and that his boys pulled it out for him.

"I hope the coach learned a lot. I hope he gets better by the end of the year," Garrett said.

"If you're a purist, it wasn't a real good fundamental game. We didn't do a lot real well except win the game."

The new coach attributed the win to his team being in superior shape (they had only one partial leg cramp) and the addage that Vincent never says die.

Door keys

Two of the key players who opened the door to Vincent's thrilling win over Abrams were quarterback James Oden (15), and Rodney Driggers (16), who plays offensive end and defensive back. At least a ton of additional, well conditioned Vincent meat helped to pull off the 25-20 win despite five lost Jacket fumbles on the night. (Photos by Moore.)

Defendant gets life sentence

by Bert Seaman

After listening to evidence presented during a four day trial last week, a Shelby County jury found James Williams guilty of first degree murder.

Since his arrest last June for the shooting death of Montevallo resident Dale McGaughy, the 30 year old Williams has been in custody in the Shelby County jail.

District Attorney William R. Hill, Jr., prosecuted the case with the assistance of Assistant DA J. Michael Campbell.

The jury deliberated one hour and forty five minutes before returning the guilty verdict. After it was read, defense attorney Ron Jackson asked that the jury be polled.

As each of the four men and eight women stood and gave their name, they each said they concurred with the verdict.

Williams was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Although the exact time of the shooting wasn't determined, the 23 year old victim met his death around 12:45 a.m. June 6, shortly after starting work on the third shift at Allied Products.

Testifying in his own defense, Williams claimed that Dale and his brother Mark were after him and that he was defending himself when he fired the shot.

Both McGaughys were employed at the lime plant between Calera and Montevallo. And testimony revealed that Mark, 13 months older than his brother, had had trouble with the defendant on at least one other occasion.

And just before his brother was shot, the older McGaughy said that he had argued with Williams who ran down the stairs as he was going to call his supervisor.

Three key witnesses for the state all concurred in their testimony that they saw Williams at the bottom of a stairway, turn, walk up two steps, take aim and fire a shot at the younger McGaughy.

But Williams insisted that he had been kicked halfway down the stairs by Dale McGaughy who, he claimed, was coming after him with a razor type box opener.

On several occasions during the lengthy trial, the defense attorney asked for a mistrial. But all requests were denied by presiding Circuit Court Judge Harold Walden.

Mark McGaughy was the first witness to take the stand. The state also called Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Investigator Reed Smith, Deputy Sgt. James Mitchell, Calera police officer Billy O'Brien and ambulance driver Billy Price, who were all on the scene the night of the shooting.

Dr. Joseph Embry, from the state department of forensic sciences testified on the cause of death and Lawden Yates, an expert in firearms, reported that the weapon used was a small handgun.

That weapon has never been recovered. But Williams told the court during his testimony, that he had buried the gun in some mud outside the plant after shooting McGaughy.

Although Jackson described his client as a shy, timid man, the District Attorney brought out the fact that it was Williams' threat to "punch Mark McGaughy in the nose," which began the incident leading to his brother's death.

The three employees who witnessed the shooting were David Ponder, Willard Smitherman and Jimmy Rhodes. Other personnel from the plant who took the stand were Joe Dial, general foreman and Personnel Manager Stuart Adams.

Besides his client, Jackson's only witnesses were Allied employees Frank Martin and Leroy Johnson. The only other witness for the defense was Nellie Saunders who said she had known Williams all his life.

She described him as a "peaceful" man but admitted that he had committed a murder when he was 12 years old. That incident occurred, she said, when a man had tried to kill Williams' mother.

Asked if he had anything to say after the guilty verdict was read, Williams replied that he thought he had been treated unfairly.

The case was the sixth murder trial that Hill has prosecuted since becoming DA. All of the defendants were convicted with three receiving life sentences and one receiving the death penalty.

Winning combo

Jessica Ann Eisenberg found herself to be one of the youngest competitors in the regional 4-H Horse Show in Raleigh, South Carolina. But with Copper Easter Cloud and Wild Turkey, the Shelby County equestrienne won her share of ribbons.

Rider takes third medal

Three trips to the regional 4-H Horse Show have resulted in three medals for a member of the Shelby County 4-H Horse Club.

In addition to winning a number of ribbons, Jessica Ann Eisenberg was also awarded a silver medal in the English Showmanship class at this year's event.

One of the youngest competitors at the regionals, 12 year old Jessica qualified all three of her horses for the South Carolina show.

However, only two of the horses made the 535 mile trip to the three day event last month.

Showing her American Saddlebred Copper Easter Cloud and her pony Wild Turkey, Jessica Ann competed against the top horses and riders from 13 states.

Over 400 horses were stalled on the Raleigh State Fair Show grounds and approximately 1,800 entries were registered in the regional event.

The young rider was the only

Shelby Countian and one of 27 Alabamians to take part in the show.

Competing against 16, 17 and 18 year old riders, Jessica Ann placed 4th in the individual demonstration event with her versatile pony, Wild Turkey.

There were 17 entries in the class and only five ribbons awarded.

In a hunter showmanship event in which there were 78 entries, Jessica Ann took a 9th place ribbon with Wild Turkey, the only pony to place in the class.

At last year's show, the Shelby County rider won a gold medal in the gelding in hand class. And in 1978, the consistent winner came home with a bronze medal for taking a third in the hunter in hand event.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank the staff on second north at Shelby Memorial Hospital, all the nurses, the CC unit, the social worker and all those at the hospital who were so good to my husband, Justin Milam, during his illness.

I would especially like to thank Doctors Hall and Phillips who were very faithful in taking care of him for over 12 years.

Special thanks also go to members of the county highway department for their kindnesses, and to our other friends for the flowers and food. I appreciate the services of the pallbearers and Bolton Funeral Home.

All of you helped me and the family through a very difficult time.

Mrs. Lela Milam

National Flood Insurance Program
Proposed Flood
Elevation Determinations
AGENCY: Federal Insurance Administration, FEMA.
ACTION: Proposed Rule.
SUMMARY: Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations listed below for selected locations in the nation. These base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the flood plain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).
DATES: The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in each community.
ADDRESSES: See table below.
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Mr. Robert G. Chappell National Flood Insurance Program (202) 426-1460 or Toll Free Line (800) 424-8872 (In Alaska and Hawaii call Toll Free Line (800) 424-9080)
Federal Emergency Management Agency Washington, D.C. 20410
SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Insurance Administration gives notice of the proposed determinations of base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations in the nation, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR 67.4 (a)). These elevations, together with the flood plain management measures required by Section 60.3 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their flood plain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or Regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and their contents. The proposed base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations are:

State	City/Town/County	Source of Flooding	Location	Depth in feet above ground. *Elevation in feet (NGVD).
Alabama	Town of Vincent, Shelby County	Spring Creek/Blue Spring Branch Tributary Two	Just upstream of U.S. Highway 231 just upstream of Southern Railroad	*422 *438 *451
			Just downstream of Confluence of Tributary Two with Blue Spring Branch	*468
			Just upstream of County Highway 81 crossing of Tributary Two	*438
			Just upstream of Southern Railway crossing near Mistletoe Lane	*438

These base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the flood plain management measures that the community is required to either adopt or show evidence of being already in effect in order to qualify or remain qualified for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).
DATES: The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in each community.
ADDRESSES: See table below.
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Mr. Robert G. Chappell National Flood Insurance Program (202) 426-1460 or Toll Free Line (800) 424-8872 (In Alaska and Hawaii call Toll Free Line (800) 424-9080)
Federal Emergency Management Agency Washington, D.C. 20410
SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Insurance Administration gives notice of the proposed determinations of base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations in the nation, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 13

County fair opens

Amid the swirling lights of the midway, balloons bobbing in the air and the smell of peanuts, popcorn and hot dogs, the Shelby County Fair got under way in Columbiana Monday. The sights, sounds and fun of the fair continue through Saturday. For more news on the fair, look inside the Reporter. (Photo by Moore)

Riverchase votes 'yes' on Hoover annexation

by David Moore

"Do you favor the annexation of the property described in the notice calling for this election to the City of Hoover?" The question was posted inside the two voting booths at the information center in Riverchase.

288 voters pulled the "yes" lever. 45 pulled "no."

On September 9 the residents of Riverchase, by an overwhelming margin, voted themselves into Hoover, extending that city's limits across the Cahaba River into Shelby County. It is the second Jefferson County city to extend into this county, the other being Leeds.

A lawsuit, however, filed Monday by a man seeking to develop 50 acres of land he owns in Hoover, challenges the annexation on several grounds.

Filed by Richard O. Ramer, the suit claims that development of his planned multi-family housing project has been deadened by his inability to tap on to the 1.5 million gallon sewage treatment plant being constructed in Riverchase.

As part of the annexation agreement, Hoover is picking up the $3.5 million tab for the plant which was started by the Harbert-Equitable Joint Venture, developers of Riverchase. Harbert-Equitable is named in Ramer's suit along with the City of Hoover and the Jefferson County Commission.

Among other things, the suit claims the election was not held within the 90 limit set by the Legislature when it passed the bill calling for the election, and that Hoover did not have the authority to waive city tax increases for Riverchase residents for 15 years.

The tax exemption was provided for in the annexation agreement.

The annexation, if not nullified in court, will also give the residents of Riverchase routine police patrolling, regular garbage pickup service and a drop in their fire insurance ratings from a Class 7 to a Class 5. These benefits were to have taken effect immediately.

Nearly all the commercial development in Riverchase is located in Jefferson County. However all but six or seven of the estimated 275 families in Riverchase live in Shelby County.

The Shelby County Commission and the Pelham City Council as well as other Shelby County officials have opposed the annexation.

Dark outline shows the proposed boundaries of the proposed new Town of Saginaw. A public meeting to discuss incorporating is scheduled for September 18.

Saginaw area studies city status

There may be another new city in Shelby County's future.

Residents of the Saginaw and Camp Branch areas are getting together to study incorporating as a municipality.

A community meeting is scheduled for September 18 at the Camp Branch Community Center at 7:30 p.m.

According to Charles Seales, a spokesman for the group, the proposed city boundaries would be on both sides of highway 31 from the Rebel Drive-in on the South, almost to the Alabaster city limits on the north. It would include Longview, but would not include S I Lime or the Camp Branch church.

The name Saginaw would be chosen for the new city, since the community has had a post office with that name for many years.

County sales tax revenues go up

by Reporter Staff

The one cent county-wide sales tax is bringing in a little more money than county officials had expected. But the returns for the first two months are not considered solid enough to use for predicting the future.

The first month's collections were $133,000, and during the second month the amount went up to $181,000. Officials think the higher figure for the second month was because some of the paperwork was late during the first month, and was corrected in the second.

They are now waiting for the third month's collection, and hope to use it to get an average figure for setting up next year's budget.

Half the money goes to the county's general fund. The other half goes to the county board of education.

Staggered auto tags due to begin this fall

A 'staggered tag' registration this fall is expected to give workers in the Shelby County Probate office headaches.

It will especially inconvenience everyone who has to buy license plates for motor vehicles.

But once the new system is underway, after the first year, state officials expect it will help the public by eliminating the long tag-buying lines that traditionally occur on November 15.

Between October 1 and November 15 of this year, owners of motor vehicles should register their vehicles, as they have done in prior years.

They will pay their full year of personal property tax, and they will pay a monthly prorated portion of their annual registration fee for the period beginning October 1, 1980, to the month assigned to them for renewal. This amounts to approximately $1.08 per month on passenger cars and pickups.

This means that vehicle owners will have to make two appearances at the courthouse during the year, or mail in their notices two times, instead of one.

On the second trip, the owner will finish paying for his tag and will pay a prorated share of his personal property tax.

The schedule as set up by the state for registering vehicles is done by alphabet.

If your last name begins with A or D, you will register in January. The rest of the schedule is: February - B; March - C, E; April - F, G, N; May - H, O; June - M, I; July - P, L; August - J, K, R; September - Q, S, T; October - U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

Once this system is in use, the owners of cars and pickup trucks will buy their tags and pay their taxes in the same month every year. There will no longer be an October 1-November 15 period except for owners of heavy trucks, mobile homes, commercial and fleet vehicles.

Ralph P. Eagerton, Jr., state commissioner of revenue cautioned citizens of Alabama that penalties for failure to purchase license tags and failure to renew license tags for motor vehicles have been increased to a minimum of $15 and a maximum of $25; and possibly an additional 25 percent penalty, if a citation is issued by a law enforcement officer. These are mandatory penalties and cannot be waived by the official who issues the license plate.

Montevallo approves new program for rehabilitating DWI offenders

Montevallo's city council, Monday night, approved a program for dealing with drunk drivers that may prove to be a model for the nation.

Municipal Judge Eason Mitchell outlined a rehabilitation program that would be funded by increased fines from intoxicated drivers.

"The program we have now doesn't help the problem drinker," Mitchell said. "He'll come in once for help and then go back out, get drunk and perhaps hurt himself or someone else while driving."

Mitchell's plan calls for Les Sachs, executive director of the Regional Alcoholism Council, to be present in Montevallo one day a week to examine persons who have been found guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol. Sachs will interview each person and determine a program of rehabilitation that fits the individual. If the individual fails to cooperate he will be subject to being jailed.

"I don't know of any other program like this," Mitchell said. "Montevallo has been a leader in Alabama in drunk driving education. This may make us a pioneer in the nation," he concluded.

Fines for driving under the influence will be increased from $250 to $300 to help fund the program.

In other action Monday night, council members clarified a policy regarding city gasoline. Councilmen agreed that only city owned vehicles may obtain gasoline from the municipal gasoline pumps. When individuals are obligated to make a trip in a private car, the individual will be reimbursed at the rate of 17 cents per mile.

Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland told council members that the city had been awarded a grant to acquire two new stationary radar units.

Fire Chief Mike Mahan reported to council members that the city's Snorkel fire truck will undergo repairs and maintenance this week. He stated that the fire fighting unit will be back in service by the end of the week.

At Mahan's request, council members granted a parade permit to the fire department to hold a fire prevention parade on Saturday, October 4, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Councilman J.A. Brown, chairman of the city's finance committee distributed preliminary copies of the 1980-81 budget. Councilmen will study the document and adopt a budget during the city's next council meeting.

Complying with a request from the city's Library Board, council members nominated Dr. Lucille Griffith for another term on the board. The term for which she is nominated will expire in 1984.

An application from the Montevallo Piggly Wiggly store for an off-premises license to sell table wines was approved by a three to two vote of the council.

Public hearing next Thursday

Applications submitted for Riverchase health center

by David Armstrong

What kind of health care facility should be built in the Riverchase area of Shelby County?

That's a question many people in the area are interested in and they will have a chance to give their opinion at a public hearing next Thursday, Sept. 18, 7:30 p.m., at the Helena Elementary School.

Bill King, executive director of the Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency, said at a meeting of the group's Shelby County task force in Pelham last week that two applications to build primary health care facilities have been filed and they are currently being reviewed.

King said comments from residents of the area that will be served by the health care center will be considered in the review of the applications. One of the applications is from the Baptist Medical Centers of Birmingham, the other is a joint application by Brookwood Health Services and Shelby Memorial Hospital.

BRHSA is a non-profit organization which makes recommendations to the State Health Planning and Development Board for the need and type of health facilities in the Birmingham area, including all of Shelby County.

King said there is a need now for a primary health care facility in the Riverchase area and the Vincent-Harpersville area. He added that in the next five years there will be a need for another primary health care center in the northern part of Shelby County along highway 280, near Inverness.

The formula for the need of primary health care centers is based on one center for every 15,000 persons. There are currently more than 60,000 persons in Shelby County and only two medical centers which have primary health care facilities. Those centers are Shelby Memorial Hospital in Alabaster and the Columbiana Clinic.

Although the definition for a primary health care facility is not rigid, the basic requirements are diagnostic lab services, health education services, dental care and a medical staff.

Some members of the task force at the meeting in Pelham last week questioned certain parts of the requirements. Dr. Stacy Childs, a physician on the staff of Shelby Memorial and Brookwood Medical Center, asked King where the requirements for emergency and transportation services came from. King said they were suggestions from the federal government. He said that each requirement would be evaluated on a "where feasible" basis.

King said he believes emergency services can pay for themselves and there are examples to prove it. "You might not start off offering all services but eventually emergency and transportation services can be added," King said. He also said a local ambulance service might meet the requirement for transportation services.

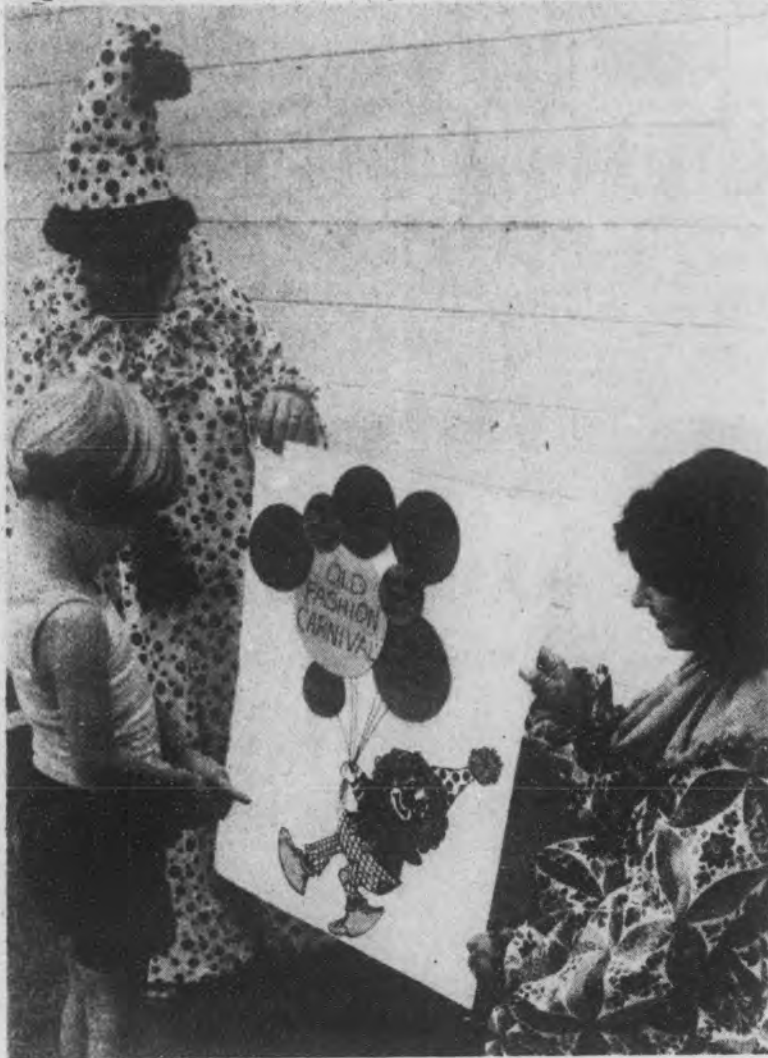

Had an application for the primary health care unit not been filed by Baptist Medical Centers of Birmingham, BRHSA's task force would have completed their work on criteria for a Riverchase center. But when an application is filed, a time limit is placed on BRHSA to review the application and make a recommendation to the state agency. The 60 day limit will end September 30 on the Baptist application.

This means that no specific criteria for the Riverchase area were set before the applications were made by Baptist and Shelby-Brookwood. As a result, the applications will differ in certain areas.

Because of possible differences in the applications, King said they will be open for public review at the Pelham city hall until September 30. Also, the public hearing on September 18 will allow applicants to present their plans for a primary health care

Steps taken to correct jail fire alarm failure

by Marcia M. Sears

A death was apparently narrowly averted in the county jail two weeks ago when an inmate set fire to his mattress.

The incident was reported at the time, but additional information came out at the County Commission meeting Monday.

W. Floyd Cole, of Cole Equipment, Inc., the company that installed the original fire warning system in the jail, told the commissioners a smoke detector failed, because there had been no inspections of the equipment since the warranty expired in May of 1979.

He said he had inquired if the sheriff wanted him to continue maintaining the system, and was told the sheriff's department would do its own maintenance.

He and his son, Barry Cole, showed the commissioners that the smoke detector nearest to the cell in question had been taken apart and all the wires cut. They had no idea how long ago that had been done. They said at one time because of overcrowding, some prisoners were housed in the hallway where that detector was installed.

The inmate who set his own it?" Mayor Dunaway facetiously noted.

Chief Watson said he hoped word would get around to truckers that Pelham is on the lookout for truck violations. He said the inspections might decrease the number of traffic accidents in the area involving trucks.

The council also discussed a request to install traffic signs, speed breakers and a street light along Creekview Drive. The request was brought before the council by a resident of the area at the last meeting.

The council decided to table the request to put a new light on the road because there are other parts of the town that do not have any street lights yet. The street light request was a result of a mailbox vandalism and some of the council members doubted the street light would inhibit vandals.

Councilmen Willard Payne and Ray Hamilton recommended that no street signs or speed breakers be placed along the street unless more of the residents of the area made the request before the council.

Chuck Gilpian of Chandalar told the council he was worried about the traffic hazards and unattractiveness of signs being put up along the roadsides in Pelham.

"They're beginning to grow like rabbits," Gilpian said.

He said the use of signs along the right-of-way obstructed intersections and that it is a violation of Pelham ordinances and state laws.

"Politicians are in the habit of tacking signs everywhere," said Gilpian.

Mayor Dunaway said the city ordinance concerning signs is being studied but he agreed that the current laws should be enforced. He said billboard ordinance enforcement has been good but the smaller signs are becoming a nuisance.

The council said the city building inspector is responsible for enforcing the ordinance. A motion was passed to instruct him to enforce the existing sign ordinance.

The council also - approved a request from Dr.

Michael Mion to re-zone parcel of land on Valleydale Road from A-1 to B-2;

- denied a request for an off-premise beer license from Elton Teer because the owners of the service station that Teer operates requested they not grant the license;

- approved a form to be used by the city for merchants requesting a license to sell wine;

- and discussed the slow progress of cable installation in the city by Cablevision Company, Inc.

Vincent names medical board to study health center plans

It will probably be a while before the Vincent-Harpersville area has a primary health center but at least something is now being done.

According to Vincent Mayor Nolen Clinkscales, Brookwood Health Services recently talked to the city council about building a primary health center in the area.

As a result of the meeting, the council appointed seven citizens of the area to serve on a Medical Clinic Board.

Serving on the board are Dr. Karen Joines, Sonny Conwill, Wayne Lowe, T. J. Florey, Francis Spates and Lallouise McGraw.

Clinkscales said the council has been trying to get some medical help for the area since the Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency said there was a need for a primary health center in that area.

"Brookwood came to talk to the city council and suggested we name a board to set objectives for the health center," Clinkscales said.

The board, he said, is looking at what kind of services the area needs, what kind of building would have to be built to house the facility and where the money for the project would come from.

Hopes are that the facility could have a full-time medical staff, dental services and possibly a pharmacy. He said the board will look at some building plans that Brookwood has in a future meeting.

Dot Scruggs was not there

In the August 28 edition of the Reporter, the story on the Wilsonville city council said Dot Scruggs was present at the meeting. The story also quoted Mrs. Scruggs.

However, Mrs. Scruggs was not at the meeting. In fact, the Reporter has learned she was out of the state on vacation. It was Councilwoman Mildred P. Jobe who was at the meeting, and who made the remarks attributed wrongly to Mrs. Scruggs.

The Reporter regrets this error and is happy to set the record straight.

Official returns confirm preliminary tally

Official returns for elections in Shelby County last week show no major change from results reported in last week's Reporter.

For Shelby County Commission, District 3, J.E. "Ned" Bearden received 2,591 votes to 2,366 for James L. (Jim) King in the Democratic primary.

The Republican primary winner for the position went to Donald R. "Don" Murphy with 1,619 votes to Jim Busbin's 951 votes.

For Shelby County Commission, District 1, James E. (Jake) Morris received 3,158 votes to Edgar L. Vick's 959 and J.V. Jones' 948.

For District Judge, incumbent Patti M. Smith received 4,490 votes to 1,124 for challenger Harry Lyon.

Shelby County voters chose to keep the probate judge and chairman of the county commission as one position, 3,092 votes to 2,335.

The north Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District decided 814 votes to 479 to change their schedule of service charges.

For Democratic nominee for U.S. Senator, Donald W. Stewart could not claim an outright victory and will face Jim Folsom, Jr. in a runoff Sept. 23. Stewart received 2,662 votes, Folsom 1,813, Finis St. John 782, and Mrs. Frank Stewart 238 in Shelby County.

Republican nominee for Senator is Jeremiah Denton, who received 1,952 votes to Armistead Selden's 1,146 here.

Billy Joe Camp took the President of the Public Service Commission from four opponents without a runoff. In Shelby County Camp had 3,006 votes, Tom Davis had 672, Gil Kendrick 482, Gene Thrasher 282 and Elmer (Buck) Dill 213.

For Republican nominee for Congressman, Seventh District, James E. "Jim" Bacon received 1,014 votes, Robert W. Shores 716 and Fulton (Mort) Gray 586.

For Shelby County Constable, Beat 17, Douglas (Doug) Bunn received 248 votes to Jim Wood's 196.

Shelby County voters helped Amendments 1 and 2 pass. They allow non-profit organizations of Jefferson and Madison counties, respectively, to hold bingo games for charitable or educational purposes. Amendment 1 passed 2,948 to 2,245 and amendment 2 passed 2,784 to 2,198.

Alabaster adding personnel to street, police departments

Both the street department and police force in Alabaster are getting some extra help.

At Thursday night's council meeting, Councilman Calvin McCune recommended hiring another man to help the street department get caught up on some work.

Although the new man is only being hired on a part time basis for the month of September, it was mentioned that he might be put on fulltime eventually.

McCune, who took his seat behind the council table for the second meeting, also told the panel that he was considering a bond issue to finance street work.

But he said he wasn't ready to "get into" the subject just yet. McCune began his term two months early after his predecessor Dan Gillis resigned.

With the football season and other fall activities now underway, the panel accepted the applications of four reserve policemen.

Three of the four council members present voted to boost the reserve force by adding Gary Coleman, Eddie Dearman, Robert Sasser and Billy Wayne Sanders.

Saying she didn't know any of the applicants, Councilwoman Mayo Taylor registered a no vote.

After discussing a $400 price increase from the lone bidder in a second round of bidding for a new police car, the panel decided to start all over again.

There was an objection from a local Ford dealer when bids were first sent out because the specifications excluded him.

So, to be fair, new specifications were drawn up and bids sent out again. However, only Eagle Chevrolet resubmitted a bid and it had a 6% increase in price.

Having looked into the matter, Councilman Roger Wheeler told the panel the dealer had reported that the manufacturer's price had gone up.

It was agreed that on the third round of bidding, a minimum of six dealers would be asked to submit proposals.

With the new budget not yet drawn up, the city's governing body didn't promise any monetary support to Bob Turberville, but did give him moral support.

Turberville is project director for the Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services. Explaining that a $4,000 cut in funds from LEPA necessitated 10% more that would have to be raised locally, Tuberville asked for a pledge of support.

He said the total amount that would have to be raised to match the two grants would be $21,795.

Calera's Christmas parade scheduled for December 13

Calera's traditional Christmas parade will be held this year on Saturday, December 13 beginning at 6 p.m.

The date and hour were finalized Tuesday, during the regular September meeting of the Calera Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the Chamber, meeting for a noon luncheon in the Civitan Building, reviewed plans for this year's Christmas event. David Downs, told the chamber that invitations have already been extended to all high school bands in the Calera area, to Paige Phillips, Miss Alabama, the Shriners, antique car owners and churches of Calera.

In other business, Kermit Roberson, president of the chamber, informed members that the Calera organization has been invited to send a representative to the State Chamber of Commerce's Small Business Committee. Roberson indicated that he would serve in that capacity.

Downs told the group that Calera can probably anticipate additional industries to locate in the Calera area as soon as Interstate Highway 65 is opened for traffic into Jefferson County.

Roberson declared the month of September to be an official membership drive month for the organization.

One car accident claims life of Wilsonville man

A 33 year old Wilsonville man was killed on Valleydale Road Sunday night in a one car accident.

Thurman Craig Wallace died shortly after his 1978 Chevrolet left the road and overturned.

According to State Trooper Wiley Bibb, who investigated the accident, Wallace was northbound when his right front wheel went off the highway.

Trying to gain control, Bibb said the driver careened to the left side of the road and overturned.

The accident occurred at 9:45 p.m. near Spain Park.

Medics from the North Shelby Fire District arrived shortly after the accident happened, but Wallace died on the scene.

Funeral services were Tuesday at Bolton Chapel with burial in Pinelawn Cemetery.

Wallace is survived by his wife Lanis; a son, Craig; parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wallace, Wilsonville.

He is also survived by four brothers, Charles, Harpersville, Edward, Birmingham, Leon, Warner-Robbins, Ga., and Dan, Wilsonville; grandmother, Mrs. Belle Spates.

Alabaster raid turns up marijuana, bi-phetamines

A Friday evening drug raid at the Stop-N-Shop store in Alabaster turned up five packets of marijuana and a small quantity of bi-phetamine capsules.

Shelby Memorial Hospital has changed some billing policies recently, according to Ken Williams, president of MMI. That is why county employees are finding different bills in their mail boxes for health care than they used to find.

The county commission asked Williams to come to the Monday meeting to explain why the county's insurance program is not covering radiology, laboratory and pathological tests as it used to.

Williams said most hospitals stopped including these services on the hospital bill about three years ago, but Shelby Memorial and a few others in the area only changed recently.

Now patients are billed separately for these services, and they are considered 'major medical' expenses. On the county's insurance policies, there is a $100 deductible for major medical.

He insisted that the coverage by his company has remained the same, but the hospital's billing policies have changed.

The commissioners agreed to a $35 deductible for county employees in the future. They also passed a motion to require a new employee to work for 30 days before being eligible for county health insurance coverage.

According to a report at the meeting, a few county employees had worked as little as a day and gone into the hospital for extensive care.

County health officer Ron Stutts reported that the immunization program was very successful and that the public was very cooperative. For the first time, the schools required immunization certificates of all children.

Stutts said the department immunized thousands of children before school started.

He also reported that the issuance of death certificates locally has been successful. A bill allowing it was passed in the last legislative session.

Stutts told the commissioners, on another matter, that he had studied serious complaints from residents of the Green Valley area south of Alabaster on the presence of animals in the subdivision.

He said that under the present laws, there is nothing that can be done about it. With no zoning regulations in the area, the health department has no authority to take action, he said.

A representative from Pabst

Blue Ribbon beer company asked permission not to place tax stamps on some 300 cases of beer. He said the company had shipped the beer in the wrong kind of bottles, and there was no place to affix the stamp. The commission agreed to the one-time request.

Ed Craig and Bob Turberville from the Youth Services and Attention Home, asked the commissioners to back a fund request.

Judge Patti Smith appeared to add her support to the need for the services to help the juveniles of the county.

The commission agreed to the request.

Bill Tucker, civil defense director, made a plea in behalf of the airport operators that the county get the new gasoline tanks installed. "The airport will have to close down if we don't get the fuel tanks in," he said.

Commissioner Harold Davenport said, "It's time we started running the airport in a businesslike manner."

A report from the county attorney was given to Tucker, saying that the county's contract with the operator required the operator to install any such tanks, not the county.

Tucker then reported on the deterioration of the plane ports. Commissioner Ned Bearden said he had asked Herman Jenkins, Jr. of Helena to look at them and Jenkins had reported new I-beams were needed. Jenkins had said patching would probably not be satisfactory.

Commissioners designated Tucker as official liaison with the airport operators.

Sealed bids were taken for the purchase of beer that had been confiscated by the county. Holcombe Shell Handi-Mart of Columbiana submitted the highest bid of $237.26.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden reported the computer department is having trouble with the Burroughs printer. A new one may be needed to cope with the auto tag season, he said.

In other matters, the commission approved the same number of temporary employees for the tax assessor and the probate office as last year.

However, a request from the tax assessor for three additional employees was not granted "until we to know for a fact that we need to."

General dissatisfaction with the way the bills are being paid was expressed by Commissioner Jake Morris who said, "I'm tired of getting a bill for something, and then a month later getting an invoice."

They agreed that the commission clerk should not pay any bills "if we don't have a purchase order prior to the bill."

When Snowden asked the commissioners to pay for some paint that the tax assessor had purchased to paint the walls of the tax reappraisal office, they said they would wait for the bill.

None of the commissioners remembered agreeing to do the painting in that office, although Snowden said he thought they had.

County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden and the four commissioners are planning to oppose the closing of the animal farm at Oak Mountain State Park.

They told the Reporter Monday that they will be sending letters to the director of the state Conservation Department and others in an effort to keep the farm open.

Snowden said the display of farm animals in their natural habitat is very valuable for children to see, and should be continued.

The state announced last month that it would be closed because of the expense of operating it.

Hackles raised

Commissioners were incensed Monday when Civil Defense director Bill Tucker related an incident regarding plumbing at the Shelby County airport.

Tucker said that a plumber called to the airport refused to do the work and bill it to the county. He wanted his money on the spot.

Tucker said he and airport operator Larry Chapman paid cash from their own pockets for the repair, and then sent in the bill to the county.

Commissioner Ned Bearden asked, "Did he say that before or after he did the work?"

"Before," Tucker replied, indicating he did not know how else to handle the situation.

Bearden and Commissioner Harold Davenport said, "You should have gotten a different plumber."

"The county always pays its bills," they emphasized.

A Florida man who was carrying a large amount of drugs and $152,000 in cash when he was stopped for a traffic violation in Helena several months ago, pled guilty to drug violation charges during the last term of circuit court.

William Henry Boykin III, was sentenced to 2½ years in the state penitentiary.

Another guilty plea for violation of the uniform controlled substances act was entered by Phillip Stanley Hope.

Twenty four marijuana cigarettes were found in Hope's possession while he was an inmate in the Shelby County jail.

Presently serving a life sentence for murder, Hope received two more years for the drug charge.

Other individuals entering guilty pleas during the circuit court session and their sentences were: James Avery Kidd, grand larceny, 3 year probation; Jo Ann Killingsworth, fraudulent use of a credit card, sentencing set for Oct. 9; Elijah G. Foster, leaving the scene of an accident, 6 months, suspended.

Other defendants pleading guilty and receiving sentences were: Scott MacAllister, issuing worthless check, to be sentenced Oct. 9; Milton Smith, receiving stolen property, fined $250; Larry Sloma, 8 counts, fraudulent use of credit card, 1 count forgery, 5 years.

Michael Hall pled guilty to VAUSA, 2 years; Carol Williams pled guilty to the same charge, fined $250 and William Lee Smith confessed guilt to an assault with intent to ravish, 8 years.

Harry Lyon withdrew as attorney of record for Matthew David Bullock. Cecil Matthews was appointed to take his place.

Bullock is charged with two counts of burglary, three counts of escape and one count of arson.

Two more indictments were recently issued in the continuing investigation of a theft ring which may have multi state connections.

Edward Stephen McCurdy of Pensacola, Fla. and David Southerland of Birmingham were recently indicted by a Shelby County Grand Jury.

Wilsonville resident Jane Templin was indicted several months ago.

One of the places hit by the ring was Becky's Interiors in Calera where furniture valued in excess of $20,000 was stolen.

The case is one in a series being investigated by a White Collar Crime Unit and the FBI.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I got a busy signal. I got one ten minutes before. And ten minutes before that. It's always that way when I'm in a hurry. And I was in a big hurry.

But I didn't give up. If I had planned to, I'd have done it when the lady came by carrying a two-year-old who was yelling to another two-year-old three miles away in the lingo only two-year-olds understand.

She poked the little fellow toward me, noise and all, and I took him and slipped him a candy kiss. He nestled closer and got as quiet as the inside of a well.

She dialed a number and go it and talked five minutes and hung up and took Junior and left. He started bawling again. The racket came back up the street sounding like folks walking on wooden shoes.

I waited another two minutes. Before I'd finished dialing I heard a clicking racket. And then a little buzzing sound, over and over, like water dripping in an empty tub.

Two boys came by bouncing a basketball. One sat on the ball in a little shade and the other dialed a number. He came out of the booth after a little and they went on down the street. One dropped the ball and it rolled out onto the street. He went after it and a car brushed him. The driver started to stop but a dozen cars began honking and he drove on. The boy came back, rubbing the seat of his pants.

I looked at my watch. It was 11:50. In ten minutes the folks would come out of the office building across the street, heading for a lunch counter two blocks down. Half of 'em would use the phone.

I dialed again. I was getting a little impatient. There was only the little buzzing noise.

A lady stopped her car at the curb and got out. She had a solid white poodle. He got out too, hunting a bush, and found a boxwood. After a minute they got back in. He stuck his head out the window and barked at me.

I looked at my watch again. It was 12:30. I would try one more time. The little clicking racket didn't sound. I waited.

"Hello," a voice sounded.

"Is Leona there?" I said.

There was a little pause. Then:

"I'm sorry, but you have the wrong number."

You know what's wrong with women's clothing? There aren't any pockets.

Well, hardly ever anyway.

Every time I cover an event I have to carry a minimum of four items, and if I move about I usually misplace at least one of them.

Today I happen to be wearing my one pair of slacks with pockets. But they're not big enough to hold anything but my car keys.

So, if I have to take a picture, at least I'll have a place to stash them. But I'll still have to put my notebook and pen down someplace.

And most likely, my pen will slip out of the notebook unnoticed and I'll have to borrow one to get down whatever information I'll need.

One item I've given up on is a lens cover for my camera.

I used to have one, but every time I'd take it off it would get lost.

On one occasion when I couldn't remember what I'd done with it, a council member of a city I cover, told me he'd found it after a meeting.

For a month or two, every time he'd see me, he'd snap his fingers and say, "Oh, I forgot your lens cover again."

The day after he finally got it to me, it disappeared and I still haven't found it.

But I did manage to hang onto one that belonged on a camera I borrowed the other day. Well, I really didn't "hang on," to the little gadget - it kind of stuck to me.

While getting some information from a department I regularly cover, a picture possibility suddenly appeared. And I wasn't prepared.

So someone loaned me a

Governor sets

'Rehab month'

September is 'Vocational Rehabilitation Month' in the state of Alabama.

Governor Fob James signed a proclamation designating it as such on August 14. Part of the proclamation reads, "Dedicated and various persons working in the rehabilitation process need the informed cooperation and support of the total community to achieve positive impact upon the quality of life of persons who are disabled."

People pitch in when need felt

Letter to the Editor:

Like most communities in Shelby County, when someone or something is in trouble, the people respond. That has been the case in the communities of Dogwood, Maylene, Moores Cross Roads, and Spring Creek where the people were left without fire protection after the SHELCO Fire District was voted out.

As a result, the people called a meeting at the Dogwood Community Center and voted to start a new volunteer fire department, with new officers and trustees. That's when the ball started rolling. Starting from nothing but an empty shell of a fire hall (even the garage door was gone) the people donated their time, equipment and money to build a fire department their community would be proud of.

For example, one man used his bulldozer to grade the washed out driveway, a dumptruck was borrowed to haul in gravel which was donated to put on the driveway, another donated concrete for an entrance ramp for the fire hall, yet another donated steel garage doors for the fire hall. The list could go on and on, not to mention the hours of labor put in by the end of the community.

While these things were happening the fire department officers and trustees were also at work. At the first meeting thirty-six men joined the fire department as volunteer firemen. The trustees had the fire department incorporated and the official name became the Dogwood Fire Department, Inc. The officers and trustees located a good firetruck, a 1963 International with a 750 gallon tank and a pumping capacity of 750 gallons per minute. The people of the community purchased the fire truck and it was delivered to the fire hall on Sept. 4.

The story will not stop here, the people of the community have joined together to make their fire department work, and it will work. Of course, more equipment is needed, but the officers and trustees are working on getting that equipment. I would like to state that I am proud of this, my community and of the response and concern of its' people.

If you live in one of the communities mentioned above and would like to be a part of the positive effort to help your community contact me or one of the Dogwood Fire Department members for further information.

Third party heritage is losing

John Anderson's independent bid for the White House places him in the company of a long line of presidential contenders dating back to 1832 who campaigned outside the two-party system. Though many of these politicians achieved considerable sway over the course of American history, few of them--very few--were successful at the polls.

The name James B. Weaver hardly springs to mind today, but in the 1892 presidential contest, he campaigned against the gilded grip that many felt Eastern bankers and industrialists then held on the nation's economy. A general in the Union Army during the Civil War, Weaver was a popular figure whose platform and influence during the election sparked wide interest for the first time in an agenda of progressive reforms. And yet, Weaver, a Populist, came in third place with 9 percent of the vote, losing to the Democratic candidate, Grover Cleveland.

More recently, of course, George Wallace captured the attention of the press and voters with his "common man" themes, but he, too, fared no better than third with 14 percent of the 1968 popular vote.

"With rare exceptions, third-party and independent candidates have been irrelevant to the outcome of presidential elections," according to Frederick S. Voss, a historian at the Smithsonian National Portrait Gallery and a contributor to Every Four Years, a new book about the presidency. "But they still keep on running," Voss says, "some simply as a lark and others in dead earnest."

Perhaps what motivates the also rans are, in fact, those rare exceptions. The Republican party, the party Anderson sidestepped to run on his own this year, is after all "the greatest success story in the history of American third parties," Voss points out.

Founded in 1854 in a rural Wisconsin church by dissatisfied Whigs and Democrats, the Republicans by the election of 1856 had become a major party on the strength of their anti-slavery platform. And just four years later, the Republicans attained the dream of all minor parties--the election of a president, no less than Abraham Lincoln.

In the 1884 election, some historians say, a Prohibitionist candidate was one of the decisive forces in electing the Democratic nominee. This is what happened: In pivotal New York state, John Pierce St. John (the Prohibitionist) tallied 25,016 votes--largely drawn from Republican ranks. In so doing, he took just enough support away from the GOP's controversial nominee, James G. Blaine, to tip the Empire state and ultimately the presidency to Cleveland.

One other rare case: Teddy Roosevelt's 1912 "Bull Moose" campaign against his old political protege, William Howard Taft, proved a far cry from the usual third-party effort. Roosevelt, who had come to view Taft as a traitor to the Republican progressive spirit, actually outpolled Taft but not the Democratic nominee Woodrow Wilson, who entered the White House with a vote total less than the combined tally of the two old political allies, 6.3 million votes to 7.6 million.

NSCFD wins scaled rate hike

by David Moore

Until last week there was a question as to whether fire dues in the North Shelby County Fire District would be increased. But on September 2 the voters in the district approved an increase by a margin of 814 to 479.

Now the question is this: just how much will the increases be? The increase was approved to allow the fire district to pick up the rental tab on hydrants connected to the Birmingham Water Works system. Originally the rentals were paid by developers who had a three year contract with the BWW. With those contracts now running out, had the district not voted to pay the rent, individuals would have had to pay it.

Complicating matters is the fact that the BWW hiked the yearly rent from $50 per plug to $250 per plug. Several individuals and fire districts in Shelby and Jefferson Counties have filed a class action suit against Birmingham's water board saying it arbitrarily and unjustly hiked the rates.

According to the NSCFD trustee Jack van Pelt, the new rate increase will be at least $5 per house which is on the Birmingham system. The $5 surcharge will cover a plug rental increase of up to $90 or less, he said, explaining that a $90 increase would be in line with rental increases effected in South Jefferson County.

Van Pelt said that the dues increase approved by the residents was on a sliding scale between $5 and $21. The final amount of the increase is therefore contingent upon the outcome of the law suit. If the BWW hike of $250 makes it past the courts the added surcharge will be the maximum $21.

The case is not expected to come up before the end of the year, however, and yearly fire bills are due to go out October 1.

Right now three possible courses of action are open, he explained.

First, although not too likely, is an injunction against the water works preventing the full increase until the question is settled in court.

Second, the board can assume the worst and add the full $21 surcharge, a course looked on unfavorably by the NSCFD board of trustees.

Third, there's a chance that the BWW will delay the increase itself until the issue is settled in court.

"I don't know how we're going to work it, to be quite honest about it," van Pelt said. "We're going to have to get a decision in the next couple days from our counsel."

Man with dual identity charged in weekend rape

A man living in Columbiana under a false name was arrested for the rape of an Alabaster convenience store clerk Saturday.

The clerk had just opened for business Saturday morning when a man entered the store and pulled a pocket knife on her. She said he forced her into the back of the store and raped her.

The rape was reported to the Alabaster police who sent out a description of the suspect to other area law enforcers.

Meanwhile, Mrs. John Henry Mitchum of Columbiana, whose husband worked in Hoover, but had failed to come home the night before, filed a missing persons report with the Hoover police.

The HPD notified Sgt. Detective Larry Rollan in Alabaster that Mitchum's description fit that of the rape suspect. Rollan went to Columbiana, found Mitchum had returned home, and placed him under arrest.

Further investigation revealed, much to the surprise of Mrs. Mitchum, that her husband of some three months was apparently a Roberto Valdez, 34, who was wanted by authorities in Florida for parole violation on a charge of assault with intent to rape.

Tuesday Valdez was being held at Shelby County jail under a $25,000 bond for charges of first degree rape. He will also have to return to Tallahassee County, Florida and face charges there for parole violation.

Valley retiree honored by boss

When Valley Mills plant manager Frank Brasher started working at the Columbiana textile mill while he attended SCHS, one of his fellow workers was Alex "Buster" Fluker.

That was in 1955. Now the 67 year old Shelby man is retiring and Brasher had the pleasure of presenting his old friend with a retirement check last week.

The two men had worked together in shipping and receiving. Fluker was also a humidifier man at one time and his last position was pindrafter operator.

Now that the retiring mill worker will have more free time, he says he plans to do more fishing and hunting.

And with fall approaching, Fluker will be spending a good part of each day in the woods hunting his favorite game, which he says is turkey.

Health care fight facility and the public will be able to ask questions and make comments on the applications. Comments by the public will be considered by the BRHSA's board of directors when making their decision.

Recommendations will then be made to the State Health Planning and Development Board which will make the final decision on the applications.

Since the Riverchase area will only support one primary health care facility, there will be a lot riding on the decision of the regional and state agencies.

If one of the applications is approved, the operator of the primary health care facility will have direct contact with the many residents of the north Shelby County area. That means many of the patients needing more than out-patient type care will probably be referred to the mother hospitals of the facility.

Also at stake is the availability of health care for persons in the heavily populated area.

Retirement honored

Frank Brasher, plant manager at Valley Mills in Columbiana, presents a retirement check to Alex "Buster" Fluker, who started working at the mill in 1955.

Cancer answer line gets heavy response

Response to the opening of the toll-free Alabama Cancer Information Service headquartered in Birmingham has been so great that additional volunteers are needed, the director of the service says.

"The people of Alabama have spoken. They need quick, accurate information on cancer and community services for patients and are seeking it through the Alabama CIS," according to Lorraine Graves, who heads the joint project of the American Cancer Society's Alabama Division and The University of Alabama in Birmingham's Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Many callers also are asking for some help in coping with the psychological burdens of cancer or the fear of cancer in themselves or relatives or friends, says Ms. Graves. Telephone volunteers are trained to provide counseling service to callers.

Applications for the four-hour-per-week volunteer positions are being taken at the CIS offices, 2620 Green Springs Hwy., Birmingham, 35205. For information, call 934-6614.

The CIS line is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. The toll-free number is 1-800-292-6201.

Adult reading taught at TMS

An adult basic education class will begin at Thompson Middle School Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 4 p.m.

According to Evelyn Adams of the county board of education, the classes will place special emphasis on reading. It is also designed to help persons who quit school before completing the eighth grade and persons who are interested in studying for the GED test.

Adams said all interested persons should register for the class Tuesday. There are no fees and all books are furnished.

For more information call 663-7796 after 5 p.m.

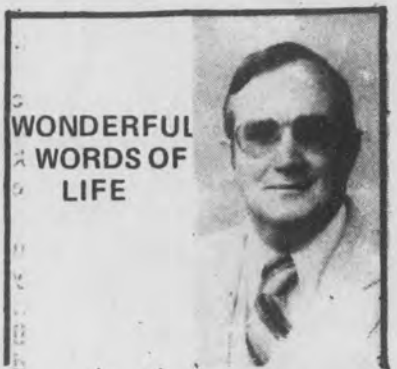

Thompson PTA

studies courses

Parents will hear about the curriculum their child will be studying this year at Tuesday evening's PTA meeting at Thompson Elementary School.

The budget will also be discussed at the 7 p.m. meeting, and school personnel and PTA board members will be introduced.

Fourth and fifth grade students will be participating in the program which is to be held in the school cafeteria.

Some People Who Failed Jesus

Many people failed Jesus when He was here on earth. Even His disciples failed Him. "From that time, many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him." (John 6:66).

The Lord could not depend on King Herod. His hands were red with blood; he wanted no successor to his throne. And, he tried to kill Jesus (Matthew 2). Many today are guilty of this very thing; Jesus cannot depend upon them because of selfishness.

The Lord could not depend upon Judas. He sold the Lord for thirty pieces of silver, and betrayed Him with a kiss of mockery (Matthew 26:14-16). Jesus cannot depend upon many today, for they are also covetous-minded like Judas.

The Lord could not depend upon Governor Pilate. Christ was brought before Pilate for trial for His life. Pilate made his decision; he wanted to be popular with the people. Though he tried to be neutral, Jesus was condemned. Many cannot be depended on by Christ today, for they love popularity. But, there is no neutral ground, he that is not with Christ is against Him (Matthew 12:30).

The Lord could not depend on His own people. "He came to his own, but his own received him not." (John 1:11) They thought Christ was too common. Some feel that they need some other guidance. They therefore place creeds and opinions of preachers on the same level of authority as the Bible.

Dear reader, can the Lord depend upon you to do His will?

EVERYONE IS WELCOME!

DID YOU KNOW?

We read 98% of our customers' meters each month.

That means only about 2% ever get estimated. And that only happens because of factors beyond the company's control, such as locked gates and doors, and inclement weather. When it is impossible to read a meter, the company will estimate the meter reading. And any difference between the estimated usage and the actual usage is corrected when the meter is read the next month. We always try to avoid estimating anyone's reading for two months in a row. But in any case, no customer ever ends up paying for more, or less, electricity than is actually used.

Over 150 friends and relatives joined 15 hostesses to honor Miss Vickie Glasgow of Alabaster last Sunday. Miss Glasgow is the bride-elect of Mr. Ivy Penhale of Helena.

Satin roses brightened the registry table where Miss Laurie Glasgow welcomed the guests.

Those serving were Lynn Hall of Columbiana, Cathy Hutchison of Alabaster, Debbie Penhale of Helena and Debbie Williams of Montevallo.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Buddy Glasgow of Alabaster, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Sonny Penhale of Helena were in attendance for the festive occasion.

Hawaii - vacation place? For Leman Warren of Helena it's a place to mix business and pleasure. Mr. Warren, after working for S.H. Kress for 41 years, plans to retire in January. For the past three years he has managed the Alabaster store. When I asked Keith Kilgore, the new manager of that store, if Mr. Warren's recent transfer was a generous retirement present or purely chance, he said he wasn't sure. For whatever reason Leman Warren's neighbors are looking forward to January. Then they're expected to see alot of pineapples and coconuts and hear vivid stories of his stay in Hilo, Hawaii.

The Coosa Town Reelers will host a 'Get Together' at the Columbiana Community Center Saturday night. Over 100 dancers from their club and other clubs in the area are expected to attend. Anyone interested in square dancing is invited to join the Reelers Saturday night at 7.

New square dance classes start at the community center September 18, and will be taught by Kevin Mullins of Helena. Kevin is a certified teacher of the Birmingham Square Dance Association.

Anyone interested in the Coon Town Reelers or square dance lessons should call the club's president Harvey McHan at 669-9938.

Dave and Marguerite Watson of Pelham recently traveled with their daughter and her husband, Cynthia and Billy Hill, to Rome, Georgia. There they picked up their two year old granddaughter, Mandy Watson and headed to Marguerite's brother's home in Marietta. While visiting with Ken and Karen Wilson the family enjoyed setting around the pool and watching Mandy splash in the water. Marguerite said she was so eager to learn to swim that she kept sneaking off her life preserver. Then when caught, in her toddler voice would say 'O'clay O'clay'. The Watsons have several trips planned to visit this young aggressive granddaughter and hope to bring her to Pelham soon.

Blankenships have new son

Mark Lance was the name given to the 6 lb. 11 1/2 oz. son of Stanley and Janice Blankenship of the Camp Branch community.

The baby was born Aug. 14 at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Blankenship of Camp Branch and Mr. and Mrs. Yoshiharu Shimatsu of Kekaha Kauai, Hawaii.

The maternal grandparents are now in Alabama visiting their new grandson.

The Columbiana Extension Homemakers Club recently held their annual picnic. The ladies met at the state 4-H center. Fifty seven members and guests were on hand as president Joyce Jones presented the camp director, Mrs. Terrell Guthrie with a large dinner bell.

The ladies meet the third Tuesday morning of each month and discuss such topics as geneology, powder puff mechanics and macrame.

During their next meeting they are planning a banquet for the residents of Briarcliff Nursing Home in Alabaster.

Anyone in the Chelsea, Columbiana and Shelby areas who would like to join this group is inited to call Mrs. Jones at 669-7764.

Our girls have become attached to the great outdoors since our trip to the Smokies. Last week on one of our trail walks Jennifer found what she called a 'Tarzan vine'. After gleefully swinging through the trees she looked back to make sure she had an attentive audience. In that split second Jennifer found her leg wrapped around a small pine. As my youngest daughter, Janie, looked on with a smug smile I applied some first aid of motherly love and sympathy.

When we returned home Jennifer ran ahead to tell her father about our walk and how like Tarzan she had swung through the trees. Janie walked in just in time to hear how impressed her father was. Doing her best to hold back a giggle she solemnly added 'But this Tarzan fell down!' Until next week I'll be seeing you 'around the county!'

If you have any news of social interest please call Becky at 669-9535.

Safe driver

Montevallo Postmaster Warren Fowler (l.), presents the Million Mile Safe Driving award to Doyle Payne who has been a mail carrier since 1951.

Mailman drives safely for one million miles

A Montevallo mail carrier has had some frightening experiences and some humorous incidents in the 29 years he's delivered mail. But he's never had an accident. And he's driven a million miles on his route over county roads.

In recognition of that achievement, Doyle Payne was awarded the One Million Mile Safe Driver's Award last week.

Payne says he logs 78 miles every day as he puts mail in boxes along Rt. 1 in Brierfield and Wilton and Rt. 3 Montevallo.

He remembers one time when a little girl left two kittens in her mail box on her way to the store. But she forgot to pick them up when she returned home, Payne said.

Opening the box the next morning, the postal employee recalled his surprise when the furry creatures leaped out.

On another occasion, Payne related that he'd had a different kind of fright.

Driving along in an isolated area, the mail carrier suddenly found his way blocked by a pickup truck across the road.

Feeling apprehensive because there had been several robberies in the area, Payne said he was trying to decide what he should do when the driver turned around and drove off.

Although there have been days when the weather has made driving difficult, it has never kept him from running his route, Payne noted.

He gets satisfaction from what he does, the mail carrier remarked, noting that he knows most of his customers and enjoys seeing them as he makes his deliveries.

Expressing pride in Payne's accomplishment, Postmaster Warren Fowler noted that the award recipient is the senior employee in the Montevallo Post Office.

Republicans open office in north end of county

The Shelby County Volunteer Center for presidential candidate Ronald Reagan and vice-presidential candidate George Bush welcomed the public at a grand opening ceremony held Saturday in Pelham. The headquarters is located at 2163 Highway 31 South, approximately 1 mile north of the Highway 119 junction on Highway 31.

Pelham Mayor Burke Dunaway cut the ribbon in the presence of a large crowd. Several candidates were present, Jim Bacon, 7th District U.S. House of Representatives; Ray Ledbetter, District Attorney; A.E. Etress, Shelby County Commission, District 1; and Don Murphy, Shelby County Commission, District 3.

Bill Harris, one of the state co-chairman of the Reagan-Bush Committee announced that David Bradley has been named Shelby County Chairman of the Reagan-Bush Volunteer effort. Bradley stated, "In the two weeks that the headquarters has been open, Republicans, Independents and disillusioned Democrats have been contacting us expressing their willingness to volunteer to work in the Reagan-Bush Campaign."

Alabama and Shelby County are very important to the Reagan-Bush Campaign effort. Volunteers are invited to call the Reagan-Bush Volunteer Center at 987-7070.

Home on leave

Job Corps trainee Kathy Moore is enjoying a short leave with her family in Columbiana. Here she chats with Beulah Whatley, coordinator for Women in Community Service.

Trainee learns house painting

Kathy Moore has no qualms about climbing up a ladder or onto a scaffold to paint a house or commercial building.

While growing up in Columbiana, the Job Corps trainee said she had performed the task around her home on numerous occasions.

Now the 21 year old woman is preparing for employment as a professional painter through Job Corps training in Breckenridge, Kentucky.

A 1977 graduate of SCHS, Moore has been involved in the program for a year and will complete her training in January.

She was referred to Job Corps through Women In Community Service, a local task force that provides screening and support services for the program.

Any young woman between the ages of 16 and 21 who is interested in the Job Corps program may contact volunteer Shelby County WICS coordinator, Beulah Whatley.

Her office is in room 117 of the Community Services building in Columbiana.

Whatley said that anyone interested in volunteering for the WICS program may also contact her at that location.

Quartet sings

The Crossroads Quartet will be featured at the Union Methodist Church in Westover Sept. 14.

Everyone is invited to the regular Sunday night singing. The church is located on county hwy. 51, just off hwy. 280. For more information call Sharon Dew at 668-2127.

JOHN MILLER

Baptists choose youth director

John Miller of Montevallo recently accepted a position with the University Baptist Church as part-time youth director.

Miller is 24 years old, a graduate of Montevallo High School and has completed three years in the social work program at the University of Montevallo.

He has served as youth director for more than a year at Liberty Hill Baptist Church in Clanton and for two years at Siluria Baptist Church. Miller led the youth in both churches to more active participation and spiritual growth, according to church officials.

Westover church

sets homecoming

The Westover Church of God will celebrate homecoming Sunday, Sept. 14.

Special singers for the day will be the Pilgrims of Talladega. Pastor Thomas Wood welcomes everyone to the event. For more information call Torey Wood at 249-8989.

Drive underway to drum up support

Local Republicans are organizing "Home Parties" for this Saturday, September 13.

The purpose is to gather up to a dozen people in homes to watch a CBS telecast featuring Ronald Reagan.

The local effort is part of a massive nationwide drive to identify and motivate Reagan supporters.

Curtis Jones of north Shelby County said anyone who is interested in being host to a party or in donating a few hours to the campaign should call 987-7070.

Jones and his wife will host such a party at their home, 2169 Bailey Brook Drive.

The Triumphants of Adamsville will be guest singers at Mt. Era United Methodist Church at 1:30 p.m., Sept. 14.

Robert Moore is chairman of the afternoon singing. For more information call Georgia Glover at 663-3298.

Singers brighten day for Briarcliff group

"Something Good," came to Briarcliff Nursing Home in Alabaster Sunday afternoon.

And judging from the response of residents, the singing group from Camp Branch United Methodist Church was the bright spot of their afternoon.

The teenagers and some younger members from the church were part of the Grandparents' Day program.

This is the first year that the occasion has been observed at Briarcliff and residents got ready for the event by making posters.

Carrying out the theme of the day, pink and blue silhouettes of children were placed on the tables in the dining room.

Activities for the day began at 9 a.m. when Sunday School was held.

In the evening, a deaf choir from a Montgomery church sang for the nursing home's residents.

The musical program during the afternoon's worship was followed by a brief devotion by Methodist pastor Larry Adcock.

SUBJECTIVISM

SUBJECTIVISM is "a doctrine that individual feeling is the ultimate criterion of the good and the right." This is a popular doctrine, and accepted by many people as the basis of their relationship to God. This is done, even though "the way of man is not in himself: it is not in man who walks to direct his own steps." (Jer. 10:23).

OBJECTIVE TRUTH describes God's revealed word, and gives the ultimate criteria of the good and the right. We are not approved by God because of how we feel, or because we think we have had some sort of subjective experience. (Prov. 14:12; Mt. 7:21-23).

OUR FAITH is produced by the word of God, and made effective by obeying it. (Rom. 10:17; James 2:20-24). Penitent believers must be immersed into Christ, into his church. (Rom. 6:3-4; 1 Cor. 12:13; Col. 1:18). Thus, we are "born again".

GOD-APPROVED worship, service and personal behavior are accomplished by obeying God's word; as it applies to us. (1 Thess. 2:13; 2 Tim. 3:16,17). Pelham Church of Christ invites You To Worship With Us

Studying text

Students studying Distributive Education at the Area Vocational Center will be learning to arrange display windows like the one behind Tracy Allen, Donna Cole, Debbie Pair and Teresa Poe.

Hands-on experience

Learning the fundamentals of operating a cash register are DE students Ramona Wright, Lenice Champion, Tammy Rhoden, Helen Moore and Karen Bradberry.

Students try out job choice during Voc Center course

Students who are considering a career in a field involving distribution will be able to get some on the job training this year.

A course in Distributive Education is being offered at the Area Vocational Center which provides both classroom instruction and an opportunity for employment.

Twenty eight seniors from nearly every high school in the county signed up for the first semester of the course being taught by Betty Fulton.

Participants will spend 300 hours at the center, Fulton reported, and in November will begin working two days a week.

The businesses in which students will be placed include: department stores, banks, fast food operations, variety stores, service stations and supermarkets.

In the classroom, the students will receive instruction in subjects such as window display, management, human relations, merchandising, finance and credit, advertising and economics.

Business owners who provide an opportunity for a student to work will receive tax credit, Fulton said, mentioning that anyone interested should call her at the vocational center.

The following students are enrolled in the morning class: Daphnie Battle, Pelham; and Thompson students, Melissa Berlin, Leslie Booth, Renee Carrall.

Others from Thompson are Chandra Hawkins, Wendy Hooks, Susan Headly, Scott Holcombook, Kim Lavendar, Joan Lawley, Linda Lawley, Jannette Massey and Gena Woods.

Enrolled in the afternoon class are: Tracy G. Allen, Karen Bradberry, Lenice Champion, Donna Cole, Helen Moore, Teresa Poe, Debbie Pair, Tammy Rhoden, Terri White and Ramona Wright, Chelsea.

Valerie Anderson, Mary Naugher, Montevallo; Sonja Johnson, Jackie Taylor, and Tim Underwood, Calera.

A success story

Center caters to kids

by David Armstrong

They've got special school buses, special teachers, special equipment, special courses, Everything around them is special -- they are special.

"They" are a group of 34 children, age five to 21, attending the Shelby County School for Exceptional Children in Columbiana. And "they" come from all parts of Shelby County.

While many children take their education for granted, it's obvious to anyone who walks into the center that most of the children there really enjoy and appreciate what is being done for them.

The children in the center all have some type of problem which prevents them from attending classes in regular schools, but that doesn't prevent them from having fun and learning.

Problems range from orthopedic disabilities to spinal meningitis. The list of problems is as long as the number of children in the school. Many of the children are mentally alert but for some reason, such as confinement to a wheelchair, cannot attend a regular school. Other children cannot take care of their own physical needs and must have constant assistance from teachers and aides.

According to Beverly Hall, principal of the center, the goal of the 14 member staff is to help the children reach their potential -- a goal not unlike that of other schools in the county.

For some children, learning to use the restroom unassisted is an accomplishment. For others, overcoming the difficulty that prevents them from attending a regular school is reaching a goal.

Still, with the problems that most of the children have, they seem to enjoy the attention they receive and the training offered.

There are four classrooms in the center where the children are placed according to their problem and age.

In the pre-vocational class children ages 12-21 are taught. For the younger children, the hope is that they can eventually be placed in a special class in the regular schools. For the older children the goal might be to prepare them for work in a sheltered workshop where they can be taught a skill.

Other classrooms deal with the children on a similar basis -- examining their specific problems and trying to develop them to a point that they can function to the maximum level that their problems will allow them.

Entering one of the classrooms, one might be greeted by the strong scent of perfume, the uplifting sound of music and the sight of children fondling objects. According to the teachers, the purpose of the exercise is to help the children be aware of and enjoy their senses.

In another class, one might see ten or more children rolling on the floor, playing on special equipment and crawling up a ladder-like board. In this room a trained physical therapist works with the children who have orthopedic problems.

Each class is different, catering to the individual needs of the children.

But in every class there is a common denominator. The children know they are cared for and loved, and the teachers are patient and concerned.

Bear helps out

Gina Whatley, speech therapist for the Shelby County School for Exceptional Children works with Candy Blackmon on object identification lessons. Candy has orthopedic problems in addition to speech and hearing problems. The friendly looking bear in the background has electronic devices which allows him to talk to the students during sessions.

Legislator speaks to Optimists

The newly organized North Shelby Optimist Club is very optimistic about attaining their projected membership of 35 Shelby County men by September 30.

The club, which meets every Tuesday at 6:30 at Shoney's in Pelham, has already elected temporary officers. Acting chairman is Terry L. Ledford, secretary-treasurer is Steve Ailshie, Curtis P. Mitchell is attendance chairman, Fred S. Williams is in charge of membership and Michael J. Seghers is by-laws chairman.

State Representative J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner will be guest speaker at the meeting this Tuesday.

Mayors Burk Dunaway, Charles Penhale and Mayor-elect Doc Rubin spoke at the last meeting on the topic of how civic clubs benefit their respective towns of Pelham, Helena and Alabaster. The mayors also made suggestions for youth projects the Optimists might want to tackle in the area.

Further information on the new club can be obtained by calling A.J. Benintende, Jr., at 823-1385 or 321-2869.

Out of a wheelchair

Susan Carner is a success story, according to Beverly Hall, principal of the Shelby County School for Exceptional Children. Susan has orthopedic problems which have confined her, until recently, to a wheelchair. But, as this picture shows, Susan's determination and positive attitude has allowed her to progress to a walker.

Rehab service

gets jobs for 75

Approximately 75 handicapped residents of Shelby County were employed during the current fiscal year with the help of Vocational Rehabilitation Services.

Both a state and federal agency, the service is available to persons who are physically, mentally or emotionally disabled.

In addition to providing medical treatment, VR also offers counseling, and both job training and placement.

Trainees at Workshop, Inc., are shown how to work by completing tasks which are provided through a cooperative effort of the facility and local businesses and industry.

The Siluria facility has been in operation two years and has places for about 20 trainees at a time.

Job placement in competitive settings are arranged when trainees complete the Workshop training program.

For information about the Workshop, call 663-1761 or the VR offices in the Community Services building, 669-9398.

Home 'garden'

leads to jail

Growing your own garden is one way a lot of families cut down on their personal expenses. But taken beyond the law, on Alabaster couple found out that the backyard garden can land you in jail.

James O. Goff, Jr., 27, and his wife, Annita Ann, 26, were arrested Sunday afternoon by Alabaster police for violation of the state's drug laws. Growing in back of their house at 740 Ball Park Road were 20 marijuana plants 6-7 feet tall.

Sgt. Detective Larry Rollan figured the plants would weigh out to 20 pounds of pot and estimated its street value at $8,000.

Goff claimed he was growing the marijuana for his own personal use, Rollan said.

CB&T reshuffles as FNBB takes control

Victor Scott of Montevallo was elected president of Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Alabaster at a recent meeting of the board.

He was also selected to continue as chairman of the board.

The board of directors named Carl F. Grimes executive vice president and chief executive officer. The appointments are effective September 15.

Grimes comes to Citizens from the First National Bank of Birmingham.

He began his banking career at First National in 1947. He has held several positions in the branch system of the bank, and currently serves in the metropolitan commercial loan department as senior vice president in charge of the John A. Hand office. He attended the University of Alabama in Birmingham and the School of Banking of the South.

Byron O. Cawthon, Jr., also from First National, is the vice president of Citizens Bank. When he joined First National in 1971, he had seven years experience at other Alabama banks. He is currently a branch officer and assistant manager at the West End branch. He is a graduate of Auburn University.

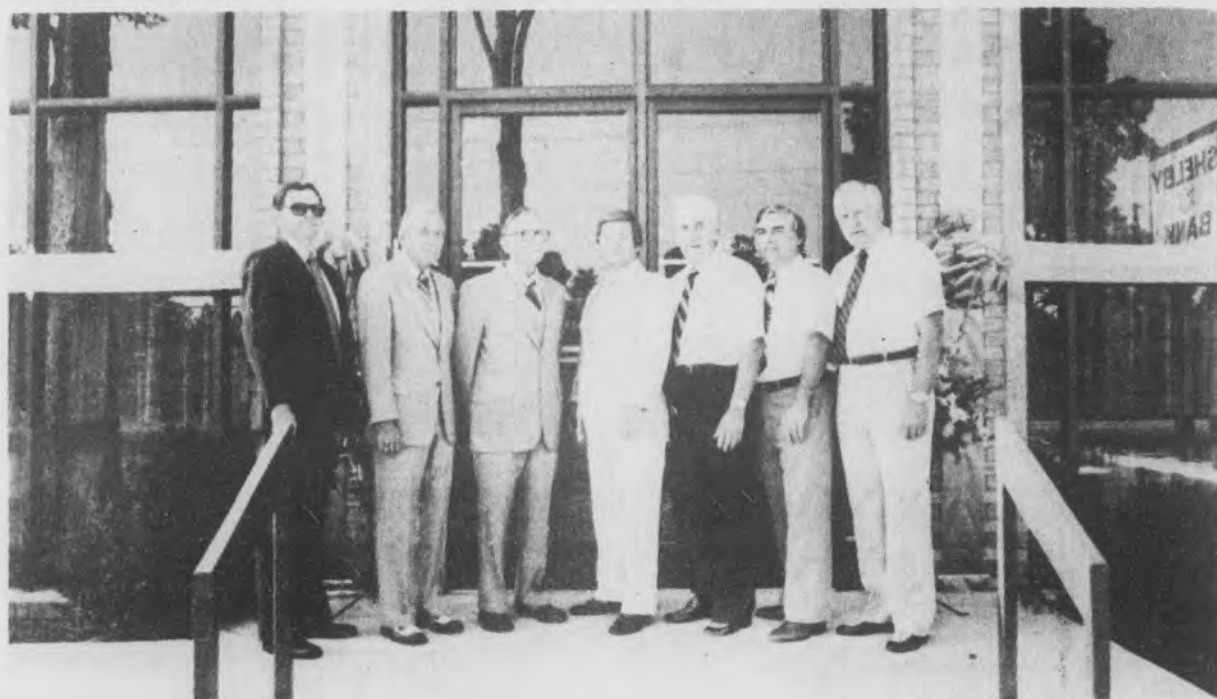

Citizens Bank and Trust Company was incorporated in 1976, and at June 30, 1980, had total assets of $7.3 million. As previously announced, Alabama Bancorporation has received approval from the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta of its application to acquire Citizens Bank. The affiliation is now subject to the approval of other regulatory agencies and the bank's shareholders.

At June 30, 1980, Alabama Bancorporation, the state's largest bank holding company, had $2.7 billion in total assets. The First National Bank of Birmingham, lead bank of the holding company, and 16 other bank affiliates serve Alabama through 97 offices. Two bank-related affiliates, Alabanc Financial Corporations and Engel Mortgage Company, Inc., have 26 offices throughout the Southeast.

Grand opening

City, bank and real estate officials participated in the grand opening of Shelby Bank's Columbiana branch last week. In front of the new facility's main entrance are (l to r) Ken Kirkland, bank president; Robert Bolton, Mayor of Columbiana; Elmer H. Davis, Davis Plaza developer; Geron Daniel, manager of the Columbiana branch; Douglas, Wayne and William Rasco shopping center developers. The opening of the branch bank marks the completion of Phase One in the development of Columbiana's Davis Plaza.

S&L sponsors estate planning

The public is invited to a free Wills and Estate Planning Seminar September 16th at 7 p.m. at the Columbiana branch of United Federal Savings and Loan Association.

This seminar will be the first in a continuing effort by United Federal to make available to the public information on money management.

Mr. Conrad Fowler, local attorney, will be the featured speaker at this seminar. The setting will be informal with plenty of time for questions and answers.

Seminars of this nature have been held in various branch offices of United Federal in the past. Most recently a seminar entitled Assets and Liabilities of Retirement was held in the North Foster Street branch in Dothan, Alabama. United Federal Savings and Loan Association is the fifth largest savings and loan in Alabama with assets in excess of $270 million.

Besides the Columbiana branch United Federal has branches in Alabaster, Eufaula, O'ark and Dothan. Staffing the local Columbiana branch is Donnie Wyatt, branch manager and Rita Akers savings counselor and teller.

An admission will be charged. The concert begins at 7 p.m. It is suggested that those interested in attending should take a lawn chair.

The event will help raise funds for the Civic Center and other projects.

Vandiver sets concert

There will be a Gospel Concert in the Park at the Vandiver Civic Center, Saturday, Sept. 13.

Featured singers will be the Something for everyone. at 1980 County Fair

Everybody loves a fair!

And why not with rides like the Para-Trooper, the Zipper, Round-Up, the Scrambler and Bubble Bounce.

But those are just for the grown-ups.

Kiddie rides include Zoomer, Moon Walk, Pony Cart, Boat Ride and the old reliable Merry-Go-Round.

This year's Shelby County Fair, sponsored by the Columbiana Kiwanis Club, got off to a great start Monday night, according to Hugh Strickland Sr.

Mid-way attractions are furnished by Mid-South shows for the first time so everything is new for Shelby Countians.

Strickland said the exhibits are very interesting this year. "Can you imagine a squash bigger than any pumpkin you have ever seen? Or, Chinese radishes half as long as your arm?" Strickland asked.

Additional room has been added for art and photography with high quality entries in both categories, Strickland said. Talent and imagination were also displayed in ceramic entries.

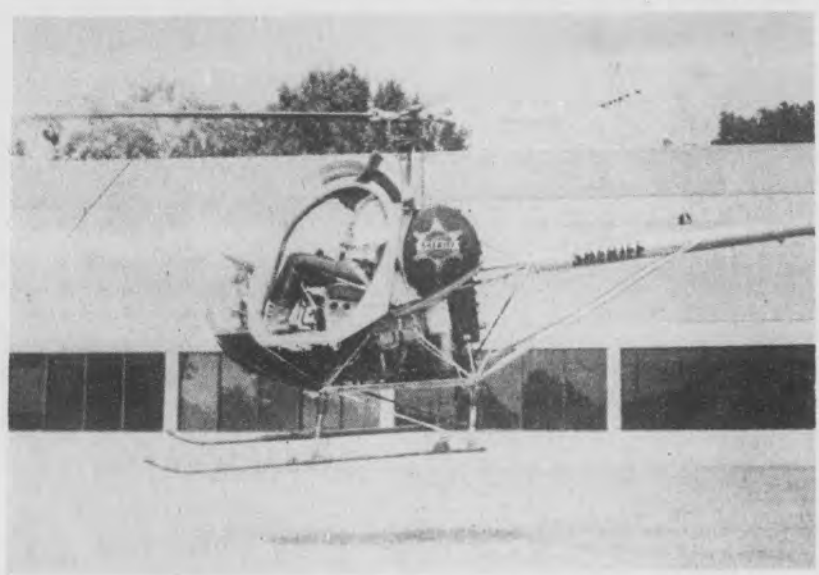

He noted that winners in exhibit categories take home cash prizes. Entries in the many classes were judged on Monday afternoon and the exhibits are on display the remainder of the week.

Strickland said one attractive exhibitor was seen with a pencil and paper in hand adding her winnings. When she finished she was asked how much she had won. "$70," she replied, "and this is just my second year of canning."

"Would you rather be a 'dunker' or a 'dunkee'?" Strickland asked. He said both parties that participate in the popular dunking machine seem to have a good time.

He said the Circle K club from the University of Montevallo will provide dunkers and dunkees on Friday night. Saturday night is celebrity night for dunkers. Volunteers so far include Buddy Glasco, Tommy Snowdon, Buck Falkner, Mike Hill, Cody Lyons and Joe Lyles. It only takes a dollar to get three chances at dunking these stars, Strickland said.

Another attraction for Friday and Saturday nights will be the Charlie Samson Band. Strickland encourages everyone to "come on out for lots of fun."

Sheriff takes to air

Shelby County Sheriff Buddy Glasgow is shown taking off Friday in the department's helicopter in search of a missing woman. The craft was piloted by "Lucky" Lowden from the Shelby County airport. This was the first time the helicopter was used on an assignment.

Lost woman found, air search ends

A former Alabaster resident who was reported missing last week turned up on her own.

Pat Huddleston, the 38 year old manager of The Lounge at the Clara Neal Restaurant in Calera, hadn't been seen after taking a friend home in the early morning hours on Thursday.

It was feared that she might have met with foul play since she was carrying receipts from the lounge.

Shelby County Sheriff Buddy Glasgow went aloft in the department's helicopter early Friday afternoon to search the roads she was thought to have traveled.

However, during the flight, word reached the sheriff that the missing woman had been found.

Reportedly, Huddleston had gotten stuck on an unfamiliar road during the night and had walked until she reached a phone to report her whereabouts.

The lounge manager was on her way to her home at Lee's Camp on the Chilton County side of Waxahatchee Creek when she became lost.

Explorers aim toward law enforcement

On the job training has convinced the young people who belong to the Explorer Scout's law enforcement post that this is the field in which they would like to work.

At an awards banquet, which was held recently at the sheriff's department, members of the post explained to guests just what the program involves.

After a training period, the teenagers learn to operate equipment such as the radio and NCIC machine and how to perform routine tasks. Then they each work one shift a week.

The group is also involved with community activities. This summer they helped out at a Fraternal Order of Police camp and they served as counselors and guides when a class of special ed students visited the Shelby County Airport. During the Charlie Boswell golf tournament they directed traffic and they've also done their stint on roadblocks.

Sgt. Tom Barnes, an investigator with the Sheriff's department who serves as the posts' advisor, related that emphasis is put on setting a good example both on and off the job.

The group polices itself, Barnes explained, and members who don't toe the mark are asked to resign. He noted that only 50% of those who started out with the post still belong.

In addition to certificates which were awarded for standard of work, dress and activities, the group also handed out some special plaques.

One was presented to Barnes for his outstanding work as an advisor. And another was for Sheriff Buddy Glasgow who sponsors the post.

Jean Holcome also received a plaque for her loyalty in serving as the assistant advisor. "I don't believe she's missed a meeting," Barnes remarked.

Barnes' wife Sharon received a Scouter's wife award. Plaques were also presented to this year's slate of officers. They are: Dan Ward, president; Steve Ward, vice-president; and Tyra Holcombe, secretary-treasurer.

Artists encouraged to submit designs

Game and Fish Director Charles Kelley announces the opening of the 1982-83 Alabama Waterfowl Stamp Contest.

The contest, which is open to all Alabama artists, will lead to the selection of the design for the 1982-83 Alabama Waterfowl stamp, Mr. Kelley said. Some of the requirements for entry are:

The design must be a horizontal drawing or painting depicting a living species of North American migratory ducks or geese; and must be an original drawing or painting. A species that has been used in the past three years may not be entered in this year's contest.

Entries in the 1982-83 contest will officially be accepted January 1, 1981, and the contest will close on February 15, 1981. Judging for the 1982-83 stamp will be held in Montgomery on February 27. All phases of the judging process will be open to the public.

Interested artists wishing to submit an entry should contact the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, Game and Fish Division, 64 North Union Street, Montgomery, 36130, or call 832-6311, for a copy of the rules and reproduction rights agreement governing the contest.

Wood industry evolves, grows

by David Armstrong

"When you're in a business that's making good money, you keep your mouth shut -- if you don't, everyone else will want to get in on the action."

That seems to be the feeling among the people in the wood industry in our area.

Companies producing lumber, plywood and paper in our area are not very willing to talk about how business has been recently.

I guess if you and I were involved in what has become the number one industry in our state in the last few years, we wouldn't be telling either.

Not only is the wood business Alabama's current number one manufacturing industry, producing approximately 1,500 million value-added dollars and more than 65,000 jobs. But according to U.S. Department of Commerce statistics, its future also looks promising.

If you can get anyone in the lumber mills to talk to you, they'll say business is down. That's no surprise since the economy has been in a slump and construction has been off. New construction uses approximately 37 percent of lumber and wood products according to commerce statistics.

But interest rates are beginning to ease downward now and recent reports show that construction is picking up. It hasn't reached the same level it was at this time last year but many people feel it's just a matter of time.

Also, the lumber industry in the south has not been critically affected by the construction slump because other things have helped the lumber business.

Because new construction has been too expensive for many people, remodeling an old house has become popular. Remodeling often requires lumber.

Another help to the lumber industry in the south has been the shortage of redwood on the west coast. Because redwood is very expensive, alternatives to the long-lasting wood have been developed. Pine lumber is now being treated with various types of chemicals which, according to some, make it more durable than redwood. It's also cheaper.

So, even though lumber production in the south and in Alabama is down, it isn't as bad as in other parts of the nation.

And, it probably won't be long before lumber will be rolling out of local sawmills as fast as builders can nail them to a foundation.

One thing that insures that is the population growth in our area. New houses will eventually have to be built no matter what the interest rates are. A large group of young adults is beginning to enter the market for their first house and, as a consequence, construction will probably be booming in the next few years.

However, the plywood future might not be as good. The main reason is that there are many substitute products for plywood being produced.

If timber becomes scarce, and if the cost of producing plywood increases, there is a good possibility that materials like particle-board will edge the plywood industry out of some business. They already have to a limited extent.

The other major wood industry in our area is the pulp and paper industry.

Recently, again because of the recession, paper production has decreased. This is mainly because newspapers have cut back in production as a result of lowered advertising during the economic slump.

But the cut-back in paper production in our area has been relatively insignificant and is not expected to last long.

The Department of Commerce predicts that the demand for wood and paper will double soon after the turn of the century. That could be good news for Alabama.

The south currently supplies 34 percent of the nation's wood and it is expected to increase to 55 percent by 2020. That plus the fact that two-thirds of Alabama is covered with timber, exceeded only by Oregon and Georgia in acreage, means the wood industry in our state will be rolling in dollar bills as quickly as it rolls out newsprint, lumber and plywood.

In our area there are already dozens of sawmills, many pulpwood woodyards, one of the largest papermills in the state and millions of acres of forest to supply these industries.

And, according to forestry department statistics, more than 75 percent of those trees are privately owned. Most people in our area believe the major paper corporations own the majority of the land. According to forester David Stone, that's because the timber owned by the paper corporations is so well managed.

Stone says most people in our area don't realize that the majority of the forests are privately owned. He said this is because the approximately 20 percent of forestland owned by the paper corporations are well managed and highly visible.

But, if the need for wood increases in the next few years as expected, many local landowners will probably explore the economics of tree-farming.

It might be a few more years before we realize how valuable our wood resources are, but increased need for wood products probably means more money for the entire industry. All of which means a stronger economy for our state.

Ready for construction

Lumber like this will become increasingly important to the South as population grows. Southern trees provide 34% of the nation's wood and that figure is expected to grow.

High school journalists invited to special session at Samford

High school newspaper and yearbook staffs are invited to a one-day journalism workshop Friday, Sept. 26, at Samford University.

Co-sponsored by Samford's Department of English and Journalism and the Birmingham professional Chapter of Women in Communications, Inc., the workshop will offer students a chance to sharpen their writing, editing, photography, and layout skills. Registration will be held 8-8:30 a.m. in Dwight Beeson Hall at Samford.

A joint session for staffs of newspapers and yearbooks will be conducted by free-lance photographer Dale Short.

Sessions for newspaper staffs will feature an idea exchange led by a panel of professional journalists, and a discussion of the elements of good news and feature writing by veteran newspaper editor Clarke Stallworth.

Newspaper staffs are encouraged to bring copies of their publications for critique and discussion.

Yearbook staffs will participate in discussions led by Birmingham artist and designer Dana Moore and Ree McCain of Herff-Jones Publishing Co., Montgomery.

Moore will discuss elements of good publication layout and design, McCain will speak on how to choose and use a theme.

Advance registration is $5 for students, $10 for faculty advisors. The Shelby County Reporter will pay registration fees for up to 15 students from Shelby County high schools. Contact Reporter Editor Marcia Sears to request this fee before Sept. 17 at 669-2731.

For more information about the workshop contact Dr. Nancy Whitt, Workshop Chairman, Samford University, or call 870-2921.

According to Alabaster fireman Tim Durrett, the left rear portion of the attic was well involved when firefighters arrived.

He reported that the fire burned the roof, ceiling, bedroom and two baths in the split level home. Meadowview is located off County Road 12.

Future houses

Most people think the majority of forests in our area are owned by large pulp companies like Gulf-States. But, the truth is that 75% of Alabama trees are privately owned.

Secretaries can study advancement technique

Two one-day workshops for secretaries will be presented this fall at The University of Alabama in Birmingham.

"The Secretary Beyond the Typewriter" is set for September 12 and "From Secretary to Administrative Assistant" for Oct. 3.

In "Beyond the Typewriter," secretaries will discover fresh, new approaches to management, human relations, office technology and personal development -- approaches that promise to strengthen their positions and increase their value to their employers.

The second workshop is for persons who are moving up to the position of administrative assistant or are aspiring to do so. Participants will gain an understanding of how to take command of many administrative tasks currently performed by their managers. information: 934-3295.

How to vote

Registrar Board Chairman Doris Turner shows the model voting machine panel that's being displayed at the Shelby County Fair to Secretary of State Don Siegelman. Looking on is registrar J.T. Spates.

State Secretary visits fair voting display

Secretary of State Don Siegelman came to the Shelby County Fair Tuesday to plug voter registration.

Mrs. Doris Turner, chairman of the county's board of registrars and her staff have a booth at the Kiwanis sponsored event where eligible residents can register to vote.

Deploing the public's lack of interest in who is elected to office, Siegelman noted that in the last two elections, 76% of the registered voters did not cast a ballot.

Not hazarding a guess as to how many unregistered voters there are in this county, Turner did say she estimated there are as many as 1,500 residents in beats 17 and 12 who are not on voter rolls.

The number of voters now eligible to cast a ballot, Turner reported, stands at 35,000. But by the time the fair ends, she hopes there will be many more.

On Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, the board of registrars will sign up eligible residents who come by their booth in the Recreation building.

Someone will be there between the hours of 4 and 8 p.m. on those three evenings.

Just friends

There's nothing like a little friendly rivalry, a point this eager Rebel drives home to SA quarterback Dirk Carson as he rides him out of bounds. (Photo by Armstrong)

Special delivery

Jim Rawlinson delivered the game ball for the SA-CVA clash via a 6000-foot skydive. Rawlinson, who was with the Special Forces team that set the European free fall record at 32,700 feet, landed on the 49-yard line Friday night with the help of his pilot, Larry Chapman. The army sergeant is the brother of Raider coach Harry Rawlinson.

Rivalries stoke fires

There's nothing like a little friendly rivalry to stoke the fire under two football opponents - unless, it's a BIG friendly rivalry, that is.

And so it is in the private academy circles between cross-county foes Coosa Valley and Shelby Academy.

It's a BIG rivalry. The series started back in 1972 (33-6, SA), and ever since then has marked either the opening or second game in the teams' schedules. This year it was the opener for the Raiders, game two for CVA.

Although the Rebels now hold a 5-3-1 edge on the series, the Raiders have managed to outscore them 125-100, thanks mostly to the 1972 and 1973 games which they handily won 33-6 and 21-0.

But since then the scores have been much closer. The 1976 squads even duked it out to a 0-0 tie.

Whatever else the two teams do during a season, and no matter who's the team to beat in the district (this year it's Bessemer), the Raiders and the Rebels never have any trouble getting up for their annual clash.

Rebel workhorse Mike Wheeler has been competing against Shelby since he was knee-high to a knee pad. "Sure," said he before the game, "this one means a lot more. I know most of their guys from church softball. Yeah, beating Shelby Academy is sweet. I'd love to."

And you can be sure the feeling was mutual.

"It's a big 'un," said Raider Scott Attaway. "THE big 'un."

"I haven't sweated my tail off for six weeks for nothing," stated Greg Young as the fans were starting to show up Friday. "We want it. We want it worse. Besides, we've talked too much to lose."

CVA head coach Mark Green said one of the outstanding aspects of the rivalry was that it was "friendly," and both teams always played clean and with a certain respect for each other.

"It may not be a good coaching ballgame," he noted with a grin. "But it'll be a good spectator game."

A lot of people agree with the second half of his statement.

"It's always been a competitive game," said SA head coach Harry Rawlinson. "No doubt about it, it'll be a big game for both schools. It's the game of the year."

To the end of that statement, Rawlinson might have added, "At least until next week. And the week after that. And..."

And the rivalry lives on.

Rebs edge Raiders 12-10

The visiting crowd from Coosa Valley yelled jubilantly as the scoreboard clock ticked off the final seconds. The siren sounded and the Rebel record book chalked up a 12-10 win over Shelby Academy.

The win gave CVA a 5-3-1 edge in the nine year rivalry between the two teams.

But Coosa Valley head coach Mark Green looked none to jubilant as he walked off the field.

"Lucky. That's what we are, lucky. They beat us in everything but the score," he commented. "We showed a little finesse in the third quarter, like we're supposed to, and can show. But mostly Shelby took it away from us."

"It wasn't the type of game you're really proud of, but I'm going to be like Chambers and not give it back." Finally Green almost smiled.

If all the Rebels' talent hadn't shown through, the irony surely did. Those curious "tables" had been turned since CVA's 19-20 loss the week before to Chambers. The Rebels had given that one away to mistakes and their cross-county rival Shelby Academy had just returned the favor.

CVA took the opening kick and drove into Raider territory, but were forced to turn the ball over on downs at the SA 35.

Shelby Academy quickly set up its first score with the aid of a nine yard quarterback sneak by Dirk Carson and two runs by Clifton Garrett good for 28 yards.

Behind good offensive protection, Carson spotted Allan Terrell at the goal and let the ball fly. Coosa Valley secondary man (and QB) Mike Norred jumped and tipped the pass - right into Terrell's waiting hands. James Knowles booted the PAT giving the green jerseys a 7-0 lead.

Due mostly to a green-clad defense, CVA had trouble moving the ball and was again forced to punt. Garrett, who was the game's leading ground gainer with 101 yards rushing, took the punt and was fighting for yardage when he fumbled in a crowd of Rebels and tackle Jay Bolton recovered on the SA 34.

But with third and long Mat Andrews and Greg Pickett raided the Rebels, sacking Norred for minus 11 and forcing the punt.

Carson set up a marching combo of keepers, pitchouts and a 25-yard pass to Terry Crabb, moving SA from one 15 to the other in seven plays. But the Rebel defense stopped the TD, and a 23-yard field goal attempt sailed wide.

Norred then moved the CVA offense 65 yards in 14 plays with the help of his only completions of the game (to Greg Adair and constantly threatening Mike Wheeler), some hard running by Wheeler and Troy Beavers, and a late hit by the Raiders.

But with some credit going to SA's secondary and pass rush, the clock ran out and the Rebels remained scoreless in the first half.

In the third quarter Carson intercepted Norred on the SA 27. Five plays later Garrett crossed the goal, but a clip nullified the score and, significantly, CVA refused to give up another TD. The Raiders settled for a 32-yard Knowles' field goal.

But Coosa Valley and Mike

Wheeler are always a threat to break the big play. And on the ensuing kickoff it happened. Wheeler ripped 85 yards up the middle for a touchdown. The PAT missed, but the Rebels had closed the point gap to 10-6.

Two plays later, Greg Adair intercepted Carson on the 45 and returned it to the SA eight. But Raider Brendon McClary intercepted Norred in the endzone and fell out to the two to save the score.

The flip-flopping continued into the fourth quarter as SA fumbled a pitchout to Rebel Troy Beavers. CVA threatened, until Garrett intercepted Norred on the three to prevent the score. But the Raiders fumbled it right back and guard Houston Green recovered for Coosa on the three.

While everyone was busy trying to keep up with which team had possession, Wheeler crashed up the middle for the touchdown. CVA's fake kick failed, but with 5:55 left in the game, they were winning 12-10.

With two minutes left to play, CVA forced the punt. SA ran out of timeouts and the Rebels ate the clock to cap the clutch district win.

"It was a big disappointment," SA head coach Harry Rawlinson later said. "Luck's part of the game and we had very little of it. Of course you can make your own luck."

Rawlinson credited CVA's tough defense with causing several Shelby turnovers, adding,

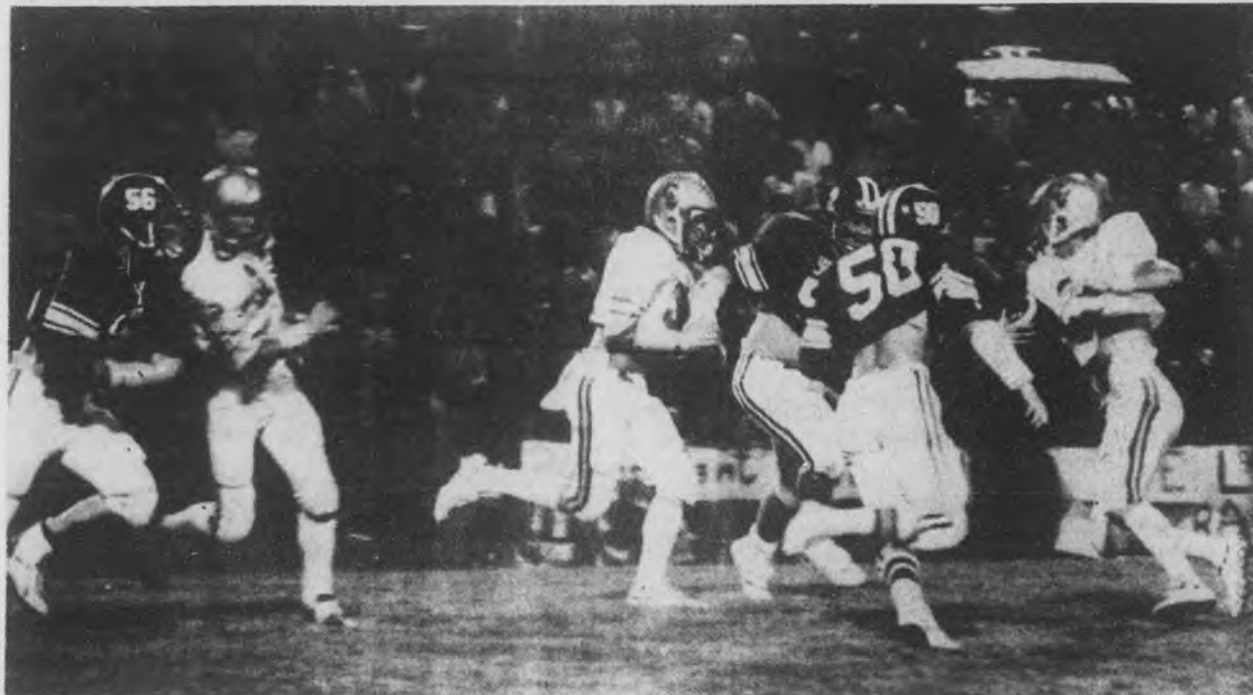

"We played pretty good overall as a team with the exception of a couple errors."

"We saw a spark in the offense, and the defense played well. We should be ready to play in a week. I don't doubt it one bit."

Shelby Academy plays Friday at Cahawba who is coming off a 44-7 win over Fayette Academy. CVA will line up at home against Faith who lost 24-6 to Graystone.

Calera wins second close shave

People from Calera used to marvel at how closely sardines were packed in their tins. But times change.

Now they marvel at how closely their Eagle football team manages to skim by their opponents.

After slipping past Montevallo 9-6 in their opener, Calera last week edged out Holtville 6-3.

And the game very nearly went the other way. With but :25 showing on the clock, Holtville completed a 15 yard pass against Calera's prevent defense, broke through the seam and raced 45 yards for a TD. Had the play not been called back by a clip, the score would have been a familiar sounding 9-6, the wrong way.

These kind of close scraps may be plot by the Eagles to put grey hair under the caps of coaches Danny Alverson, Gary Griffith, Mark Lovett and Bobby Sherrer. And if they keep up, it just might work.

But as long as the boys keep winning the coaches don't care. Too much.

"We showed a good defensive team effort," said Alverson after the Holtville battle. "But we can't play consistent offense. When we get down close we can't move it across the goal line."

The Calera defense forced Holtville to punt away its first possession, but a fumble on the return gave the hometown an early break on the Eagle 46.

It could have turned out a lot worse. But the Eagle defense refused to let Holtville any closer than the 24, forcing them to boot a 32-yard field goal for their only score for the night.

The defense, led by Larry Johnson, Cliff Smith, Kirk Ross and Steve Bearden, held off the foe for the rest of the game. The offense, however, had it's share of problems bullying the ball across the goal.

After the field goal, the Eagles drove to the Holtville 5, with the big play coming on a 35-yard pass.

Warriors execute Bibb County

The score was 18-0.

That was the most important thing about the game Friday at Alabaster. Thompson won. By a good score, too.

And even if the Warrior defense has yet to reach its potential, Bibb County was left sitting on a big scoreboard goose egg at the end of the game. That cannot be denied.

Furthermore, the amazing Arthur Johnson ripped off the Choctaws for a whopping 226 yards in 23 carries. Randy Anderson added a dash of salt to the wounded Bibb defense with 70 yards of his own.

The name of the game was methodical execution.

The closest the visitors even got to being in the game came after THS fumbled on its fourth play from scrimmage. A 35-yard run put them inside the fifteen. But after that, no more.

Head coach Larry Simmons later recognized Billy Lawley, David Hall, Demetrius Threat, Charley Griffen and Rod McDade as being among his defensive standouts. During the game Johnson and Chuck Woody also picked off interceptions.

After Bibb's one threat, Johnson proceeded to break loose for a 76-yard run. On the next play Anderson ran off tackle for eight yards and six points. The PAT failed and with 7:21 left in the opening quarter the score was 6-0.

Simmons also noted that guards Brad Boone and Mark Barnett graded well on offense. Translated, that means they did some destructive blocking. And what didn't get blocked, often got ran over, as Johnson and Anderson drove the ball some 60 yards to score again late in the second quarter.

Johnson horsed it over from the one for the TD. The two point attempt failed and it was 12-0 at the half.

In the third quarter Johnson intercepted a Choctaw pass and returned it 70 yards for a touchdown, only to see a yellow flag fly for clipping. The ref brought the ball back - but not for long.

Three plays later Johnson again tore loose, this time for a 59-yarder which registered the score. Again the two-point conversion attempt failed, but the execution papers had already been signed.

Bibb County turned back a fourth quarter threat when Thompson warriored down to inside their own ten and stalled out.

In classic understatement, Simmons later said, "I believe you could say Johnson and Anderson ran the ball well."

"Maybe the defense grew up a little bit. They hit a lot better (than against Jemison). At times they played stick'em."

"The main thing you need to put in there is Thompson 18, Bibb County zero!" he stated.

Now 2-0, Thompson will continue its quest next week at home with Chilton.

Quest?

Yes, quest.

Chelsea falls

Lions bite back to win

It was like two completely different ballgames rolled into one. The visitors claimed the first half 6-3, and the home boys won the second half 12-0. As usual, the final score was the only one the record books cared about.

The Briarwood Christian Lions held the Chelsea Hornets scoreless in the second half and fought from behind to win their season opener 15-6.

Chelsea took the kickoff and drove 38 yards only to fumble the ball away to nose guard Mitch Wolfe who recovered for the Lions. The rest of the first quarter saw one Chelsea and two Briarwood punts.

At the start of quarter two, the Hornets cranked up their itching offense and with the help of a 12 yard pass from QB Randy Kennedy to Jock Efferson, drove from their own 15 to the Lion eight in seven plays.

But Wolfe, Scott Mooror, Steve Lindsey, Randy Cox, Jeff Nelson and the rest of the Briarwood defense decided that was enough for now. With fourth and two, they stopped Kelly Cooper on a power dive at the one foot line.

Briarwood's offense sputtered out the 20 with help from a Chelsea penalty. There Keith Mc-Cullers recovered a fumble to put the Hornets back in business.

Then, with third and six, Kennedy hit Kelly Cooper, who was open at the five, and Cooper ran it home for the touchdown. Chelsea led 6-0 after Mike Schor, who had a busy night, blocked the PAT for Briarwood.

The Lions' big offensive play of the first half came on the ensuing kickoff when Mike McCrary returned it 47 yards to the Chelsea 41, nearly breaking for a TD. But the Chelsea defense wouldn't allow a touchdown and with fourth and three and 11 seconds on the clock, Schor put his foot into a 31-yard field goal.

Since the Hornet defense had been putting the sting to the Lions' line in the first half, head coach Gary Fleming changed up their blocking. Too, he moved Schor from quarterback to halfback, replacing him with Bric Baker.

Something started working in the third quarter, because, as Chelsea head coach Daryl Burnham put it, "They lined up and whipped us that time."

In eight plays the Lions drove 78 yards with Schor and Lindsey eating up the turf. Schor scored from 15, the PAT missed and Briarwood went ahead 9-6.

The Hornets retaliated and with Cooper running hard, drove 50 yards to the Lion 15. But with second and seven, Schor jumped on a fumble to end the threat.

The Lion offense took over and Schor and Lindsey began grinding out yardage. Chelsea helped the effort by roughing the punter on a fourth down and jumping offside on crucial third down play.

On the eighth play of the series Jim Bradford scored for Briarwood from six yards out. Chelsea blocked the PAT but the damage was done at 15-6.

Neither team sustained a drive in the final quarter as Briarwood's defense had by now gotten a good grip on itself and Chelsea quit making so many errors.

Burnham later said he was pleased with improvements in Chelsea's team play, especially the offensive line. But mental mistakes at key times killed their chances to win.

"It's hard to learn how to win," Burnham commented. "It don't come easy. We knew it was going to take a while. We're not discouraged or dejected. We're still looking for a win."

The Chelsea coach noted that Kennedy was coming on at QB, Kelly Cooper's running was strong and Efferson did a good job catching the ball. He called Briarwood's Schor an outstanding athlete and he said the Lions should have a good shot at the ACAC championship.

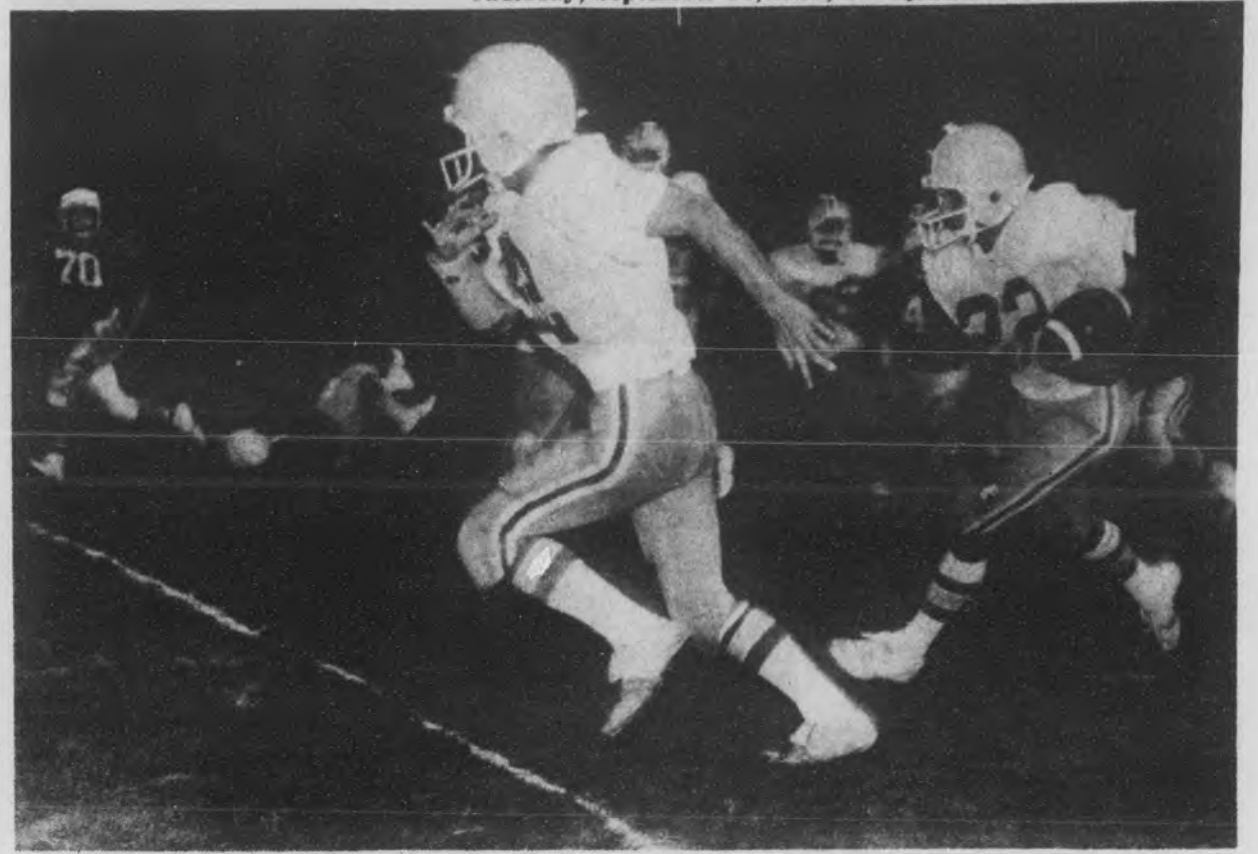

"I was well pleased with our first ballgame," Fleming told the Reporter. "We had a lot of young boys in there and they grew up a lot."

Among others, Fleming cited Marty Angwin, Alex Cox and Mark Byers as playing a good game. He also described Chelsea as a hard hitting team.

Next week the 0-2 Hornets take a breather before tackling TCTS at home on Sept. 19. Briarwood travels to Gadsden to challenge arch-rival Westminster, who has a 1-1 record.

Hunt teal til September 21

A special statewide nine day teal hunting season will open September 13 and run through September 21, according to an announcement released by the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources.

Hunting hours will be from sunrise to sunset except in Mobile Bay north of the causeway and south of the L & N railroad where the hunting hours will be sunrise to twelve noon. The Daily Bag Limit has been set at four teal with a possession limit of eight birds.

The legal arms and ammunition for the taking of these migratory birds are shotguns, 10 gauge or smaller, plugged or otherwise incapable of holding more than three shells and using standard number two shot or smaller and long bows.

Hunters are reminded to practice safe hunting techniques at all times while afield and to respect the rights of other hunters pursuing game.

CV Panthers put wrong foot forward

The Cahaba Valley Panthers found the going rough Saturday as they kicked off their season with a road game at Leeds. The 65-pounders were the only winners of the day with a score of 14-6.

The 75-pounders lost 32-0, the 85-pounders lost 29-0, the 105 pounders lost 30-20 and the 115-pounders lost 32-0. Leeds squeaked by the CV 95-pounders by a score of 6-0.

As the saying goes, back to the old drawing board, or is that the old practice field?

Practice

Chelsea's Victor Smith (9) and quarterback Patrick O'Shields (5) took a brief moment off from the action last Friday to practice their levitation. Got any better idea of what's going on here?

But Garrett's still working them

Vincent Jackets grow with big 7-0 win

Normally Maurice Kelley plays linebacker for Vincent, but head coach Harold Garrett decided to try him at tailback against Lincoln. Guess what happened...

Working on a drive early in the second quarter, QB James Oden gave Kelley the ball on a sweep. Kelley picked up a few blocks but after that he was on his own. So he ran over the first three guys who tried to bring him down, stopped and stiff-armed the fourth, then trotted on down the field for a 54-yard touchdown.

Some linebacker. With a PAT off the toe of Rodney Driggers, the 7-0 score held to the end. After the show the Jackets put on the week before (25-20 over Abrams), there was an even larger home crowd on hand to witness the team's second game.

In the first quarter Vincent drove to the Lincoln 20 before its offense stalled. They didn't really get anything going until late in the period when they started the scoring drive on their own 30.

After the score Lincoln mounted its only serious threat of the game when it closed down to the Vincent 20. But a tough Jacket defense put an end to any notions of a score.

In the third stanza, after a Golden Bear punt that rolled dead on the one, Oden and Driggers teamed up for an aerial attack which moved the Jackets all the way to the Lincoln 20. But the attack fizzled out and the visitors blocked the field goal attempt. They thought it might help them win the game.

It didn't. In the final quarter Vincent's defense hardly gave up change from a dime for a quarter candy bar. When the game ended the Jackets were in full control at the Lincoln 30.

"We improved 100 percent over last week," Garrett exclaimed. "We played more sound fundamentals. If we do that every week, we'll have a good team by the end of the year."

Last spring and as recently as one month ago, Garrett had expressed a strong concern over the Jacket defense which graduated nine starters last year. That concern has dimmed somewhat in the light of a promising 2-0 record.

Garrett named Kelley, Driggers, Oden, Johnny Wallace, Bobby Howard, Kent Baker, Robert Mask, Brian Hartsfield, Dwight Spradley, David Isbell, Scott Wren, Travis Thomas and David Patterson as having played good defense.

"We were real, real pleased with them," said he.

In more ways than one

32-6 loss hurts 'Dogs

The 32-6 licking Montevallo suffered at the hands of Dallas County hurt in a lot more places than one.

Now on the injured rooster is starting quarterback David Melsoni, out with a shoulder injury for one to four weeks. Keeping him company for a week or two will be fullback Wade Bice with foot problems, and wingback-linebacker Mike Boothe, who's now wearing a cast on the broken hand he played with during the game. Both players are reserve quarterbacks.

Ouch. Make that three or four "ouches."

Montevallo's signal calling responsibilities are now resting none to lightly on sophomore QB Howard Gaddis. But Gaddis did take the 'Dogs in for their only score against Dallas County, and he did show promise against Calera.

Head coach Richard Gilliam has (at least) two things to say about young Gaddis: 1) he does have potential and 2) he's going to have to do.

As for the Dallas Cowboys - er, County game, Gilliam commented, "They whipped us, no doubt about it."

For the first three plays things looked good as Montevallo drove for 42 yards. But a fumble ended any hopes of taking an early lead. Instead, Dallas recovered and marched 67 yards in nine plays to score.

In the second quarter the home team struck again, capping a 10-play, 62-yard drive with a 19 yard TD scamper.

Playing his last series of downs with the injured shoulder, Melsoni hit Scott Studdard over the middle for 15 yards, and Studdard added another 40 yards on his own. But with a first down on the Dallas 18, the 'Dogs were unable to produce the score and trailed 14-0 at the half.

After Dallas made it 20-0 in the third, MHS took the kick off and got called for illegal blocking. Backed down to their own six, the 'Dogs fumbled in the endzone and gave up another touchdown, sans PAT.

Montevallo's lone TD was the result of an interception on Montevallo's 16 by the injured Wade Bice, who, despite his broken hand, ran out to the 31.

Then, faced with fourth and 14, MHS faked the punt and Gaddis hit Carey Thompson for 24 yards. With second and 11, Gaddis connected with Studdard to put the Bulldogs down on the 18.

On the following play Gaddis hit Studdard on the 13 and Studdard ran it home. The TD came with 5:32 left in the game, and was made with most of the Dallas starters still on the field. The PAT was blocked.

Dallas scored its last TD on an intercepted fourth down pass, and the game ended at 32-6.

This week Montevallo plays its first home game of the season against the 0-1 Shelby County Wildcats.

Pelham Panthers go down 10-7 as Childersburg keeps winning

There was a heck of a fight on the hill in Pelham Friday night, and a ton of people from both sides of the Coosa turned out to see it. When it was all over, the people from the "other side" of the river were the ones wearing the relieved smiles.

The Childersburg Tigers beat the Pelham Panthers 10-7.

Prior to Friday night, Pelham head coach Steve Rivers had called the area matchup the biggest game the Panthers had ever faced.

Afterwards, naturally enough, Rivers was disappointed. But that didn't mean he and his Panthers were down and out.

"We're disappointed we lost. But we played a good game. The kids aren't down and I'm not down on them. Childersburg has a good team. It wasn't a fluke," Rivers said.

He went on to say that if the two teams tangled right now it'd be just as close a game and either one could win. He cited Chris Cutcliff, Chuck Hughes and David Fowler for their defensive containment.

If the Tigers showed one advantage it was in their kicking game which besides adding the go-ahead field goal in the fourth quarter, also backed up the Panthers for nearly the whole first half.

In the negative column for Pelham, the coach said, "We made several mental mistakes that hurt."

Excellent Tiger punting in the first half bottled up Pelham twice, once on the two and again on the ten. A short field goal attempt also rolled dead on the Pelham three, giving the Panthers little room to operate. So they operated little.

At the same time, though, the Pelham defense kept Childersburg true, and forced the missed field goal instead of giving up the TD.

But, as Rivers put it, the Panthers tired late in the second quarter and allowed Childersburg to drive from their own 40. The Tigers scored from the Pelham 20 with an end sweep, and added the extra point with a minute left in the half.

After a grueling defensive struggle for most of the third quarter, Pelham finally forced a punt while the Tigers were backed up. The Panthers landed good field position on their own 45.

A piling on call kept Pelham alive at the 30. QB Steve Rye then hit Chris Whitfield for a first down on the 20, followed with a sneak good eight. Brian Bolton moved the ball to the five, and scored on a pitchout the next play.

Jud Halcomb booted the PAT and with 10:25 left in the game the score was tied.

But a short kick gave the Tigers control on the Pelham 40. And with third and five they broke loose for a 25-yard run.

The winning field goal hit true from the 35 to keep Childersburg 2-0 in the area.

If you're looking for something to do, for yourself, your kids or your parents, then call this number: 663-6504. That's the number of the Shelby County YMCA which is offering an extensive list of physical activities to members at both their Alabaster and Pelham branches. Tennis lessons, both morning and evenings, are being taught at all levels by the staff. Aerobic dancing for muscles trimming is also available. Or perhaps you like balance beam work, tumbling, vaulting and other gymnastics, which is being offered at Pelham. A competitive gymnastics team is also being organized.

Also at Pelham is a lunch break co-ed fitness program for working people. Tap and ballet dancing and baton twirling are being offered, too.

For the pre-schoolers there's once a week afternoon and morning physical education programs. For children at Thompson, Helena and Valley schools, there's an after school camp with bus service for grades K-6.

For the more physical inclined you can take karate from Tony Evans. And girls and boys ages 6-12 can still sign up for soccer. Call the YMCA for further scheduling, cost and registration information.

Close shave

from halfback Tim Loftin to Raymond King. But once they got down to the goal they couldn't punch the ball across and were forced to turn it over on downs.

Again in the first half the Eagles drove down to a first and goal situation. And again they just couldn't muster the "killer instinct" to drive in for the score. Holtville, of course, had a say in matters. Stacking the middle with meat and putting their speed on the outside, they ran a pretty mean goal line stand.

Down 3-0, Alverson and staff had a little chat with the boys and "drew them a few maps" during halftime. The Eagles made up their minds to score.

A bad snap on a Holtville punt attempt gave Calera excellent field position on the 20. With third and five from the 15, James Blancher hit Terry Hall for first and goal from the four.

Holtville's tough defense got stingy for three plays, but could not prevent Ricky Winterbottom from sneaking in from the one for the score. The PAT was blocked, but at 3:25 in the third quarter Calera led 6-3. Nobody knew then, but that's all it would take to win.

Both teams played battering defense for the fourth quarter, except for the one Holtville TD play which got called back.

Alverson and Griffith were both quick to praise the Calera defense, especially the efforts of Raymond King, Cliff Smith, Kirk Ross, Larry Johnson and Steve Bearden.

But the sputtering offense is causing the staff some concern, especially when it comes to punching home scores from inside the 20.

Reflecting on the Eagles' 2-0 standing, however, Alverson said, "We're not THAT displeased in our play."

Tomorrow night Calera puts that record, sardines and all, on the line against 3-A Pelham in a tough away game.

September 30, the end of the state fiscal year.

All sportsmen, 16 years of age or older, who hunt or fish in Alabama will be required to have licenses for the 1980-81 fiscal year by October 1. Game and Fish Director Charles Kelley announced.

The cost of various licenses are as follows for state residents.

HUNTING LICENSES: State $10.00; County $5.00.

FISHING LICENSES: Annual Rod and Reel $6.00; Hook and Line (ordinary cane pole) in county of legal residence $1.00; Disabled 25 cents.

A 25 cent issuance fee is required for each above-listed license. All military personnel are required to have licenses.

A $5.00 State and $7.50 Federal Duck Stamp are required in addition to other appropriate hunting licenses when hunting migratory waterfowl.

Residents over 65 years of age may obtain lifetime hunting or fishing licenses by paying the appropriate issuance fee.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of George M. Mosier who passed away one year ago, September 6, 1979.

I know you're gone, my darling, but in my heart you live on. Your quick smile and witty ways are memories that help me through each day.

Your loving wife,
Barbara

In loving memory of James Ronald Dupree who passed away three years ago, September 12, 1977.

Memories are treasures No one can steal Death is a heartache No one can heal Some may forget you Now that you're gone But we will remember No matter how long. Dear one we miss you
Mama, Frank & Jimmy

Bus flips, SMH ready, all ends well

Students line up in wheel chairs in the corridor at Shelby Memorial Hospital waiting their turn at X-ray following the school bus accident Tuesday morning while hospital staffers attend to their needs.

by Marcia M. Sears

Miraculously, no one was seriously injured Tuesday morning when a school bus overturned south of Summer Hill church.

The bus had picked up more than half of its normal number of passengers on its route to the Columbiana schools when the accident occurred. According to reports, the bus was going down a hill and into a curve when the right front tire went off the paving onto the shoulder. When the driver pulled the bus back on the road, it crossed the left lane, went off the left shoulder and turned over on its side.

Several of the 34 children on board received cuts and bruises. Those judged the most serious were taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital by ambulance. The other children were driven to the hospital in a second school bus that was brought to the scene.

All were examined at the hospital by at least two physicians, many were X-rayed, and all but one were dismissed. The one who remained in the hospital was there for observation only.

Parents in the community immediately learned of the accident and crowded into the hospital's corridors and waiting rooms. The hospital staff, using their prepared disaster drill procedure, handled the influx of children and parents smoothly.

When the hospital first learned of the accident, emergency room physician Dr. Marshall Boone called in Dr. Tom Nolen to act as triage physician. Dr. Nolen met the ambulances and the school bus, examining the children quickly to establish which ones needed attention first, which needed X-rays, etc.

Other doctors in the hospital came to the emergency room as needed; nurses were pulled from duties in other sections of the hospital; the X-ray department operated all three of its machines at the same time; administrative and staff support personnel were on hand to expedite matters and to handle the press corps. The hospital social worker and Dr. and Mrs. Bob Davis, minister of the University Baptist Church in Montevallo counseled steadily with parents and children.

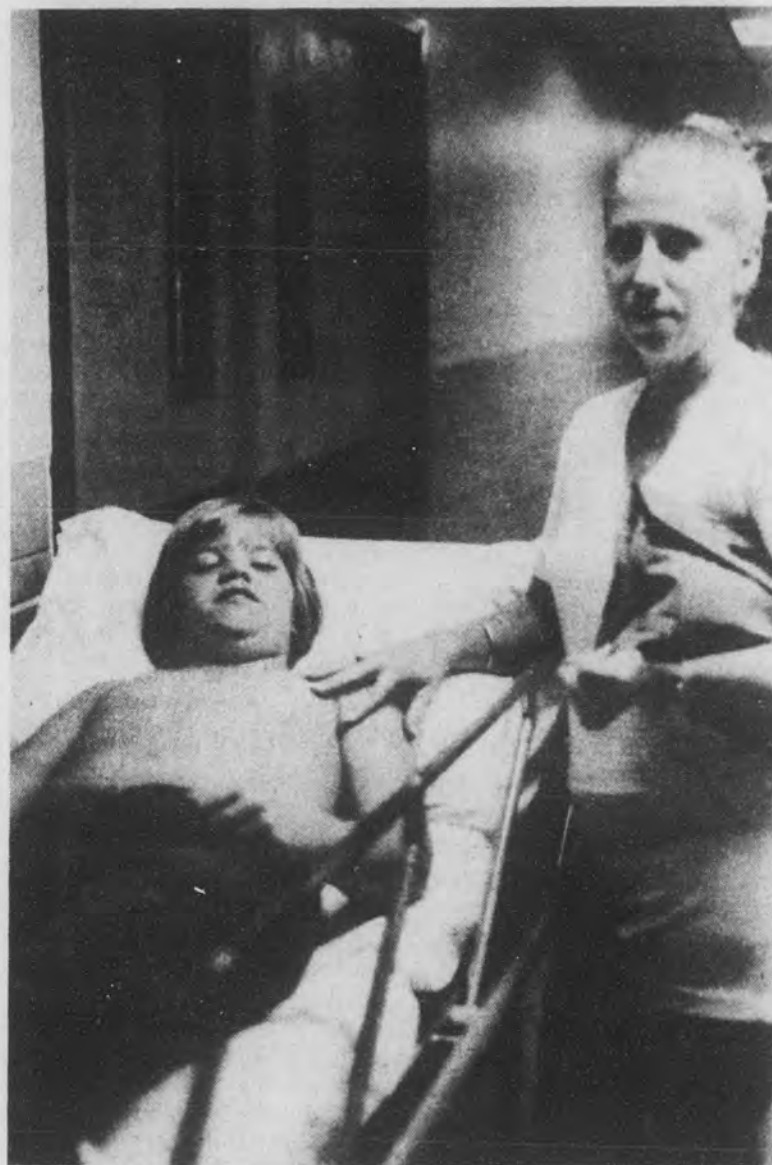

Rebecca McGaughy, a retired teacher from Montevallo, was at the hospital for another purpose when the first call came in about the accident. She marveled at the speed and efficiency with which the staff was assembled and everything was put in readiness for handling the emergency.

According to Mrs. Betty Sherer, Administrator of Nursing, the only problem encountered was in communication from the hospital to the scene of the wreck. She said the accident was too far away for good radio communication, and the hospital could not tell for some time the extent of the injuries.

Mrs. Sherer said the children were "extremely calm and very well behaved."

Some families had as many as three children on the bus. It was a

Damon Folmar, (wheelchair) who had a swollen leg and other injuries told the Reporter, "We walked on the windows and climbed out the emergency exit," to get out of the overturned school bus. Other children from the bus with big hospital identification tags on their arms crowd the X-ray waiting room. (Hospital photos by Marcia Sears)

Alabaster decides on new police car

As quickly as it can be painted, a new LTD Ford will be added to the fleet of patrol cars in the Alabaster Police Department.

The car has been badly needed for a couple of months, but problems with the bidding had delayed a contract being awarded.

But Monday night, local Ford dealer Sherman Holland was given the go-ahead to furnish the car even though he submitted the high bid.

Holland's figure of $8,439.39 was $37 higher than the price given by Eagle Chevrolet.

However, it was pointed out that state law provides municipalities with an option of a 3% deference if there is just cause.

One factor the council considered was speedy delivery. The Chevrolet would not have been available for 45 days.

Eight bids had been sent out in the city's third effort to secure a police car and three dealers had responded.

The low bid of $7,596 submitted by Magic City Dodge was eliminated because it did not meet the specifications.

Two requests for off-premises wine licenses made it necessary for the panel to establish a temporary fee for that purpose.

It was decided that the city would use the county fee of $75 to be pro-rated over a three month period until the new council decides on a permanent charge.

The businesses that were okayed to sell the product were S&S Convenience Market and the Shop and Save Mini Mart.

In other business, the panel approved a motion by Councilman Cal McCune that all city departments continue functioning using the figures in last year's budget until the new council has time to draw up a more comprehensive budget.

The proposal also stipulated a 10% across the board salary increase for all city personnel.

And provision was made for the purchase of items using appropriate purchase orders except in the case of necessary

Wine request uncorks debate

by David Moore

The City of Pelham is a millionaire again - at least on paper and at least for a while.

At Monday's council meeting Finance Director Ray Hamilton announced that the city's expenses for the 1980-81 fiscal year are projected at $1,440,638, against projected revenues totalling $1,443,720.

Hamilton described the budget as being both realistic and viable and noted its $3000 surplus.

The city's budget topped $1 million for the first time last year. The newly adopted budget is up approximately $309,000 from last year. Last year also showed a surplus of about $3000.

Even so, Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway pointed out that the new budget's growth over last year is the second smallest in the young city's history, a problem due to the economy and shared by other municipalities.

"There will be no new policemen, firemen or fire stations this year," the mayor stated, saying that that all departments had been forced to minimize their expenses.

Also during the meeting the council granted a request for an off-premises wine license, something new for Shelby County. The license was granted to the Pelham Mart Winn Dixie, who, as Councilman Roy Jowers noted, already sold beer. Jowers made the motion and the request passed 3-1, with councilman Joe Littlefield being absent.

But a similar request, by The Picnic Place at highways 31 and 119, uncorked a standoff on the council and forced Dunaway to decide a split vote. It was the second time during his term the mayor had to cast a vote, the other coming over a request for a beer license.

Jowers moved that the second request be denied on the grounds that the "convenience store" was too close to Winn Dixie and that its ownership had swapped hands several times. The motion died for lack of a second. But several silent minutes later councilman Willard Payne re-introduced the denial and Jowers seconded it.

Councilmen Hamilton and John Tanner voted against the denial and Dunaway sided against them.

Tanner, explaining he needed better reasons than those Jowers offered before he could deny a license across the board, moved the request be approved. Hamilton agreed, Jowers and Payne disagreed and Dunaway voted for the approval.

If the two locations are too close in proximity, then what would the council have done had the Picnic Place request come before Winn Dixie's, Dunaway asked, in explaining his reason.

Cotton gins crank up

The first cotton ginned in the state may have been ginned in Shelby County Friday.

Clyde Wyatt, owner of Harpersville Co-Op, reported that he had not heard of any other cotton that had been processed prior to Sept. 12.

And the date was three weeks earlier than last year, Wyatt noted.

The cotton which came from the fields of Harpersville grower Walter McCranie, produced three bales.

When the first bale was weighed, it tipped the scales at 556 lbs.

Although he's had bales weigh as much as 700 lbs., Wyatt says that weight should be within the 520-530 lb. weight range.

McCranie's cotton, which is classified as Middling grade, will go for 92 cents a pound, the gin owner reported.

The second load of cotton that was ginned at the co-op the same day belonged to John D. Kidd. He had five bales.

On an average, Wyatt said that cotton is usually brought in to be ginned around Sept. 25.

But County Extension Agent John Jones noted that unusually dry weather is resulting in an earlier harvest this year.

"Harvesting will be in full swing by the first of October," Jones remarked, "whereas last year it was around Oct. 15."

There was the potential for a good crop, Jones reported, if there had been a fair amount of rain in August or early September.

Weighing in

As Clyde Wyatt, owner of the Harpersville Co-Op looks on, cotton hauler Don Meade weighs the first bale of cotton brought into the gin three weeks earlier than last year. The scale registered 556 pounds on the bale which came from the cotton fields of Walter McCranie of Harpersville.

'Strike street' sparks Wilsonville controversy

by David Armstrong

A legal showdown could be in the making.

Catalytic Inc. in Wilsonville, which operates on land owned by Alabama Power Company, recently decided to build a new access road from its plant to a street running through the Central Hills housing development.

But the land fronting the street through the development is owned by Leon "Biddy" Lovett of Wilsonville.

Lovett said he discovered one morning last week that road work was being done across his property. He said he told the workers that he owned the land that they were working on and asked them to stop. But the next day he found that the work had not stopped.

Lovett then placed a cable across the road, complete with a no trespassing sign. No work has been done on his site since that time but that could change.

According to Harry Lewis, plant manager at Catalytic, there was apparently a misunderstanding over whether or not Lovett wanted the part of the road which crossed his land to be developed.

maintenance and operational supplies.

A request from the Shelby County Health Department for a $2,500 appropriation was tabled.

Mayor Charlotte Burke said that last year the city had given the agency $1,500 because their funding had been cut.

According to the letter, more money is needed due to added services.

Both the mayor and Councilman Wayne Lucas mentioned that the meeting was their last one.

They said they had enjoyed serving the city and could be called on if their assistance was ever needed.

He said that since the day Lovett put up a no trespassing sign there has been no work on the property.

Lewis said the company may still have a legal right to use the land. He said the question is whether or not the road crossing Lovett's land is a public thoroughfare.

Lewis said there has been a road crossing on Lovett's land for many years and there used to be two houses along the road.

Wilsonville mayor Austin Mitchell said he did not think the road had ever been a public thoroughfare during the 20 years he has lived in the town.

Lewis said Catalytic wanted to build the road because the plant's workers, who are members of the International Brotherhood of Pelham gives gas

After a request by Shelby County Program on the Aging spokesman, Sue Tedford, the council agreed to donate 25 gallons of gasoline per month to help shuttle Pelham senior citizens to the group's activities.

The allocation was set up on a trial basis. Mrs. Tedford was asked to report in January if the program had expanded to include more than the present six Pelham participants. If the program expands, Dunaway told her, then the city's donations will probably increase.

New councilmen Ken Maynard and Bob Cleveland will be sworn in at the October 6 meeting.

The mayor and other councilmen expressed their appreciation to Jowers and Littlefield for their service to the city, noting especially Jowers work over the years in developing Pelham's fire and rescue services.

"It's been my pleasure," said Jowers. "The reason we've been able to accomplish so much is due to the people of Pelham. You've been really great."

Electrical Workers, are on strike and members of other unions who do work at the plant would not cross the picket line at the plant entrance. He said the new road would allow construction workers and other union members not associated with the IBEW to get to the plant.

Lewis said the company has decided to build a new road which parallels the existing plant road being picketed by the IBEW. Members of the union on the picket line at the plant entrance said they would not picket the new road unless Catalytic workers tried to use the road.

Lewis said the company is still interested in the road crossing Lovett's land because it is a shorter route to the plant.

Some residents of the Central Hills development, which has approximately 15 houses, are opposed to the road's being connected to the street running in front of their houses. They reason it would be dangerous for their children if a regular flow of traffic were passing through the area.

"We have always tried to cooperate with the townspeople of Wilsonville. Unfortunately, they don't want to cooperate with us," Lewis told the Reporter.

Alabaster council considers sewerage line connections

A sewer line that the Columbiana Housing Authority wants taken out of the ground will apparently remain in place since the Alabaster City Council has decided it will benefit the city.

The action was taken at Monday night's meeting after realtor Harold Walker and his attorney Robert Sexton pointed out that the line would serve a park adjoining the housing authority property.

And a petition with four pages of names of area residents who wanted the line left in place was also presented to show support.

Walker had approached the council several times asking that the city condemn the 175 foot strip of housing authority land which the pipe runs through.

But the panel had hesitated because the realtor had installed the line two years ago to service a new apartment unit he had built on a nearby ridge.

Assuming that an easement would be granted, he had crossed the housing authority's land without their permission. However, there were objections and the agency instituted a court case asking that the line be removed.

Park and Recreation Board Chairman Jim Cocke told the council that his committee recommended that the land be condemned so the line could service a restroom facility in the park.

It was also noted that much of the material and the labor for the facility would be donated by residents of the Simmsville Road area.

Concerned about a recreation spot for their children, it was these same black residents who had purchased the land for the park some time back, and donated it to the city.

Agreeing that the line should remain in place since it was in the public interest, the panel voted to start condemnation proceedings on the condition their attorney approved.

Later in the meeting, a contract was awarded on a sewer project that had been brought up at the Aug. 18 meeting.

Don Huff Construction Company submitted the low bid of $24,764. But that figure is some $4,764 above the revenue sharing money available for the work.

So the money will apparently have to be taken from the general fund to make up the difference in installing a connecting line from Kingwood to Port South.

It was reported that 63 homes in that subdivision would be serviced by the new line.

Burglary bungled

An apparent burglary attempt at a Pelham tire store was thwarted Sunday morning when a local businessman tipped off police.

The unidentified businessman spotted a man "fooling around" at CH&D Tire Company about 9:20 a.m. He phoned Pelham police and Lt. Charlie Brown responded to the call.

At the scene Brown discovered an open window and was looking inside when one of the suspects started out a nearby door. The man darted back inside and Brown gave chase.

Inside, the officer spotted a pair of feet sticking out the door of a truck where the man was attempting to hide. Brown apprehended the suspect and was leaving the building when Alabaster Sgt. Stanley Oliver arrived to assist.

Oliver had spotted three additional suspects on the other side of the building and he and Brown caught those men while they were apparently awaiting the return of their accomplice.

Arrested and charged with third degree burglary were David Miles, Roderick Miles, Jeff Wilson and Gene Talmadge Robertson. Police said all four men were in their mid-30's and listed addresses in North Birmingham.

In an unrelated incident Sheriff's Investigator Sgt. John Pratt and PPD Capt. Allen Wade, working on a tip passed along from Alabaster police, recovered a truck and welding equipment worth $7,000 which had been stolen last May from Pelham Truss Company. The goods were found in the woods of Bibb County.

Brantleyville man accused

A Hoover woman has identified an inmate at the Shelby County jail as the man who stabbed her earlier this month when he surprised him burglarizing her home.

Twenty four year old James Lloyd Smith had been first recognized by Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Investigator Reed Smith from a composite drawing which was made after the Sept. 4 break-in.

When the burglary suspect was picked out of a lineup Thursday, he was in the Shelby County jail on charges of third degree burglary for a July 31 break-in.

Complaining of their son being drunk, his parents came off the $20,000 bond on which he'd been released, and he was returned to jail Sept. 9.

At the time of his arrest, the Brantleyville man was charged by Alabaster police with carrying concealed weapons.

Smith also has a second degree burglary charge against him for an incident which occurred July 28. His bond on that charge is $3,000.

The Jefferson County bond on Smith has been set at $30,000.

According to Hoover police, the woman stabbed by Smith found him in her home on Laredo Drive when she returned from a tennis lesson.

During the struggle, she defended herself by using karate, and managed to knock Smith down before he fled.

She was treated at a local hospital and released.

The investigation centered on

Smith last Tuesday after Shelby County's Chief Investigator identified him from the composite drawing done by Mountain Brook police.

Hoover investigator Harold Murdock questioned Smith the following day, but he denied any connection with the crime.

Helmsmen change at Shelby National

A change in the control of the First Shelby National Bank in Pelham has been completed.

Charles E. Martin, president of the bank, states that his investor group purchased 51 percent controlling interest in the bank, effective August 8, 1980, with an injection of new capital stock.

The bank's new board of directors, since the reorganization, consists of the following seven businessmen: M. Jack Beasley, Jr., president, Beasley Realty Company; Ronald W. Currin, executive vice president, First Shelby National Bank; Charles E. Martin, chairman of the board and president, First Shelby National Bank; Harry L. Phillips, MD, vice president, Columbiana Clinic, P.S.; Sam S. Plant, Jr., owner, Mallfronts; Thomas W. Stubbs, Jr., president, Stubbs Foundry, Inc.; Ken L. Williams, president, the MMI Group, Inc.

In making the announcement of the change in control of the bank, Martin indicated that William E. Bush, vice president and cashier of the bank will serve as secretary to the board.

Additional expansion plans for the bank will be announced in the near future, according to Martin.

Chickenhouse fire termed foul play

A chickenhouse fire in Chelsea Thursday which destroyed 13,000 hens has been attributed to arson.

Kelly Pardue and Aaron Anthony Mitchum have been arrested for starting the blaze which destroyed the chickenhouse owned by Charles Simmons.

The fire was discovered at 8:30 p.m. and volunteers from the Chelsea Fire Department were on the scene a short while later.

However, the volunteers were unable to save the structure because it was too well involved when they arrived.

Why energy conservation makes sense for you and Alabama Power.

If our customers would reduce the amount of electricity they use during the peak demand period in the summer, it would help hold down our costs for the expensive equipment needed to meet peak demand. That would help hold down the tremendous amount of money which we have to borrow and pay back to investors. So, energy conservation can mean lower investment costs for Alabama Power as well as lower monthly bills for you.

County food stamp program takes jump

by David Armstrong

Less than two years ago, approximately 800 Shelby County families were using food stamps. Now, almost 2,500 are helped by the federal program.

The big increase is due mainly to changes in the regulations which determine who qualifies for the program and the way the stamps are distributed, according to Susan Treadwell, director of the Shelby County department of pensions and securities.

Until March of 1980, qualified persons were required to pick up their food stamps at the department's office in Columbiana. But "last February, we had people standing in lines outside our building and it was freezing," Treadwell said. "We decided to let them all in the building and we really had a mess. We had police officers trying to keep order, but it was impossible," she said.

After that memorable day, Treadwell said she and the other workers in the department were ready to begin a new mailing program.

The staff can now issue food stamps to persons with fewer errors and without the frantic rush at the first of every month.

Recipients are also saving money because they don't have to drive from their homes to the Columbiana office to pick up their food stamps. The new mailing program is saving recipients time and money and preventing worker's errors and headaches.

Treadwell said other changes have caused more people to take the food stamps, also.

Eligible persons used to have to pay a certain amount to get food stamps. According to Treadwell, the federal government's theory was that if a person paid for something he would be more likely to use it. She said a person who would receive $40 in food stamps might pay $30 for them.

Now the recipients simply get the amount they are allowed without paying anything. Instead of paying $30 for $40 worth, a person would just get $10 in food stamps.

The average amount received by a family on the food stamp program is approximately $100, Treadwell said. The department is now sending out more than $250,000 worth of food stamps a month.

With this money going through the mail it is hard to keep some of it from being lost -- either through mistakes or theft.

Treadwell said when a person on the food stamp program reports their food stamps stolen or lost, they are then required to come to the center to receive their stamps.

The attorney general's office is now taking a role in the food stamp program's moves to become more efficient. The chief law enforcement agency in the state is actively seeking persons who are in violation of food stamp regulations.

Treadwell said she did not think anyone in Shelby County had been prosecuted for food stamp violations but there have been many cases prosecuted around the state for welfare violations.

Eligibility for food stamps is based on a household's net monthly income. All households are allowed up to $1,750 in resources -- stocks, bonds and money in the bank. Up to $3,000 in resources is allowed if a household consists of two or more persons and at least one of them is 60 years old or older.

A person living alone is allowed a maximum net income of $316 a month after deductions. The net income allowance increases for each additional person in the household. A family of four can have up to $621 a month in net income and still qualify, according to the program's regulations.

Food stamp applicants between 16 and 60 years old who are physically and mentally able must register for work. If someone in the household works, the household gets a special break. The household is allowed to subtract 20 percent of its earned income in figuring food stamp eligibility. According to the state department of pensions and securities, most food stamp households have at least one member who works, but usually for low wages.

All households are allowed a standard $75 deduction from net income. Some elderly people may deduct certain medical expenses and they may qualify for deductions for excessive housing expenses.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Martha Robertson told me about it at Shelby Memorial. She told me again two weeks later. That's why, the following Saturday, I was on my way up there, to their big white house snug up against Yellow Leaf Creek.

We've had watermelon from a dozen patches this summer, all of 'em good, and all of 'em appreciated. But none were better than the two I got out of Jim's patch.

Hez Carter bought it years ago for his boy, Rusty, and Rusty didn't need it and let Irene Bice have it who put it in her Flea Market on the Wilsonville road so Lillie Horton could find it when I got there today and wanted one.

That's how I got a double-bit ax for six dollars.

While we were at the Flea Market Earnest Buie bought a pair of work boots, size 12, from Irene who let him have 'em for 20 bucks and said it was a bargain and Earnest said it was too and I agreed since I didn't know a good pair of work boots from a three-legged rooster.

Earnest took another look at 'em before we got home and said with the same tone in his voice that would've been there if he had stepped on a snake: "What's in this little box?"

We looked inside and found a tiny motor and a note that said: "To help you push 'em along if you get in a tight!"

I bought the seed at the Co-Op from Cynthia Largin. I always buy my seed from Cynthia, or Ruby Atchison. And I always tip her a penny, whichever waits on me.

They were speckled butterbeans and I planted 'em the next day and they came up the next week and stood there and baked in the hot sun for two months.

And then we got a rain and enough lightning to light up three worlds. And those crazy butterbeans started growing and putting on blooms and little butterbeans and today, on the 11th day of September, we had our first mess of speckled butterbeans.

Alfred Talton said: "Get some watermelons and keep going. As many as you want."

Nora Talton said: "They're not much size, but they're good."

And that's why, if you had happened along the Kingdom road this afternoon, with the temperature one hundred and ten, you would have seen Earnest Buie and Skillet Bird getting watermelons out of Al and Nora Talton's patch.

Who are you?

Voter re-identification cards will be at the polling places to pick up and fill out during the run off election next Tuesday. These are to be mailed back to the board of registrars or filled out and left at the polls. Every Shelby County voter must reidentify in the next 8 or 10 months to remain on the list of registered voters.

The process may be done by mail, at the polls, or by coming to room 208 of the county courthouse.

Dry Valley citizens clarify rumors

There are many false rumors circulating concerning annexation into the City Limits. Concerned citizens of Dry Valley have met with both the City Council of Montevallo and the zoning Commission to obtain the correct information. The following should clear up many of these rumors.

1. The City of Montevallo is not trying to annex Dry Valley. Concerned citizens of Dry Valley have asked Montevallo if they would consider annexing parts of Dry Valley if the residents desired annexation. The city said they would accept Dry Valley in the City if the residents agreed.

2. Approval for annexation by the residents would be provided by signed petitions or a vote of the affected area if a continuous piece of property to the existing city limits could not be accomplished through signed petitions.

3. No matter what you have heard or believe the fire department, police department, or rescue service will NOT respond to calls outside the city limits after February 1, 1981. You will effectively have no protection after this time.

4. Without annexation, your home owner insurance rates will increase due to changes in your fire zone classification. Example: If you have a frame home insured at $30,000 the least amount of increase you would pay is $15. The increase could be $66, depending on fire zone class. The insurance rate on a brick home insured at $80,000 will be increased a minimum of $28, and the increase could go as high as $152, depending on zone.

5. Your insurance rate increase in the majority of cases will offset or exceed any increase in property taxes. (Examples:) Homes now assessed at $10,000 pay $6 per year in property tax. This tax will go up by $7, if the area is annexed into the city, making the total annual tax $13. Homes now assessed at $90,000 pay $230 in property tax now. The increase with annexation would be $63, making a total annual property tax of $293. Taxes on a home assessed at $50,000 would be increased by $35, etc.

6. If annexed to the city, the area would be zoned as agriculture-1. This means you can farm, ranch, or raise animals whether you have them now or not. You can sell your livestock now and replace it later, or at anytime. This is the least restrictive of zoning ordinances and essentially allows you to do what you are doing now or have plans to do. Copies available at city hall.

7. If annexed, a grandfather clause prohibits the city from stopping you from doing anything on your property in violation of agriculture zoning that you are presently doing or have in place.

8. About the only things in violation of agriculture zoning would be the addition or replacement of mobile homes and/or starting a business other than normal agriculture businesses. Dairying is an accepted agricultural business.

9. Existing mobile homes can remain on the property. At the present time, these mobile homes cannot be replaced nor can new ones be added unless it is in an approved and designated mobile home park.

10. The city has no plans to extend city sewage to the Dry Valley area in the foreseeable future. It is too costly.

11. Construction permits would be required for large, costly projects. Maintenance on your buildings or minor projects done by yourself would not require permits.

12. If annexed, free garbage pickup would be provided and your basic water bill would be reduced by $1.00 per month.

The zoning commission of Montevallo has agreed to meet in September and October to answer questions for Dry Valley residents, concerning zoning ordinances involved with annexation. If you have any questions to ask the commission please attend one of these meetings, or call one of the concerned citizens committee members listed below, who will be attending these meetings.

Fred Williams, 665-4077; Joe McGaughey, 665-2315; Pauline Williams, 665-4329; Francis

Shaw, 665-2146; Jerry Morgan, 665-4268; Bill Hamer, 665-4420; Kenny Blackburn; Marguerite Williams, 665-7187; all Rt. 2, Montevallo, AL 35115.

Saginaw resident sees no logic in new town

An open letter to the residents of the Longview and Saginaw Communities:

Contrary to the belief of some, you do have a choice on whether to remain rural or be incorporated. You do not have to be annexed into the town of Alabaster, nor do you have to incorporate into a new town of Saginaw to prevent it.

By law a local government can annex an area in three ways, (1) by vote of the people to be annexed, (2) by signature and approval of 100 percent of the property owners to be annexed (not 99 percent but 100 percent), and (3) by State legislature, which is rarely done for political reasons; that is, if he wants your vote he will not annex you against your will.

So -- you see a united front by all citizens in an area can stop annexation cold. You do not have to incorporate into a new town to stop it. Once incorporated we would not remain the same. A town government would have to be installed, salaries paid, taxes increased, ordinances passed, etc., etc., etc.

We would be starting from scratch. Where would the money come from? You and I! In my opinion, there is no logical reason to become incorporated in any town, new or existing. Think about it, make up your own mind, and then please attend the public hearing to be held at the Camp Branch Community Center at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 18.

Montevallo Civitans thank gazebo helpers

Letter to the Editor:

On September 4, 1980, the Shelby County Reporter was kind enough to include a picture of our newly completed gazebo at Orr Park in Montevallo. However, it would not be right to let go unnoticed all the people who contributed to the completion of this project. It was another instance of generosity of the most selfless kind.

For instance, the Centrala Garden Club gave our club $400; Holcombe Building Supply helped with building materials; Roy Faucett donated his time and talent to put the roof on the gazebo; the City of Montevallo helped in numerous ways; and, of course, all the Civitan Club members and friends (T.L. Hunicutt being the prime example of the former and Howard Harkins an example of the latter) donated their time for the actual construction of the building.

Our Civitan Club is most happy to donate this gazebo to the citizens of Montevallo, and to note that this was, with the help of many good people, a labor of love.

Thanks to all of you.

Sincerely,
Mike Benson, President

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Everyone is fussy about their name being spelled correctly.

If you work on a newspaper, you're especially aware of that fact.

Some people just get so upset if you're even one letter off.

With a first name like mine, I've come to accept the fact that no one is going to know if I'm male or female, and most likely they're not going to get the spelling of my last name right.

Even when I tell someone on the phone who I am, there have been a number of instances when they don't catch on right away.

"Did you say Fleamon?" they'll ask.

"No, Seaman," I'll say distinctly.

"Oh, Beeman," they may respond.

By then I'm usually shouting, "No, no, no. Seaman - you know, like a sailor - a person who works on a ship."

They usually catch on then.

When people see my name in the paper and call me on the phone, I can understand that they might ask for Mister Seaman?

But what I fail to comprehend, is being addressed as Mr. Seaman when I've talked to someone face to face.

I mean, I have short hair and usually wear slacks. And I know I'm not endowed with a lot of curves - but really!

That happened to me the other night. I had spoken with a man who happened to be a state official, mind you, and when he wrote to say he'd enjoyed chatting with me, the letter was addressed to Mr. Seaman.

How do you explain something like that?

Needless to say, if that fellow runs for office again, he won't be getting my vote.

Of course, I understand people who don't read the Reporter writing to me as Mr. Bert Seaman, or Seamon.

But a Birmingham university sent a brochure to me the other day. And from somewhere or other, they had gotten my name as Mr. Bux Seamons.

That's a new one.

Well, I can put up with that if people I encounter can just get my gender right. That is, a depressing situation!

Columbiana police

dedication lauded

To the City of Columbiana and Shelby County:

I would like to commend and express my appreciation to the Officers of the Columbiana Police Department for the professional manner, and courtesy during the Shelby County Fair held here in Columbiana. Each officer worked the fair on his on time to provide each citizen assistance with any problems they had. Each officer showed honest concern for the welfare of everyone who came.

This concern and dedication to their job in my opinion is a major reason there was no serious problems this year at the fair.

The officers: Chief Howell Horn, Officers: Mike Shaw, Richard Gaught, Tom Carter, John Reed; Aux. officers, Sammy Creel, Homer Mallory and Randy Joiner.

If in the future the Columbiana Police Department can be of some service to you please feel free to call.

UM gets extra grant

The University of Montevallo has received an additional federal grant to fund its special services program for the next four years.

Thomas Martin, assistant to the dean of student affairs, said that the grant has an anticipated value of more than $400,000.

Directed by Elaine Elledge, the special services program began in 1979 and is designed to offer voluntary academic, personal, and financial counseling to qualified students.

Students in the program receive tutoring to help them overcome deficiencies in math and language skills, and counselors help them to improve study habits and to deal with several other needs. The program also provides basic, non-credit courses, academic and personal counseling, and career guidance.

Mrs. Elledge said the program is designed to provide support to students who may be at a disadvantage dealing with the demands of college living and classroom work.

Bus overturns

1977 model, and the experienced driver, Etta Lawley, had been driving buses for the county schools for at least three years.

The bus has a capacity of 65 students. In addition to those already on the bus, about 30 more were scheduled for pickup the morning of the accident.

The children ranged in age from kindergarten to high school seniors.

The route starts on highway 70, west of Columbiana, goes south on highway 97 to highway 25, and then goes south of 25 on several spur roads. It was on one of these, County 315, that the accident occurred.

It was the second accident for a county school bus since school began. The earlier accident was in northwest Shelby county. It was caused by a combination of a bad road with bad shoulders, and the driver's letting the front tires get off the pavement, according to Ellie Glasscox, acting transportation supervisor.

At press time the investigation into the causes of the Summer Hill accident had not been completed.

Two Vandiver men were arrested last Tuesday for selling moonshine.

Glen M. Black, 62 and Terry Black, 24, were taken into custody following an investigation by the Shelby County Sheriff's Department and ABC agents.

The still in Bessemer where the moonshine was being made was also seized by the ABC agents.

There are three counts of selling untaxed liquor against the older Black and one count against his son.

Both men were released from the Shelby County jail after making bond.

The investigation of the illegal liquor sale also resulted in the discovery of marijuana plants in the Vandiver area.

Thirty five of the plants were discovered growing in a wooded area.

News from the campus of UM

The second concert in the University of Montevallo's two-year inaugural organ concert series Sunday, Sept. 21, will feature Dr. Patricia Fitzsimmons of the Jefferson State Junior College music faculty.

The concerts, which began earlier this month, celebrate the new Holtkamp organ in UM's recently renovated Palmer Hall.

Fitzsimmons's program will include Fantasia and Fugue in G minor by Bach, and other works by Mozart, Widor, Alain, and Schumann.

Fitzsimmons holds the D.M.A. degree in organ performance and literature from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester.

She has taught at Jefferson State since 1968, and has played many organ recitals in the East and Southeast.

The concert, which is open to the public at no charge, will begin at 3 p.m. in UM's Palmer Auditorium.

Becky takes you 'Around the County'

by Becky McDonald

The evening began simply in Alabaster. Dale and Debbie Ward were to go out to dinner with Bill and Denise Spencer. The occasion - Bill's birthday. Then came an urgent call from Dale. Though his 8 year old son Jamie was ready for bed, young Casey was in desperate need of 'pampers'. Would Bill ride to the store with him? Leaving his wife and their young daughter Crystal, Bill went off to help his friend.

When the two men returned empty handed they found the Ward's home dark and silent. Diligently they searched for the light switch and were rewarded with 30 bright cries of SURPRISE!

The very much amazed and delighted man of the evening was presented with several gifts and generous slaps on the back. Being an avid Georgia Bulldog fan Bill was especially pleased to receive a red T-shirt. This classical garment proclaimed 'Go-Dogs' on its front and on its back an effective 'arf-arf' Happy Birthday Bill!

Kurt Unger can be seen strutting around Alabaster passing out blue cigars and sporting a proud paternal smile. And rightly so, since his wife Sharon presented him with a healthy 5 lb. 7 ounce baby boy six weeks earlier than expected. Both mother and son are doing fine but their neighbors are not so sure about the nervous but proud Papa Unger.

Football, hotdogs, cake and ice cream, and a trip to the fair! All that and more was what George and Nina Bentley of Columbiana had planned for their son's ninth birthday party. Young Rux Bentley had quite an exciting celebration and was joined by little sister Amy, Kip Horton, David Kitchens, Tommy Harrison, Corley Ellis, Todd Lyles, and Scott Sessions.

After a fun packed evening the exhausted parents were surprised to learn that it was the 'Alpha Probe Space Ship' that made the day a success. With bright flashing lights and loud 'beep beeps' the space shuttle can be sent into orbit along with two blue suited space men. Even five year old Amy was impressed and has already added the space ship to her own birthday list. Happy Birthday, Captain Rux Bentley!

The Wilsonville Fire Arts Club met last Monday at the home of Mrs. Philip Mann. John Howell Cates spoke on 'The Language of Flowers'. The officers of this organization are Mrs. W.G.

Oliver, Mrs. Edgar Ray, Mrs. A.B. Carder, and Mrs. Joel Karey. Their purpose is to promote interest in fine arts and current affairs and to enrich the social life of club members.

The women meet the third Monday of each month. Anyone interested in joining the group is invited to call Mrs. Ray at 669-6371.

Brownie Troop 360 of Columbiana is in need of uniforms. Anyone who wishes to sell or donate Brownie uniforms is asked to call Joyce Willis at 669-9658.

Several weeks ago I wrote a story about the King and Johnson family reunion at Callaway Gardens. I failed to mention that it was James and Rose Marie King who planned the reunion. The Kings reside in Helena with their two children, Chris and Laura. I sincerely apologize for this oversight.

All week long our girls had talked about the fair and especially the Heart ride. Now that was a ride I could identify with. Neither David nor I were prepared for what had caused our little girls such excited anticipation. This so-called Heart ride swung out and around so fast that we were sure several children would be sick before it was over.

Confident I could tactfully handle this problem, I left David with the children and walked over to the gentleman who operated this paragon of excitement. 'Sir' I asked, 'Isn't six years old too young to ride this ride?' 'No ma'm' he replied. Trying again with my sweetest smile, "Would you tell my little girls they're too small to ride?" With a smile equal to mine he answered, "No ma'm."

Not too sure what to do next, I walked back to my excited daughters. With as much sympathy as I could muster I said, 'The adult in charge said you were too little but we could try the merry-go-round.'

With their smiles now frowns we headed for the merry-go-round and I heard Jennifer say, "I hope this adult in charge won't think we're too little!" Until next week I'll be seeing you 'around the county'.

If you have any news of social interest please call Becky McDonald at 669-9535.

SMH gets director

Ms. Jeanne Allen is the new Director of Medical Records for Shelby Memorial Hospital, according to Administrator Roland Bradford.

A 1977 graduate of the Medical College of Georgia and a native of Carrollton, Georgia, Ms. Allen has a Bachelor of Science Degree in Medical Record Administration. She has previously held positions at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, at Talmadge Memorial Hospital in Augusta, Georgia and with the National Institute of Health.

Ms. Allen is married and her husband, Robert, is an intern at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Pelham couple wed at Hargis

Miss Paula Whiteport became the bride of Jack Albert Grimsley, Jr. of Pelham in ceremonies in the chapel at Hargis Retreat on September 5 at 7 p.m.

The bride's parents are Mrs. W. A. Bramlett of Pelham and Mr. Paul E. Whiteport of Gadsden.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Grimsley of Pelham.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Gigi Butcher of Pelham. Bridesmaids were Terri Blankenship, Alabaster; Debbie Cost, Calera; and Rita Metcalf, Pelham.

The groom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were Joe Davidson, Helena; Donald Martin, Pelham; Ronnie Blankenship and Ronnie Blankenship, Jr., both of Alabaster.

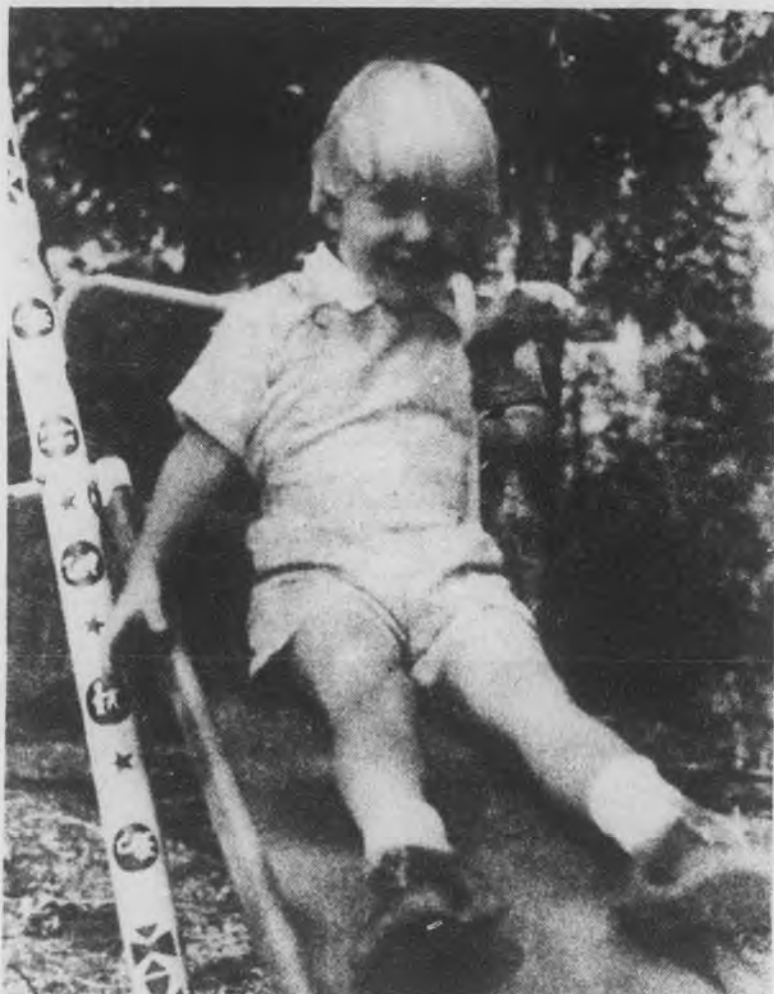

A reception was held in Giltner Hall at Hargis Retreat.

The bride is employed at Winn Dixie in Pelham and the groom is with Coastal States Equipment.

Following a wedding trip to Gatlinburg, the couple is at home in Shannon Glen, Helena.

Cahaba Valley

Club installs officers

Mrs. J. O. Lester took over as president of the Cahaba Valley Garden Club at the club's September meeting at the home of Mrs. Carl Stapleton.

Other new officers of the club are Mrs. D. F. Byers, vice president; Mrs. William Each, secretary; and Mrs. O.E. Johnson, treasurer.

The officers were elected last spring, and this was their first meeting since the election.

Mrs. Byers presented the program, which consisted of reports from each member on the interesting and amusing things that had happened during the summer.

One of the most interesting was told by Mrs. Robert Waite about the family's trip to the Holy Land. They visited Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, then went on to Austria and Oberammergau where they saw the famed Passion Play.

Another member, Mrs. J. A. Montgomery, told of her trip to the west coast and Vancouver, Canada with its large gardens of roses.

A gourmet covered dish dinner concluded the meeting.

In service

Rhythm band entertains

A washboard, churn and pair of spoons were some of the instruments used by a musical group who entertained members of the Columbiana Culture Club Thursday afternoon.

And even though gray hair showed from beneath most of the Panama straw hats the group wore, the music was lively and started toes in the audience a-tapping.

The youngest member of the Merrymakers reported she was 66 and the senior member of the Sylacauga band admitted that next month she'd be 89.

Fourteen members of the Friendship Club's rhythm band made the trip to Columbiana to perform at the Culture Club's first meeting of the year.

Mary Suttle was the hostess for the meeting which was held in the fellowship hall of the Colum-biana First United Methodist Church.

Program chairman for the day, Doris Spire, introduced the musical group which is under the direction of Sally Mims.

Joining the group for several numbers was the director's daughter, Columbiana teacher Mary Curtis.

She played the piano while the Merrymakers shook tambourines, strummed ukuleles, clanged cymbals, and blew bullhorns and bazookas.

There is a total of 23 people in the band which has been playing for churches, nursing homes and other groups, for the past five years.

"BEYOND BELIEF"

"BEYOND BELIEF" is a growing viewpoint among some religious leaders. They say, "belief is a thing of the past, if it requires anything like conviction." They say that the church should "free itself from commitment to the impossible concept of God, in the interest of becoming a healthier and freer community."

THE AIM IS to make the "church" pluralistic, just like the rest of society so that people can be free to believe or disbelieve; as they choose." Of course, this entire philosophy is humanistic; and it is totally contrary to God's revelation, and leaves nothing for us.

In OPPOSITION to this humanism, Christ teaches that "you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32). The "truth" is God's word. (John 17:17). This is the God-approved way of freedom and salvation. (I Peter 1:22-25).

CONVICTION formed by believing the evidence of God's revealed truth, and expressed by obedience to God's word enables us to please God.

Brushwork

After using his spare time to paint, retired mail carrier Jim Redfield is now getting back to his paintbrush and canvass on a fulltime basis. Here he works on a portrait of his niece. (Photo by Seaman)

Mailman puts art back in front seat

Although he never stopped painting entirely, there wasn't much time left for art during the 14 years Jim Redfield ran his mail route.

And now that the Alabaster mail carrier has retired, he plans to get back to the work he left when he joined the postal service.

One of his ambitions, he says, is to paint some of the scenic beauty which abounds in Alabama's parks and in other rural areas of the state.

However, some of his canvases will portray subjects closer to home.

The artist, who once directed the Gulf States Art School in Birmingham, has a special interest in doing portraits of animals.

He has done a number of dogs and horses, and a future painting may show the birds who took up residence in a mail box where he made daily deliveries.

For two months, Redfield related, he had to leave mail in the family's paper box while the mother bird raised her family.

Explaining his reason for leaving the professional art field for a job as a rural mail carrier, Redfield said the hectic pace had been responsible for him making the change.

During the years he worked in Birmingham, Redfield served as art director of Pizitz Department store and also held that position in two advertising agencies.

Noting the growth of the area since he started delivering mail, Redfield said that his first route, which was Rt. 1 Siluria, has been divided into four Alabaster routes.

Now that he'll be staying closer to home, the former mail carrier admits that he'll miss the daily contact with fellow workers and the people he served.

He expects, though, that his own painting and teaching art classes in his home, will keep him as busy as ever.

Where were you when mama canned?

by Ruth Young
Special to Shelby County Reporter

Years ago I remember my mother canning jar after jar of garden vegetables. I remember her glowing look of pride and accomplishment when she displayed her efforts to her friends. Their complimentary remarks taught me this was one way to prove you were "worth your salt." Only several hundred jars would suffice to prove your 'self-worth'.

I've always enjoyed gardening. Spring planting, growing season and even the harvest. I always imagine these beautiful vegetables painted on canvas. There's a rustic beauty about a basket of potatoes and even in the dying vines in autumn. I've always prepared the bounty of my garden for the freezer but without emotion. I did because it had to be done with no particular feeling of accomplishment.

This summer I was determined to experience the feeling of satisfaction I saw in my Mama's face. I was going to can...tomatoes.

Thanks to the generosity of my mother-in-law and armed with her specific instructions I began to "prove my worth."

Tomatoes peel easier if given a hot bath. This done I speared the biggest tomato bobbing to the surface. Now you don't hold a hot tomato very long before you let go. I did...it fell to the floor and skidded across the kitchen. A dropped tomato is like spilled milk, it goes everywhere.

With tomatoes cooked, next the sterile jars were filled. Somehow more tomatoes ended up outside the jar than in. Suddenly I heard the crunch of tires in the driveway. O, great, it's my friend Gail, with me practically swimming in tomato juice. Worse yet, she knows all about canning.

From habit born out of years of friendship Gail always manages to knock and enter all in one gesture. It was too late to hide.

"What are you doing?" she asked eyeing my splattered kitchen.

"Canning tomatoes," I loftily replied.

"Don't you own a funnel?" asked Gail.

"No I don't, no funnel have I," I said testily. Flashing back, I remembered this metal gadget Mama attached to the top of the jar to make filling easier. If I owned one, wouldn't I be using it?

"Fill those jars to the brim," snapped Gail, "This makes them seal easier." Gritting my teeth, I do as I'm told and then very knowingly I put a teaspoon of salt into each jar.

"Well, at least you know to do that," said a surprised Gail. I didn't tell her my mother-in-law had told me to do this and had even given me the canning salt.

"Where were you when your Mama canned?" asked Gail. Where was I...I was there, I know I was, but doing what? I remember gathering all those vegetables but there was this butterfly to chase...besides whatever I was doing was much more important than being in that kitchen canning. "Mama I think you failed with your youngest."

Jars filled, now came the sealing that spelled success or failure. I briskly screwed a lid and ring onto a jar of tomatoes and gave it a firm twist.

Not enough," said Gail, "Women generally have more strength in their wrist if something is held in this manner. Now watch, this is the way your Mama sealed jars."

Grasping a jar firmly in a clean dish towel and holding it close to her chest, Gail gave it a firm twist. I knew immediately that jar was sealed and yes, that was Mama's method. I remember her hands sealing all those jars and not one would spoil.

Now it was my turn. Imitating Gail exactly I proceeded with a florish to seal a jar in the same manner but somehow it just didn't produce the same results.

Said Gail thoughtfully eyeing my rather slight build, "It's back to table level for you."

Jars sealed, we relaxed over tea and heard six consecutive "pops" which meant my tomatoes were sealed. We grinned and congratulated each other.

Gail remarked casually, "You don't like to cook do you?" No I don't like to cook. At ladies meetings when talk turns to cooking and new recipes I simply smile and act knowledgeable. Secret recipes handed down from generation to generation leave me void of curiosity.

I'm content the next generation "shall inherit" and I'm satisfied my daughter would prefer my recipes pass on whenever I do. The colonel's chicken recipe is safe from me, but the TV commercial "Do a little number on your chicken tonight" intrigues me.

Enters my husband on the canning scene. "O, you've canned tomatoes," he said giving me an admiring look, "and all by yourself."

I smiled smugly, Gail's eyes rolled heavenward and I gave her a vicious kick under the table.

"You'd better not tell," I threatened her as she left. She looked at me sadly and drove off muttering "Pitiful, pitiful."

Still no feeling of accomplishment, I determine I would try again... I would can tomato relish. Tomato relish is supposed to make food tastier and any food edible.

Well into the recipe, I knew I had gone wrong when my hands began to burn from all that hot pepper I had added. O the jars sealed immediately, they had no choice what with all that hot pepper.

Enters husband again. "Say what's that odor?" he asked, "boy, this is the first time in days my sinus has been clear and my headache is gone." He didn't comment on my hands immersed in ice water.

Later my sister visited and commented, "You've actually canned!" She was the daughter who stayed in the kitchen. Even Mama's granddaughters know how to can. Yes, Mama had failed with me. I remember those vegetables and those beautiful canned jars as if they were in a coloring book.

I presented my sister with a jar of my relish as a gift to my much loved brother-in-law.

Enters husband. "Oh, you gave our brother-in-law a jar," he said happily noting one missing. I was touched at his generosity until I noticed the sadistic gleam in his eye.

Not having proved my "self-worth", I experience only the "agony of defeat". "Mama", I think, "why didn't you simply make me stay in that kitchen and learn to can?"

Behold, another batch of tomatoes! Rich, rich red in color...there they are reflecting colors of yellow ocher, burnt sienna and... Ah, Ah, there it is, that feeling of accomplishment and self-worth. I know why Mama didn't make me stay in the kitchen -- "to each his own thing..." and I reach for my paint and canvas.

Thanks, Mama.

UM policeman Raymond Glover shows the equipment in his patrol car to kindergarten youngsters from University Baptist Church.

Kids learn safety from UM policeman

Twenty Montevallo kindergarten children listened attentively as a University of Montevallo policeman talked about safety.

Raymond Glover stressed the importance of traffic safety to students at University Baptist Church's kindergarten Thursday.

He also mentioned safe behavior around the home and made sure that the youngsters understood that policemen are to be called on when help is needed.

The highlight of Glover's visit was when he showed the students the police car and the equipment it contained.

Kindergarten teacher Cathy Sellers related that her students have been studying a unit on safety and did art work connected with the subject.

She said the unit was also used to teach children different shapes by observing traffic signs.

Realtors tell how to buy, sell home

Shelby County residents in the market for selling or buying a home will have a special opportunity offered them.

On Sunday, September 28, the real estate companies that operate in the county are joining forces to offer a "Home Buyers Seminar."

Featured speakers will include Eloise Theobald as emcee. A panel of local realtors will be on hand to answer questions from the audience.

Purpose of the afternoon seminar is to aid the public in how to buy or sell a home, and what to expect when you buy or sell a house, seminar chairman Billie Wildman said.

The program will be strictly informative and offered as a public service free of charge, according to Don Murphy, publicity chairman of the event.

The seminar will begin at 2 p.m. at the Pelham city hall. Door prizes and refreshments will be offered.

Highway 22 detour plagues motorists

Shelby Countians who have attempted to travel between Montevallo and Columbiana along one route have been detoured the last few weeks.

And the detour around the bridge crossing Interstate 65 on Shelby County highway 22 could continue for three more weeks.

According to R.D. Jeffreys of the state highway department, damage was done to a 28 foot section of the bridge and it will take approximately three more weeks to finish the work. He said cars could possibly be allowed through the road a few days earlier.

With the bridge closed, many people have had to take other routes between Montevallo, Pea Ridge, Dogwood, Maylene and Columbiana.

The county highway department has set up detour signs which leads motorists from the Dargin Crossroad intersection, north on U.S. 31 to county highway 87, commonly known as airport road. This road intersects highway 12 which leads back to 22, on the Montevallo side of the closed bridge. This is approximately six miles longer than the usual route.

Some have taken the option of going through Calera on state highway 25.

But probably the best, or at least the shortest, route is the least known. From Dargin Crossroads, take 31 south to county highway 84, also known as Vulcan road. This will lead to highway 12. George Starcher of the county highway department says the Vulcan road route is approximately four miles shorter than the airport road route.

That could be a lot of time and gas money saved for motorists.

Another bridge that has been closed for the past few weeks is the covered bridge on Overland Road in Montevallo. The bridge re-opened this week according to city officials.

The I-65 bridge was damaged when it was hit by a truck. Authorities are still investigating the cause of the covered bridge's damage.

Oak Mountain fair

as family benefit

The Shelby Chapter of the Alabama State Employees Association is sponsoring its second annual Arts and Crafts Fair and Flea Market. The event will be held at Oak Mountain State Park, Saturday and Sunday, October 11 and 12.

The board walk around the swimming area of the lake provides a picturesque setting for the event.

Early applications for exhibit space promise a wide variety of arts and craft items as well as an interesting array of flea market treasures.

Several square dance and country music groups will provide free entertainment for visitors.

The Shelby County Task Force on Family Violence will benefit from this event.

Best Holstein

Shelley McCarthy of Harpersville was all smiles after her Holstein won the grand championship in the fair's 4-H Dairy Show.

Best Jersey

The Jersey shown by Kim Bearden of Helena was named grand champion during competition at the Shelby County Fair.

Stadium dedicated to late principal

The official dedication of the Ricky M. Cairns Memorial Stadium will take place Friday night, September 26, at Oliver Park. The naming of the football stadium is in accordance with a resolution passed by the Calera Town Council after the untimely death of Mr. Cairns, principal and former coach at Calera High School.

The ceremony will take place before the Calera Eagle and Jemison Panther football game.

All former students and friends are invited to attend.

Women learn defense in UM night class

A class in self defense for women is scheduled for Monday night in Montevallo.

Sponsored by the Montevallo Police Department the class will begin at 7 p.m. It will be held in the Montevallo Park and Recreation Building in Orr Park.

The class will feature three films, demonstrations and instruction by Montevallo police officers. Refreshments will be served. The class is open to the public, free of charge.

If the demand is sufficient, additional classes will be scheduled, according to Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland.

ID cards are given to telephone workers

"South Central Bell wants to remind its customers about its employee identification policy," said Walter S. Schriest, Jr., district manager for the company. This policy is being restated following a recent robbery in the Birmingham area during which a man posed as a telephone repairman in seeking entry into a household.

"Each employee is issued a South Central Bell identification card, which includes the employee's name, photograph and vital statistics such as birth date, weight, height, hair-color and eye-color," explained Schriest.

A South Central Bell employee -- a telephone installation or repair technician, for instance -- is required to have an ID card on his/her person while on the job, and should be prepared to present the card on demand, according to Schriest.

"If a customer has reason to suspect the identity of someone who calls himself or herself a South Central Bell employee, the customer should not hesitate to ask to see an official South Central Bell ID card. If the person is one of our employees, he or she will be happy to oblige," he said.

Poison hot line

The Poison Information Center at the Children's Hospital in Birmingham encourages parents to be aware of potential poisons during the coming months.

Cough and cold medications should be kept in a safe place. Also, flower bulbs, which are planted in the fall, are potentially poisonous. They should be stored out of the sight of children until planting. The bottom of a closet or refrigerator is not the place to store bulbs if you have small children.

The hot line number for the poison information center is 933-4050.

Warriors pass Tiger test

Thompson got its mettle tested Friday night at home against the Tigers from Chilton County. The Warriors had to come from behind twice before the tough Clanton team fell 23-16.

Though it may seem peculiar to some, Thompson coach Larry Simmons was more proud of his boys for the close win than he was for their 29-14 and 18-0 shellackings of Jemison and Bibb County.

"Everybody can lay down and quit," Simmons explained. "Everybody wants to play when you're ahead with first and goal. But I want to know who wants to play when you're down in the fourth quarter with 76 yards to go and it doesn't look like you'll ever score!"

"I like it! I feel better this week than last - a lot better," he said.

After coming back from a 7-8 deficit in the second quarter, Thompson took a 15-8 lead into halftime. But the Tigers came out fighting and ate up most of the third quarter as they rolled 76 yards in nine plays for the score. They added two more points on a bootleg keeper to take a 16-15 lead.

DAVID MOORE

Simmons admitted concern at this point. This was where the real test lay. This was where the questions were answered.

The Warriors responded with perhaps their best sustained drive of the season, marching the chain gang, sideline photographers and the ball 74 yards in 16 plays. Most of the horsing on the drive was done by Arthur Johnson, who racked up a total of 227 yards in 23 carries that night, and Randy Anderson, who totaled 68 yards.

Johnson scored the go-ahead touchdown from the one. He added two more by powering over the tackle to make the final score 23-16.

"The line moved out and the backs were running," beamed

Simmons. "That's what you want."

For Thompson, the game got off to a bad start. Johnson fumbled the opening kick and Chilton County took over and quickly picked up a first down at the Warrior 18.

Things looked bad. But with fourth and four from the 10, Buddy Cofer and Demetrius Threat tackled the Tiger runner on the seven, ending the threat.

Five plays later Johnson ripped the Chilton defense in half as he exploded up the middle for a 70 yard run good for six points. Jeff Willis booted the PAT and at 5:33 in the first quarter the score was 7-0.

After John Durrett put the kickoff in the end zone, the Tigers set up shop from the 20. Ten plays later, aided by a pass interference call, Chilton was knocking from the 10 with a first down.

THS backed them up a half yard on the next play, and then Johnson blitzed to sack the QB for minus 11. But the quarterback, who picked the Warriors apart all night, hit his man on the next play for six points. He added two more through the air to give Chilton County an 8-7 lead.

It was the first time Thompson had been behind all year. "Come on, Warriors!" pleaded a cheerleader from the sidelines, "Tighten up!"

There was a lot of noise, but maybe somebody heard her.

QB Chuck Woody returned the kick 15 yards and from the 32 the Warriors moved to the Tiger three in nine plays, one of which was a 32 yard pass play to Jeff Joiner, Woody's first completion of the year. From the three, Johnson ran it over twice, once for six points, once for two.

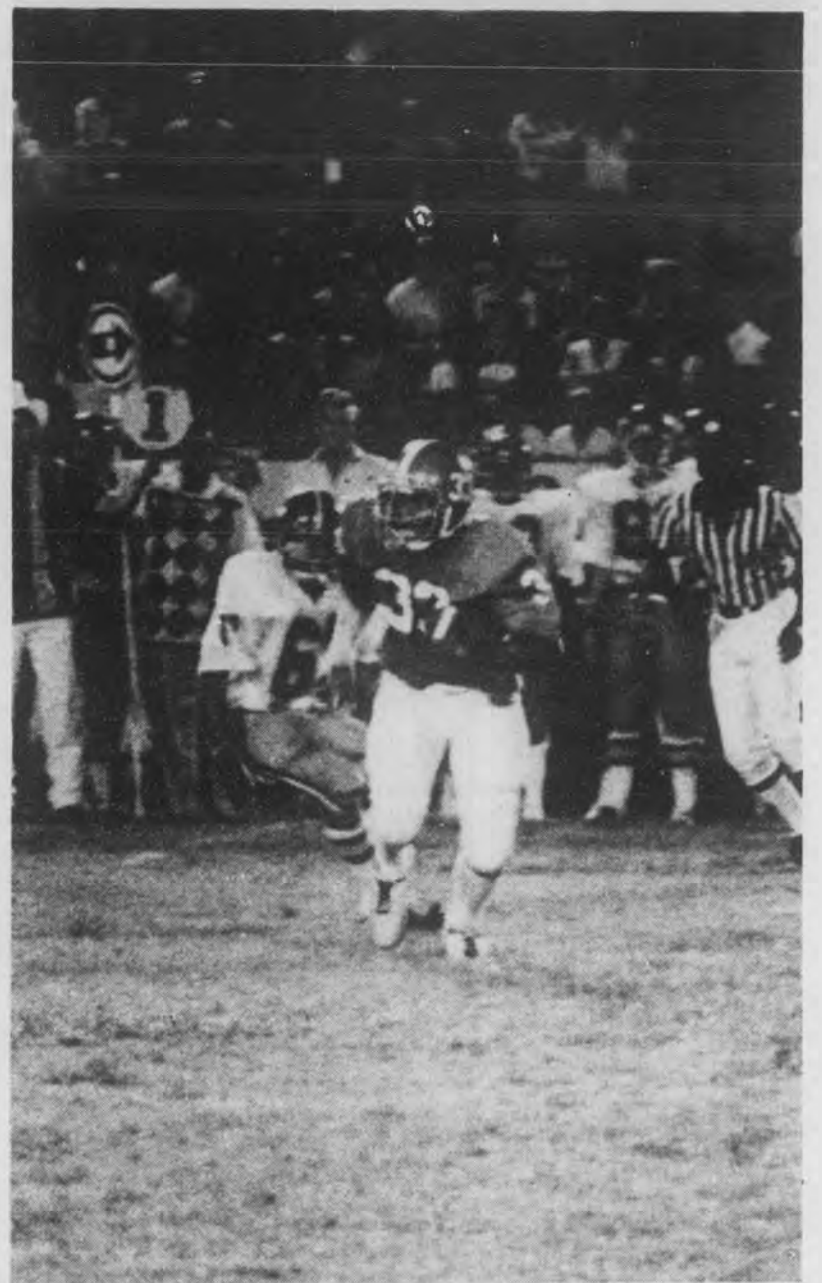

The remainder of the half was taken up by three turnovers. Johnson fumbled the ball away, but Threat got it back the next play with an interception at the Thompson 33.

With third and 22, however, Woody completed a pass to the wrong colored jersey and Chilton was again threatening from inside the 30. But the Red defense held for four straight pass attempts and that was that for the half.

Most of the third quarter belonged to Chilton as they went ahead 16-15. But the Warriors began moving the ball at the end of the quarter and banged it out for the winning touchdown with 10 minutes left in the game.

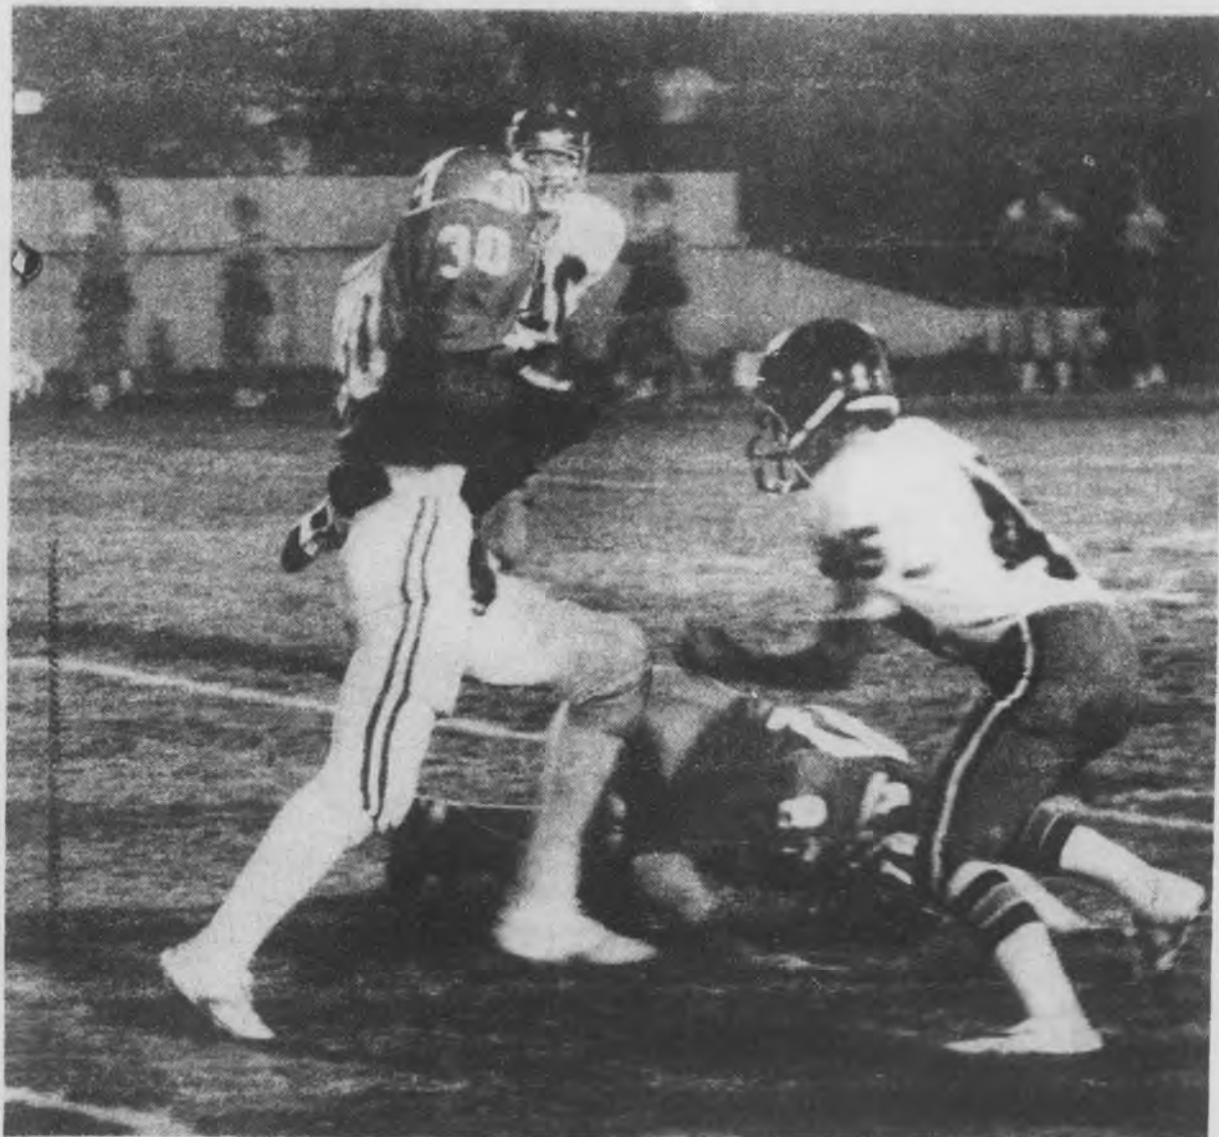

Though stats were unavailable, Thompson had about six turnovers in the game, causing Simmons to comment, "Clanton didn't really stop us. We stopped ourselves."

It's a safe bet that that Simmons and his staff worked on ball handling this week in preparation for a potentially dangerous trip to Montevallo tomorrow to play Richard Gilliam's Bulldogs.

Making breaks

Vincent Jackets keep 'em smilin' with a 34-12 win over TCTS

From Richard Crumpton's improbable book of doggie hints: The best way to keep Rover happy is to keep rubbing him under his ear.

From a possible forthcoming book on football by Harold Garrett: The best way for players to keep coach happy is to keep winning games.

Garrett and his staff, all of Vincent High and perhaps even Crumpton's dog were happy last weekend as the Yellow Jackets continued their winning ways, picking up victory number three on the road against Talladega County Training School. Vincent handily won the area match 34-12.

After forcing the punt on TCTS's initial possession, all purpose workhorse James Oden took the kick and blitzed it back 65 yards for the touchdown, running safely behind a solid wall of blockers. Rodney Driggers kicked true for the extra point and Vincent was on the way.

In the second quarter Vincent started a drive on their own 40, scoring in nine plays. Dwight Spradley got the longest run in the series, darting 20 yards up the middle for the TD. Driggers drilled the extra point.

This might have been a good time for the home team to have retired their pads for the evening. But instead they decided to put together a 60 yard drive and scored a touchdown, making the score 14-6.

All this did was stir up the Yellow Jacket nest and got some "dander up," as Garrett put it.

Vincent throttled Talladega's two point conversion attempt, and got good position on a short kick. Showing nothing fancy, they then proceeded to run right down the Tigers' throats. Sidney Yowe picked up a 35-yard gainer before scoring on the next play from the six. Driggers drilled his usual PAT.

But the dander wasn't down yet.

The Jackets kicked off and bottled their hosts deep. TCTS went to the air only to have lanky Dennis Datcher wrap his long arms around the ball for an interception in the flats, and breeze in from the 35 for the score.

To break the monotony, Vincent went for two and missed.

But as the half closed they commanded a 27-6 lead and the Tiger's back was broken.

In the third quarter the Vincent defense crashed through and blocked a punt, gaining possession on Talladega's 40. From there it was a short drive home, with Spradley running scoreboard honors from the one. Driggers ditted the PAT and Vincent surged ahead 34-7.

With a safe buffer built up Vincent took the opportunity to put some of its younger players under fire, and before the night ended everybody had seen some action. Even so, TCTS netted -2 yards rushing in the second half.

Too late in the last quarter, TCTS recovered a fumble at mid-field and a pass interference call gave them a first down on the 12. The ensuing touchdown made the final score 34-12.

Coach Garrett didn't sound quite ready to take on Pittsburg yet, but said "We were real, real pleased."

"Our five offensive linemen did the job we've expected of them all year." Behind their "outstanding" blocking, Yowe picked up 117 yards in 14 carries. Spradley gained 60 yards in eight runs and Ryan Dates ran five times for 47 yards.

Defensively, Garrett noted the playing of LB Bobby Howard and cornerbacks Travis Thomas and David Peterson.

Garrett added that maybe he's getting more picky as the season progresses, but he's still not completely satisfied with Vincent's play.

This Friday the Jackets put their still perfect record on the line against Cordova in Walker County. Though 1-2 on the year, the 2-A host has beaten 3-A Dora and lost last week to Curry only in overtime.

If it's September 20, it's dove hunting time

by David Armstrong

Dove hunters prepare. On Saturday, Sept. 20, doves had better look out for flying pieces of lead. When the noon hour arrives in our area, anyone living near an open field might think they are under attack. Guns will be blasting away at what many hunters consider to be one of the most difficult birds to knock out of the sky.

But doves aren't the only ones to be on the lookout. Hunters themselves should take a good look at the laws governing the dove season before the season opens.

According to conservation officer Doyle Wood, many hunters make careless mistakes each year that result in fines. One of the most common is not purchasing a license, Wood said.

Hunting licenses for this year expire the last day of September and Wood said it would be good for hunters to purchase a new one as soon as possible. The fine for hunting without a license is not less than $10 and not more than $25 with a minimum court cost of $29. That can add up to an expensive hunting trip.

Wood said another frequent and careless mistake that dove hunters make is forgetting to put the plug in their shotgun.

"When we go out in a field we check all of the guns to see if they will hold more than three shells. We jam those shells pretty hard into the gun and if we get the fourth shell in, it's a violation," Wood said.

Many of the plugs used by the hunters are nothing more than sticks and sometimes they rot.

But no matter what the hunter's excuse is, he is in violation of a law if a fourth shell can be inserted. The fine for not having a plug in the gun is not less than $10 plus court costs.

Baiting is a practice that many landowners use to get birds to come to their fields, Wood explained. There are illegal and legal ways to prepare a field which will attract doves, he said.

"A person can fix up a field which would be perfectly good and legal to shoot doves in," according to Wood.

One legal way to prepare a field for doves is to prepare a field for a wheat crop. That includes preparing the ground for planting and spreading the wheat in a normal planting method.

Another way is bush-hogging failing crops. But according to Wood, the most successful method he has seen is planting brown-top millet to use as hay. He said when the hay is gathered, much of the seed drops to the ground and that seed attracts doves.

Wood pointed out that the hunter, not the landowner, is the one who receives the fine when hunting on baited fields.

"I would suggest that a hunter going to a paid shoot go early and look over the field to see if it is baited," Wood said. "If a person is caught hunting in a baited field, it doesn't matter if he knew the bait was there or not," he explained.

The fine for hunting in a baited field is left up to the court with most fines falling between $25 to $100 plus court cost.

Another is not possession of more dove than the bag limit --

12. Wood said hunters sometimes forget how many they have shot and it is just a careless mistake. Only good shots in a field with a lot of birds need worry about this regulation.

He also said hunters hunting in groups often throw all of their birds into the same ice chest. "If there are more than 12 birds in that ice chest, the owner of the chest will be fined," he said. But, if the hunters will put their birds in plastic bags with their names on them before placing them in the ice chest, there will be no problems. The fine for possession of more birds than the bag limit is left up to the court.

Wood said there are indications that a good number of doves are in the area this season. The season is from noon until sunset, Sept. 20 through Nov. 5 -- then Dec. 19 through Jan. 10.

to shutting out Cahawba Christian 21-0 Friday night on the road.

The Raiders ran an impressive ground game, racking up an early lead and playing everybody who dressed out. The score could have been more but SA head coach Harry Rawlinson told his boys to run out the clock with less than a minute and first and goal from the five.

After forcing the punt, Shelby marched its first possession straight down the field, whacking off the distance in five and ten yard gainers. Clifton Garrett scored the TD from the two and James Knowles toed true for the PAT.

After an exchange of downs, Garrett took in a punt at the SA 20 and returned it 70 yards before getting hauled down at the ten. An illegal block nullified the effort, however.

Later Cahawba stopped the Raiders on the ten with the interception of a Dirk Carson pass.

But with :45 left in the half

Brandon McClary broke inside his right tackle, cut back against the grain and bolted 71 yards for a touchdown. Knowles again booted true and the visitors took a decisive 14-0 lead into halftime.

Garrett took the kick at the top of the third quarter and returned it 20 yards to the SA 40. From there the Raiders pounded out the yardage behind the effective blocking of Knowles, Scott Ataway and Mark Andrews.

Garrett walked in from the five on a sweep to score the six and Knowles did his final foot trick for the night, putting SA ahead 21-0, and making them 1-1 on the year.

Cahawba made another interception late in the third to end a drive and SA was threatening again when the game ended.

Leading the defense's shutout effort were McClary with 14 tackles, Mark Andrews with 13 tackles and end Mat Andrews with four quarterback sacks.

McClary was also the leading ground gainer with 137 hash marks to his credit. Carson rushed for 116 yards and Garrett picked up 49.

The mar on the evening, according to assistant coach Dwayne Kervin, was the team's approximate 100 yards in penalties, including three calls for holding.

Except for Carson's two punts, averaging 40.5 yards, Kervin noted that the Raiders stopped themselves with turnovers as much as Cahawba stopped them. "Without a doubt," he said, "we're still our worst enemy."

Rawlinson and Kervin spent the week working on mistakes because SA will have to play good ball when they travel to Demopolis tomorrow.

And it's too long a trip home to lose.

Wildcats bomb MHS

A check after the game squelched the rumor that the Shelby County Wildcats flew to Montevallo in an Air Force bomber Friday night. The score of the game probably had something to do with the rumor. SCHS bombed the Bulldogs 40-23.

It was a long night for MHS head coach Richard Gilliam, his team, staff and fans. Having QB starter David Melsoni, Mike Booth, Wade Bice and several other players injured didn't help Montevallo's plight any.

Nonetheless, the big win should give Larry Molton's young Wildcats a good shot of confidence as they now stand 1-1 on what could have been a winless season.

Daron Burns, who rushed 23 times for 218 yards, wasted no time with formalities. On the third play of the game he swept around the end for a 67-yard TD scamper. The PAT missed.

The Bulldogs punched right back, moving 65 yards in five plays. The TD came on a 35-yard run by Rory Gilbert behind the blocking of Carey Thompson and Tim Jones. QB replacement Howard Gaddis kicked the first PAT of his career.

At 7-6, MHS had its only lead of the night. But the bomber was making its run now and the bottom fell out.

In the second quarter Paul Horton recovered a Montevallo fumble on the 49. With fourth and five, 'Cat quarterback Ronald Benton hit Thomas Simon in the flats, picking up a first down at the 24. Three plays later Benton and Simon teamed up for a completion that carried to the six.

Eddie Walker scored on the next play and Benton-Simon connected for two. 14-7.

MHS picked up one first down before punting away and SC took over on their own 28. Five plays later Burns took a wide pitch and ran 60 yards to score, sans PAT.

The 'Dogs moved the ball to the SC 36, but fumbled and Jeff Jones grabbed it for the 'Cats. This time Benton hit Hugh Sims on a 20-yard fly pattern and Sims did the rest, quickly covering the 44 yards between him and paydirt.

Benton scored the two-point conversion on an option and while the bands entertained at halftime, SCHS sat on a 28-7 lead.

The bomber started its second half attack after MHS punted to the SC 36. Benton hit Sims and Simon with aials and Burns ran for 21 yards. But Shelby County couldn't move it any further and turned it over on downs at the MHS 21.

Montevallo fumbled it away on the next play and Sims recovered. Moments later Scott Studdard intercepted Benton and MHS was right back where they were.

With the help of Tim Jones and J.J. Moore, Montevallo moved out to their 45 before turning in a g

With the help of Tim Jones and J.J. Moore, Montevallo moved out to their 45 before running out of downs. But they were quickly back in business when Benton threw another interception, this time to Montez Thrift.

But after one first down Wildcat Simon stormed the MHS backfield, intercepted a Gaddis pitchout and sailed 45 yards without breaking stride for a TD. The kick attempt failed and a handful of Bulldogs stopped tackle-kicker Stoney Glenn as tried his hand (foot) at running.

Down 34-7 and going into the fourth quarter, Thrift pulled off a fake punt to keep a 'Dog drive alive. But faced with another fourth down situation at the SC 15, Wildcat Wille Lee sacked Gaddis for minus nine and the turnover.

But one turnover often begets another and two plays later Benton had again connected with the wrong colored jersey. Again it was Montez Thrift, and this one he returned to the SC 19.

After the ref threw a flag for a Wildcat counting mistake (too many men), Gaddis faked a pitch and cut up the right side for a touchdown. He ran for the conversion and made the score 35-15.

Bruce Glenn recovered the on-sides kick for SCHS at midfield and Burns made two quick carries down to the 25. On the next play Jason Head hammered up the middle for a TD. The pass attempt failed but the damage was done.

MHS took the kick and marched 71 yards in five plays to score. Gaddis had one run of 38 yards before Moore scored from the seven. Gaddis picked up the two-point conversion, making the final 40-23.

A somewhat flustered Gilliam later said, "They didn't do one play or pass we hadn't prepared for. There was no reason why we shouldn't have won. We just didn't do our job."

Although Gilliam said tackling was still not good on his 0-3 team, at least they were hitting harder. As to plans for 3-0 Thompson Friday, he said he'd have to wait until he saw the MHS hospital report this week.

Coach Molton pointed out that to win more games, Shelby County's defense was going to have to improve. Interceptions and penalties, he added, are good for nightmares.

But there was no denying he and the Wildcats preferred winning to losing any day.

"We're just trying to get a little better each game," Molton said.

Friday the 'Cats go on the road against B.B. Comer.

SHELBY MART - Pelham

Sale prices good thru Sunday. Master Card or Visa. Open evenings and Sunday 1-6 pm.

Pelham edges out Calera

It was an intensively fought defensive struggle. For two and a half quarters the score remained in a 0-0 knot.

Then Pelham got something they hadn't seen all year: a break on the turnover. Maybe they just had some good karma coming their way. Maybe Calera was just unlucky. Maybe anything.

On a second down play midway into the third quarter Calera was running an option when OB Ricky Winterbottom made a pitch-out to one of his backs. Panthers Bill Ryan and Chris Cutcliff were applying pressure and hit the back who was trying to find the handle on the ball.

The three players went down in a heap. Cutcliff came up with the ball on Calera's 39.

It was just what Pelham needed.

On the next play Brian Bolton crashed off tackle for 12 big yards. The Calera defense refused to give on the next two rushes so Pelham went to the air.

Quarterback Steve Rye hit Chris Whitfield for a first down inside the 20. Then on the option, Rye pitched out to Bolton who carried the ball to the two behind the blocking of Matt Mace.

With first and goal Bolton crashed in to score through a slot carved by tackle Tommy Roy. Jud Halcomb kicked true on the PAT.

It was 7-0 Pelham. And it was enough.

Defensively, Calera dominated the first half. Led by Eagle Cliff Smith the entire forcing unit dealt fits to a sputtering Pelham offense that mustered only one first down in two quarters - and that came on a penalty.

Linebackers Kirk Ross and Steve Bearden and defensive back Terry Hall added heavy reinforcement to the Calera line. On offense Winterbottom hit on 60 percent of his passes while Tim Loftin did the bulk of the rushing, yardage which didn't come easily.

If Calera played tough, Pelham played seven points tougher.

Cutcliff played his usual outstanding game at linebacker, and strong end Chuck Hughes cut off the outside running threat. Mace put an end to a fake punt play by Calera and prevented a key first down.

In the late moments of the game the Eagles made one last aerial raid and connected on two passes to move from their 30 to Pelham's 40. But Panther Scott Bearegard intercepted to cap the win.

"Somebody had to lose and they choose us, dadgummit!" said Calera head coach Danny Alverson whose team picked up their first loss in three outings. (It seems fitting that the game was at least so close.)

"We were real proud of our boys," Alverson continued. "We played excellent on defense. Of course I was disappointed in our offense. Of course it might not have been our fault. Pelham didn't give us anything."

"They're a pretty good football team," Pelham head coach Steve Rivers admitted of his 2-A opponent. "They whipped us defensively the first half. It was strictly a defensive battle."

While speaking of defensive battles, Rivers pointed out that he thought it had been the best defense his now 2-1 Panthers had played all year, and that they have gotten better each game.

Describing it as a "hard nosed football game," Rivers added that the felt a new rivalry might have gotten started and indicated that the first match between Pelham and Calera would probably not be the last.

On Pelham's injured list is running-back Guy Nichols who was due to have a knee operation this week. The hard running sophomore was injured in the first quarter of the Childersburg game.

Give the boy a hand

Not that he necessarily wanted it, but Pelham QB Steve Rye (10) got a (helping?) hand from this Calera defender who no doubt forgot his manners in the heat of the action. And defensively, there was plenty of action. (Photo by Seaman)

Briarwood Lions win a 27-0 shutout

In nine years of rivalry the Briarwood Christian Lions never managed a road win against the Westminster Crusaders. Not until Friday night, that is.

The Lions traveled to Gadsden and trounced all over Westminster, eating their lunch 27-0.

"We felt like we had a real good chance and are just real thankful to win," commented head coach Gary Fleming in retrospect.

"But we've got to get some wrinkles out of our offense," he added. "And our secondary hasn't been tested yet..."

A schedule change that gives Briarwood an open date next week, however, should give Fleming time to do a little fine training with his Lions.

Westminster was nearly gone, too.

With heavy pass rushing by Lions Scott Mooror and Marty Angwin which resulted in several sacks, the Crusaders never even dug out of their own territory in the first half.

Midway into the second quarter Schor took a punt and returned it 25 yards to the Westminster 40. From there the Lions punched their way up the middle behind the strong blocking of their interior line. Jim Bradford scored the TD from the five, the PAT failed and Briarwood took a 19-zip score into halftime.

In the third quarter Fleming took Schor out of the game with bruised arm and put Bric Baker in as signal caller. Baker drove the Lions down to the 15, but an interception killed the drive.

A fumble recovery in the fourth by Randy Cox set up a 50-yard drive for the game capping TD. Stephen Lindsey scored it from six, then carried several Crusaders over with him for the two-point conversion.

Now 2-0, the Lions should have some good momentum going for them when they tackle Independent Methodist September 26.

Against Westminster, Briarwood's general handy-man Mike Schor returned the opening kick 35 yards to the Crusaders' 45, nearly breaking for a score. One play later Clay Wheeler cleared the secondary on a long pattern and Schor hit him with a pass. Wheeler never broke stride as he sailed for six. The PAT attempt failed.

The best way to break an opponent is to hit him hard and fast. And that's just what the Lions did.

On Westminster's third play from scrimmage Schor picked off a pass to the flats and ran 46 yards down the sideline to score. Jeff Nelson kicked the PAT and with only a few minutes gone,

Coosa's defense slams the door while offense rolls up 42 points scored. Williams booted the PAT to make it 14-0.

CVA slaughtered the Lee Generals 42-0 in a massacre staged at Harpersville.

In the second quarter the defense held Lee deep, forcing a punt from the goal line. Greg Adair took the punt for CV and returned it 35 yards for a touchdown. Williams again exercised his toe and the PAT was good.

After an exchange of punts Norred set up shop for CV at the midfield and from there the Rebels ground out a scoring drive that saw Jim Haney score from the five. Williams kicked true again and at the half Coosa Valley was sitting pretty at 28-0.

Moving into the third quarter the two teams played gridiron see-saw with Green freely substituting players to build depth.

Early in the fourth quarter Norred snared an interception and returned it 60 yards for the TD. Who do you think kicked the PAT? Wrong. This time it was Eric Davis.

Again the defense kept Lee bound and gagged and forced the punt. This time it was Scott Norred who broke the big play, a run good for 50 yards. With Davis at QB Todd Greene caught a pass for first and goal at the four. On

Among the defensive standouts were Williams, Davis, Adair, Green and Mike Norred, who helped keep the shutout alive despite four lost fumbles.

Friday CVA pits its 2-1 record on the road against 2-1 Faith. "I hope we make them 2-2," said Green.

The Generals got as close as field goal range on their next possession but Ricky Lynn blocked the kick and Ken Holston ran it for five yards.

CVA then drove from the 20 with Eric Davis ripping off runs of 40 and 20 yards. Faced with fourth and goal from the three, Davis again got the call and for first and goal at the four. On

Who will get health center?

Id Armstrong
County residents were given a chance to comment on who should be allowed to build a primary health care facility in the Riverchase area last Thursday night.

But more than half of the 21 persons who gave their opinion to the facilities and services committee of the Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency were associated with hospitals either as doctors, staff or board of director members.

Approximately 300 were present at the meeting held at the Helena Elementary School.

Several points were made for both the proposed Baptist Medical Center complex and the combined application from Brookwood Medical Center and Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Bill King, executive director of BRHSA -- which must review and approve applications and then send them to the state health agency for approval before a health center can be built -- said the comments will be considered by the executive board of the agency in making their decision.

The technical committee will make a recommendation this week to the executive board of the agency, which will meet next Tuesday at 3:30. The executive board will then make a recommendation to the State Health Planning and Development Board which will make the final decision on the matter.

After representatives from the Baptist Medical Centers and the joint effort by Shelby Memorial and Brookwood Hospitals gave 15 minute presentations on their proposed health facilities, comments from the crowd were accepted.

Most of the persons who spoke addressed a few major points.

None criticized the plans to build a facility in the area. Many pointed to the need for easier access to emergency facilities and for general and family practitioners.

Others spoke about the excellent health care facilities offered by BMCs and Brookwood and Shelby Memorial Hospitals.

Dr. G.J. Roscoe of Cooper Green Hospital in Birmingham said all three parties in the applications have equipped themselves well for health care and he said they should both be allowed to open up a facility. He was one of several who expressed that opinion.

However, BRHSA has said that at this time only one primary health care facility is needed along the I65 corridor in northern Shelby County.

Ben Chenault of Riverchase said he if he were to decide between a Cadillac and a Chevrolet he would pick the Cadillac of health care. He said because of BMC's facilities in Birmingham, they are the Cadillac.

John Keith of St. Vincent's Hospital asked about the legal relationship between Brookwood and Shelby Memorial since the first is a for-profit organization and the latter is supported by the county through taxes and is not-for-profit.

Scott Athans, administrator for Brookwood Medical Center, said the two hospitals have an understanding spelled out in a memorandum. Brookwood would finance the project if approved and the expected financial deficit during the first year would be underwritten by Brookwood.

Athans did not explain what would happen to profits after the first year or how much each hospital would legally own of the

Saginaw idea nixed

by Marcia M. Sears

There is not going to be a new city called Saginaw, Alabama. At least, not in the foreseeable future.

The people of the Saginaw community are satisfied with their community just as it is.

"Leave us alone," was the underlying theme of speaker after speaker who stood up at last Thursday night's public meeting. The meeting was called to discuss incorporating the Camp Branch-Saginaw area into a town.

Ben Grubbs presided at the meeting. Charles Seales was a main participant, and Allen Edmondson kept the minutes.

Seales posed the questions: "Do you want to be independent or do you want to be part of another town?"

One of the main points the crowd of more than 100 wanted to know was whether Alabaster was planning to annex the area. A rumor to this effect had circulated in the community, and several speakers spoke on the subject.

Some thought the rumor had been planted by those who wanted to incorporate as the town of Saginaw.

The mayor-elect of Alabaster, "Doc" Rubin, was quoted as saying he would not try to undertake annexing the area unless a vote of residents was held, showing they wanted to come into the city.

Many speakers said that they would prefer to have the area remain unincorporated, but if it had to become part of a city, they would prefer to join Alabaster, rather than try to start a town of their own.

Costs of police and fire departments were mentioned most frequently.

Complaints

Walter Dowdell, one of the strikers at the SI lime plant in Saginaw, tells Shelby County Sheriff's Department deputy Lt. James Edwards about some of the problems pickets have experienced with trucks that refuse to stop before entering the plant. The Southern Stone quarry has shut down but the lime plant continues to operate with company personnel.

At Longview plant

Lime workers strike

A strike that began just after midnight Tuesday still continues at the Longview Lime plant in Saginaw.

There are reportedly 113 workers from the lime plant and Southern Stone who are picketing outside the plant gates.

Contract talks were called off Thursday according to Ken Roberson, the negotiator for Southern Stone, because he said the union had made no move toward accepting company offers.

And the striking members of the local Steelworkers Union # 81 admitted that instead of coming closer to an agreement, the union was losing ground.

Although there were some tense moments at the beginning of the strike, there has not been any violence.

The pickets are upset because the plant continues to operate during contract negotiations and because coal trucks are entering the plant and lime is being taken out.

They say that "scabs" - non-union personnel - have been brought in to keep the plant running. But Robert Ray, negotiator for SI Lime claims that only company people are filling the jobs of the striking employees.

On Wednesday, Shelby County Sheriff's deputies, Alabaster police and state troopers were at the plant site.

The following day only a few deputies kept an eye on the plant.

It has been reported that the company has hired guards from Shelby Securities to protect their property and to keep order.

According to some of those on the picket line, this is the first time that workers at the 106 year old plant have ever struck for a wage increase.

"I figure that in the 25 years I've worked here, my raises would amount to less than 25 cents a year," remarked striker Walter Dowdell.

A man who had worked at the plant 32 years declared that his hourly pay was only $5.38, and another employee with 25 years of service said he received $4.51 per hour.

Animal farm to remain open

The animal demonstration farm at Oak Mountain State Park will remain open.

The state's new conservation director John McMillan, announced this week that he will keep it open, even though receipts do not pay for the $40,000 annual cost of maintaining the farm.

In Montevallo

Budget grows to 1/2 million

A general funds budget of $482,300 for fiscal 1980-81 was adopted by Montevallo's city council Monday night.

The new budget, according to Councilman J.A. Borwn, chairman of the city's finance committee, allows for a five percent across the board wage increase for all city employees.

Although it is the largest budget in the city's history, the increase over the previous year is one of the smallest increases in recent years. Mayor Ralph Sears noted that the increase is approximately six percent over the present general funds budget.

The city's one percent sales tax accounts for the greatest amount of revenue accruing to the city. Privilege licenses are the next greatest revenue source.

Public safety accounts for the largest expenditure. Police expense and salaries total $145,000.

In other action, Shelby County Asphalt Company was determined to be the apparent low bidder on three proposed street paving projects. The firm bid $7,740 to resurface North Boundary Street between Main and Oak Streets; Middle Street between Main and Valley Streets and Valley Street between Middle and Shelby Streets.

Upon recommendation of the city's police and fire committee, council members approved a policy limiting use of city owned equipment including fire fighting trucks, to work on city projects, emergencies and emergency situations involving the University of Montevallo and the public schools. The motion to adopt the policy was made by Councilman Grady Parker, chairman of the police and fire committee.

Councilman David Nichols reported to council members that the city's new rescue truck is currently being equipped and fitted and should be ready to serve as the rescue unit's primary vehicle next week.

Fire Chief Mike Mahan told council members that the city's Snorkel fire truck had recently passed a pump test with "flying colors". The vehicle is rated as a thousand gallon per minute pumper. Tests showed it pumped 1,213 gallons per minute.

Police Chief Troy Kirkland reported that 21 women attended the first "Self defense for women class" held Monday night in the city's Park and Recreation building.

Streets Committee Chairman Herbert Milstead told council members that the Overland Road bridge has been reopened to traffic, but it is no longer a covered bridge. According to an unidentified eye witness the bridge was struck by an 18 wheel dump truck recently. The incident resulted in the tearing away of the cover over the bridge. The bridge is now several feet narrower than previously. Milstead indicated that plans to construct a side walk across the creek are in the planning stage.

City Clerk Don Hughes informed council members that during a recent meeting of the city's Cemetery Board, board members approved increasing the cost of certain cemetery lots in the municipal cemetery. Lots on the south side of the cemetery will now sell for $200 each. Lots on the north side will sell for $175 each.

Councilman Johnny Holsomback complimented Hughes for installing a city water line to serve the cemetery.

Grim wait

Relatives and neighbors of Helen McCarter were only a small part of the crowd that gathered near her home Sunday afternoon after news of her death reached the neighborhood.

Man admits Alabaster shooting

A young mother of three children was killed Sunday afternoon in Alabaster.

The body of Helen McCarter, age 26, was found in her mobile home on 12th street southeast, after Thomas Parker went to the Alabaster police station and confessed he had shot her.

Police came to the scene from Calera, Helena, Pelham, and the county sheriff's department, in addition to the Alabaster police and firemen. A state trooper was also there.

Dozens of neighbors lined the street while Coroner Billy Thompson made his investigation.

Evidence indicated Mrs. McCarter had been shot in the face with a 12 gauge shotgun at close range.

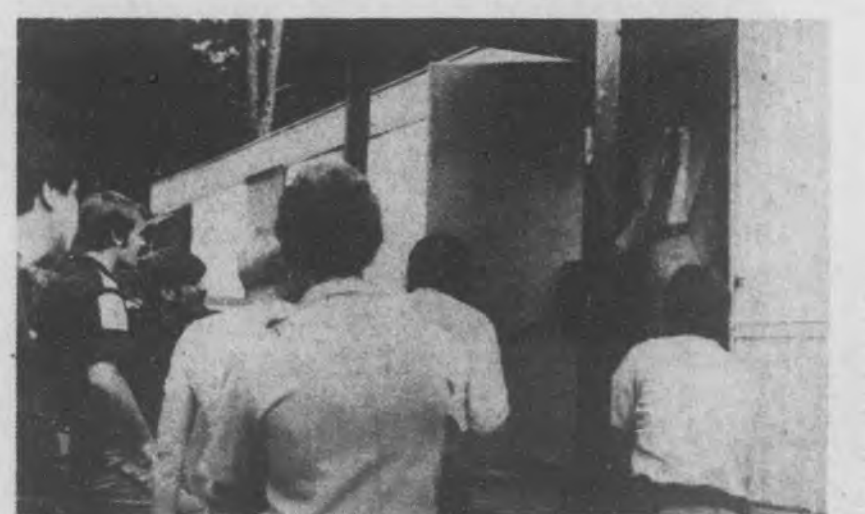

She and Parker had reportedly been romantically involved at one time, but had had a disagreement.

Parker, 31, is being held in Shelby County jail with bond set at $50,000. At press time he was charged with 'murder' but no degree was designated.

Mrs. McCarter's children are being cared for by relatives.

Although many called attention to the outstanding health care offered by the hospitals involved, others said there was not really any major differences between the centers.

Richard Duncan, a resident of northern Shelby County for four years, said he thought it was important to note that Brookwood Medical Centers do not accept Medicaid. He said he didn't like this because caring for persons who can't afford health care might mean more taxes for Shelby County residents.

Duncan pointed out that the Baptist Hospitals give health care to persons who need it regardless of their ability to pay.

Doug Willey, a resident of Shoal Creek and Birmingham automobile dealer, said his business would bring approximately 100 families to the area in the next few years and he was concerned about the lack of emergency facilities. He said years ago he lost a brother because emergency facilities were too far from where he was injured and more recently he lost part of one of his fingers on a hunting trip because emergency care was too far away.

Willey said he has stepped down as a board member of one hospital to become a member of the Baptist Hospital's board because of the excellent job he thought the BMCs were doing.

"I'm not a Baptist so I'm not here to impress my preacher," Willey said. "I don't have any axes to grind with Brookwood or Shelby Memorial but I think the Baptist Hospitals have the best health services available."

Many proponents of the Brookwood-Shelby application said they thought the location of the Shelby Memorial Hospital and the Brookwood Hospital would make their proposed center more accessible to in-patient care than the Baptist Hospitals.

Dr. Stacy Childs, a urologist on the staff at Brookwood and Shelby Memorial Hospitals, said a good working relationship has been developed over the years between the staffs. The doctors who are on the staffs of these hospitals support the new health center and he raised the question of who would staff the Baptist center if it is approved.

Although the BRHSA will consider the comments from the group in their decision, the details of what each group proposes to build will be the most important factor in which application is approved, if one is approved at all.

Pot cache

Shelby County Sheriff Buddy Glasgow (r), looks over the marijuana that was found Monday near Columbiana. The grower was arrested by DA investigator Bob O'Connor (l) and Sheriff's Department investigator Sgt. Tom Barnes.

Marijuana discovered near Columbiana home

Marijuana with an estimated street value of $4,000 was seized Monday by investigators from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department and the District Attorney's office.

Twenty one year old Terry Pickett was arrested at his home south of Columbiana and charged with Violation of the Alabama Uniform Controlled Substance Act.

The pot consisted of seven plants averaging seven feet in height and 10 plastic bags of the dried plant.

Acting on a tip, Sheriff's investigator Tom Barnes and Bob O'Connor from the district attorney's office, discovered the plants growing in a thicket near Pickett's home.

The bags were found in a trunk inside the home.

Burglars break into Saginaw post office

Burglars did not get into the burglary resistant chest at the Saginaw post office last Thursday.

The outer shell of the safe was destroyed, according to Postal Inspector C.L. Brewer, but the inner part where most of the records are kept was intact.

Brewer was called to the post office when the burglary was discovered at 5 a.m. by the mail truck driver.

Investigation proceeded through the morning, and postal patrons were not allowed inside the building until it was completed.

Postmaster Maurine Hoagland had the post office operating smoothly by afternoon.

No details of the robbery have been made public, and it is not known if there are suspects.

Brewer said the postal service offers a standing reward of up to $500 for the arrest and conviction of each post office burglar.

Thieves set fire to car

Two dune buggy drivers discovered a stolen car near the Boothton slab Saturday.

But before police reached the scene less than 20 minutes later, the car had been burned.

According to Calera police, the black Corvette owned by John Edward Douglas of Calera, had been stolen some time between 7 p.m. and midnight Sept. 19.

CPD officers Robert Walker and C.P. "Red" Johnson, who investigated the case, say that the car thieves must have been stripping the car as the men in the dune buggy approached.

As soon as they left, the thieves apparently set the car on fire to destroy fingerprints and other clues, according to police.

Douglas' vehicle had been parked at the Dixie Super Store in Calera when it was stolen.

The area where it was found, which is on the Cahaba River, is approximately 12 miles from that point.

No arrests have been made, but police reportedly have a lead they're working on.

quently as too high for the small community to afford by itself.

Mary Roach, principal of the Middle school asked where the money could possibly come from to support city services. She said that even if the city boundaries were stretched all the way to Columbiana, there would not be enough people to share the tax burden. She mentioned a fire truck costing $90,000 and someone quickly said, "$150,000 is more like it."

Mrs. Forrest Templin read a prepared statement saying the move to start a town of Saginaw got off to a bad start with a secret meeting. She said, "Someone with nothing else to do has started meddling."

She praised the services the community gets from being in the police jurisdiction of Alabaster. "We have Alabaster water, gas, police and fire. I know they will come, because I've been through it. If we incorporate, they will stop coming."

Bill Cobb, Jr. read a list of business and property owners in the area who he said did not want to be included in a new town of Saginaw or in the City of Alabaster.

Several others, many of them retired persons, spoke out against any move that might increase taxes or regulations. One questioner asked how soon a new town could start receiving revenue sharing.

The meeting ended when a vote was called on the question "Do you favor leaving this area just as it is?"

All but one or two stood up to vote "yes".

24,000 children have visited the "barnyard" each year since it opened in 1974.

"Thousands of city kids will never forget the day they saw cows milked, pigs nursed and sheep sheared," said Sen. Cook.

"There's no way the state can replace that experience with classroom studies," added Rep. Waggoner. "Children in the Birmingham area need to know how important farm animals and those animal's products are to their lives and to Alabama's economy."

Territorial war rages on...

by Marcia M. Sears

The people of northwest Shelby County must be either amused or horrified at the battle currently going on over which doctors and which hospitals will get first rights to treat their bodies.

Brookwood, Baptist Medical Centers and Shelby Memorial have all fought over them before, and now a new battle rages, this time with Shelby Memorial and Brookwood joining forces to fight off the Baptists.

The growing population of the area is a lure, but the fact that the new population is considered to be quite affluent seems to be the real magnet for physicians and purveyors of health care.

The battle began several years ago when the Birmingham Regional Health Services Agency put its foot down on building more hospital beds in the greater Birmingham area. Their position was that there were already more beds than needed, and some hospitals in less favored sections of the city did not have enough patients to pay the bills. Fill up these hospitals, rather than build more, was (and is) their stand. This keeps down the cost of health care for everyone, they said.

With that, a stop was put to the hospital the Baptists had planned for several years to build in Riverchase. There is still a stop order on new hospital beds in the area. Shelby Memorial was allowed to add a few and is doing so in its current addition.

Brookwood and the Baptists both approached Shelby Memorial with ideas to buy the hospital, but the board refused their advances.

Now, a new element has entered the picture, with the BRHSA saying it would consider plans for a 'primary health care center' in census tract 303 (generally called northwest Shelby County).

This has led to the scramble. Whoever gets to build the center will have the immediate advantage in referring patients.

Shelby Memorial did not want to pay out the millions it would take to build the center (doctors' offices with emergency room capabilities) so to protect its future, decided to team up with Brookwood.

Brookwood will advance the money for the building, and rent out the offices to doctors, most of whom are on the staffs of both hospitals. Shelby Memorial would not be out any money, according to administrator Roland Bradford and the two hospitals would cooperate in serving the area.

But the biggest advantage for Shelby Memorial, Bradford says, is that Brookwood has promised to back Shelby when more hospital beds can be built in Shelby County. In a 'memorandum of understanding' signed by both hospital boards, Brookwood will support Shelby's claim of up to 100 new beds and will not file an application for them.

That would insure Shelby Memorial's position as the best located hospital to serve Shelby County citizens, Bradford says.

If the Baptists get to build the new center, it is thought they would eventually get approval to build their own hospital in Riverchase and these beds would not be allotted to Shelby Memorial.

By the end of next week a decision is expected.

Differences appear in hospital proposals

by David Armstrong

Although there are some similarities between the applications for a primary health care facility from Baptist Medical Centers and Brookwood-Shelby Memorial Hospitals, there are also some big differences.

One of the differences pointed out in a summary of the applications released by the BRHSA's technical staff is what the two applications would do for persons who cannot afford health care.

The Brookwood-Shelby plan is to refer indigent patients to the "appropriate facility which receives funds for this type care." For Shelby County residents, the county supported department of health or Shelby Memorial Hospital would be the "appropriate facilities."

The Baptist application, however, says services will be available to persons regardless of their ability to pay.

As for the facilities proposed by the two groups, Brookwood-Shelby expects to spend approximately $2.4 million on a 27,027 square foot complex. 4,200 square feet of the total area is a separate building housing a day care center. Meeting rooms and a pharmacy are also included.

The proposed clinic would house six full-time physicians and office space would also be provided for part-time specialists on a rotating basis. There is room for a full-time dentist, an emergency room, a diagnostic laboratory and radiology services.

The BMC facility would cost approximately $3.6 million for 18,950 square feet. The facility would provide space for 12 practitioners, including room for dentistry. There would be an emergency room as well as laboratory and x-ray facilities.

The Shelby-Brookwood facility would employ the staff at the existing Riverchase Clinic operated by Brookwood. In addition, nine full-time and one part-time employees would be needed.

The Baptist complex would employ 21.6 persons in addition to the practitioners.

Brookwood-Shelby would offer 16 hours per day, seven days a week, emergency services. BMC would offer services 15 hours per day seven days a week with contractual arrangements on site for after hours with Simon-Williamson Clinic, P.A.

Both centers would offer health screening, health education, fitness and out-patient therapy programs.

Brookwood-Shelby would provide shuttle-bus transportation from anywhere in the county to the health center. BMC would offer emergency medical transportation.

The BRHSA's technical committee will consider both the needs of the community to be served and the services offered by the applicants in making their decision, one committee member said.

Folsom leads Stewart Bacon leads Shores only 3,000 cast votes

In unofficial returns, with one or two boxes still uncounted, it appeared that Jim Folsom, Jr. had beaten Donald Stewart for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate among Shelby County voters.

The unofficial count was 1,445 for Folsom, and 1,416 for Stewart in the election held Tuesday.

In the Republican race for Congressman from this district, James E. Bacon drew 91 Shelby County votes and Robert W. Shores had 77 votes.

Probate Judge Tommy Snowden estimated the runoff election cost Shelby County about $6,000. Democratic party official Milton L. Orr of Montevallo remarked, "That figures out to about $2 for every vote cast."

Under The Courthouse Dome

Two choices for adding space for county workers were outlined Monday by county planner Paul Owens to the county commission.

After studying the floor space in county buildings, he said 2,466 more square feet could be added in useful space by installing an elevator in the courthouse annex. This would make easier access to the space formerly occupied by the jail. It would cost something like $52,000 to do this, Owens said.

A second option he mentioned was adding a second floor to the present community facilities building. He said the building was constructed for this possibi-ty. The architect who designed the building told Owens it would cost about $900,000 to do it.

Judge Tommy Snowden said he wants to use the old jail for storage, not build an elevator, and release storage space elsewhere for office space. But Snowden reiterated that he really wants to build an agri-center building, where federal agencies would rent space.

Owens remarked that the trend seems to be a private office for every employee, although in the old days, he said it was quite common for many people to work in one large room.

A committee of Ned Bearden, Jake Morris and Snowden was appointed to study the space situation.

The question of who should control assignments for Top Glenn, county maintenance department chairman, came up at the meeting when Civil Defense Director Bill Tucker mentioned the problem.

Commissioner Harold Davenport said, "Let's clear it up. Today Top has told me he has the air conditioning down in the sheriff's department; a long standing unfinished job in the health department; work to finish in the tax assessor's office, the probate office and the tax collector's office. Everybody wants him all the time."

After long discussion, the commissioners agreed all departments should contact Mildred Ray in the commission office who would compile the list of requests, and Glenn could decide on priorities himself.

Ellis Rich asked how Shelby Memorial Hospital could make agreements with a for-profit hospital, in the pending application for a primary health care center. Commissioners expressed concern that they were not kept informed by the hospital board. Judge Snowden said he had not been invited to a meeting at the hospital for the last couple of years.

A letter from Shirley Ferguson protested the high water rates in north Shelby County put into effect by the Birmingham Water Board. The commissioners passed a resolution opposing the rates, subject to the approval of the county attorney.

A representative of Supreme Beverages asked the commission to change their system of selling stamps for beer. He went into detail about new state laws which he said would protect the tax the county receives, and would save the county considerable money.

Myra Davis and Gary Ray were named as county employees who will canvass other employees for contributions to the United Way.

Engineer Gary Ray reports that county highway 22 from Highway 31 to Dogwood will have to be widened to 22 feet to qualify for federal funds. If the county agrees to it, the project will be eligible for $290,000 in federal funds.

Deputy James Jones reported that leases are running out on sheriff's department cars, and the county voted to buy the cars. On one car, however, Jones said the engine 'blew out' a long time ago and is no longer worth fixing. The county will have to buy it, too.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

The longest cucumber vine I've had in my garden the last four years ran 13 inches under the shade of one bush and dried up and died as dead as a bird's nest.

The next year I built an arbor and planted cucumbers all around it and tore the arbor down the second week in August. There wasn't a cucumber vine in sight.

But I tried again this year. And even if my luck stays the same I'll try again next year.

I guess because, in Puggie's Place on the corner, he had a four gallon jar of Kosher dill pickles. And the sign on the jar, printed in big letters so everybody could read it, said: "Dill pickles--- 60 cents each."

Jesse lost his first garden June 10. We both lost our second gardens August 3. On September 15, when the rain came, Jesse and I were talking about it.

"It was a dilly," I said. "I wouldn't know," Jesse said. "I slept through it."

"We got close to two inches." He waited a minute and then said:

"Reckon it'll kill our third garden!"

I guess it was as bad as it could be. Everybody thought so, and for good reason. And I did too, except for one little part that was the strangest part of it all.

"It wasn't too tough a summer," I said, "except for one thing."

Hubert Kirkland just looked at me without answering.

"If it hadn't rained almost every day and turned cold after each rain, it would've been a fine summer."

Hubert kept looking, with a funny look in his eye.

And then there was no rain and no cold snaps and no Hubert Kirkland.

There was just Leona, standing by my bed and shaking me, and saying: "Wake up, you're dreaming out loud!"

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

You wouldn't think it would be too hard to hang on to a 30 year old pony, would you?

Wrong! My daughter and I had quite an experience last week trying to find the little critter who had just come to live in my pasture.

The poor little thing was going to have to be put to sleep if a home couldn't be found for him.

So my tenderhearted, animal loving daughter volunteered to care for the poor, pitiful thing.

Her act of kindness would benefit us as well, she reasoned, since we too have a 30 or so year old pony who is now alone in the barn. And she thought he'd appreciate the company.

But that was another erroneous assumption.

No sooner was the new pony unloaded, than our ferocious steed showed his dislike of what he must have considered an intruder.

The old gent, who had accompanied my youngest daughter through 4-H Horse Club days, laid his ears back, bared his teeth and gave the new arrival to understand he'd rather be alone.

So the guest apparently went looking for a friendlier welcome.

When my daughter went to feed him the other morning, he couldn't be found.

And there wasn't a trace of him as we searched through the high grass and in the nearby woods.

"What will we tell the little 80 year old lady who owned him if she calls to find out how he is?" my daughter wailed.

"Let's call the police station," I suggested, "since they'll probably know if a pony has been found."

And that turned out to be the case. No sooner had the call been placed, than we found out where our escape artist had strayed.

It turned out, that in a strange chain of events, the runaway had traveled through a subdivision and wound up at my granddaughter's nursery school.

For some reason that we still don't understand, she didn't recognize him, so one of the ladies who works there took him home with her.

She solved the problem of getting him to where she lives by tying a cord around his neck and then climbing into the trunk of a car.

The little guy must have had more stamina than we thought because he trotted along behind the vehicle all the way to the other side of town.

And there we found him, safely enclosed in a dog pen.

Apparently he had found a friend, too, because the little Beagle, enclosed on the other side of the pen, howled woefully when we led him away.

Not able to bear any more escapes through our unreliable fences, we took the little guy to a stable where there are several horses.

Hopefully, at least one of them will like him.

In the sheriff's office

A radio dispatcher at the Shelby County Sheriff's Department can finally breathe a sigh of relief.

After passing a test required by the Law Enforcement Personnel Board, Elsie Carter is now a permanent employee in the position she's held since 1977.

When it was learned her CETA time had run out in April, Carter was made a temporary employee until qualifying tests could be set up.

That four month period ran out this month, so at their Wednesday night meeting, the board voted to hire Southeastern Consulting Services Group to administer a test for service clerk-radio dispatcher.

Since the test was designated for just temporary employees, Carter was the only person eligible to take it.

But the board plans to have other tests drawn up soon for the 73 applicants who would like to work for the Sheriff's Department and for employees who want to advance in rank.

Personnel Board Chairman Teddy Brasher stressed the fact that all tests would be in the possession of the firm that draws them up.

He noted that this will eliminate any pressure being put on board members to help a specific applicant.

It was brought to the panel's attention that some long-time employees with a break in their service had questioned the possibility of their entire service time being counted.

It was noted that the men had left during the last election campaign when former Sheriff C.P. "Red" Walker was running for reelection to the office.

And it was also mentioned that they had been hired again when the present Sheriff, James F. "Buddy" Glasgow took over the reins of the department.

There was some discussion on how the situation was handled with State Troopers but since no one had exact information, the panel agreed to do further research.

Board member Dot Scruggs said she didn't think an employee who had been gone over a year should be able to have prior time counted.

But due to the fact that anyone seeking employment must now take a test, even if they have previously worked for the department, it was pointed out that employees might think twice before leaving.

Joel Rochester, Kevin Shanahan and David Nichols attach special equipment to the grill of Montevallo's emergency rescue truck. The truck was delivered last week and is being prepared by members of the volunteer rescue unit.

ISS came, saw and conquered

Six students of Latin from the Indian Springs School, competing with students from all over the U.S., distinguished themselves in competition at the National Junior Classical League.

The performance of these six students was such that the state of Alabama won first in the nation in academic points scored per pupil attending the convention. While students attending the convention averaged 4.4 academic points each, Alabama had an average of 8.9, with Indian Springs students scoring an average of 22.66.

Foremost among the Indian Springs winners was senior Charles Vance, who amassed 52 academic points, winning first in the nation in both Latin IV translation and vocabulary. Also, while competing with students who had 2 years of college Latin, Charles was awarded the coveted "Best in the Show" ribbon in the area of Latin reading comprehension.

Sam Heldman, an ISS sophomore, scored 38 academic points, winning second place in Latin III vocabulary and third place in both Latin grammar and derivatives.

Ben Hunt, another sophomore, won first in the nation in Latin II reading comprehension and third place in the Pentathlon, a special contest that assesses the students' ability in five areas of knowledge of the classics.

Eighth grader David Hunt, freshman Jimmy Geyer and sophomore Celia Fulton netted 20 academic points in vocabulary and reading comprehension contests.

John B. Lusco is the Latin teacher at ISS, a position he has held for several years.

Lusco is a native of Birmingham, where he first studied Latin at Ramsay High School. He holds the B.S. degree from Birmingham-Southern College and the MAT degree from the University of Montevallo.

New officers and members of the Board of Directors of the Central Civitan Club were installed last week. They are: Troy Lawley, Charles Oden, Dan Acker, Hank Russell, Bill Morris, Joe Murphy, Thomas Morris, Lane Clayton and Donald McClure.

UM enrollment up two percent

Full-time student enrollment at the University of Montevallo this is up by about two percent, UM President Vickrey reported today in a memorandum to the Board of Trustees.

"Total full-time enrollment is now estimated to be about 2300," he said, "up slightly over last fall's comparable figure of 2263. That figure is about what we expected and is consistent with our Mission and Goals commitment to 'slow, steady growth.'"

Total "headcount" enrollment (full-time plus part-time students) is down slightly as compared with the fall of 1979, he also reported. "But, not only is that result not surprising," he stated, "it, too, was planned. We have led the way in Alabama higher education in voluntarily curtailing off-campus programming. As a result, we are phasing out major course offerings at Jefferson State Junior College and in Pelham. A reduction in part-time student enrollment is an inevitable result of that decision."

Methodist church holds special week

A religious emphasis week will begin Sunday at the First United Methodist Church of Montevallo.

Messages at the four services will be delivered by Rev. William E. Curl from the First United Methodist Church in Huntsville.

Sermon titles for the series, which will begin at the 11 a.m. worship service, will be: "Watch Out When He's Down," "You Have to Believe...and Work, Too," "God, Gimmie a Dream," and "Last Chance."

Rev. Curl served as a pilot during World War II. He received degrees from Birmingham Southern College and Emory University in Atlanta.

Pastorates he has served have been in Oxford, Vestavia Hills, McCoy in Birmingham and First Church in Tuscaloosa.

He has also been District Superintendent of the Florence District.

The public is invited to the services which will be held nightly through Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Special music will be provided and there will be a nursery at each service.

"GOD IS ABLE"

"NOW UNTO HIM (GOD) who is able to do exceeding abundantly more than we ask or think, according to the power that works in us....." (Eph. 3:20,21).

GOD, in His absolute capacity, is omnipotent. Since, however, God has limited Himself; the possible with Him exceeds the actual.

GOD'S ESTABLISHED ORDER, according to His written revelation, is respected by Him. He is not going to set this aside, and be controlled by the desires of people.

FOR EXAMPLE - God is able to provide "eternal salvation", but the "how" has been fixed by Him. Christ is "the source of eternal salvation to those who 'obey' him." (Heb. 5:9).

GOD PROMISES forgiveness on the condition that we desire it and will "obey" His commandments. (Mk. 16:15,16; Rev. 22:14). He promises to purify the soul, if we desire it and will "obey" the truth. (1 Peter 1:22,23; John 17:17).

GOD WILL DO what He promises, when we do what He commands.

Read this warning from the Better Business Bureau before you cancel or switch any life insurance policy.

The Better Business Bureau of Birmingham recently published a warning about life insurance sellers who are recommending that consumers cancel or surrender their existing insurance and replace it with a policy usually called "deposit term." Here's what the Better Business Bureau had to say:

Seldom has any subject prompted more telephone calls to your Bureau than that caused by the promotional efforts of several local insurance agencies. These agencies are promoting "Deposit Term Life Insurance." Callers have usually been contacted by a friend (often recently licensed) and a request has been made to "survey" the callers' present insurance policies. If supplied to the salesman, the policy information is fed into a computer which digests the pertinent information and generates an incomprehensible report, which when synthesized usually concludes that the customer's present policies are inadequate.

Then the fun begins. The newly licensed friend (sometimes deeming himself a financial advisor) just happens to have the panacea for all the prospect's needs. He recommends his plan, which is term insurance and which may be cheaper than many other type plans, and recommends investing the difference in cost in a paralleling investment of some type. In general the prospect is told that he or she is being offered a new, innovative product. The prospect is told that if he will pay an extra premium or place a deposit with the insurance company, that he will receive a policy with extremely low term rates and his deposit will be returned to him at the end of 10 years "doubled," "income tax-free" provided certain criteria are met. This marketing statement should and does sound good to the prospective insurance buyer.

Once the policyholder has converted his policy, he is often invited by his friend to attend an indoctrination meeting in hopes that he too will become an agent....

If you are contacted by a "friend" who wants to perform a survey of your policies, the following tips may be helpful to you. (Your friend may discourage one or more of the following tips.)...

1. Contact your present insurance agent, and closely compare benefits of both your present policy and the one you are being offered. Find out what benefits you may lose when you switch.

2. Make sure you get an accurate comparison statement between your present policy and the offered deposit term policy, which may also be known as modified premium renewable term. [*] Verify the comparison statement with your present agent.

3. If the difference between the price of whole life insurance and deposit term insurance will be invested for you, determine the details of the investment, and find out if promised returns are guaranteed or are estimated.

4. If the salesman represents himself as a "financial planner," find out if this means he is a certified financial planner, who may have a permanent insurance license, as well as be licensed to sell securities and real estate, and be knowledgeable about tax shelter programs. If he is not, ask about the salesman's license, experience, and training.

5. If you have decided that term insurance is the best buy for you, comparison shop the different types of term insurance and ask your present agent to prepare a proposal for you.

6. The deposit term insurance offered to you may actually be modified whole life, which may convert automatically at the end of the term to a whole life insurance policy, unless the term insurance is renewed. If this is the case, ask the salesman why, if whole life is so undesirable, he is offering a deposit term policy that automatically converts to whole life.

Before signing any contract, follow a simple rule suggested by your Better Business Bureau, "Investigate Before You Invest."

*The deposit-term type of policy may also be called modified whole life, modified premium term, or sometimes simply term. —L.N.

Postmasters take trip to Los Angeles, West

Four Shelby County postmasters were in the group of Alabama postmasters attending the national postmasters convention in Los Angeles early this month.

Maurine Hoagland of Saginaw; Helene Oliver of Wilsonville, Charlie Faye Moore of Sterrett and Becky Hyde of Westover were the postmasters in the group. Mrs. Hyde's husband, Olan, and her parents, Bernice and Roy Stephens of Vincent accompanied them.

Dick Ozley, retired postmaster of Columbiana and his wife,

Pelham Baptists sets special program

A special Jewish-Christian program will be presented on Sunday, September 29, at the Shelby Baptist Church on Highway 31 in Pelham.

Speaking at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services will be Rev. Ben R. Alpert, Southern Field Evangelist for the Friends of Israel Gospel Ministry.

Pastor Bobby D. Williams and his congregation invite the public to share this unusual program with them.

Seminar planned for home buyers

The 'home buyers seminar', sponsored by the real estate companies that operate in Shelby County, will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday at Pelham City Hall.

According to Don Murphy, publicity chairman, the purpose of the seminar is to offer help to the public in ways to buy or sell a house. Everyone is invited. It will be a free and open public meeting with information freely provided. Talks will be given by local realtors and questions from the audience will be welcome.

All of the local real estate companies will participate. Known as the Shelby County Caravan, the group is part of the Birmingham Board of Realtors.

Billie Wildman is chairman of the seminar. Door prizes and refreshments will be offered.

Cairns Stadium named Friday

The official dedication of the Ricky M. Cairns Memorial Stadium will take place Friday night, September 26, at Oliver Park. The naming of the football stadium is in accordance with a resolution passed by the Calera Town Council after the untimely death of Mr. Cairns, principal and former coach at Calera High School.

The ceremony will take place before the Calera Eagle and Jemison Panther football game. All former students and friends are invited to attend.

Louis J. Cardinale, Director of the Federal Aviation Administration's Southern Region, will conduct a "Listening Session" at 7:30 p.m., on Tuesday, September 30, in the Air National Guard Auditorium, 5700 East Lake Boulevard, Birmingham, Alabama. The general public is invited to attend.

'Greening' off to good start

Columbiana's mini park praised

Mrs. Karl Harrison, chairman of the Columbiana Beautification Board, is singing the praises this week of all those who helped in the board's first project.

She said that without the help of Mayor Bob Bolton, the city council, the businessmen and women and the citizens, the new mini-park by the post office could not have been built.

She notes this is an "excellent beginning for the 'greening of Columbiana.' "

City maintenance man James Palmer and his staff were in for special praise for maintaining the new plantings during the record hot summer. Mrs. Harrison noted, "Ask any of the beautification board members who volunteered to do some of this watering if this was not a real hot and exhausting experience."

The board now wants to get started on one or two more of the sections of the proposed city beautification plan as proposed by landscape architect Nimrod Long.

Mrs. Harrison hopes that more contributions will come in to help with this, adding that the work needs to start this fall so the plantings can be put in at the right time.

Correction made

It was reported in last week's issue that five EMT's who had recently completed their basic training had applications in with the Calera Rescue squad.

The Reporter was informed this week that the information was not correct. Only one of those who took the EMT course had put in an application with the Calera unit.

ISS boots most National Merit Scholars

Each year the National Merit Scholarship Corporation awards about 4,500 scholarships to high school seniors from every state in the nation. The corporation has just released the names of semifinalists.

Indian Springs School, with 13 semifinalists out of a class of 35, has one of the highest, if not the highest, percentages of any school in the entire United States.

The Indian Springs semifinalists are as follows: Daniel Cherner, William Coplin, Lisa Dean, Chip Dillars, Joseph Farley, Michael Madden, Sam Pointer, Karen Shepard, Joseph Shin, and Vastine Stabler—all from the Birmingham area; Edmund Kim from Florence; Peter Bain and Jonathan McLelland from Tuscaloosa.

A list of other schools, number of semifinalists and total enrollment is attached.

National Merit Finalists will be announced in February and National Merit winners in April.

SMH names staff officers

The Shelby Memorial Hospital medical staff has reelected all three of its officers from last year. The elections were held during the September general staff meeting.

Harry Phillips, M.D., will serve his second term as president of the staff. The Auburn graduate studied medicine at UAB and has been at SMH since 1962.

Helena native Thomas Nolen, M.D., will serve his second term as staff vice president. He attended school at Indian Springs, Emory University and the University of Tennessee medical school, and has been at SMH for six years.

Both Drs. Phillips and Nolen conduct general family practices at the Columbiana Clinic P.A.

Barbara Roy, M.D., who has been at SMH since 1977, studied medicine at the University of Alabama and has done aerospace research in California. She will serve a second term as secretary/treasurer.

All three doctors expressed enthusiasm about SMH's building plan and the potential it holds to better meet the medical needs of the area.

Around the county

by Becky McDonald
From Pelham to Belize, Central America. That's where Phil and Gail Stamm of Pelham have gone. Their friends will be glad to know that the family is well and getting used to the snakes and spiders. Phil will begin to teach at King's College this month.
Louanne's former classmates from Pelham High are invited to visit her in Belize City. If you're looking her up try the library at King's College.

Kristi's teachers from Valley School will be happy to hear that she is anxious for school to begin. Oddly enough the boys, Ty and Joshua, will be taking correspondence courses. It seems that there isn't a school close enough for them and Gail will have to oversee their studies.

The Stamms are adjusting to only 2½ hours of electricity a day and are eagerly attacking any work that needs to be done.

As missionaries they are excited about the Bible Institute they plan to open in January.

If you'd like to fill them in on home news their address is: Box 209, Belize City, Belize, C.A.

Charlotte and Dan Bigger are already looking forward to spring. By then they hope their dream house will be built and they'll be moving to Quail Run subdivision in Pelham. Young Danny and Brandy Bigger are especially excited about the new swimming pool they'll have.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Wilkes Hammond, Jr. of Panama City Beach announce the marriage of their daughter Maurisa Mayo Heidi to James Kim Chapman.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Hammond of Calera and the late Mayo Pardue Hammond of Keystone.

The groom's parents are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles T. Chapman of Tallahassee.

The vows were said on Monday, September 8, in the presence of the immediate families at the home of the groom's parents.

Miss Hammond was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister Ladelle Jane Foster Hammond of Birmingham. Colonel Chapman served as best man for his son.

The groom is associated with Roth, Inc. of Atlanta. The bride is attending Samford University in Birmingham. In the fall, a Nuptial Eucharist will take place at St. Marys-on-the-Highlands, Birmingham.

The couple will honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands.

Several Shelby County residents have been named to the honors list for outstanding scholarship at University College, The University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Recognized for receiving all "A's" during the spring quarter at UAB were Kathy Puckett, Misayo Heacock, Mary Humphrey, Sharon Swater, Robert Sobel, Nancy Dokoozian.

Also named to the Honors List for outstanding scholarship were Karyl Rusmussen, Mary Whitten, James Lucas, Dewey Garrett, Gale Farr, Howard Davis, Kristina Hearn, Debra Hodges, Debbie Grubbs.

home with a big swimming party are already in the making.

The first Assembly of God has a new pastor. Rev. Bob Loveless and his wife Elsie have been in Columbiana for the past four weekends. Rev. Loveless says the church is found at the end of Meyers street and 'Although it is hard to find it's not easy to forget.'

They plan to park their motor home near the church on weekends and return to Huffman during the week.

Mrs. Loveless attended Vincent high school and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Oliver, reside in Chelsea.

Jeff Falkner of Columbiana and Frank Griffin of Alabaster have just returned from a four day fishing trip. Plans have not yet been announced for the date of the fish fry but the grapevine has it that several friends can't wait for that mouth watering meal.

Freshmen Randy (Zull) Springer, Steve Parsons, Scotts McGuire and Gerard Johnson came home to Pelham last weekend. After dropping their laundry off at home they headed to Thompson's football game.

They returned to Jacksonville State University last Sunday, equipped with enough clean clothes and goodies to last them at least two weeks. Then it'll be back home for another football game and more of Steve's mother's chocolate chip cookies.

Our girls recovered from the flu last week. But for 5 days I had to make an extra trip to school to give them their antibiotic.

On Monday I spent an hour preparing the baby and myself before going to school. Other than pulling John Michael out from under several desks, the trip went well. On Tuesday I spent that same hour dressing us with care. Finally with the baby, the pink bottle and two spoons in hand I headed for school.

I parked the car and turned to pick up John Michael. Streams of pink ran from his chin down into his shoes. After stripping him down to his diaper and wiping him off with my skirt, I grabbed him and the half empty bottle and hurried into the school.

The next few days he chewed up someone's crayons, threatened to jump off the stage, and managed to mess up his diaper 30 seconds after we entered the building.

By Friday we both looked like hippies but the whole trip including dressing took 15 minutes. I'm hoping that this will work like a booster shot and the next flu season will pass us by. Until next week I'll be seeing you around the county.

Parents of the groom are Mrs. Bert Seaman and James D. Seaman of Montevallo.

Vicki Barnes was maid of honor and Frank Lightfoot served as best man.

Dr. Ross Maroney, pastor of Gallion Baptist Church, officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

After spending a honeymoon in Daytona, Fla., the couple will be at home in Montevallo.

SCHS plans big reunion

Alumni of Shelby County High School are invited to a reunion after the homecoming football game Oct. 3.

The reunion will be in the school lunchroom. Refreshments will be served and 1930, '40, '50, '60 and '70 will receive special recognition.

For more information call Darlene Story at 669-7118.

Mrs. Jay Falkner of Columbiana recently participated in a golf tournament in Costa del Sol, Spain.

Sponsored by the National Senior Sports Association, the event was held on three championship courses in that country.

During the nine days she spent abroad, Falkner also visited Tangiers, Morocco.

She was accompanied on the trip by her sister, Mrs. Roland Bolton of Scottsboro.

Pvt. Eddie D. Staffney Jr., whose parents live on Route 5, Montevallo is attending infantry advanced individual training with the 1st Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kan.

Students receive training on the basic weapons used in a squad and platoon.

It was a long day in Saginaw Maurine Hoagland would just as soon not go through another day like last Thursday.

It started off at 5 a.m. when she was awakened from a sound sleep with the news that the Saginaw post office had been broken into.

Since she is the postmaster at Saginaw, she threw on some clothes, and with her hair still in curlers, rushed to the post office.

There she found successive waves of investigators - the Alabaster police, the county sheriff's deputies, and soon the official postal inspectors. She was instructed not to open the post office to the public until the investigation was completed. With a rope across the front of the building, and signs posted, she had to hold off the community's postal patrons until afternoon and assist the inspectors in dozens of ways.

The public, of course, was eager to know all the details of the break-in, and bombarded her with questions. But she was bound to silence by the postal inspectors and spent the afternoon giving out 'no comments.'

After a short break for supper, it was time for the big community-wide meeting to debate the idea of incorporating Saginaw as a city. Having been part of the community for many years she felt it was vital to take part in the hearing, voicing her ideas, and listening to those of others.

When that meeting broke up about 9:30, she could finally end her day, saying, "I'm anxious for tomorrow to come. It just can't help but be better than this one."

Exceptional center PTO meets

Jerome Turner of Vincent was elected president of the PTO at the Shelby County Center for Exceptional Children.

Elections took place at the September 15 meeting. Other new officers are: Gayle Blackman, Alabaster, Vice president; June Harper, Calera, secretary-treasurer; and Sylvia Lucas, Montevallo, events chairman.

The meeting was an open house for parents to meet the teachers and tour the school. Jackie Davis, president of the local chapter of Association for Retarded Children, attended the meeting and encouraged parents to join the ARC.

The group also discussed the bazaar that is planned for the Pelham Mall on November 22.

EDWARD ALBEE

Top dramatist to be at UM

Contemporary dramatist, Edward Albee will be on the University of Montevallo campus Oct. 15 and 16. Albee will speak, lead workshops and see a local production of his play, "A Delicate Balance."

"A Delicate Balance" will be presented by the UM Theatre Department Wednesday - Saturday, Oct. 15-18.

Albee received his first Pulitzer Prize for "A Delicate Balance" in 1967. A second Pulitzer Prize was awarded to Albee in 1975 for "Seascape." In 1979, his "The Lady From Dubuque" was produced on Broadway.

Albee's most frequently performed play, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" has been made into a movie and translated into many foreign languages.

Two workshops, which are open to the public, will be conducted by Albee. The first workshop will deal with acting and directing, and the second will concentrate on creative writing. Anyone wanting to participate in the workshops should contact Rude at 665-2521, ext. 413.

Albee will speak and lead a discussion in Palmer Auditorium Thursday, Oct. 16. The lecture, which will begin at 10 a.m., is open to the public.

Council passes on problems

Two Columbiana residents will have to talk to members of the new city council who take office next month if they intend to pursue their requests.

Mrs. Adelle Edmondson had wanted concrete poured in a ditch at her home on Center Street. And Pete McMath had asked for curbing to be removed near his home on Depot St. so he could put an entryway into a flea market he plans to open.

Nothing was done about either request. McMath, who was present at Thursday's council meeting, was told he must first see Hilry King about rezoning the property for business.

King is chairman of the city's Planning and Zoning Board.

It was mentioned that putting concrete in Edmondson's ditch would cost approximately $800 and the matter was dropped.

When bills for repair work on the house behind the Shelby County High School football stadium were presented, the panel didn't feel it was their responsibility to pay them.

After the Gaines Farmer house was donated to the city, it was turned over for use by the athletic program at the high school.

It was reported that one of the SCHS coaches is now living there.

The council agreed that the Quarterback Club should either take care of the bills or pay rent for the house.

All but one member of the panel went along with a request for two additional poles and lights at the running track.

It was reported that the cost of lighting had gone up and City Clerk Mary Largin said that the city now has a $600 monthly bill for street lights.

Pointing out that it was this type of extra expense that wrecked the city's budget, Councilman Bill Seale voted against the request.

In other business, the panel approved off premises wine licenses for three stores. The beverage will be sold at Piggly Wiggly, Green's Food Center and IGA.

Councilman Harold McCord mentioned a situation he termed dangerous at the intersection of Depot Street and Hwy. 25 which leads to the middle school.

At the council's first meeting of the month, Columbiana attorney Conrad Fowler was named municipal judge to replace John Ferree.

The Alabaster attorney is moving to the west coast.

Approval was also given at that meeting to grant a cable TV franchise to the Satellite Company represented by Clark Dean.

Cordova bootie keeps Vincent unbeaten

The pressure...

...and the interception

Under pressure from Brian Hartsfield (50), the Blue Devil quarterback rushed this pass (top) and Scott Wren made the interception to set up Vincent's final score. Wren, who suffered a minor concussion from a hard lick earlier in the game, told his coach that all he remembered of the game was something about a kickoff. Wren was reported to be doing fine Monday evening. (Photos by Moore)

On QB keeper

Coosa Valley nips Faith

Quarterback Mike Norred dashed off a 70-yard keeper in the fourth quarter against Faith Christian to give the Coosa Valley Academy Rebels a 6-0 win Friday night on the road.

It was a must win for the Rebels who have an eye on the private school state playoffs this year. Now 3-1 on the season, CVA stands 3-0 in 2-A district play.

The 6-0 win also credits the Rebel defense with their second shutout in as many games. Two weeks ago they sent Lee hobbling home with a 42-0 lashing.

Friday night the Rebel defense never let the Faith team inside their 20, turning away all threats before they got too serious.

Eric Davis helped out the defensive effort with some effective punting, too, booting the ball out of bounds once at the five and once at the one.

But it was a defensive struggle all around and Faith stopped Coosa Valley several times inside the 30-yard line. The Rebels helped the Faith defenders, however, with several untimely penalties.

Norred's TD romp came on a first down option call after a Faith punt to the CVA 30. With Greg Adair, Jim Haney and Davis throwing key blocks in front of him, Norred opted for the keeper and ran for paydirt. The PAT failed, but six points proved more than enough to pay the fare.

"It was a big win for us," CVA head coach Mark Green told the Reporter. "But we just barely squeaked through."

As might be expected, Green was more than a little pleased with his team's defensive effort. "They pitched a shutout and you can't do any better than that, he said."

This week the Rebs play host in Harpersville to Glenwood, a 2-2, 3-A competitor who beat Chambers 27-6. Chambers handed CVA their only loss of the year, 20-19. Furthermore, CVA has never beaten Glenwood.

"It's certainly a challenge," Green said of the upcoming game. "I hope we rise to it."

Calling signals

Coosa Valley signal caller Mike Norred (2), shown here against Shelby Academy, scored a 70-yard touchdown run last Friday against Faith to give the Rebels a 6-0 district win. (Photo by Armstrong)

The solemn thud of the bass drum sounded, appropriately enough, like a funeral dirge as the Cordova band marched into the Blue Devil "bowl."

Meanwhile, at the far end of the field, the visiting Yellow Jackets from Vincent huddled together. One of the players started chanting, "We want some bootie - some bootie - some Devil bootie!" His teammates quickly joined him and the chanting grew loudly into one deep voice.

Head coach Harold Garrett joined the huddle. The players quieted but a certain feeling hung thickly in the evening air.

"Okay. You gotta' go 4-0 before you go 10-0." Garrett paused, looked around at the eager, knowing eyes which stared back at him from behind scarred face masks. "Get some bootie!"

So they did.

Vincent upped its perfect record to four straight, handily whipping Cordova 28-7 in a road game Friday night.

The Jackets were quick to make their first sting. After taking the opening kick at the 22, QB James Oden hit Dwight Spradley for two completions to help move out to the 45.

Then, with a second and ten, Oden called on speedster Sidney Yowe who broke outside and turned on the juice for a 55-yard touchdown run. Rodney Driggers booted the PAT and Vincent was quickly in control.

The Jacket defense, led, as usual by Bobby Howard, with help from the likes of Brian Hartsfield, Johnny Isbell and Travis Thomas, kept the Blue Devils' offense flustered in the early goings. But the Cordova defense did some work, too.

After one Vincent punt, kicker Driggers played off a head-on block and made a classic, open field tackle to save a possible TD return.

Two back to back turnovers by each team in the second quarter came out to Vincent's advantage, thanks to an interception by Robert Maske and a fumble recovery by Maurice Kelley.

The Jackets finally took over at the 49. With the help of a 15-yard penalty and the running of Yowe, Vincent was at the goal line in ten plays.

"We drove a long way to whip ya'll, Blue Devils!" yelled Vincent fans from the fence as Spradley scored from the one. Driggers booted the PAT, making the halftime score 14-0.

Vincent started their first possession of the third quarter at their own 28 and scored in seven plays. Yowe picked up 29 yards in three runs and Oden connected with Driggers for 29 yards to the one. Spradley bulled it over for the TD and Driggers drilled the PAT.

The only question left was the final score.

After a fumble recovery by David Peterson which ended a Cordova drive, Vincent was unable to move it and punted away. But Blue Devil Scott Sandlin took the punt behind a wall of blockers and ran it back 60 yards. The PAT made the score 21-7.

On Vincent's next punt coverage, however, Dennis Datcher won the "ring-around-the-collar" award, catching Sandlin with an arm tackle around the neck as he ran by.

Vincent's game capper came with about two minutes left in the fourth. After fumbling the snap, Oden picked up the ball and dashed off 60 yards for the TD. Driggers kicked true, making the final 28-7.

Off the field, Jacket Gary Slaughter was chanting, "Four, N-O! Four, N-O!" His teammates were starting in with him when Garrett joined the huddle and quieted the excited players.

"You folks don't realize just how good you can be," he told his players. "If you'll bust your tails you'd be the best that's ever been at Vincent!"

When the cheering quieted again, the coach told them they would take a few days off practice since they have an open date this week. None of the players cheered the news. After taking a break they'd come back and REALLY go to work, Garrett announced. The Yellow Jackets went crazy cheering.

"Them young'uns are tough!" Garrett commented to the Reporter as his boys filed noisily into the visitors' locker room. "Maybe we don't have THAT much talent, but we've got something..."

Garrett was searching for an elusive word. He settled on "oneness."

"They're always trying to help one another out. That's the best thing about them," he added. "It's better than the winning."

Paydirt bound

Vincent's Sidney Yowe (41) stunned the Cordova crowd early in the first quarter when he took a handoff from QB James Oden (15) and ripped 55 yards for paydirt behind blocking by Kent Norwood (52) and Dwight Spradley (35).

Eagles get last laugh on Winterboro trip

The Calera Eagles shocked an overly confident Winterboro team Friday night with a stunning 18-0 key area win.

Winterboro, last year's area champ, fresh off an upset over 3-A B.B. Comer, was allegedly acting overly cocky before game, taunting and laughing at the visiting Calera players.

Actions such as these have a mysterious way of flying back around and smacking one in the face. Last Friday night poetic justice flew on the wings of Eagles.

Calera's last laugh got started midway into the first quarter when Raymond King blocked a Winterboro punt and returned it 29 yards to the 11. Four plays later Tim Loftin barreled over for the touchdown. The PAT was blocked, but the home boys were a little bit shocked.

A further indication that the night was turning sour on Winterboro came when Terry Hall intercepted a pass and returned it to midfield. Hall fumbled there and on the same play Winterboro picked it and ran for a TD. The TD, however, was nullified by an illegal block.

Calera's 6-0 lead still stood at the half and even lasted through the third quarter.

Although the offense was not able to generate a lot of yardage or any points during this time, the Calera defense played their regular brand of tough football which is earning them a reputation.

As the clock ticked away the fourth quarter, the game was looking a lot like the typical close shave for Calera, until they began driving from their own 40.

The drive was kept alive by a clutch third down play in which Loftin caught a tipped pass from QB Ricky Winterbottom good for 22 yards. Five plays later Hall carried for 10 yards to the one.

On the next play Loftin scored the TD. The try for two failed, but with three minutes left Calera had broken Winterboro's haughty spirit.

The Eagles, however, weren't yet through with their lesson. A few moments later Larry Johnson tackled the Winterboro quarterback, jolting the ball loose. Mike Roberson picked up the fumble and ran 34 yards for the final Calera touchdown.

Linebacker Kirk Ross made an interception at the end of the game, killing Winterboro's attempt to save the embarrassment of a shutout.

Calera head coach Danny Alverson, who never even brought up the subject of the pregame jeering, attributed the win to the team's week of hard practice. The Eagles shutout effort came after a 7-0 loss to 3-A Pelham and as Alverson put it, his players are beginning to believe in themselves.

"It was a big win for us. We just played a super defensive game and the offense started moving the ball.

"We were fired up," Alverson continued. "Everybody was super!"

Richard Russell was Calera's leading ground gainer with 70 yards in 19 hauls. Defensive standouts in the overall good team effort were John Killingsworth with 12 tackles, Steve Bearden, Cliff Smith, Johnson, Ross and Roberson.

Now 2-0 in area play and 3-1 on the year, Alverson and company will take on Jemison at home tomorrow and try to avenge a 7-0 loss to them last year.

During a special ceremony Friday night, Calera's football field at Oliver Park will be formally dedicated to the late Ricky Carins.

Chelsea checks into wrong hotel

The Chelsea Hornets checked into Heartbreak Hotel last Friday night. They lost a 6-0 overtime decision to Talladega County Training School.

The Hornets had plenty of scoring opportunities during the game, but time and time again inconsistencies, mental mistakes and turnovers killed their drives. In the end there was nothing to do but check in at the desk and pick up a key.

On their initial possession Chelsea moved quickly down to the 30, but a 17-yard loss on a fumble forced the punt.

Head coach Daryl Burnham attributed Chelsea's fizzle on their next drive to mental mistakes, and a drive in the second quarter ended with an interception at the TCTS 28.

But all this time the Hornet defense played tough enough to allow only one first down in the first half.

The defense got a good testing early in the third quarter when TCTS, with the help of two major penalties, drove to a fourth and goal from the six. But Jack Shaw, Chris Thomas, Tommy Jones, Tim Rich and Keith McCullers refused to give up the score.

Chelsea then drove to Talladega's 32, only to have another pass intercepted.

Chelsea recovered a fourth quarter fumble at the TCTS 30, but in four plays moved only eight yards.

Marty Thomas blocked a Tiger punt in the closing minutes of regulation time to give Chelsea a last chance, but the Hornets bogged down at the TCTS 30, leaving the game deadlocked at 0-0.

TCTS won the OT toss and put the ball in play at the Chelsea 10. On fourth and six their runner bounced off a pileup in the middle and skirted around the outside for the TD. The two point attempt failed.

In their turn, Chelsea moved to the three in as many plays. But on fourth and the game, TCTS pressured QB Randy Kennedy and the pass went incomplete.

"It could have gone either way," Burnham commented afterwards. "It was a real good game defensively, but we can't get the offense going. We're going to check their oil and see who wants to play."

"I made some poor play selections, and we had bad blocking and running. It all goes back to the coaching. We don't want (to win) bad enough."

Noting that the Hornets had been stopped eight times this year inside the 20, he added, "If we'd scored on half of those we'd be undefeated."

Friday is homecoming at Chelsea and the 0-3 Hornets will be checking their frustrations out of Heartbreak Hotel to tangle with 0-4 Montevallo in a make-it-or-break-it area match.

Guest football pickers gaze through crystal darkly

Crystal ball gazing is tricky business. Ask Jimmy the Greek. Or ask some of the Reporter's guest high school football forecasters. They'll tell you about those smudges on the crystal.

The safest teams to pick so far have been Thompson and Vincent. They haven't let anybody down yet. Montevallo's a different story, however, having crossed eight pickers in the first four games.

Last week's forecast saw our pickers miss on 35% of the games, the worse pickin' so far. September 5 was just as bad with 34.28% of the picks missing.

Pelham jeweler Gene Scott batted a perfect 1.000 in the first week's picks. That week saw yours truly post an all time low of 3-3. But I bounced back the third week and joined Scott in the 1.000 club.

Last week I missed two picks, giving me an overall standing of

Since we're all sports writers you can take this week's picks with as much salt as you care.

But there's still five picks to go.

Candid Camera may never roll into Shelby County, but don't be surprised if one day your phone rings and I say, "Smile, you're a guest football forecaster!"

Raiders edge Demopolis 7-0

For half a ball game the Shelby Academy Raiders and the Demopolis Generals duked out a 0-0 tie. But things changed enough at the beginning of the third quarter to give Shelby Academy all the scoreboard advantage it needed.

After the kick, the visiting Raiders set up shop at their own 30 and started driving. Brendon McClary and QB Dirk Carson did most of the ball hauling, eating away at hash markers in three and four yard bites. There was little the Generals could do to stop them.

Then, on second down from the 20, senior running back Clifton Garrett took an inside lead behind the blocking of Mark Andrews and McClary, and blasted all the way for the game's only touchdown. James Knowles kicked the PAT to give Shelby Academy all the points it needed to make the long bus ride back home both rowdy and happy.

The SA defense came up with three turnovers on their way to recording their second shutout in as many games.

Tackle James Knowles, who played a lot of the game in the Demopolis backfield, recovered a fumble at the SA 35 to end the Generals' first possession. Late in the second quarter Garrett intercepted a bomb at the SA 5, and in the third quarter Alan Terrell made an interception on a key third down play.

Other defenders noted by head coach Harry Rawlinson as having played well were Matt Andrews, Bobby Cooper and Ken Ray.

"It wasn't a good game - it was a close game," Rawlinson later said. "We didn't play outstanding, but of course we were playing a good team."

"It was a big game for us. It put something more into us for future games," he added.

Now 2-1 on the season and 1-1 in their 2-A division, Shelby Academy faces Southern Academy tomorrow at home.

Thompson track needs hand

The Thompson coaching staff is asking all Warrior fans to help with the new track now under construction around the football field.

Donations of money, supplies, equipment or time will be greatly appreciated and will benefit the building of a track program at Thompson.

Basketball coach Eddie Williams noted last spring that since Thompson is a leader in Shelby County sports, he didn't see any reason why they couldn't have the best track team around. All they needed was a track.

This longtime Thompson dream is now becoming a reality, but much help is still needed. If you're interested in giving the Warriors a hand in the expansion of their overall sports program, call coaches Larry Simmons, Donnie Kennedy, Eddie Williams, Billy Woodham or Ricky Seales at 663-2862.

TIP OF THE WEEK

If you had trouble with your furnace last winter, now is the time to call us and let us fix the trouble or install a new furnace, or gas conversion burner if you have oil. Don't wait until cold weather. Do it now!

For quick drying nail polish, put your hands in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator. The polish will set hard in a few seconds.

Thompson whips MHS

A TV report Friday night posted the score of the Thompson-Montevallo game at 62-0. The report was inaccurate. Thompson only won by a score of 34-6. Only?

"They whipped us," MHS head coach Richard Gilliam stated. "There's no other way of putting it."

Gilliam's bright spot of the week was that the Bulldogs hit better than in their previous three losses. But the glimmer was dim.

To the Bulldogs' credit, Thompson didn't score until five and a half minutes into the game. But after that the game was a controlled runaway with MHS feeding the potent Warrior offense with mistakes.

An interception by Charlie Griffin at the THS 29 gave Thompson the ball midway through the first quarter and they set to driving. Fourteen plays later Arthur Johnson blasted in from the five. The PAT missed, but the die was cast.

Early in the second quarter Johnson picked up a bouncing punt at his own 32 and ran it 68 yards for a TD. Rod McDade scored the two point conversion and Thompson pulled away to 14-0.

Three minutes later Warrior QB Chuck Woody spotted Joe Glass all alone and lobbed him a pass good for 45 yards and another touchdown. John Durrett added the PAT.

Less than a minute later Glass recovered a fumble at Montevallo's 19. One play later Woody waltzed it in from the 16. Durrett booted true and the score was suddenly 28-0.

In the third quarter Warrior linebacker Rick Long snatched up a Montevallo fumble and dashed 15 yards for Thompson's final score of the evening.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, McDade and Bulldog Scott Studdard wrestled with a David Melsoni bomb and McDade won. Thompson moved the interception out from the 11 but fumbled on the Montevallo 33 and J.J. Moore recovered.

Melsoni, just off the injury list, moved the 'Dogs down to the 18 where Howard Gaddis came in and relieved at QB. On the next play Gaddis dropped back ala Statue of Liberty play; Tim Jones did the cherry pickin' and ran it in for a TD. The PAT missed and that was that.

Had Warrior Arthur Johnson played more than two quarters and a few plays, the score might have been a little closer to the false television report. Then again, Johnson, who averages roughly 200 yards and 20 carries per game, only picked up 53 yards in ten carries against Montevallo.

As it was, Thompson scored plenty enough points to remain undefeated at 4-0, and plenty enough points to drop MHS to 0-4.

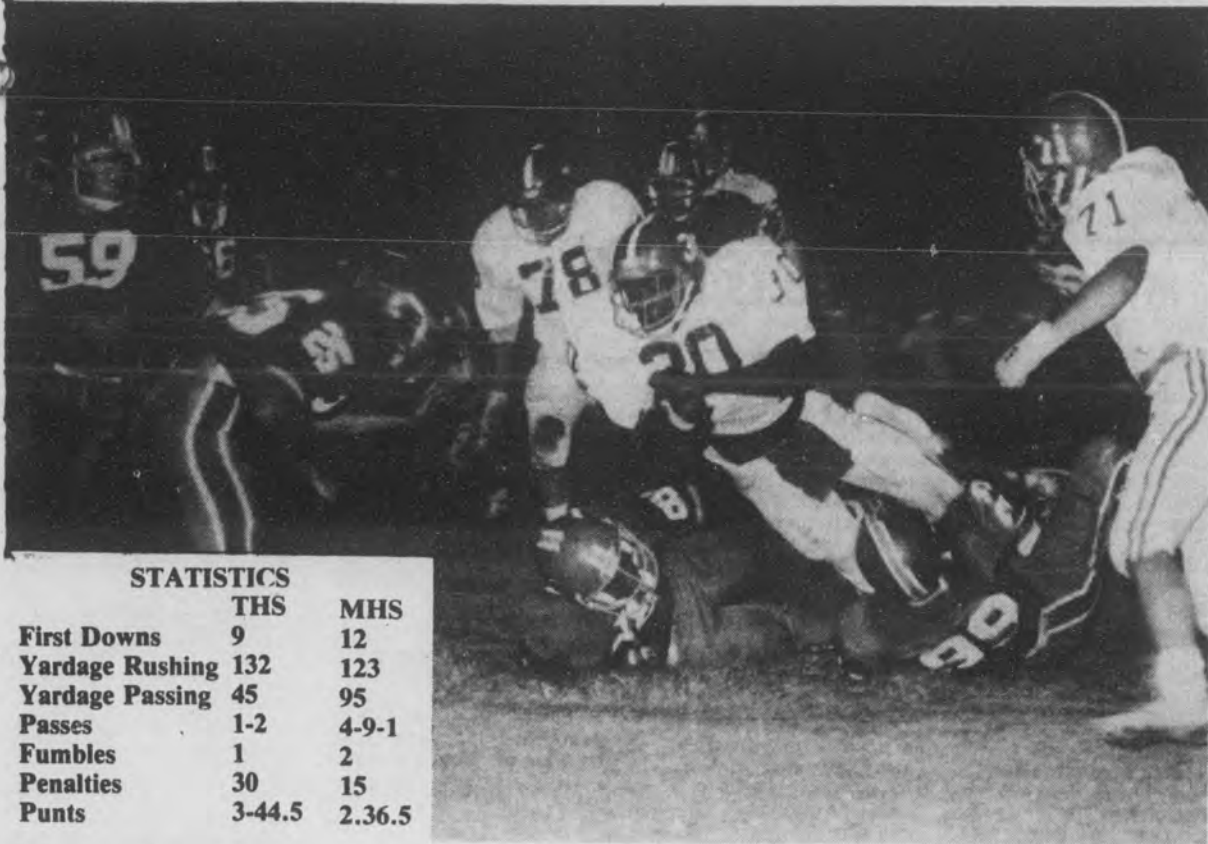

Thompson football mentor Larry Simmons noted that he got to play a lot of boys but added that he was still looking for more consistency in the Warriors' overall performance, especially on defense.

"I was glad to win," Simmons said. "I thought coach Gilliam's players stayed in there and showed no signs of quitting."

Billy Lawley led the defense with 10 tackles and Mark Barnett and Glass did a good job on the offensive line, Simmons noted.

Gilliam said his offensive guards and tackles played their best game yet. He noted Studdard for his defensive play and two receptions and Tim Jones for his 47 yards in seven carries.

This week the 'Dogs join the winless Hornets to take part in homecoming at Chelsea. Meanwhile, Thompson plays Shelby County for the first of six straight area games.

Pelham finds 'PC' surf rough

If the Pelham Panthers would ever put together two consecutive halves of football, they'd probably rate somewhere between great and awesome. But...

"We just haven't put two halves together yet," lamented Pelham head man Steve Rivers after his now 2-2 Panthers fell 18-7 last Friday at Pell City.

"We whipped them for three quarters. But the first five minutes we could have stayed on the bus and done about as good," he continued. "We just didn't get ready to play. That's poor preparation on the coach's part. That's my fault. We can't go places like Pell City and not be ready."

A preseason pick as a strong area contender, Pell City had lost its first three outings but was ready to pounce on opportunity.

And opportunity was quick to knock. The Panthers fumbled on the first play and PC took over inside the 30.

If any of the Panthers had the notion that "PC" stood for Panama City and this road trip was a vacation, Pell City quickly changed their minds. PC scored in five plays to lead 6-0.

PC took its next possession on the far 40 and easily drove for the TD in eight plays. Although they missed the two point conversion, Pell City led 12-0 with barely four minutes gone in the first quarter.

After that PHS started playing their tough, Panther-brand defense. Despite a fumble Pelham lost near midfield, Pell City didn't threaten again until late in the game.

But on the other hand the Panther offense never really held any blades to Pell City's neck either, even though Pelham had several possessions around midfield, including one on an interception by Greg Olvey in the second quarter.

The third stanza was sung much the same as the second, with the Pelham defense carrying the melody.

But at the beginning of the fourth quarter, QB Steve Rye got things going from his own 30 with 16 yard keeper and a 15 yard pass over the middle to Chris Whitfield.

Then from the 38, Rye hit Tracey Swinney in the end zone with a touchdown bomb. Jud Halcomb booted the PAT and the score was 12-7 with nine minutes left to change things.

PC did a good job of backing up the Panthers, however, giving them punts to the eight and one yard lines.

On their next two possessions Pelham failed to convert two key fourth down plays. Pell City took the second of these and turned it into an eight yard TD run on the last play of the game, making the final 18-7.

Pelham will now have to pick up the pieces and put together four quarters of football to take on the road against Bibb County Friday.

Shelby County 'Cats fall to B.B. Comer

"We played good in spots, but we neglected to use our heads. The mental mistakes killed us," commented Shelby County head coach Larry Molton, sorting through his Wildcats 29-6 area loss to B.B. Comer Tigers.

"When we made a mistake they just man-handled us and whipped us. To sum it up, we made too many mistakes to win the football game," Molton said.

The home team Tigers took SC's initial punt and drove 80 yards for their first score. The two point conversion attempt failed.

Shelby County bounced right back, however, starting with a kickoff return by Randy Lewis to the Wildcat 36.

QB Ronald Benton hit Thomas Simon twice in the air, Daron Burns picked up ground yardage and Comer tossed in two penalties to move SC to the 15 in nine plays. Benton then hit Simon again, this time on an out route for the TD. The attempt at two failed.

The Tigers nearly broke the ensuing kickoff for a TD but got stopped on the 'Cat 40. Shelby County's defense gave up nothing more - at least not until later in the second quarter when Comer's big backs again got loose, drove for the score and added two extra points.

The halftime score of 14-6 held through the third quarter.

But the turning point of the game came in the closing seconds of that period when Comer picked off a second down Benton aerial at the SC 30 and returned it to the 12. The following touchdown and PAT made it 21-6 early in the fourth.

CARD OF THANKS

A very special thanks to all of our friends and relatives during the illness and loss of our loved one, Inez Starnes. Thanks for the beautiful flowers, cards, visits, phone calls, food and prayers.
We Thank You,
Charles Starnes Family

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of our husband, father and grandfather Clarence Simmons who passed away 3 years ago Sept. 24, 1977.

It has been 3 years since you went away. But we have loved you more with each passing day. We know you are gone. But in our hearts you live on.

Your wonderful smile your witty ways are memories that help us make it through the long days.

Wife Bertha daughter Sarah Nellie Grace sons Jimmy and Bobby Grandchildren

In Memory of Larry Pemberton Now that Larry's task is over

Now the battle day is past Now on the farther shore Land our dear one at last.

There the tears of earth are dried There the hidden things are clear There the work of life is tried By a greater Judge than here.

Earth to earth and dust to dust Calmly now the words we say Left behind we wait and trust For the Resurrection Day

Father in thy gracious keeping Leave us now our Larry sleeping Wife and Children Linda, Scott and Angela

In loving memory of our son, Larry Pemberton who left us 2 years ago, Sept. 24, 1976. We miss you dear, as much today, as the day you left us.

There's an open gate at the end of the road Through which each must go alone

And there is a light we cannot see Our father claims his own Beyond the gate, our loved one finds happiness and rest

And there is comfort in the thought That a loving God knows best.

Father and Mother Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Pemberton

In memory of Phil Kirkpatrick Flying to the Stars Come on and fly with me to the stars, Up so high that you don't know who you really are. Now my friend fly with me to the sky, for in this land there's no sorrow, no tears to cry.

Come on and fly with me to the stars, You have everything to gain, You won't ever feel any pain, So come on my friend and fly with me to the stars.

Come on and fly, fly on, we're up so high We never ever gonna come down. (Except for a quick peregrinate (or journey))

We remember you, Phil, by this poem you left. Your mother and sister

Kewa Hunting Club now combines with Kingdom Wildlife Preserve. 6,115 acres of excellent hunting & fishing on Lay Lake. For application call now 669-6823 Mike Cox or 822-6200 Bill Payne
